U. S. Bill Would Take Citizenship From Those Living Outside Borders.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—The United States House Immigration Committee approved today a bill which would prevent persons from commuting across American borders to work in this country. The ban would apply to American citizens residing in Canada or Mexico as well as to aliens.

The committee also approved a bill to take away citizenship of Americans who vote in foreign political elections or in a plebiscite to determine the sovereignty of a foreign territory.

YOUNG'S POINT

SUCCESS SCORED BY RUMMAGE SALE

Enjoyable Event Sponsored By St. Aidan's W.A. Followed By Party

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 29.—On Monday afternoon a very successful rummage sale, under the auspices of the W.A. of St. Aidan's church, was held in Young's Hall and in the evening a card party and dance under the same auspices was a jolly affair. Ten tables of cards were played. Prizes were won by Mrs. E. C. Moore, Mr. Jas. Carroll, Mrs. Melville Miller, Mr. Chas. Merrill and Master Rodger McNaughton. Dancing was enjoyed with music supplied by the Wilson orchestra.

On February 8th, Monday evening, there will be another card party and dance under the auspices of St. Aidan's church in Young's Hall.

NORTH SCHOOL

Owing to the recent sleet storm the country roads have been very dangerous for motor traffic.

Miss Lena Buchanan spent the week-end with Mrs. J. Scott and family of Elgin.

Mr. William Elliott and son Albert are cutting wood on their farm, formerly owned by M. J. Comstock in Asphodel.

Mr. Alex Simpson spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson of Trent River visited friends here on Tuesday.

Boy Is Injured

Allan Baker is gradually improving after his recent fall. Allan, en route to school one morning recently, fell and hurt his back. He crawled on his hands and knees till he was nearly exhausted. His younger brother hurried on to school for help.

Miss Lena Buchanan spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs Chas. McConnell.

Mrs. E. White of Peterborough spent the past week with her brother, Mr. P. Fitzpatrick, who is recovering from his recent illness.

Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. G. McNeely and family on the sudden death of Mrs. McNeelys uncle, Mr. James Griffith, who passed away at the Cummings Nursing Home, Havelock, on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. McLaughlin and Misses Emma and Julia spent Wednesday evening the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McConnell.

SLOT MACHINES SEIZED

BLENHEIM, Ont., Jan. 29—(C.P.)—As a result of a statement of Ralph Cudney, 17, in court, police last night seized three slot-machines two from a hotel. The owners will appear in court today on charges of operating a common gaming house.

Curney, convicted two weeks ago on a charge of theft of $22 from the office of T. Howard James, said he had spent the money in slot machines. On promising to leave the machines alone and to join the Boy Scouts, he was released on suspended sentence.

Catarrh Often Causes Head Noises.

Catarrh is such a common ailment and develops so slowly that considerable damage is done before one realizes its seriousness. Loss of taste and smell, a lazy, let-down feeling, cloudy thinking are symptoms of catarrh. Sometimes the hearing becomes impaired to such an extent there is partial deafness. The ears have a full, stuffy feeling in the morning and there are roaring, hissing noises in the head. If you have these symptoms, they should have immediate care.

For this purpose secure from your druggist a bottle of Parmint Concentrate (double strength) which is an old reliable English formula. One ounce of Parmint Concentrate will make 8 ounces of medicine by adding a little sugar and water.

Parmint Concentrate is a convenient home treatment for those symptoms which lead to catarrhal deafness and distressing head noises and should be used by everyone who has this trouble. Any druggist can supply Parmint Concentrate and you can easily add the sugar and water to make a big bottle of the medicine. It is an excellent preparation and is widely used by our English cousins. If you have symptoms of catarrh, don't run the risk of letting it become so deep seated that you may become totally or partly deaf.

1,000,000-VOLT X-RAY TUBE BUILT LONDON HOSPITAL

Great Tube Installed In London Hospital Weighs Ten Tons

BETTER THAN RADIUM

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The new Mozelle Sassoon X-Ray Therapy Department at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, which was inspected by the guests after the opening ceremony performed recently is unique. It is the finest installation of its kind in the world.

It is "built round" the great X-ray tube, 30 feet long and weighing 10 tons, which is designed to produce a beam of greater penetrative power, higher intensity and shorter mean wave-length than has yet been used for the treatment of cancer. It will operate at any voltage from 250,000 to 1,000,000 volts, the highest constant voltage ever employed for healing purposes.

The X-ray chamber, through which the middle part of the tube passes horizontally, is equipped with a movable floor which can be raised and lowered by pressing a button, so that the range of the beam may be varied widely. The couch upon which the patient lies makes possible a great range of smaller adjustments.

A microphone stands by the couch so that the patient may talk to the nurse or doctor outside the chamber.

It is impossible for a doctor safely to keep the patient under direct observation during treatment, but this difficulty has been solved by an ingenious arrangement of eight curved mirrors. They pass a reflection through a small aperture, heavily protected, in the top corner of the chamber, down to the observer's desk.

The safety position is automatically assumed by the apparatus whenever a door of the chamber is opened.

Better Than Radium

Further precautions for the protection of the operating personnel appear in the composition of the walls of the chamber and generating rooms, which are built of interlocking blocks of barium concrete. The doors of the chamber are of heavy steel plate, designed to prevent radiation leakage.

No therapeutic X-ray tube of an equal efficiency exists in the world to-day. There are only three or four tubes which can work with over 500,000 volts, and, in the British Empire, the next most powerful is that in the Cancer Hospital, in Fulham road, which can work up to 400,000 volts.

In America, at Pasadena, a tube exists which has been operated with 1,200,000 volts, but with a fluctuating potential. It cannot sustain 1,000,000 volts, and in any case it is chiefly used for physical research.

The Bart.'s installation can provide a range of radiation which includes all but the very highest of the gamma rays of radium, and an unofficial speculation puts its intensity on an equality with that which would be produced by far more radium than can at the moment be assembled in one bomb.

It is certain that the Bart.'s tube will achieve a much greater efficiency for healing purposes in all cases of deep-seated cancer, but for this it must be "run-in" like a new car.

Perhaps of greater ultimate importance are the facilities it will give for acquiring new knowledge, by investigation and research. But no speedy discovery is to be expected from its use, and it will probably be five years at least before its full value can be announced to the world.

CENTRETON

Among those from here who visited Cobourg on Saturday were Mrs. J. A. McAuley, Harold McAuley, Rev. W. H. H. Bromwich, Mrs. Simmons, Miss Marie Millar, Mr. J. Gillespie, Miss F. Coffey, Mrs. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. R. McKenzie and Nora, Mr. and Mrs. S. McBride.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Barkar and Mr. and Mrs. T. Hope of Fenella spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. Hope and Mr. and Mrs. J. Merriam.

Mrs. F. Etcher spent the tea hour on Saturday with Mrs. S. Coffey.

Several of the villagers attended the dance at Baltimore hall on Thursday night.

While cutting wood at Mr. F. Slade's woods with another friend Arnold Hope had the misfortune to have a stick fly and cut his lip. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stewart attended the Stewart and Timlin wedding at Roseneath on Wednesday and also had tea with Rev. T. W. Scott.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 51

A SLEEP and a bath at the Abbey restored Selden, and when he came down to find that Sylvia had been successful and that the maids had rather shamefacedly returned and were busy putting things in order, he smiled with satisfaction.

They gathered in the study which had witnessed such grim scenes, and waited for the arrival of Hutchins from Grinfold with James. The twins were being made much of in the servants' hall, when Hutchins arrived with his prisoner.

He was short in his manner, and was not too pleased at the instruction he had received from Selden that handcuffs were not necessary, and that Hutchins might bring James alone. He was further ruffled when Selden shook James' hand and bade him be seated at the table, round which they had drawn up their chairs. There was an atmosphere of eager expectancy, and all eyes were fastened on Selden, who carried in his hand a budget of papers.

"Now, James," he said briskly, "are you going to tell us the whole story?"

"It would be much better and simpler," the detective said coaxingly.

"I have been arrested for murder," James said, "and you made no effort to release me. If you know anything, you had better speak."

There was an unconscious dignity about the man, and they felt that nothing could move him.

Hutchins moved restlessly. "I'd better take him back to Grinfold. I always felt that this was a mistake."

"Wait, Hutchins. I had hoped to have James' story first, but, as he won't speak, I must tell you what I have done in this case, and then perhaps he will have no hesitation.

"I want to make two matters clear to you all," Selden began. "You have at present nothing but my bare word that the murderers of Sir Henry Severinge, and the would-be assassins of the children, are the persons I claim them to be."

Hutchins nodded. He alone knew what accusation Selden had made against Hucks and the woman who had called herself Mrs. Thornton. James had been kept in entire ignorance of the events of the night before.

"The second point is one that I know has rankled in your minds, all of you. If I knew anything, why did I not confide the information to you, and save you grave anxiety and a good deal of puzzlement? There again I hope to reassure you, but I can tell you right away that the absolute proof only came into my hands yesterday."

The little party were very silent now, and their eyes were fixed intently on the young detective.

"I am afraid I shall have to tell this in my own way, but you will not find it boring, I can assure you.

"When I arrived here, brought summarily from Scotland Yard by Colonel Graham, I had an absolutely open mind, and knew nothing beyond what he imparted to me on the journey.

"You all know the actual facts, so that there is no need to go through them again. I carefully recorded everything in my diary, which I have here. Here are my conclusions, the end of the first day's investigations.

"The murder had been very carefully planned some time before. There was no question of burglary or of a sudden attack by a stranger, for the murderer not only knew the house perfectly well, but all about the crypt, and what perhaps was the strangest thing of all, the fact that in that particular coffin there was only an urn, and no body. That was vitally important. It ruled out any chance visitor to the Abbey, and in a small village like Evenden strangers in the neighborhood would be soon noticed, far quicker than in London or a large town. There was one stranger, however, who had been noticed. I mean Jack Reid, and I made a note of that fact. But Reid had unconsciously ruled himself out."

He smiled across at Jack as he spoke.

"He had himself suggested that the bloodhounds should be employed. Now what murderer in his senses would take all these very elaborate precautions to conceal the body, and then immediately suggest the means of discovery?

"The Colonel I could not rule out, but his immediate use of bloodhounds, his high-handed attitude, and his coming straight to Scotland Yard caused me to have doubts. Later, when I learnt of his terror of attack, which had existed for a long time, remember, I came to the conclusion, logically enough, that both he and Sir Henry were afraid of someone, and that the fear must lie in the past. If that were so, then two facts emerged—that there was some discreditable secret hidden in their past lives, or they would seek police protection, and that they must know from whom the attack was likely to come. I don't mean actual names, but someone who had a very deep grudge against both men. That is clear enough?"

"Very clear," Hutchins said, casting an eye at James.

"No, Hutchins," Selden said, answering the look rather than the words, "that is where you were wrong. Let's take our friend James. At first sight he satisfied the conditions of knowing the house and its secrets, and also the past—don't forget that. But there was one obstacle that made me dismiss James very clearly from suspects; James had a complete alibi."

"No, James—not the alibi that accounts for one's absence from the scene of the crime, but the fact that you had been with Sir Henry for a long period of years, covering the time when this mysterious fortune appears on the scene, which I think any man of average intelligence would know must have some connection with the crime. Now, James was deep in Sir Henry's confidence, wrote all his letters and even signed his name, I found that out. Sir Henry had given written authority for him to do so to the family lawyer. Colonel Graham would not barricade his house against James, who had free access at all times, and Sir Henry would hardly have kept a man of whom he was in deadly peril as his confidant and friend. Nor would James be inclined to risk his neck when he knew that Sir Henry was leaving everything to him; in fact made out the will himself."

"Yes, Mr. Livingstone told me that the same writing had always been used in all the letters he had received, and he had concluded that Sir Henry had paralysis or some impediment which prevented him from writing, and which he wished unknown.

"But James played an important part in this business. On the night of the murder he was rung up by Sir Henry on his private wire, and came to see him in this very room. What took place I don't know, but James placed the candlestick in Lady Severinge's bedroom for some reason." He cast an inquiring look at the butler, who remained silent.

"All right, then; perhaps he will tell us later. But James stood to benefit by the will, and in fact inherited an enormous sum, and yet stayed on here as butler, and was trying to do everything he could for Lady Severinge and the children. And don't forget, James was not in any fear of personal violence.

"There could be only one explanation to my mind, however bizarre that appeared—that the money did not belong either to Sir Henry or James."

The silence in the room was oppressive—the people round the table hardly dared to breathe. Sylvia was sitting close to Jack Reid, and he had grasped her hand in his, for she was trembling as much with expectation as with the narrative that brought the past up so vividly.

"Such, then, was my position," Selden went on without emotion, after calmly lighting his pipe from the fire with a spill.

"The investigations must lie in the past. Someone in the house must have been an accessory, if not the murderer, for how else could he have access to the place at night?"

"There might have been a secret way in," Hutchins said.

Selden laughed. "There was, but the murderer never came that way. I took care of that. Now just think—Sir Henry went down that passage, unarmed and in pajamas, to his death; he, a man who feared attack—would he go like this to keep an appointment or from idle curiosity? It came to me, and I am right—that he had been in the habit of going down to the chapel. Mrs. Thornton let that out to us, Hutchins. Then the murderer had probably been waiting his chance for night after night until it came."

"But why that night particularly?" Reid asked, with a meaning that only Selden comprehended.

"Ah, there we are touching on another and deeper matter, but I will come to that all in good time."

TRENT RIVER

Mrs. M. E. Knox of Picton and son Ronald of Peterborough attended the funeral of the former's uncle, William Griffith, on Friday.

A Correction

In a recent publication of the following item: "Mrs. Edwin Hubie received the sad news last week of the death of her brother-in-law, Mr. Wilford Gunter." This was a mistake and should have read: Mrs. Edwin Hubie recently received the news of the serious illness of her brother-in-law, Mr. Wilford Gunter, in a Toronto hospital.

A laughing jackass, a bird living only in Australia, found at Whangarei in New Zealand, is believed to have been blown by storms 1,200 miles across the Tasman Sea.

UNCLE WIGGILY WINS THE PRIZE

"See him go!"

"What a jump!"

"That's the longest jump ever made in the whole world," said the program selling police dog at the snow races. "I've been here a long time," he went on to the Frost Toad and Quiffy, who claimed to be the champion snow jumper. "I've been selling programs at these snow jump meets many years," barked the Police Dog, "but I never saw a longer jump than Uncle Wiggily is making."

"And the funny part of it is," said Quiffy to the Frozen Toad, "he wasn't supposed to jump at all. He was supposed to watch me."

"I hope you count me in," croaked the Frozen Toad, who was like a Summer one except he liked icicles for breakfast and didn't mind the cold. "I was to be in the race."

"Of course you were," crowed the roosted starter. "But Uncle Wiggily is going to get the prize, I think. None of you chaps can jump as far as he did. Not even Quiffy."

Sails Through the Air

"No, I can't," admitted the funny animal who had hind legs like those of a kangaroo. "Uncle Wiggily beats me. I brought him here, or, rather, he brought me here on his ice cake boat, to watch the snow jumping races," said Quiffy as he and the others watched Uncle Wiggily still sailing through the air over the big snow field.

"Then it all happened so suddenly I don't know what to think," said Quiffy. "What did you think, Frozen Toad?"

"I think there is no use jumping against Uncle Wiggily," croaked Frozen Toad, who was quite jolly in his own way. "But what made your friend, Mr. Longears, all of a sudden decide to take part in our jumping race, Quiffy?"

"I can't imagine," said Quiffy.

"I can tell you," crowed the rooster, who seemed to know everything. "Look!" He pointed to the foot of the hill where Uncle Wiggily had taken off, so to speak. Running down the hill were the three Bad Chaps—the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat. "I think they don't like Uncle Wiggily," said the Rooster.

"Your're right, they don't," said Quiffy. "He told me about them on our way here aboard the Ice Cake, which is the name of our boat," he went on. "They're always after him. That's why he jumped so far and suddenly."

"Well, he made a better jump than I ever saw before," said the Rooster, "so I am going to give him the prize when he gets back."

"Maybe he'll never get back," said Quiffy. "He is still jumping."

Bad Chaps Come Racing

This was true, for Mr. Longears was still in the air. Meanwhile the three Bad Chaps came racing down the hill.

"I wonder why they run so fast?" said Quiffy. "Just as if some one was chasing them."

"There is. Look!" cried the Rooster. And, surely enough running after the Bad Chaps was Mr. Whitewash, the Polar Bear. He had landed from his ice cake and followed Uncle Wiggily. And when Mr. Whitewash found the Bad Chaps were after the rabbit of course he took after them.

As soon as the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat saw the Bear they jumped to one side, turned somersaults in the snow and disappeared. But Uncle Wiggily had made his big jump and won the prize.

So everything was just fine and no one had to stay after school. But if the Christmas card will give the typewriter a new ribbon for a Valentine, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and happy Quiffy.

OMEMEE

CEMETERY BOARD WILL BE HEADED BY R. H. JOHNSON

REPORTS FOR YEAR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Jan. 29.—The annual meeting of the Emily Cemetery Company was held in the council chamber of Coronation Hall on Monday afternoon, with the following directors present: R. H. Johnston, president, in the chair; B. Sanderson, E. Switzer, D. Weir, H. J. A. Jones, G. Griffin, W. Magee, S. B. Carew and H. Lamb.

The auditors' report for 1936 was presented by the secretary-treasurer and on motion of Mr. Weir and Mr. Sanderson, was adopted. This concluded the business of the directors for 193 and they retired. L. Lamb was asked to take the chair for election of directors for 1937.

Moved by D. W. Wilson, seconded by J. J. Williams, that the directors of 1936 be reappointed, namely: R. H. Johnson, B. Sanderson, E. Switzer, D. Weir, H. J. A. Jones, G. Griffin, W. Magee, S. B. Carew, H. Lamb. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Magee, seconded by Mr. Carew, that R. H. Johnson be president for 1937. Carried. Moved by Mr. Carew, seconded by Mr. Switzer, that H. Lamb be appointed secretary-treasurer for 1937. Salary $75. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Carew, seconded by Mr. Magee, that Wm. Evans be reappointed caretaker for 1937 at 30c per hour. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Jones, seconded by Mr. Griffin, that J. J. Williams and Charlie Mills be appointed auditors at $2 each. Carried.

Committee Named

Moved by Mr. Weir, seconded by Mr. Jones, that Mr. Carew and Mr. Griffin be a committee to interview Mr. Morcombe regarding the use of his lowering device and grass, on the storage of his equipment in the tool house at the cemetery. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Weir, seconded by Mr. Switzer, that Mr. Griffin and H. Lamb be a committee to have trees and shrubs planted in the cemetery and that they be given permission to spend $25. Carried.

A by-law fixing the remuneration at $2 to each director attending a meeting of the Emily Cemetery Company to transact business the said meetings not to exceed two in number in any one year, had its several readings was passed, signed by the president and secretary and sealed.

Moved by Mr. Magee, seconded by Mr. Sanderson, that the secretary-treasurer be authorized to have a galvanized box made and placed in the bank vault with valuable papers and records enclosed. Carried.

Twenty-five Burials

The reports showed that during the year of 1936 there were 25 interments at the cemetery, 23 adults and 2 children. Six monuments were erected and a number of headstones and markers put in. Three half-lots were sold and in addition to these one full lot and two half-lots were placed under perpetual care. We now have under perpetual care 29 full lots and 68 half-lots, 5 quarter and 6 single graves.

The caretaker filled in along some walkways that were low and if this work is continued the ground will have a much better appearance. The committee appointed to have the ground torn up and levelled along the front fence completed about half the portion. The ground was found to be very stony but a liberal amount of grass seed was sown and a good catch was secured. The caretaker has been conscientious in his work and the directors should be pleased as we receive commendation from both lot owners and visitors on the well-kept appearance that the cemetery presents.

Financial Statement

Receipts: Balance from 1935, $743.32; opening graves, $138.00; sale of lots, $134.00; For perpetual care, $175.00; interest, $218.00; installing foundations, etc., $42.75; lot owners' upkeep, $348.85. Total, $1,798.92.

Expenditures: W. Evans, caretaker, $362.60; extra men, work, $78.40; invested, $600; cement, earth, $36.95; flowers, bulbs, $16.48; repairs, improvements, $18.65; exchange and postage, $23.31; solicitor's fees, $3; sale of lots for owners; $25; markers, inscriptions, $8.75; secretary-treasurer, $65; cash in bank, $661.78. Total, $1,798.92.

Total Investments: Province of Ontario, $500; Toronto Savings and Loan, $500; Public Trustee, $900; Victoria Trust, $3,650. Total $5,550.

OBITUARY

JAMES GRIFFITH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 29.—The death of James Griffith, of Havelock Road, occurred early Wednesday morning, January 27, after an illness of one week, at the age of 75 years. A week prior to his death he was seized with a weak spell at his home and was taken to the home of Mr. George McNeely and later was removed to Havelock hospital, where he passed away.

Born in Donegal, Ireland, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith, he came to Canada when very young, with his parents, and settled on the Harper farm, Donegal (now owned by Mr. Arthur Hendren). Of a family of ten, seven girls and three boys, the deceased was the last member. After the death of his father he resided with his mother on his farm at Harper's Point, later moving to the place on Havelock Road, where he has lived for over 15 years. The funeral was held Friday afternoon from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George McNeely, Belmont township. Service was conducted at 2 o'clock by the Rev. S. A. Kemp, with interment at Norwood cemetery.

War Debt Envoy?

Reportedly ready to confer with President Roosevelt on war debt problems, Sir Otta Niemeyer, director of the Bank of England, has arrived at New York on a projected tour of the United States. A fellow Briton, Walter Runciman, president of the British board of trade, arrived several days earlier.

ASSESSMENT CUT IN LINDSAY $50,000

Town Authorities Are Still Not Satisfied And May Enter Appeal

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 29.—The county council Wednesday night concluded its week's battle with the county valuators over the equalization of the county. The valuator's report was accepted with the following changes: Lindsay was decreased by $50,000, although its representatives held out for $190,000; Mariposa was increased $85,000 and Fenelon decreased $35,000. Reeve Horn and Deputy Reeve Baker of Lindsay, and Reeve Devitt of Bobcaygeon opposed the by-law. There is some talk of Lindsay entering an appeal.

Called to Lindsay

Rev. Wolfrain, M.A., B.D., of Janetville, has been called to the pastorate of Queen street United church. He was the unanimous choice of the congregation.

For Flood Victims

Victoria County Council has voted the sum of $100.00 to help the destitute victims in the U.S. flood area.

Jailed for Theft

Magistrate Langley of Peterborough, on Wednesday in the local police court sentenced a Minden man to twenty days in jail on the charge of stealing $20 from his aunt, who came to his home to work for him as housekeeper. The accused made restitution. It is understood he made a payment on a car with a portion of the stolen money.

OFFICERS CHOSEN BY EMILY SYSTEM

Annual Meeting Of Telephone Company Hears Reports For Last Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, Jan. 29.—The annual meeting of the Emily telephone system was held Wednesday. The business of the previous year was reviewed and the minutes of the last meeting read. Everything was found satisfactory. The officers were appointed for this year as follows: Samuel Carew, John Thorn and Henry Carroll, commissioners; Milton Sherin and Alvin Perdue, auditors; Horace Hill, secretary. Samuel Carew was chairman for the meeting.

ATTACK IS MADE

dollar, and on the strength of that advice the council had "let the two bylaws go to the people."

Effect On Peterborough

Alderman Dutton asked what effect the action outlined by Alderman Gordon would have on the outside world. Peterborough was anxious to get new industries, but the two motions contained the element of repudiation of agreements made with the De Laval and Raybestos companies, "and we have been hearing quite a lot about repudiation lately."

"I think the effect would be bad," Alderman Hamilton said.

"The last two or three manufacturers who have located in Peterborough were obtained largely through the co-operation of the other manufacturers of the city," Mayor Macdonald stated. "If you lose that co-operation you are just about through so far as getting any others."

Aided By Factory Heads

Alderman Dutton said that Robt. Abbott of the Raybestos had told him that this company was attracted to Peterborough because of the favorable impression gained from the manufacturers who were already here. Mayor Macdonald said the same factor influenced the Johnson Motor Company to come here.

"The president told me they came here because this was an Anglo-Saxon community and the city had hardly any labor trouble." Alderman Gordon replied.

"We almost lost the Johnson Motor Company," Alderman McIntyre recalled. "They had an 'ad' in a Toronto paper looking for a site, but that very night we sat around a table with them and they promised to come to Peterborough and look over the city."

"The only mistake we made was in the renewal of fixed assessments," Alderman Wilson said. "They are all right for ten years, but they shouldn't be let run for forty."

Praises Executives

Alderman Glover—My experience with the manufacturers of this city is that they are the finest group of executives you will find anywhere.

Alderman Gordon—I agree with you.

Alderman Glover—I think they are trying to live up to their agreements. If the council has made any mistake we can correct things for the future.

Alderman Gordon — You can't speak for the people ten years from now. We may not be here then.

Alderman Glover—I know I won't.

Alderman Gordon mentioned the failure of Lakefield to renew the Canada Cement Company's assessment, and Ald. Glover remarked that if the relations with the company had been different the plant might be in operation today. They were working at other plants. Something had happened.

The Lakefield cement was suited for construction purposes because it was almost white, Ald. Gordon said. When conditions improved there would be more demand for it. At present the company was talking of tearing down part of the cement buildings and modernizing the plant.

The C.G.E. Power Lease

Ald. Gordon's motion relating to the waterworks dam recommended that the city solicitor prepare a petition to the Legislature for a private bill cancelling the bylaw which granted the C.G.E. Company an extension of the lease of the power house and equipment, dated February 10, 1930, between the Utilities Commission, the corporation of the city and the company, and declaring the lease invalid and void; also that the company be required to restore possession of the power plant and all its equipment to the city, and to pay to the city treasury for all the power generated at the plant from April 1, 1931, at the rates charged by the Hydro-Electric Commission for power purchased by the company during that period.

Says Lease a Bonus

Alderman Gordon asserted that the council of 1930 did not have the authority to extend the lease which he said was virtually a bonus. At the end of that first twenty year agreement the power plant with all its equipment was to revert to the city. He estimated that $396,000 was due the city. Possession of the plant would reduce charges 25 per cent to all consumers of power, and to the extent of $60,000 a year, and street lighting would cost nothing. The lease was renewed for twenty years. Ald. Gordon said he understood the plant was producing from 600 to 700 horse power.

"I feel that the council didn't know it was an unlawful act, and they couldn't renew a bonus for more than a ten year period. The plant should be restored to the people," Ald. Gordon said.

"I would like to see this matter gone into fully so that we could learn all the facts," Ald. Glover suggested.

$1,500,000 Benefit

Alderman Gordon—I have computed that on their fixed assessment for forty-four years with interest at 5 per cent the city has really given the company $1,500,000, a little more than our bonded indebtedness. If we were relieved of the interest payments our tax rate would be around 26 mills instead of 36.

Ald. Wilson—That is past and gone; we are not complaining about that.

Ald. McIntyre—I am surprised at the horse power Ald. Gordon has mentioned. I understood it was only 400 h.p., and I think Alderman Cotton made that statement. The agreement was that they were to pay us $3,000 a year. I hung out for $4,000 a year. I thought they were getting it too cheap.

Promised A Building

The C.G.E. Company had agreed to build the plant and at the end of twenty years it was to be turned over to the city, Ald. Gordon said. At the end of that period it should have become the property of the city, but the lease was extended for another twenty years. In consideration of the renewal the company was to erect a $400,000 building.

Alderman Dutton—According to Alderman Gordon's statement it appears that maybe the council stepped outside its power; but having done so isn't there a contractual agreement there even if it was not right.

Alderman Gordon replied that if a boy under 21 agreed to buy a house he could not be held to the agreement because he was a minor. The law might have been surmounted by going to the Legislature for an extension but that was not done.

Alderman Sloan said the subject brought up by Ald. Gordon should be enquired into and the proper committee for that purpose was the manufacturers committee. His amendment was seconded by Alderman Juby, and was adopted.

"I'll apply for a private bill as a ratepayer if the council doesn't," Ald. Gordon declared concluding the discussion.

Mother Not to Blame For the Children's Colds

Despite all the mothers can do the kiddies will run out of doors not properly wrapped up; have too much clothing on; get overheated and cool off too suddenly; get their feet wet; kick off the bedclothes, and do a dozen things the mother cannot prevent.

Half the battle in doctoring children's colds is to give them something they will like; something they will take without any fuss, and this the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It acts promptly and effectively.

'QUAKE ADDS TO FLOOD TERRORS IN TENNESSEE

PRISON 'LINGO' PROVES BEYOND JUDGE MADDEN

Learns Meaning Of "Two And Three-Bitters" And "The Eight-Ball"

BLAME LAID ON FOOD

Witness Claims Dr. Heaslip Preferred Word One Guard To Fifty Prisoners

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 30 (C.P.).—Evidence of 33 witnesses was before Judge James Madden to-day as he studied information revealed in his probe of the January 17 riots at Ontario Reformatory. When yesterday's sessions were completed the Judge adjourned the inquiry until February 9.

Prisoners gave testimony yesterday, the language proving a mystery to Judge Madden in some instances. When "two-bitters" and "three-bitters" were mentioned by the prisoners, it was explained they meant "repeaters"—prisoners doing their second or third terms. When a prisoner got "the eight-ball" it meant he shouldered the blame.

A 19-year-old youth, known as Prisoner B., told Judge Madden food was the basis of the riots which saw prisoners smashing furniture and windows as they ran amok through the Reformatory.

"I found worms in my porridge for three successive mornings in the summer and haven't touched it since," the young prisoner said. "Some times the meat served for supper is so rotten you can smell it all over the dining-room."

Sausages Kept Too Long.

Prisoner A, employed in the abattoir, said the sausages made were "the finest in the world," but when served in the dining-room he said he had been unable to eat them. "They had been kept too long, he testified.

The youthful prisoner also criticized the sausages which he said were "rotten." Showing no fear or nervousness, he declared he prisoners who escaped during the riot wanted to see Hon. Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary, to complain about the food.

He had been paddled for something he had not done.

"The guard lied about me, but his word was taken," he testified. "We are never allowed to bring prisoners as witnesses. When I spoke about it to Superintendent Dr. Heaslip on the day of the riot, he said he would take the word of one guard against that of 50 prisoners."

PLAN TO PROVIDE OFFICE FOR MAYOR

Crowded Conditions At City Hall Cause City Trust To Make Changes

In their economies of last year the council cast out the idea of providing a private room at the city hall for the use of the Mayor. Citizens who wish to interview the Mayor have had to consult him in corridors or office corners except when the city clerk's office was available. Mayor Macdonald did not press for the accommodation, although he believed it was needed as a place where citizens could consult any of the members of the council.

In the meantime the City Trust Commission has observed that City Clerk's Armstrong's staff has been forced to broaden out into the old committee room as extra space was needed for their increasing duties. For their meetings they had to displace the clerical staff, and to avoid these encounters the Commission proposes to decorate and equip the office upstairs formerly occupied by Relief Officer Metheral if the council will buy a suitable table. One key will be provided for the Commission, another will be given to the Mayor and a third will be at the disposal of the Aldermen. The alterations which will not be extensive will be proceeded with in the near future.

Some of the aldermen have been suggesting that the old committee room be added to the city clerk's office for the extra accommodation the staff requires, and that a large room upstairs be converted into a committee room.

F. W. MERCHANT PASSES.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (CP).—Francis W. Merchant, 81, prominent educationist and until 1934 chief adviser to the Ontario Minister of Education, died at his home here yesterday. Mr. Merchant served as principal of the Collegiate Institutes at Ingersoll, Owen Sound, Stratford and London, and in 1900 became the first principal of the London Normal School. He acted as chief inspector of Ontario public and separate schools from 1908 to 1911.

Trucker Leaps Clear As Machine Sinks

Lindsay, Jan. 30 (CP)

WILLIAM Bryant, Norland, narrowly missed drowning yesterday when the truck he was driving across Moose Lake, Haliburton County, crashed through the ice and sank in thirty-five feet of water. Bryant jumped from the cab just as the front wheels sank through the ice.

An effort will be made to retrieve the truck by cutting an ice channel to the shore and attaching a long cable to the truck.

Hitler Compares Nazi System To Spain With Its 170,000 War Dead

BERLIN, Jan. 20—(A.P.).—Chancellor Hitler, inagurating another four years of Nazi rule, to-day "withdrew" Germany's signature from the Versailles Peace Treaty, in which the Reich was declared "guilty" of launching the Great War.

Asserting Germany's resumption of military sovereignty was a matter affecting only the Reich, the Chancellor told the Reichstag:

"We have taken nothing from any nation—nor have we done any nation wrong."

He declared the Germany Government, from now on, would exercise sole sovereignty over the Federal railway system and the Reichsbank.

Then he added:

"I hereby declare that through these actions, that part of the Versailles Treaty which deprived our nation of equality and degraded it to a position of an inferior people has found its natural end.

Denies War Guilt

"Above all, however, I hereby most solemnly withdraw the German signature from that declaration forced upon a weak government against its better knowledge—the declaration to the effect Germany was guilty of starting the Great War."

Not quite a year ago, the self-same Reichstag which Hitler addressed to-day remilitarized the Rhineland in violation of the Treaty of Versailles.

The Chancellor, declaring the Nazi movement "the most beautiful and most perfect democracy," shouted that, by contrast, 170,000 deaths were the "achievements of the splendid democratic revolutionaries in Spain."

In a setting wildly enthusiastic the Chancellor hailed the work of his own regime, belittled "democratic world citizens" and cried out that the most "exalted" task of the Third Reich was the preservation "of a race based on blood—as God gave it to us."

Of the colonial question, the chancellor said:

"Germany makes no colonial demands upon countries which took no colonies from her. German never demanded colonies for military purposes but exclusively for economic reasons.

"In our closely-settled country, our demand for colonies will again and again be voiced as something self-evident."

KILLED IN TRUCK SMASH

STRATFORD — (CP)—Edward Powell, Seaforth, was killed and Frank Sproat, 28, Seaforth, was seriously injured today when the truck in which they were riding was struck by a Canadian National Railways train at a level crossing one mile east of Goderich.

The men were enroute from Seaforth to Goderich. The accident occurred when the truck was driven onto the tracks in front of the oncoming train.

BRANTFORD MAN GIVEN FIVE YEARS FOR ROBBING STORE

Simcoe Cadi Refuses To Believe Accused Or Witnesses As To How He Got Goods

COMMENDS POLICE

SIMCOE, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP). — Nicholas Uvanelli, Brantford, was sentenced by Magistrate Winter today to five years in penitentiary for the robbery of Clark and Grant's general store at Teeterville December 23. The Magistrate told Uvanelli he did not believe his evidence nor that of his chief witness as to how he came by the goods found in his possession.

The magistrate said he believed the evidence of all the Crown witnesses and commended the police for their work in rounding up the accused. James Bullock, Brantford, facing the same charge, has been in hospital. The charge against him was adjourned one week. He was not present.

REFUSE $30,000 FOR LYN PATRICK.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (CP).—Manager Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs admitted today he had offered New York Rangers $20,000 for Lyn Patrick, an offer which Papa Lester Patrick of Rangers refused for his son.

"Papa, he say no can do," Smythe laughed.

"Up to $20,000 I liked Lyn," he added. "Above that he comes a trifle high. I think he's a great hockey player."

Smythe also revealed he had offered $15,000 to Chicago Black Hawks for Mush Marsh and been turned down.

Girl 9, Honeymoons In Wilds Plays With Doll, Wedding Gift

Slipped It Over Them Says Baby Bride, Though Parents Have No Objections

FARM WITH HUBBY 22

Charlie Johns, six-foot, black-haired mountaineer, said they would build a cabin about 15 miles from this little East Tennessee town, and "go to housekeeping" within a few weeks.

The bride told shyly yesterday of her marriage 10 days ago to the handsome youth.

"We slipped it over on them," she said, grinning, telling of the ceremony conducted by the Rev. Walter Lamb, elderly minister.

BRANTFORD PLANT CLOSES

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 30—(C.P.).—Brantford plant of the Dominion Radiator and Boiler Company, Limited, was closed to-day because, according to the management, a minority group of employees insisted the company deal with "an outside union." Offers to set up a general shop committee and sub-committees designed to improve relations between the employer and employee were refused, officials said.

Forgotten Oil Stock Is Suddenly Valuable

Hanna, Alta, Jan. 30 (CP)

HARRY Searles today mused over the fact patience undoubtedly is a virtue.

He invested hard-earned money in oil exploration stock and placed it in his trunk.

That was twenty-three years ago. Now he is debating whether or not to sell at a profit he estimated at 200 per cent.

Youth Is Believed An Escaped Prisoner

One of three youths captured here early Friday morning after a thrilling auto chase by city and provincial police, and who gave the name of William Raymond Jones, is stated by Provincial Motorcycle Constable Lloyd A. McClure to be James Menton who escaped from Ontario Reformatory at Guelph on December 3 last. The officer stated he had received this information from the R.C.M.P. Fingerprint Bureau at Ottawa. Jones, alias Menton, together with his companions, Charles Long and William Turner, appeared before a Justice of the Peace at Cobourg on Friday afternoon and were remanded until Thursday next without plea on joint charges of attempted burglary of Sidey's store at Bowdley.

Residents Flee Residents of Cairo, Ill., at the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers are evacuated by government barge lines as flood waters threaten to top dikes and overwhelm city. The barges have large boxes which protect refugees from cold winds.

PLANS COMPLETED TO EXAMINE EYES OF BLIND FARMER

Peterborough Doctor Offers To Examine Eyes Of Peter Robertson

BEING BROUGHT TO CITY

Will the eyesight of Peter Robertson, 85-year-old blind Otonabee farmer be restored as the result of revelation of his plight made in the local press this week?

It seemed possible to-day.

Reading of the blind man's heroic struggle against heavy odds, a local medical man who does not wish to reveal his identity at the present stage, has volunteered in "the name of humanity" to examine Robertson's sightless eyes, in the hope that something may be done to release him from the world of darkness in which he has dwelt for the past twelve years.

Through the Examiner arrangements were completed to bring the blind farmer from his home southwest of Keene to the city to-day

After conferring with reporters who interviewed Mr. Robertson, and learning that the blind man had reacted to the photoflash as pictures of himself were being made, the doctor in question declared: "That is splendid. In the name of humanity I will be only too willing to examine him in the hope that it might be yet possible to restore his sight."

Learning subsequently that Robertson had been given up as a hopeless case by two eye specialists, the local medical man remarked: "Bring him to see me anyway. There is nothing to be lost and everything possible to be gained."

It was further learned that a local citizen has sent a letter to the Canadian National Institution for the Blind together with a newspaper clipping of the story, and has made the suggestion that the Institute might provide a radio for use by the blind farmer whose sole companion is a collie dog.

PROCLAIM HYDRO BILLS NEXT WEEK

Cabinet Council Called For To-day Is Postponed Until Monday

TORONTO, Jan. 30 — (C.P.). — Three Hydro bills passed by the Legislature Friday and given royal assent may be made effective by proclamation next week, it was reported to-day at Queen's Park. A cabinet council called for to-day was postponed until Monday.

It was learned the act exempting Hydro from posting bond for appeals to the Privy Council and directing return of $127,000 already posted for an appeal from the Ottawa Valley Power Company judgment against the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be proclaimed next week in any event.

The other two bills exempt Hydro from processes for execution of judgments against it and require a fiat from the Attorney-General to bring action against the Commission.

DIES AFTER SMASH

Youth Is Victim of Sideswipe Near Fort Erie,

FORT ERIE, Ont., Jan. 30.—(CP) James Howden, 18, died en route to hospital here early today following an accident on Bowen Road, one mile and a half west of Fort Erie. A light truck he was driving was sideswiped by an automobile driven by Elwood McLean of Toronto.

The accident catapulted the Howden truck into a culvert and McLean rushed Howden to the hospital. John Sider, 23, of Bertie township, a passenger in Howden's truck, escaped injury. An inquest will be held.

Doctor Loses Count Of Stitches In Lad

Islington, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP)

JAMES Strock, Malton boy injured near this Toronto suburb, suffered such bad gashes last night when thrown through the windshield of his father's motor car, that Dr. W. K. Fenton lost track of the number of stitches used to close the wound, he said today.

"I never saw such a horrible gash, yet the boy took his treatment without whimpering or saying a word," said Dr. Fenton. The lad was finally given an anaesthetic.

McQUIBBAN DEATH SHOCK TO HOUSE

Nixon Recalls Brilliant Address On Monday, Then Apparently Feeling Fine

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—(CP).—"The news of the very sudden death, due to a heart ailment, of Dr. George McQuibban, member for South Wellington, came as a great shock to the province, and particularly to all the members of the Legislature, none of whom had the slightest intimation that he was in any way even indisposed," Acting Premier Nixon said to-day.

"He made a brilliant address in connection with Hydro matters in the House last Monday and was in splendid spirits during his visits to the office and in caucus.

"He has been a very close associate and friend for many years, as we sat in opposition together from 1923 to 1934, and one could not meet him and know him without appreciating his outstanding ability and sterling character. He was a man of very great force and effect in his public life and, in fact, his early addresses in the Legislature and throughout the province on Hydro matters were little short of epic.

"He will be greatly missed in the Legislature and in a very wide circle of warm friends. His personal popularity in his own riding was a true indication of his worth and his untimely passing is a great loss to the whole province."

TRUCE PROPOSALS DOWNED BY SLOAN

G. M. Head's Decision Leaves Situation Deadlocked With Strikers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (AP). — General Motors Corporation and its striking workers were still at loggerheads today after Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., the Corporation's president, rejected a truce proposal drawn up at a conference between him and United States Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Miss Perkins told reporters after the meeting the outlook for a settlement was brighter, but that "one person had not yet been reached by telephone that needs to be checked." She arranged with John L. Lewis, union leader, for negotiations.

Late at night, Sloan called the secretary from New York, however, to announce he would not go through with the tentative truce agreement.

Before the breakdown of the agreement became known, Governor Murphy of Michigan said in Lansing:

"I have plans which I could not put into effect while Federal conferences are in progress. If I don't get good news from Washington, I will be prepared to act immediately to bring the parties together."

KIRMA WILL AID U.S. FLOOD VICTIMS THROUGH EXAMINER

Answers To Kirma's Question Box Will Appear In The Examiner Daily

PUBLISH INITIALS ONLY

Kirma, world famous psychic, who will appear all next week at the Capitol Theatre has consented to assist the local Kiwanis Club on the drive to raise funds for the flood relief victims of United States.

With every donation of 25 cents or over sent to The Examiner, Kirma will answer one question, by initials only, through the medium of what will be termed the Kirma question box which will appear daily in The Examiner.

The only thing necessary for you to do is to send your letter signing your full name and address accompanied by your donation, and Kirma's answers will appear in the following day's issue. He will answer by initials only.

There are no special restrictions placed upon the nature of the questions which one may ask. It may have something to do with business matters, with domestic affairs, with some question about which you are in doubt. Send your question plainly written to The Examiner office, with an enclosure of 25 cents. The envelopes will be opened in this office and the money accounted for here, after which it will be turned over to the Kiwanis Club for the relief effort for those in the flooded districts of United States.

The questions will be then forwarded to Kirma. He will return the answers to The Examiner and they will be published with initials only. There is no fee collected by Kirma for this service. Every cent turned in with the questions goes directly to the flood fund. The questions will be answered daily in The Examiner as soon as the answers are received from Kirma.

Seal On Spree In Civilization Gets To Montreal—And Dies

Furry Visitor From Labrador Hardly Looks Around Before Hunters Get Him

1,000 MILES FROM HOME

MONTREAL, Jan. 30—(C.P.)—A fur-coated visitor from the north, unaware of the perils of modern civilization, met violent death here a thousand miles from home.

He was a Labrador seal. Taking time out only for brief frolics on the river ice, he had churned his way up-river from the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

He slipped along quickly through the cold smooth water. One night he dodged past the bright lights of Quebec—stopped only to poke his nose through a hole and ponder in silence the strange magnificence of the black steel span above him.

Unworried by his solitude he paddled on, hoping maybe to meet some comrade in some far Valhalla. The river banks came closer and closer. At last he pushed through the broken ice of Montreal harbor.

Here seemed to be a friendly place. High above on Victoria Bridge little creatures stooped to peer over and wave at him. In the north great white peaks reminded him of the icebergs back home. He tossed his nose in the air and bristled his whiskers in glee.

This was fun—real adventure.

But far away on the southern shore two midgets were moving across the treacherous ice. Closer they came, and larger. Nervous at the proximity of strangers the seal started for his hole in the ice, back to the friendly chill water which meant safety.

He never reached the water. The bark of a rifle never reached his ears. For the two "hunters" from St. Lambert did not err.

McCREA'S DAUGHTER WEDS

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—(CP)—Miss Helen McCrea, daughter of the Hon. Charles McCrea and Mrs. McCrea, was married today in the Church of the Holy Rosary to Mr. Kenneth Peacock, son of Mrs. Peacock of Hamilton and the late W. W. Peacock. Rev. Joseph Keating conducted the ceremony.

"Oust Every Tory" Pouliot's Slump Cure

Ottawa, Jan. 30 (CP)

JEAN Francois Pouliot gave the House of Commons today a new recipe for solving economic ills in Canada.

"Fire every Tory who holds public office," urged the Liberal member for Temiscouata, "and repeal all legislation passed while the last Government was in office.

"That will restore confidence and make the people breathe easier, and business will be good throughout the land."

B.C. IS CONSIDERING LIGHTER CHARGE IN CAR FATALITIES

Officials Find It Hard To Get Juries To Convict Drivers Of Manslaughter in Negligence Cases

MAY AMEND CODE

VICTORIA, Jan. 30 (CP)—Possibility of amending the criminal code to provide indictment of lesser degree than manslaughter in connection with automobile fatalities is being studied by the governments of Manitoba and British Columbia, Attorney-General Gordon Sloan announced here last night.

Mr. Sloan said the matter has been informally discussed with the attorney-general of Manitoba. Disinclination of juries to convict drivers of manslaughter for negligent driving in auto fatalities was responsible for study of a possible lesser indictment, he stated.

In effect, Mr. Sloan said, the suggested indictment under consideration would be less severe than a manslaughter charge yet carry heavier penalties than that of "driving to the common danger." This, he felt, would prove an effective weapon in curbing dangerous driving.

Find Favor in Ontario.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (C.P.).—Ontario would be favorably disposed toward an amendment to the Criminal Code to provide a lesser charge than manslaughter in motor car fatalities, a senior official of the Attorney-General's Department said to-day.

"There have been no representations made to the Dominion Government by Ontario, but I know sentiment of police judges and prosecutors is in favor of a lesser charge," he said. "Perhaps motor manslaughter might be provided for in the Code though the word manslaughter has an ugly sound to jurists."

The official said it was becoming harder daily to have people think negligence causing a fatal motor accident carries the same degree of culpability as homicide by other weapons.

FLOOD SOLICITORS, FRAUDS

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP) —Warning was issued today by Police Chief Harry Stanley that two men were visiting Brantford homes fraudulently collecting money for the Red Cross on the pretext the money was destined for United States flood relief.

"Citizens should beware of these men," said the chief. "They are taking advantage of an unfortunate situation to pick up some easy money."

Cairo In Illinois, 60 Feet Below Flood Tide Fights Desperate Battle

WATER LAPS TOP OF WALLS

Zero Hour Wednesday For Mississippi Towns—Upper Ohio Cities Clean Up

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—(A.P.).—A fresh host of dangers—earth tremors, crumbling levees and rising waters—punctuated the weary struggle of man against the river along the 1200-mile United States flood trail to-day.

Brief-lived but terrifying, the earth trembled ominously early to-day near Tiptonville, Tenn., in the area where a century ago an earthquake formed the vast Reelfoot Lake, east of the river. The tremor struck new fear into tragedy-numbed refugees huddled behind the dikes.

"It lasted several seconds," said Police Chief Pete Smith, "but the levees are still holding."

A hasty inspection by engineers indicated the earthen walls were not breached.

With 60,000,000,000 tons of water cresting down the Ohio River Valley in search of lower levels, the dramatic defence of little Cairo, Ill. —a river-girt island city, lying 60 feet below the level of the flood tide —neared its climax.

Creeping near the top of the 60-foot concrete seawall, the water touched 58.75 feet to-day—the highest stage in the city's history.

Army of Engineers at Work

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—(AP)—A retreat beyond the reach of an insatiable enemy quickened today as the surge of flood water toward the Mississippi river spurred a tireless army in its defence of the southland's cotton belt.

A pick and shovel army of 116,000, bolstered by reinforcements, raised breastworks on both sides of the river, and awaited the zero hour—to arrive when the crest of the flood from the Ohio River sweeps past Cairo, Ill., probably next Wednesday, and begins its rush down the Mississippi to the Gulf.

Then will come the test of the gigantic, $1,000,000,000 levee system. Anxious thousands in the river lowlands between Cairo and New Orleans prayed they would be saved from the fate of their fellow Americans in the Ohio River Valley when more than 1,000,000 were made homeless, temporary at least.

The army of workers waged a strenuous and apparently successful fight to hold the dike across Slough Landing Neck, a few miles above Tiptonville, Tenn., and redoubled its efforts to raise a bulkhead as the flood waters inched toward the top of a 60-foot seawall at Hickmen, Ky.

Preparing for any eventuality, removal of livestock and cattle was under way in threatened lowlands along the Mississippi from Hickman to the mouth of the White River in Arkansas, while evacuation of residents along broken tributary levees virtually was completed.

Paducah Deserted.

On the lower Ohio the flood waters forced complete evacuation of 8,000 persons from Paducah, Ky., after the State Health Commissioner reported the city was uninhabitable. Military authorities were ordered to use force if necessary to remove the people.

As the water crept higher, 4,000 residents of Cairo could only watch and wait for the crisis.

Its seawall raised by hurriedly built bulkheads to 63 feet, United States Army Engineers predicted the river shipping centre, resting in a "V" formed by the confluence of the Ohio and the Mississippi would escape as it has done all the floods since the Civil War.

Above Paducah the flood had done its worst, and the fight against disease and the mammoth job of restoration became the concern of many cities and towns.

Admonished by Kentucky's Governor to "keep your chins up and the sun will shine on Kentucky homes again," Louisville mapped a program to prevent epidemics as chugging machines began to pump the slime and silt from the city's streets.

The cleanup was under way in Portsmouth, Cincinnati, and other cities, as President Roosevelt ordered a Federal Commission to begin on Sunday a week's tour of the Ohio flood region.

Fifty thousand five-shilling pieces are to be made up in Australia for the Coronation, and if they prove popular they will be retained as regular currency.

THREE LIBERAL HYDRO BILLS ARE MADE LAW

Government Is Caught Napping On Nixon's Motion For Recess

VOTE GOES 27 TO 12

Division Provides Regime's Smallest Margin—Reassemble Feb. 16

TORONTO, Jan. 30—(CP).—Vested with power to protect the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission from court judgments, Ontario government to-day awaited return of Premier Mitchell Hepburn before bringing down further legislation at the present Legislature session.

The House stands adjourned until February 16 when, it is expected, Mr. Hepburn will be back from Arizona, where he went for his health, to lead his Liberal government. Acting Premier Harry Nixon said yesterday the Premier was recovering rapidly from his bronchial ailment. Mr. Hepburn left Toronto a few days before the Legislature opened January 19.

Leisurely pace of the first two weeks was accelerated Friday when the three bills, giving the Hydro Commission immunity from court judgments, received third reading and Royal assent in a little more than an hour. The bills, an outcome of 1935 legislation being found ultra vires by the courts, were the cause of the early sitting of the Legislature.

Nixon Caught Napping.

Last few minutes of the session yesterday caught the Government napping. Acting Premier Nixon's motion for the fortnight's recess was carried by 27 to 12, smallest majority the government has ever had.

As the Session closed Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck gave notice of several pieces of legislation the government will proceed with when the House Resumes.

Answering a question from George Henry, Conservative House leader, Mr. Nixon said the government had no intention to name a commission or tribunal to administer the natural resources of Northwestern Ontario.

WHAT AUSTRALIA WANTS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(CP).—Opening the conference with the Canadian trade delegation led by Hon. W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister of Commerce, Dr. Earle Page, Australian Commerce Minister, declared that in view of the large adverse balance, totalling £11,500,000 ($57,500,000) in the last six years, Australia felt she had a powerful bargaining position, a Canberra despatch to the New York Times says to-day.

president of the Excelsior Life who reported a total insurance in force at the end of 1936 as $96,229,237.

EXCELSIOR LIFE HAS BIG INCREASE

Gain Of 6.4 Per Cent. Is Reported In Total Insurance In Force

The forty-seventh annual report of The Excelsior Life Insurance Company was presented at the annual meeting by President Alex. Fasken, K.C. The report indicated that 1936 had been a most successful year for the Company.

Total new insurance, issued and revived, totalled $19,191,690.04 for the year. The total insurance in force at the close of 1936 computed on the uniform basis as now required by the Dominion Insurance Department amounted to $98,329,239.27, an increase for the year of $5,915,919.79, representing a gain of 6.4 per cent. Had the Insurance in force been computed on the same basis as in former years, the amount would be $99,536,136.77 or a gain of $7,222,817.29.

The total income for the year increased by $186,053.57 to $3,792,511.45. Of this sum, $2,783,581.80 represents net premium income.

Payments during the year to policyholders or their beneficiaries totalled $2,137,240.57. Of this amount $540,640.07 was paid in death claims, $526,951.93 paid on account of matured endowment and investment policies, $354,694.39 paid as profits to policyholders, and $714,954.18 paid in surrender values, disability payments, annuities, etc. Of The Excelsior Life's payments in 1936 to policyholders or their beneficiaries, 75% was to living policyholders and 25% was in payment of death claims.

In their report the Directors state: "It is gratifying to state that 54.64% of our Bonds are obligations of the Dominion of Canada or of its Provinces."

Surplus funds amount to $2,308,246.61, of which $353,863.00 has been apportioned to Deferred Dividend Policies.

HOME LOAN BILL ADVANCES IN HOUSE TO SECOND READING

Howe Presents Measure To Change Capital Structure Of C. N. R.

HON. C. MARCIL PASSES

OTTAWA, Jan. 30 (CP) — The House of Commons committee on railways and shipping will have before it this session the long-anticipated re-capitalization of the Canadian National Railways. Yesterday Transport Minister Howe, after a brief debate, introduced a bill designed to remove some $1,500,000,000 from the "liabilities" side of the system's balance sheet.

It was provided in the bill, however, that some $63,000,000, representing Federal government loans to the railways for capital purposes and appropriations for Canadian government railways capital investment, will be placed in an owners equity trust to protect its prior claim against future profits of the system.

Another government measure was advanced yesterday when Finance Minister Dunning introduced a retroactive measure sanctioning the home rehabilitation loan scheme which has been in operation since last Nov. 1. Under this plan homeowners are enabled to borrow from chartered banks on their own unsecured notes up to $2000 at a discount rate of 3¼ per cent for home repairs and improvements. The government guarantees 15 per cent of such loans up to a total of $50,000,000.

Death of Hon. Charles Marcil, oldest member in point of service and one time speaker of the House of Commons, was announced when the members assembled after the dinner recess last night. Finance Minister Dunning, who was leading the government, suggested it was only fitting that the House should adjourn as a mark of respect to Mr. Marcil, and this was warmly seconded by opposition leader Bennett.

Committee Is Set Up

The committee on railways and shipping was set up yesterday by Transport Minister Howe. It is understood its chairman will be Sir Eugene Fiset (Lib. Rimouski), who acted in that capacity last year.

Conservative leader Bennett said he considered the minister's plan sound but declared the important thing was to see that the railway's balance sheet at all times showed the amount of money the taxpayers of Canada had placed in the enterprise.

The change, Mr. Howe said, would do away with a duplication of $1,500,000,000 between the accounts of the railway and of the government. Continuance of this duplication gave an exaggerated picture of the total debt of Canada and might prove a menace to the credit of Canada and of the Canadian National Railway. The total debt of Canada, if computed by adding the debts of the government to the debts of the railway was $5,750,800,000 whereas the real obligations of Canada only amounted to $4,250,000,000.

DR. G. A. McQUIBBAN TAKEN BY DEATH

Former Ontario Liberal Leader Taken Seriously Ill Shortly After House Opens

TORONTO, Jan. 30 — (C.P.). — Dr. George A. McQuibban, member of the Ontario Legislature for Wellington North, died here early today. Former Liberal Leader in the Ontario House, he took his regular place in the Legislature last Thursday, but took suddenly ill.

Born at Ingersoll, September 2, 1886, Dr. McQuibban was educated in Harriston, Ont., and the University of Toronto, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Medicine. A practising physician and surgeon, he had resided for years at Alma, Ont., where he was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

A bachelor, Dr. McQuibban was first elected to the Ontario Legislature in 1926, and was re-elected in 1929 and 1934.

Dr. McQuibban was proposed as Ontario Liberal Party leader at the Provincial convention in December, 1930. Premier Hepburn, then serving as a member of the House of Commons for Elgin East, was selected, and shortly after named Dr. McQuibban as Ontario House Leader, succeeding W. E. N. Sinclair.

CANADA TO FORBID FIGHTING ABROAD

Lapointe Will Introduce Bill Banning Enlisting In Foreign Armies

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(CP)— The House of Commons yesterday gave first reading to a bill providing parliamentary sanction for the Home Improvement Plan Loans and heard Justice Minister Lapointe forecast legislation to prohibit foreign enlistment on the part of Canadians.

The government has considered the whole question of enlistment as well as export of munitions, Mr. Lapointe said, and had decided to draw up a bill to prevent Canadians enlisting in the armed forces of a foreign country. The legislation will have particular regard for the Spanish civil war.

He said the government considered the British Foreign Enlistment Act of 1870 was already in force in Canada and did not contemplate passing an order-in-council declaring the British Act operative in the Dominion. However, it was decided there should be Canadian legislation and a bill would be introduced shortly, Mr. Lapointe declared.

The announcement came following questions asked by M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F.-Rosetown-Biggar) and Wilfred Garlepy (Lib. Three Rivers).

For more than 35 years Sir Percival reported wars, revolutions, disasters and historic events in all parts of the world.

Workers Strengthen Cairo Protective Wall

Workmen are shown busy strengthening the flood wall at Cairo, Ill., as the Ohio river flood waters rush into the Mississippi at that point. Army plans for evacuation of the whole Mississippi valley from Cairo to Louisiana were halted until danger of broken levees becomes an actuality. Later estimates indicated a lower flood height than had been expected.

GIVES UP DAUGHTER TO SAVE DRUDGERY

Pole Being Deported Sees Her Marrying Bearded Peasant, So Friends Adopt Her

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 30—(C.P.)—Because her father does not want 14-year-old Anna Szponarski to be deported with him to Poland to "work for 20 cents a day and marry some bearded peasant," the girl will enter the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gemper here, when adoption papers are drawn up. By that time an ocean will separate her from her parent.

Housed in Essex County jail, labelled an undesirable and awaiting escort for deportation, Wojcieck, made a sacrifice to save the girl from accompanying him. He renounced all claims to her to clear the way for adoption.

Barrister John Yatchew was called in on the case and interested Mayor E. S. Wigle and the mother superior of the Sisters of Our Lady of Help Convent. The girl will stay in the convent until adoption papers are in order.

Anna came to Canada with her father eight years ago. With them came Szponarski's common - law wife. Anna's mother died 13 years ago.

For six years the family worked an onion farm at Leamington, 33 miles southeast of here, and then moved to Windsor. According to police, Szponarski added another woman to his household and lived on welfare.

This conduct landed him in county jail and machinery for his deportation was set in motion. He will probably leave Windsor this week-end for his native land.

CREW DOUSES FIRE IN HOLD OF LINER

Shawnee With 190 Passengers Aboard Had Earlier Asked Aid Off Virginia

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP). — Captain of the coastwise vessel Shawnee wirelessed to-day he had succeeded in extinguishing a fire in the No. 2 hold after a fight of several hours, during which he dispatched a peremptory SOS distress call.

Laden with 190 passengers and a cargo of fruits, vegetables and cotton, the Shawnee, of 6,209 tons, with a crew of 174, was bound from Jacksonville and Miami for New York when her skipper wirelessed a call from a position off Cape Henry, Virginia, for assistance.

The liner, bound from Jacksonville for New York, where she was to dock last night, reported to the coast guard radio station she was 'not in need of immediate assistance," but asked ships to stand by for eventualities.

"We do not require asistance at this time," the coast guard quoted the message from the Shawnee. "Please keep a sharp watch on 600 metres broadcast if we should require you later."

The S.S. City of Birmingham, 125 miles from the position the Shawnee gave, turned immediately to aid the ship which earlier had sent out an "SOS"

The master of the Shawnee reported his twin-screwed vessel was making 17 knots—about 20 miles an hour, land speed—and at that rate would require about 2½ hours to reach Cape Henry.

The coast guard at Boston said the 6,209 ton ship carried a crew of 174.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 13

CHILD ARTIST HONORED

Lad Who Died at 11 Had Produced 11 Pieces.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (C.P.). — Posthumous recognition as an artist of outstanding ability came to-day to Rhys Bradley Jones of Montclair, N.J., who died at the age of 11 less than a month ago.

His works were placed on exhibition in a special memorial gesture by the Montclair Art Museum. He started drawing and painting when nine years old and before his death on January 4 of spinal meningitis, he had produced 500 pieces.

One of his paintings, "Ships at Sea," executed when he was nine, is in the collection of paintings by the late George Inness of Montclair. "China Clipper," done the same year was selected from 3,000 paintings in a New York exhibit, as the most outstanding airplane picture by a progressive school child.

CHARLES W. KERR DIES IN TORONTO

Barrister Was Prominent In Liberal Party For Many Years

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—Charles W. Kerr, K.C., prominent Ontario barrister and Liberal, died suddenly in the Wellesley Hospital yesterday after a short illness. He was in his seventy-second year.

A powerful factor in the Liberal Party ranks for many years, Mr. Kerr twice stood for Parliament, but was unsuccessful on both attempts. The first entrance he made in the active political sphere came when he contested West Toronto in 1917 as a straight Laurier Liberal against H. C. Hocken; again in 1921 he accepted the Liberal nomination to run in his home county of Northumberland.

Educated In Cobourg

A resident of Cobourg, but practicing law in Toronto, Mr. Kerr was the son of the late Senator William Kerr and Myra J. (Field) Kerr. Born April 17, 1865, he was educated in the Cobourg Public Schools and later attended Victoria College, from where he received an arts degree in 1887.

Mr. Kerr was an active member of the Young Men's Liberal Club of Toronto in the days of Willison, Lyon, Robinette and Pedley. He had also given service as Secretary (1906-10), and President (1910-17) of the North Toronto Liberal Association; President, Toronto Reform Association in 1917; and a member of the executive of the Toronto Men's Liberal Association.

On University Senate

Prominent in sporting circles during his younger days, Mr. Kerr excelled in cricket, lacrosse, tennis and football. In later years his chief recreation had been bowling.

He was President of the International Land Corporation and Secretary and a Director of George Weston Ltd. and the William Paterson Company Ltd. (Brantford). For twelve years, 1906-18 he had contributed greatly to Victoria University by serving as Senator and a member of the Board of Regents.

Mr. Kerr attended Cobourg United Church and also was a member of A.F. & A.M. and I.O.F. Survivors include his widow, the former Maude Stobbs, daughter of Rev. Thomas Stobbs of Hamilton; two daughters, Miss Grace, at home, and Mrs. Carlton Rankin, Westmount, P.Q.; two sisters, Mrs. Donald Macdonald, Cobourg, and Miss Mabel Kerr, Cobourg; and one brother, F. D. Kerr, K.C., of Peterborough.

Winnpeg Pays Out $443 Bounty for Tails in 1936

WINNIPEG, Jan. 30 — (C.P.). — Winnipeg doesn't need a pied piper; not while its citizens are as eager as they were in 1936 to collect the five-cent bounty on rat tails. The city paid out $443 for 8,865 rats killed during the year.

COST OF GOVERNMENTS.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(CP.) — Cost to the Canadian people of the various governments in Canada forms the subject of a question placed on to-day's Votes and Proceedings by T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto Broadview). Mr. Church wants to know if any suggestion has been made to the Dominion Government for the creation of a Royal Commission "to investigate the huge cost to the people of Canada of Federal and Provincial Government."

MILK PRODUCERS ARE ASKING $2.40

Price To Consumer In Toronto Will Be Raised To 13 Cents a Quart

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 30 (C. P.). — "If the Ontario Milk Control Board approves of a new deal for the Toronto district milk producers, price of milk to the consumer will be raised to 13 cents a quart for the next four months," declared E. H. Clark, secretary of the Ontario Wholesale Milk Producers' League, last night at a banquet of the Brant County Milk Producers' Association.

"We are asking the Ontario Milk Control Board to approve 'a new deal' which would raise the price of milk to the producers from $2.10 to $2.40 a hundredweight. This is not enough to make up the increase in feeding costs to the producer, but the situation of some farmers is desperate."

Here's Simple Way to Curb a Cold

Two "ASPIRIN" Tablets—A Full Glass of Water—That's All

The modern way to curb a cold is this: Two "Aspirin" tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three "Aspirin" tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The "Aspirin" you take internally will act to combat fever, cold pains and the cold itself. The gargle will act as a medicinal gargle to provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain. It is really marvelous; for it acts like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is quick, effective and ends the taking of strong medicines for a cold.

● "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Approach to Liquor Problem

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesso.. on the above topic for Jan. 31 is the Quarterly Temperance Lesson on Proverbs 21:17; 23:20, 21; Matthew 24:45-51 and John 6:26, 27, 35, the Golden Text being Isaiah 55:2, "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not?")

* * *

THE Book of Proverbs warns us against intemperance in these words: "Be not amonk winebibbers, words: "Be not among winebibbers, for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness will clothe a man with rags."

Economic Aspects

That the use of alcoholic beverages has increasing economic aspects is evident from the nation's increasing drink bill. The liquor control agency of one state (Ohio) has recently reported officials sales of approximately $45,000,000 for the year 1936, an increase of about $12,000,000 over the corresponding sales of 1935.

More significant still are the reports from life insurance companies showing alarming increases in rejections of applicants because of their excessive use of intoxicants. Rejections for this cause among applicants under 30 years of age in the year 1935-1936 in one large representative company amounted to 33.7 out of every 100 rejections, while this same figure for 1931-1932 was only 11.9 per 100 rejections. Uninsurability for this cause exceeded that for all other causes among applicants under 45 years of age. Surely this destruction of health of our younger group of citizens is not small or inconsiderable part of the economic aspects of this vital social problem! Of a similar nature are the figures of accident insurance companies showing that from 60 to 75 per cent. of our serious automobile accidents involving personal injury or death are traceable to excessive use of liquor.

The Advantages of Sobriety

The advantages of sobriety are dealt with by our Lord in his last day of public teaching in these words: "Who then is the faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath set over his household, to give them their food in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Verily, I say unto you, that he will set him over all that he hath. But if that evil servant shall say in his heart, my lord tarrieth; and shall begin to beat his fellow-servants, and shall eat and drink with the drunken, the lord of that servant shall come in a day when he expecteth not, and shall cut him asunder, and appoint his portion with the hypocrits: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth."

The Adequate Remedy

No adequate remedy for the evil results of intemperance and drunkenness is to be hoped for by legislation, but only by reformation. The love of Christ must so dominate the life as to expel the love of anything which may defile the body, which is his temple, or injure others about one in the family or society. The Christian solves the problem by accepting Christ when he says: "I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. Work not for the food which perisheth, but for the food which abideth unto eternal life, which the Son of man shall give unto you."

Golden Text

Isaiah 55:2—"Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not?"

A National Message

It is the duty of the watchman to preach THE KINGDOM GOSPEL as follows:—"The Lord hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength, Surely I will no more give thy corn 'to be' meat for thine enemies: and the sons of the stranger shall not drink thy wine, for the which thou has laboured: "But they that have gathered it shall eat it and praise the Lord; and they that have brought it together shall drink it in the courts of my holiness." Now who or what is the Lord's right hand? We are not to think of God as referring to a part of His glorious body. It is not that which is meant. "The Lord said unto my Lord, SIT THOU ON MY RIGHT HAND, till I make thine enemies thy footstool." St. Stephen said: "Behold I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man 'standing on the right hand of God'." Jesus is called "The man of my right hand." The Lord hath sworn by His right hand—Jesus Christ the Lord—that His people shall no more be robbed of the fruits of their labour either by enemies from without or by rapacious speculators within. That phase of economics, which has burdened Israel, shall be put away by the right hand of Jesus Christ our Lord. This is a view of the Lord Jesus Christ, as the right hand or executive hand of God, which is far too much overlooked by the watchmen on the walls of Jerusalem. The Church stresses the "carpenter's shop" and the "Galilean peasant" far and away too much. It is interesting to search for the basis in plain statements concerning this in the Bible. There is the question, "Is not this the carpenter's son?" The names of the other sons of Mary and Joseph are then mentioned in order to identify Jesus. The question is even asked by one, "Is not this the carpenter?" But when we try to catch some reference to the carpenter's shop, some illustration from the activities carried on there in the teachings and ministry of our Lord, we are baffled and cannot find them. Not a single shaving from the bench, nor reference to a single well-known act connected with the trade is to be found. On the contrary, that Jesus was a stranger in His own land is shown by the fact 'that He was required to pay head tax as a stranger'.

ELECTRIC WELDING SUBJECT OF TALK

H. Thomasson of Hamilton Addresses Local Engineering Institute

Electric welding played a major part in the construction of a great liner for the first time in history as the great Queen Mary was built, H. Thomasson, engineer in charge of welding at the Canadian Westinghouse at Hamilton, told the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada Thursday evening. Welding was employed almost throughout the job, he said.

His subject was recent advances in the art of electric welding. He told of great recent improvements in methods and of the advance effected in the substitution of composition-coated welding rods for the older type of straight metal welding rods. He spoke of the new use of alternating current in seam welding. As alternating current of the lower cycles in common use is of no use, 100,000 cycle current is super-imposed, he said.

Referring to a popular make of 4-door sedan cars, Mr. Thomasson said the completed job contains 3,-416 separate welds. A typical six and one-half cubic foot refrigerator has 1,509 welds in its construction.

The operation of a great automatic seam-welding machine which will fasten two large sheets of metal together much as a sewing machine fastens together two pieces of cloth, was explained as he continued. The two edges of metal to be welded pass between two power rollers. Intermittant arcs weld a solid seam as the rollers pull the metal through.

A. L. Dickieson presided.

WIDER POTATO MARKET.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30—(C.P.).—Dealers and shippers serving principal markets in Canada should be brought together and definite plans laid for merchandising potatoes, William J. Tawse of Montreal, yesterday told the Canadian Horticultural Council at the concluding session of the 19th annual convention here.

Potato sales would be increased and thousands of consumers taught their true food value and their valuable mineral content, said Mr. Tawse who presented a report on the potato marketing situation.

BOY SOLOIST IS COMING TO CITY

Dewi Jones Will Be Heard In George Street Sunday Evening

Dewi Jones, celebrated soprano, who two years ago delighted Peterboro' citizens when he made his first appearance in George St. Church, is returning for another program in the form of a Recital following the regular evening service. Since his first recital here in 1935 a lot has happened to this young singer who is not quite 14 years of age. He has appeared in all the major cities from coast to coast both in Canada and across the line.

He has received the key to the city at San Francisco, been to Los Angeles and Hollywood. Everywhere he has had enthusiastic audiences. Following his recital here he will leave for a tour of the southern states. Young Dewi is accompanied by his father, R. C. Jones, on the tour. His program on Sunday night will include such numbers as the following: Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer" and "O For the Wings of a Dove." Handel's "Come Unto Him," "Where'er You Walk" and "Angels Ever Bright and Fair." Behrend's "Daddy" and Stenson's "Prayer Perfect."

WLLIAM LAUGHLIN IS NAMED AUDITOR

Albert Vass Is Appointed Weed Inspector Of North Monaghan

At a special meeting of the council of North Monaghan Thursday Albert Vass was appointed weed inspector, and William Laughlin was appointed auditor. The naming of an assessor for 1937 was deferred until the regular meeting February 8.

Bruce Johnston, clerk, submitted the annual statement of expenditures under the Highway Improvement Act last year, as follows: maintenance and repair, $2,216.70; machinery, $47.05; superintendence, $363.25; total, $2,627.

Unemployment relief on roads $1,047.19 of which 68 per cent. is refunded by the government under the relief scheme. And of the $2,627 forty per cent. is refunded by the Department for money spent on roads; and the government also pays half the cost of superintendence.

A resolution was passed that the council request the Suburban Area Commission to cover in a part of the Park street drain, sections of it to be done annually, using concrete tile or other construction as they deem best in order ultimately to eliminate the menace to traffic.

Expediture $4,250 on township roads this year was approved by bylaw.

MARRY IN HASTE DIVORCING SOON

Inquiry In Palestine Reveals Much Mock Wedlock Among Jewesses

JERUSALEM, Jan. 29.—(CP)—Mock marriages—resort of desperate young women who have tried every other way of gaining citizenship in Palestine—are causing trouble in "Eretz Israel." Scores of young Jews have contracted such marriages to total strangers to enable the young Jewesses to circumvent the Palestine immigration laws.

The authorities and the rabbis deplore the situation, but they have found no means so far of stopping it, Rabbi M. Blau testified before the Royal Commission investigating Arab-Jewish disorders.

The young Jews who lend themselves to these mock marital arrangements, always with an agreement that a divorce is to be obtained at the end of one year, do so in many cases out of a sense of gallantry. Some have made a business of it, receiving money from the desperate women. The couples do not live together as man and wife. A certificate of marriage is all the woman needs to show she has a right to remain in the Holy Land.

Not infrequently the marriages occur on the spur of the moment. A girl from Germany who had overstayed her leave, dashed into a cafe recently and told a group of men: "The police are after me. Which of you will marry me? Otherwise they will expel me."

One man voluteered. An hour later he was back in the cafe and the girl had gone her way with the certificate that relieved her of her fear of deportation. A shortage of men willing to enter these mock marriages has caused a marriage market to develop. Some men will "sell themselves into matrimony" for an agreed price—$350 has been paid on some occasions.

One young man, 23, a government employe, has been married and divorced three times at $350 each. His last two brides were brought by him from Germany at the request of his first wife.

The girls are willing to go to such lengths, officials say, because of handicaps under which they live in other countries and because of the intensity of their faith in the age-old dream of establishing a Jewish National Home here.

FASCISTS BEATEN BACK

Socialist Hold Newly-Won Positions in University City

MADRID, Jan. 29—(A.P.).—Fascist attack against newly-won Socialist position in West Park, dominating the University City sector of Madrid, was repulsed to-day.

The insurgents struck at the defenders' positions on the heights from Unversity City to the north and from Casa De Campo Park to the south.

Explosions of hand grenades and the chatter of rifle and machine gun fire could be heard in the centre of the Capital.

PROVINCE TO BE T.B.-FREE AREA

Final Phase Underway To Make Entire Province Restricted Area

FREDERICTON, N.B., Jan. 29.—(CP).—The final phase of making all New Brunswick a restricted area for bovine tuberculosis is underway.

This will be the second Canadian province to reach this condition. The first to be declared a restricted area was Prince Edward Island.

Inspectors for the health of animals branch, Dominion department of agriculture, estimate the disease will be eliminated in New Brunswick by the middle of March.

Upwards of 220,000 cattle in New Brunswick have been tested for the disease. Some 15,000 in northeastern part of province remain to be examined. The percentage of reactors to the tests has been found remarkably low.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

Let us take for our meditation the fact that God and man are two parts of the one equation, the equation of life. It is as impossible to imagine God without man, as it is to imagine man without God, for man is the extension of God into the material world, even although there are but few who realize it. For if there is one thing that stands out above all others in the welter of beliefs and creeds, that has been taught even from the beginning, it is that man is the son of God.

One can imagine that this blunt statement of truth may offend some whose beliefs are crystallized into set words and outworn phrases but it is a truth that Jesus and all the Great initiates before Him stated emphatically and in no uncertain words. Man is the son of God, God is the Father of man and the only Father that man has or ever can have. The Kingdom of Heaven is the realization of his relationship and the living therein. Primarily it is not a material state of being but a purely spiritual and interior state and totally independent of whether we are on this earth or elsewhere, "living" or "dead", but and we should reflect well on this, such a condition will inevitably in time, reflect itself into the material world and so bring Heaven to earth. There is a great lesson conveyed in the story of Lucifer, the angel of light, who, entering into the pride of self and self-will lost heaven and created hell.

In all truth man has done exactly the same thing. Just to the degree that he inclines towards doing his own will or doing the will of his Father in Heaven so does he oscillate between the soyes of negation and the heights of eternal love. Man inclines either consciously or unconsciously to either Christ or Lucifer and so inwardly identifies himself with either one or the other.

Some occultists hold that there is no other hell than here on earth and that man reincarnates again and again until he has paid his debts to others to the uttermost and by bitter experience has learned his lesson, whether this be so or not, there is a striking parallel between the fall of Lucifer and the fall of man. But the wheel turns, and if we have fallen we may yet arise. If there is a "down" there is also an "up" and in no sacred writing is this more simply and beautifully told than in the immortal story of the Prodigal Son, for this is the story of man, of all humanity in fact.

We of the Western World are singularly non-intelligent in spiritual things, we lack largely the intuitive approach of other races, we like to have our dead husks of formula. Our hearts are so filled with the cares of this world that there is but little room for God to dwell therein but none the less He is there if we will but look. Most of our religious emotion is of a forced hysterical kind, rightly discounted by men of common sense. Let us be sane and natural and see in the word "repentance" not an emotional self-pity but the sober reflective turning of the mind conveyed by the original word "metanoia", and when we speak of "salvation," that much abused term, let us instead picture the beauty of the original word "soteria," the "safe return" of the Prodigal Son.

The whole thing is within ourselves, interior not exterior. We have to orient ourselves afresh, to turn from self to Self, from the altogether false and illusory concept of separate self-hood to the glorious truth of being individual expressions of the One True God, sons of God, the God of our hearts.

TRAINING COURSE OPENS ON MONDAY

Leadership Training School Will Be Held In The Y.W.C.A.

Preparation for the annual leadership training course is being made by the Peterborough Council of Christian Education. Representatives of the city ministers, Sunday school superintendents and leaders of primary, junior, teen age and senior church groups are co-operating.

The school will be held at the Y.W.C.A. and this year will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings over a period of three weeks, rather than each night of the week. The Council had decided this is a preferable arrangement and that an increased enrolment will result.

The school offers opportunities for all leaders, prospective leaders, parents and young people to get new ideas and to study together methods of teaching and training. The courses are prepared by the Religious Education Council of Canada and the various units make a complete teacher training course for Sunday school leaders.

The course chosen for this year include story telling, principles of teaching, Christian faith and conduct and psychology.

Jesus' Warning on Intemperance — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Prov. 21:17; 23:20, 21; Matt. 24:45-51; John 6:26, 27, 35

Proverbs was written in large part by King Solomon. In it he warns against the use of wine, saying, "Be not among winebibbers . . . for the drunkard and glutton shall come to poverty."

Jesus warned, "If that evil servant shall begin to beat his fellow-servants and shall eat and drink with the drunken, the lord of that servant shall come in a day when he expecteth not, and cut him asunder."

After feeding the five thousand men on the few loaves and fishes Jesus rebuked the folk who followed him just to get something to eat: "Work not for the food which perisheth," he said.

"Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."

Repeating an Old Error

The strike at the Empire Cotton Mill in Welland has not been settled. The large plant where over 800 people used to work has closed, and that took place a number of weeks ago. Always the human element comes to the front. People who were working in the mills were not for the most part making high wages, and not at any time do we suppose they would be much ahead. When they quit work, and their income is cut off they are in want within a short time.

That has happened in Welland. Reports from Welland show that 1,676 persons are receiving relief, and 839 were cotton mill workers and dependents. Nor is the end in sight as the relief office is daily receiving applications from more of the former workers who are now idle. The newly formed union to which they belonged had no funds and for that reason can hand out no strike pay.

That same mistake has been made several places within recent years in this country where strikes have taken place shortly after a union has organized workers. There is no cool consideration in advance of what it is going to take to support 800 workers in case they go out on strike. Organizers talk in terms of sure and certain and quick victory, but the history of strikes is that such a thing seldom happens.

If We Had to Do It

T. L. Church, M.P., is asking a number of questions about our coal imports. Apparently he fears Welsh coal is losing out to competition from Russia. We are certain the general feeling is we would rather do business with Wales and Scotland than with Russia.

It is interesting as a matter of speculation to consider what would happen if it were ordered that no more coal should be imported. If the government were to assume the function of a dictator and make such announcement we would have to use coal secured in our own country. There are large public buildings in Ontario where Nova Scotia coal is now used, and there are furnaces and smaller stoves where Alberta coal has been and still is the fuel supply.

If the order were final there would be objections. We would argue that we were not accustomed to Alberta coal; that we dd not want to make the change and so on. But if the order was there and stubbornly applied, then we would have to use our own coal.

The result would be that a great deal of our own money would go to the West and to the East and there would be a greater payroll at the mines. The railway companies which carried the coal would have to put on more crews. Their equipment would receive more wear and tear and that in turn would put more men at work in car shops making repairs. It would probably have a direct and immediate effect upon our unemployment problem. Some day when we get down to the point of thinking and acting nationally we may have such an order issued.

As Bad As All That!

Dr. J. K. Blair, M.P. for North Wellington, has brought before the House of Commons the suggestion that a change should be made from hanging as capital punishment to the use of the lethal chamber. The matter will go to a special parliamentary committee for further study, and that is fair enough indication that nothing will be done about it.

Dr. Blair was particularly frank in statements, made during his address and at one place is reported as saying: "We all realize that if each of us were to suffer for crimes he has committed not one of us would be in the chamber today."

That is indeed an enlightening statement; in fact it is rather remarkable. For a good many years we followed many political campaigns. Long hours and far into the night the task pursued of recording for purposes of publication immediately what the politicians had said. Invariably the Conservatives had said that Conservatives were good men, and in them there was neither guile, deceit or any unworthy thing. All such base attributes could be piled upon the Liberals.

And in turn we are certain Liberal speakers always spoke well of the Liberals. Within the Liberal enclosure there were no villians, and the doors of the bailiwick could be unfastend over night with safety and comfort. It was the Conservatives upon whom all forms of wickedness rested like a London fog.

It was only when a Liberal passed away that Conservative leaders were moved to speak a word of kindness, and likewise death alone could unloose the Liberal tongue to pay tribute to departed Conservative.

That is why this statement of Dr. Blair is remarkable. Almost amazing. With one great scoop he gathers in Conservatives and Liberals, 39 of the former and 171 of the latter; the five Independent Liberals from Quebec, and the two Liberal-Progressives from Manitoba. He includes the one Independent Conservative from Yukon, the 15 Social Credit advocates from Alberta and their two followers from Saskatchewan, nor does he miss the seven C.C.F. members from the West. Agnes MacPhail, M.P. has a party to herself, being the only U.F.O.-Labor member in the House, but in she goes. Likewise Hon. H. H. Stevens, the leader and sole representative of the Reconstructionists. They are all guilty of something or other, and serious enough has been their offence to bar them from the high calling of federal politics. It makes us a trifle uneasy as we had been suffering from the belief—now a delusion—that our affairs were safely in the hands of a group of political purists.

Working, But on Relief

We doubt if it is possible to state definitely how many people in Canada are unemployed. Financial records show 959,458 unemployed in the Dominion, and these are divided as follows: 712,009 were in receipt of urban relief, and 247,449 were on farm relief. The great majority of farmers receiving relief are in the drought areas of Western Canada.

A farmer whose crops have failed and who is under the necessity of applying for and receiving relief is actually not an unemployed person. He is in the unfortunate position of one who has worked but the product of whose labor has been taken from him by weather conditions. So in that class numbered as being on relief there is at once a good 25 per cent. of the total in the Dominion. If these farmers have more success with their crops in the future we take it they will come off the relief list. For the moment their position is the paradoxical one of working and being on relief at the same time.

He Has Lived Through It

The Examiner had a caller. That of course is not unusual, but this one was dead set against mergers. He was certain they had done more harm than good to a great number of people, and his contention was based on personal experience. By vocation he is an accountant, and we judge he would be a thoroughgoing and conscientious sort of person.

He has no fault to find with his line of work, but he says mergers have spoiled his life. It was something like this: When he finished his schooling he was well enough equipped to secure his first position with a woollen mill in his own town, beginning in a junior capacity in the office, but finally being in charge of the books. He told us that was twenty-one years ago. He recalls very vividly the day his employer asked him to prepare a complete statement of the company affairs, and he can recall being a little anxious when several strangers from a city came to inspect the premises. Shortly after it was announced the mill would be closed and the business transferred along with several others to some central quarters in a city. Then he found his services would not be needed. In the seven years when he had been working he had put his savings toward the purchase of a house and had maintained all his payments. There was no other place in the home town where he could see any opportunity of finding employment, so he had to leave. His house was rented off and on, but never brought enough to pay its way, so he lost it and all he had put into it. That is one reason why he does not like mergers.

Going to a city not far distant he was employed at office work in a place which made machinery and did foundry work. He said he liked the place and liked the work, and was there for eight years. During that time he and his wife and children had made friends and felt they were part of the community. He did not reach the point where he was in charge of the books entirely, but was making progress and had a happy family life. The time came when there was another statement of affairs called for; there were some more conferences with strangers who came to inspect the premises and make appraisal. Nor was it long before a notice was handed to employees regarding the amalgamation of the business with several other companies. In this new organization there was no need for the services of a bookkeeper. It was said they had a new and efficient system which was highly mechanized, and the gentleman who called at this office and said mergers were bad was once more out.

He recounted at some length the experience of a number of employees in both places where he had worked. Men had been buying their homes, or had bought them, and those homes represented their savings over a period of years. They had taken it for granted their employment was certain, and they were going to own a home and work in the same community. And undoubtedly it is in such a way that staunch communities are built and maintained.

Our visitor said he had never been able to get his "third start." That is the phrase he used. He wanted to remain where he was because schools were good and the children could be educated there to better advantage than by moving about. He contends that the two mergers through which he passed, and from the effects of which he suffered, "turned me back at the very time when I had a right to expect I was going to get started." We find it difficult to say his contention is not sound. He is at the point today where the venture has gone out of life and he seeks something which will give him that sense of security which seems to have been denied him. There will be those who will say he should keep his chin up and face the future bravely and so on, but this man has lived through the experience. He was disappointed but not bitter. He was thwarted by mergers.

THE REASON

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The village where I used to live, would put its secrets through a seive, and records there were bare; no one could live a double life, and keep the mischief from his wife, or hush some gay affair.

¶ When men went walking down the block, the neighbors saw them and they'd talk, they'd see them come and go; and if one dropped from that parade, the back fence gossip soon was made, "I missed old So-and-So."

¶ And if a man got drunk at night, and got his eyes blacked in a fight, the village knew that too; the man who swatted him would boast, of all the folk he'd talk the most, of wicked things he'd do.

¶ And if a stranger came to town, you couldn't keep that secret down, they'd spot him out with care; and pretty soon they'd know his name, just what he did and whence he came, and what he wanted there.

¶ And if a horse was bought and sold, his faults were always plainly told, though written on plain leaves; they knew who had the horse before, they knew they'd heard him when he'd roar, because he had the heaves.

¶ So all the village folks were good, and acted like as how they should, in peace they'd come and go; for they all knew if they went wrong, it wouldn't be so very long — 'fore every one would know.

WHY THEY SEE RED.

(Calgary Herald)

THERE are many wage earners who have passed through six years of depression without calling on the authorities for aid of any kind. They have supported their families and paid their taxes by the exercise of strict economy and self-denial, thus playing the part of good citizens. It is easy to visualize their bitterness when they confront daily dozens of neighbors drawing relief and making no effort to find work and who live as well or better than they do.

This is a phase of the relief situation that should soon occupy the attention of legislatures and Parliament.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

IN EAST HASTINGS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In answer to a letter appearing in your paper, issue of January 25th, written by Mr. H. H. Hicks of Toronto. As a citizen of the county to whom the writer addressed his remarks, I feel duty bound to take this opportunity of defending the reputation of this fair county in which I reside.

I am inclined to believe that a black mark has been cast against one of the oldest and most picturesque counties of the province and also against the inhabitants of that county. I do not think there is a man or woman residing in Hastings that does not resent the attitude taken by the writer in his letter to your paper.

We have been compared to a people who live in the hill districts of Kentucky and Tennessee but I am not in a position to judge those people as I have never travelled among them as has the gentleman from Toronto, who states, "that he has travelled extensively among them." But of one thing I am sure, if the writer of that letter would travel for a short time among the people of this county, he would not find us to be so illiterate and ignorant as he suggests in his letter.

It is indeed too bad that the Coe Hill incident should be used as an example to ridicule the people of Hastings County. I must admit that such tactics are not wanted in any community but why should an event which concerns but a mere handful, condemn the people of a county when it is doubtful if the people other than those concerned know any more about the matter than the learned gentleman in Toronto.

It is also too bad that Mr. Hicks should point with scorn to the way the December by-election was conducted in East Hastings. By-elections must be held and is it any fault of the people of this county if so much enthusiasm was shown by the participants and by the province as a whole to the issues at stake as was shown in the recent by-election? Had Mr. Hicks been a visitor in this county previous to December 9, I doubt very much if he would have written that paragraph in his letter, he would have found that 95 per cent. of the stories floating about the province were absolutely false, as any true citizen of the county will testify if called upon to do so.

The facilities of education in this county are of the best and second to none in this province and are used to the fullest extent. I am sure that Mr. Hicks was decidedly speaking out of turn in his statements regarding the people of this county. I think that if the writer would investigate a little more fully at home rather than in a county of which he apparently knows little, he would find conditions that would make the Coe Hill incident a trivial matter.

I am indeed indebted to the editor of the Examiner for the attitude taken by him in his editorial of the 25th, dealing with the letter entitled, "East Hastings." It is a fine thing to know that not everyone in the province has the same opinion of the people in this county as that of the Toronto gentleman.

In closing I invite Mr. Hicks to join the army of visitors and tourists that flock to this county of beautiful lakes, rivers and natural resources and spend a week or two or longer if he wishes among these uneducated, illiterate and ignorant people and perchance he would change his mind as to the status of the people of this fair county.

Yours Respectfully,
K. R. HOLMES.

THE HAVELOCK ENTERTAINMENT

Editor Examiner.

Sir: Would you please publish the following letter in your valuable paper.

I would like to have a few points made clear with regards to the entertainment to be staged in the town hall, Havelock, on February 4th and 5th. Is it an entertainment to be known (as per the notices throughout the village) as the High School Commencement Exercises? or is it a show put on by the John Rogers production company of Ohio, U.S.A.? at the expense of the students and citizens of the village?

I am a parent of a High School student, and a tax payer in town, and I would like to know what happens to their lessions whilst they are preparing for this show. I suppose it doesn't matter in the least about their education just now, they can be pounded to death with home work when the show is over. Wouldn't the Board of Education be wise to remind the principal and teachers that they receive their salaries for teaching the children in school and not for crowding them to the utmost with homework? I hear that this company collects the first $150 from the door receipts, and anything over that amount the school receives. I am really sorry for the school's share, I hope they won't get sore eyes looking for it. What about the hall rent and advertising? Does the school pay for that also? I have also heard that this $150 has been guaranteed to this company. If that is correct, suppose the don't draw that amount, who meets the deficit? Will the school board be asked to make a grant for that purpose? If they do, there's going to be heaps of trouble. This to my mind is not a Commencement Exercises entertainment at all, but a pretty smart idea of the John Rogers company of Ohio, to produce shows without having to pay any artists, or hall rent. In this way they obtain the services of those taking part in the show without cost, and they clear out of town with $150 and leave the sponsors of their show to meet the hall rent, etc., out of their own pockets, because a village of this size cannot support an entertainment of any kind for two nights in succession.

I hear further that those taking part are also required to pay for admittance. This no doubt accounts for the reason why so many residents of the village have been asked to take part. It will help to swell the door receipts to amount to the required $150 when these residents meet the cost of their admittance on both nights.

I am not a crank nor a killjoy. I like to see the young people taking part in things, and have always given my support to their ventures in the past and will readily give my support to anything they undertake on their own behalf in the future, but to give my support to an entertainment of this kind, which is purely a John Rogers production company show under the disguise of commencement exercises, nothing doing.

I have just heard that if they don't draw the $150 the company is the loser; they just accept all that is taken and will be content with that. What about the school? Are they not the losers to a greater extent than this company? They, I presume, get nothing at all for their work, and will have to meet the hall rent and advertising. It seems that the John Rogers representative means to obtain that $150, when he has taken time off to solicit the merchants in town to run an advertisement on his program, which will cost them $2.00 and also to solicit a church organization to sell tickets for him whilst that organization was visiting a near-by town. He will have been in town two weeks when the show concludes and will in all probability leave with the desired $150 in his pocket.

Is there any person in town including business people and railway employees earning that amount? I guess not. It is a too much one-sided business for a small village, and that in favor of the John Rogers company. These opinions are those of a good many responsible residents of the village and in future when those responsible for bringing this company here desire to produce or sponsor an entertainment of this kind, would it not be proper to obtain the sanction of the Board of Education first? It has been said that last year's commencement was a failure. It would not have been had the students been allowed to put on the items which they had prepared. A good part of their program was withdrawn because of the extra time taken up with speeches that did not interest the audience one bit. The parents and general public went to see and hear the children, and will continue to support them when they produce programs on their own behalf and not for an outside company to reap all the benefit. It is not hard to find the cause of failure last year. The students have in years past produced some splendid entertainments, and their parents and the whole community have sufficient faith in them to know that they can do so again, and the town would be behind them to a man with their support. To our mind this present show has been forced upon them. I have just read an article in our local paper stating that this is an entirely Canadian company throughout. I question that, for on some of their property one reads "This is the property of the John Rogers production company of Ohio, U.S.A." Does that sound as if it is entirely Canadian? Granted their headquarters for Canada are in London, Ontario, but according to the company's own stamp the headquarters of the company are in Ohio, U.S.A. The announcement in our local paper also states that their representative has brought all the scenery and costumes. Why shouldn't he? Is there a merchant in town that carries on his business without a stock? The scenery and costumes were not obtained specially for this show. They are the stock in trade of the company. I and a good many residents of town still maintain that the students have no chance whatever of increasing their funds with an entertainment of this kind, and it is purely a John Rogers production company show under the disguise of commencement exercises, and the company is getting off free from the payment of hall rent and artists. Their announcement in the local press re admission will be misleading to a good many people. General admission 35 cents (tax included) and then in much smaller type, Reserved seats 15 cents extra. It would have looked better if it had been stated reserved seats 50 cents, side seats and balcony 35 cents. If the Rogers Company want to put a show on in this village, alright, but let them do so with their own artists as other companies do, and take their chance. I can not understand how those responsible for bringing this company here could not see the excessiveness of the company's demands on the door receipts. If the students sponsor an entertainment on their own behalf, the whole community will be right behind them.

Yours truly,
A DISGUSTED RATEPAYER.

DANGER AHEAD.

(Brantford Expositor)

IN 1215, or more than 721 years ago, the Magna Charta granted this right to the subjects. "To no one will we sell, to no one will we refuse, or delay, right or justice," it said. Thus, if the government in its determination to get cheaper power for the province violates not only the sanctity of contracts but the inalienable right of the subject to obtain justice through the courts, it will provoke a conflict the end of which it is impossible to foresee.

POTATOES HIGHER FARMERS' MARKET

Eggs Were Inclined Toward Lower Prices—Butter Held Steady

Eggs were inclined toward lower prices but patrons lost the saving by paying higher prices for potatoes on the Farmers' Market here today. Eggs sold at 20 to 23 cents and potatoes brought $2 to $2.25 a bag. One truck load was reported sold wholesale to a George street fruit and vegetable store at $1.85 a bag.

Chickens were plentiful at 18 cents a pound and a few turkeys went at 22 to 25 cents a pound. Butter was 28 to 30 cents a pound. Beef cuts were 8 and 10 cents and pork 12 and 14 cents.

Friday, January 29th, after a two months' illness. Mrs. Linke was born in Berlin, Germany, 77 years ago, and had been a resident of Hamilton for the past 41 years, where she had many friends who will deeply regret her passing. She was a member of St. George's Anglican Church. Mrs. Linke was prominently identified with the Lady Maccabees Lodge for many years, being an organizer and holding the office of record-keeper. Left to mourn her death are four sons: Carl, Gerard and Herbert, all of Hamilton, and Robert, Jun., of Hamilton Beach Boulevard, and one daughter, Miss Clara Linke, at home; also eighteen grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. The remains of Mrs. Linke are resting at the funeral home of Dodsworth, Mariatt and Brown, 114 Main Street West, where the funeral will take place on Monday Afternoon, February 1st, at 2.30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Hamilton Cemetery.

MRS. SARAH JOHNSTON.

The death of Sarah Jane Striker, widow of the late William George Johnston, occurred at her home, 462 Elm street, early this morning (Saturday). She was in her 86th year and had been in declining health.

She was born in Prince Edward county, daughter of the late Cornelius Striker of Hastings. Thirty years ago she came to Peterborough from Prince Edward county. She was a member of George Street United Church.

Surviving are two sons, Gordon of Toronto and Herbert of this city.

The funeral will be held Monday at 1.30 o'clock from Belleghem's Funeral Home to the Trent Valley Cemetery, Hastings, Rev. M. C. Parr officiating.

HARRIS BROWN.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 30—The funeral of the late Mr. Harris Brown, Belleville, was held on Friday afternoon in Moira United Church at 2.30 p.m.

The late Mr. Brown lived in the neighborhood of Moira for several years, where he was a successful cheesemaker. His wife, Maude Bowers, predeceased him twenty years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Brown took a great interest in the choir and church work. Mr. Brown was highly respected by all who knew him. He moved to Belleville some years ago, where he spent the remaining days of his life.

Weak, Tired, Nervous Women Nourished Back to Health

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

Many women wake up in the morning feeling as tired as they went to bed, and the simple household duties seem a drag and a burden.

They become nervous, cross and irritable, weak and worn out, and everything in life looks dark and gloomy.

Milburn's H. & N. Pills is just the remedy they need to restore them to the blessing of good health, and the health improved the daily tasks become a pleasure, not a burden.

Try a few boxes. See how soon you will feel the beneficial effect.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 30. — Recovery lights flickered in the last session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and prices climbed to Thursday's opening levels on a broad renewal of interest in wheat importing countries.

Improvement in export trade that ear-marked more than 500,000 bushels for overseas destination, and strength in outside markets, brought price gains of 1¼ to ½ cent.

Reflecting strength at Liverpool, quotations pushed steadily forward. Contributing to the upswing was an improved Oriental demand for Canadian wheat and unfavorable weather on the Continent. The English market finished higher with Buenos Aires up a fraction.

Argentine wheat clearances amounted to 7,477,000 bushels, compared with 7,695,000 a week ago and included 294,000 bushels to Japan. Argentine shipments for the week totalled 21,500,000 bushels, a new all-time high mark.

Cash wheat and coarse grains turned in a dull performance with spreads at the close generally unchanged. Rye featured coarse grains pit trade, up more than two cents at one time.

MADOC

The members of the Madoc Order of the Eastern Star held a very pleasant and most successful afternoon bridge and tea on Thursday last. Sixteen tables were played, the winners of the prizes being Mrs. L. McCarey and Mrs. Wm. Hart.

Mrs. H. Davies entertained the members and friends of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge on Wednesday evening at her home in Madoc. A very pleasant social evening was spent in games, fancy work, etc., and at the close a dainty tea was served by the hostess and her helpers.

Miss Kate Ross of the public school staff was the hostess of Miss Hilda Thompson of Marmora Public School staff over the week-end.

Mr. Alex. Broad of Belleville Business College spent the week-end at his home in Madoc.

ATHLETICS TAKE ONE-POINT LEAD

Liverpool Defeats Leeds United 3-0—Few Regular Games Played

LONDON, Jan. 30—(C.P. Cable)—Drawing 2-2 with Middlesbrough in to-day's curtailed English Football League schedule, Charlton Athletic drew into a one-point lead over Arsenal, playing in the cup competition. Liverpool defeated Leeds United 3-0 in the only other first division game of the day.

Four matches were scheduled in the Second League, Blackpool gaining ground at the top by trouncing Bradford, 6-0. The Seasiders now hold an eight-point lead over Plymouth Argyle and Leicester City.

In the Southern Section, Brighton pulled out in front of Notts County, downing Bristol Rovers, 5-2. The County drew 2-2 at Torquay. Stockport County joined Chester at the top of the Northern Section through a 1-0 verdict over Port Vale. Chester played in the cup.

Senior P.C.I. Boys Trounce Lindsay 38-6

(By Eric West)

P.C.I. senior boys stepped into Lindsay last night and took a 38-6 interscholastic basketball triumph over the Scugog squad, it being the first away-from-home tilt for the Peterborough players this season. After a slow first half, marked by close checking and poor shooting, the P.C.I. team had a 13-1 lead. Kirley scored all of Lindsay's points and he and McKee looked best for the losers. Captain Gemmell was the spearhead of the winners' attack with 14 points, followed by Galley with nine and Davern with seven. Gunsolus was steady on defence and tallied five, and Turner turned in a neat passing game at centre and on defence. P.C.I. looked much superior in the speedier second stanza. The teams:

Lindsay: McKee, Kirley, Baker, Beall, Carstick, Nugent, Reeds, Deyell and Smith.

ENGLAND REPLIES WITH 174 FOR TWO IN FOURTH TEST

BARNETT HITS 92

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 30—(C.P. Cable)—England made a great reply to-day to Australia's unimpressive first innings' total of 288 runs in the fourth cricket test match. At the close of the second day's play the tourists had hit 174 for two wickets.

Thirty-three thousand spectators were present when the Aussies resumed with their overnight score at 267 for seven wickets, but the whole side was dismissed for an additional 21 runs.

Led by Charles Barnett, the Englishment put up a resolute defence. The Gloucestershire player, although he did not display his customary vigor, played confidently and at the close was unbeaten with 92 runs. He had batted for four hours, hitting one six and four fours. The score card:

McGILL DEFEATS MONTREAL U. 3 TO 2

Speedy Winger Pidcock Shoots Two And Figures In Third

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (CP).—To stop McGill Redmen in this International Intercollegiate Hockey League campaign, it would appear, the best bet of the opposition would be to stop Paul Pidcock, the wandering winger who is shooting more goals than any other college pucksman.

It was mainly through the sharp-shooting stick of Pidcock that McGill held undisputed leadership of the league again today. He shot two goals and figured in the third needed to down University of Montreal, 3-2, in their second intra-city clash last night.

Unbeaten in five starts, McGill held a two-point advantage over University of Toronto, who could move back beside the Montrealers with a win today over the fifth-place Yale Blues, starting a two-game invasion of Canadian University rinks.

McGill's victory was a costly one. Winger Cam Dickison smashed into the board in the second period, fell to the ice and broke an arm. He is lost to the team for the rest of the season.

QUEEN OF SOUTH DEFEATS RANGERS

GLASGOW, Jan. 30—(C.P. Cable) Queen of South set Scottish football fans on edge to-day with a sensational 1-0 triumph over Glasgow Rangers in the first round of the cup competition.

The low-placed Dumfries entry played typical cup-tie football to explode the powerful Rangers' chances of duplicating last year's cup-winning feat.

A euchre party was held in the White Hall on Wednesday evening, under auspices of No. 2 group of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild. The prize-winners were Mrs. A. G. Gordier, playing as a gentleman, and Mrs. Robert Nayler.

A joint committee meeting of St. Paul's Men's Club and St. Paul's Sunday School executive was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday, when it was decided to hold a box social in the same building on the evening of February 3.

TWEED IS UNABLE TO HOLD STIRLING

Intermediates Are Beaten 4 To 3 On Their Own Ice

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 30. — One of the poorest exhibitions of hockey in several games was played before a small crowd at the local arena on Friday night when Stirling downed the Tweed Intermediates 4 to 3.

Tweed opened the scoring in the first period when W. Leal took a pass from H. Leal to tally the only goal of the period. Jones for Stirling received the only penalty. The hockey in this period was exceptionally poor, with Stirling resorting to the chopping style of hockey, and in general disrupting the organizing of an attack by the locals.

In the second period, Martin tallied a counter for Stirling and Robinson put the visitors one up. Maguire then went to town taking passes from Courneyea and E. Tummon to put the home team one up. Long and Elsbury for Tweed and Jones for Stirling, were the bad men in the bench.

For nearly fifteen minutes of the last period, both teams put up a good exhibition of shinny. Neither team seemed able to hit the pace and give the fans hockey. With five minutes to go, Robinson took a pass, rushed down the ice to tie the count, and Fraser raced down the right boards on the face off to win the game for Stirling. E. Tummon for Tweed and Robinson for Stirling were penalty men in this period.

Summary:

First Period

Tweed—W. Leal-H. Leal.
Penalty—Jones.

Second Period

Stirling—Martin.
Stirling—Robinson.
Tweed—Maguire-Courneyea.
Tweed—Maguire-E. Tummon.
Penalties—Long, Jones, Elsbury.

Third Period

Stirling—Robinson.
Stirling—Fraser.
Penalties—E. Tummon
The teams:
Tweed — Goal, Thompson; defense, E. Tummon, Jack Tummon; centre, W. Leal; wings, Maguire, H. Leal; subs, Arber, Long, Elsbury, Courneyea.
Stirling—Fox, goal; defense, McGowan, Jones; centre, Robinson; wings, Rogers, Fraser; subs, Martin, Butler, Reid, Danard.

Norwood Juniors Win Over Hastings Team

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 30. — Norwood juniors defeated Hastings 4 to 2 in a Kawartha hockey league fixture before a big crowd of howling fans on Friday night.

"Bill" Clapper's kids were more outlucked than outplayed. In the first period Norwood had a little advantage in the play. Clarke rifled in two goals for Norwood to put them in the driver's seat 2 to 0.

In the second chukker the local gamecocks carried the play to the visitors three quarters of the period and were rewarded with one counter, the puck glancing in off Coughlan's shoulder. Hastings got a disputed goal in this period that Referee Ennis would not allow. The railbirds all claimed the puck went in. The period ended 2 to 1 for the winners.

Going into the third period one down the locals charged right in from the face-off and backed Norwood in behind their own blue line for the first five minutes till Faux tied the count. They kept this power play up, until Norwood got a break and forged to the front, the winner's last goal came the same way when Hastings had five men up Norwood broke away.

For the winners Godin brothers, Puffer and Clarke were the pick. While Hastings boys gave all they had with no individual stars.

Norwood—Goal, McMaster; defense, S. Puffer, M. Puffer; centre, Basken; wings, B. Godin, Lumsden; subs, Clarke, N. Godin, Innis.

Referee—Ennis.

ADMITS BIGAMY CHINESE JAILED

Has Wife In Vancouver — Toronto Girl He Ran Off With Held On Parents' Order

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 30 (C.P.).—Ralph Lee, 23-year-old Chinese who married a Toronto white girl here on Tuesday, was confined to a jail cell to-day, a self-confessed bigamist. Lee was arrested to-day after admitting a previous marriage to a Chinese girl now living in British Columbia.

Police will check Lee's statement, and if they are found to be correct the girl he married on Tuesday, 20-year-old Hazel Nicholson, will be free to assume her maiden name.

Miss Nicholson is also confined to jail cells. She was arrested yesterday by Windsor police on a warrant issued from Toronto at the request of her parents charging her with being incorrigible.

She said she ran away from her Toronto home on January 12 with Lee, son of a laundryman, because she loved him and despite parental objections to her association with the Oriental.

The couple went through a form of marriage before Rev. Harry Nobles of Temple Baptist Church here. The marriage license was issued on January 21.

Lee told police his first bride was Gertrude Hoy. They were married, he said, in May, "but I don't remember whether it was 1932 or 1933." The couple parted after living together little more than a month and the girl is now living with her mother in Vancouver, according to Lee.

Miss Nicholson left here for Toronto by train to-day escorted by a Toronto police matron. The girl was not permitted to see Lee before she left.

OWENS TO LEAD ORCHESTRA

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (AP)—Jesse Owens, Olympic track and field champion, has been signed for a 30-week-one-night-stand tour as leader of an orchestra which should bring him $100,000, Consolidated Radio Artists, Inc., announced today.

It is proposed in Britain that ex-servicemen be given jobs taking care of army barrack rooms.

ENTERTAINMENT

P.C.V.S's theatrical season continued in full swing yesterday afternoon with a burlesque of "Midsummer Night's Dream" staged by members of forms 2B and 2C Academic. The members of the cast were of tenderer years than those of Special Commercial who did a skit of a similar type last week but their offering compared favorably.

Of a variety nature, the program next called for a fashion parade by students of Form 2 Household Arts. Dresses were of various styles ranging from the modern back to the dim, dark ages. Muriel MacKeage described each dress with mention of the period of its popularity.

Gwen Bond, of 2C Academic, did her part in the program with a vocal medley including pieces popular with radio hill-billies. In hill-billy style she accompanied herself with a ukelele. For an encore she sang and played the first part of her medley, "I Love Mountain Music."

The musical side of the program continued with a solo by Jim Hawthorne. In his fine soprano voice, he sang "Smilin' Through." He returned to the spotlight singing "Lullaby of the Leaves" as an encore. Merrill Smith was the accompanist.

Jack Thompson announced as "a one-man band," executed a difficult number on a mouth organ and an auto-harp.

Tom MacMillan, secretary of the Students Council, addressed the Assembly on driving. He pointed out several frequently neglected rules of safety. And an interesting demonstration was that of blue print developing. The procedure was detailed fully by Alexander Ellis.

Interesting was a demonstration of the famed electrical eye provided by Bob Whiteside, Don Perks and Gordon Benson. A plot was worked around the demonstration to show its possibilities for use in theft prevention. The sketchy plot hinged on the doings of a dastardly international spy and the audience was treated to the spectacle of an actual working model of an electric eye sounding an alarm as the spy attempted theft of the supposedly valuable papers.

Not the least of the program was an ingenious wood-working demonstration by Joe Cook and Bruce Clark, both of Industrial Arts, and a demonstration of the ignition sycronization in the modern automobile engine put on by auto mechanics students. Lionel Campbell and Robert Dean of Industrial Arts were responsible for an instructive lighting demonstration.

CAMERA CLUB

The Students Council assembled to meet a representative of a supply company with regard to school pins and rings Wednesday at noon. A new design is contemplated for the current year. Samples will be forwarded soon and displayed throughout the school. A canvass will then be taken to determine the required number of orders.

MILITARISTS

The cadet officers' drill scheduled for Monday was postponed until Wednesday. On that day Sergt.-Maj. Frape and H. A. Craig outlined their plans. An attempt will be made to obtain permission for the officers to practice shooting at the rifle ranges. It has been reported that machine-gun drilling will also be included in their routine. For some time members of the cadet corps have been shooting with .22 rifles in the Armouries. Teams are to be selected from the best shots to compete in Dominion contests.

REHEARSALS

Rehearsals for the school's 1937 operetta are well under way. Members of the cast met each day this week at four o'clock. Many students were tested for the leading roles. Martin B. Chenhall is assisted by Miss J. Marie Hicks and Miss M. A. Bailey in direction of the operetta.

Miss Mayme Montgomery has offered four prizes in connection with the production school annual magazine. They will be awarded to the pupils who submit the best linoleum cut, ink sketch, tail piece and cartoon. Edna Borland, in announcing this contest explained that a tail-piece is a design inserted at the bottom of a page when a story or poem has been completed and a space left. The Echoes staff has also offered a prize for the best heading to be turned in.

ATHLETES POSE

The P.C.V.S. rugby heroes lined up this week at the east entrance in their fighting regalia to have their picture taken by a local photographer for the school book. The boys seemed glad to get on the slippery campus and toss the ball again. Other pictures of school organizations will likely be taken soon.

The school juvenile hockey squad has had a lazy time this week. As there were no scheduled games, some boys have been turning out for workouts to keep in trim.

Last evening the P.C.V.S. basketball teams met the senior boys of L.C.I. in Lindsay and the junior boys and senior girls in Port Hope. Reports of their successes or failures appear in this edition.

ODDS AND ENDS

For the few days Edna Borland has been playing the piano in the morning assemblies during the absence of Merrill Smith, the regular pianist....Thursday morning L. J. Pettit, on behalf of the Kiwanis Club, asked for donations in the form of canned goods for the flood stricken area in United States....A total of 26 announcements were made from the Auditorium stage during the past week. After practices the girls basketball team is served doughnuts supplied by Phyllis Braund. Frequently some of the boys of the senior basketball team crash the girls' little parties....At the first of the week when city streets were at their worst, so many students reported late for school that the late slips usually required of tardy arrivals were overlooked... The school flag designed in accordance with the entry in a recent contest will be on hand shortly, it is expected....The Glee Clubs held another rehearsal this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

For the first time American airplanes will be purchased by New Zealand, and three all-metal machines with twin engines and a maximum speed of 200 miles an hour will be used on a new air route.

To Drive Blindfolded

Great Demonstration at Capitol Theatre All Week

Science is still in the midst of its intensive study of the psychic mystery of mental telepathy. Countless investigators have spent years in trying to fathom the secret of this inexplicable phenomenon.

Kirma, showing in the Capitol Theatre during the coming week, is a world-wide famous psychic. He has demonstrated, to the consternation of scientists, his uncanny ability to delve into the secret recesses of the human mind.

To Give Free Exhibition of Power.

Monday noon, February 1st, Kirma will take advantage of the generous offer made by the Hood and Cumming Co., Limited and will drive a Ford "V-8" through the congested streets of the city with his eyes completely bandaged and blindfolded. The blindfold will be applied to Kirma's eyes directly in front of Hood and Cumming Co., Ltd., at the corner of King street east and George street at 12:00 o'clock sharp. The blindfold will be passed around for inspection to anyone skeptical as to his ability to perform this extraordinary feat and at the conclusion of the drive, which will terminate in front of the Capitol Theatre, it is again permissable to examine his blindfold.

Kirma will make the following stops while enroute on his perilous drive. His first stop will be at the Watson Electric Co., corner of George and Brock streets where Kirma will attempt to destroy by flames the interior of an electric refrigerator. His next stop will be at Ken McCannan's Radio Shop where he will select a Spartan Radio for his demonstration of hypnotism via radio in the window of the Home Furnishing Co., next Wednesday night. From there Kirma will proceed to Madame Merriam Beauty Salon where he will make an appointment for the beauty work to be done on his hypnotized subject. Kirma will then proceed to the Home Furnishing Co., where he will make arrangements for the use of their window for his marvelous demonstration of hypnotism via radio, Wednesday night at 7.30, when he will demonstrate perhaps one of the most astonishing feats of modern times. He will, in full view of the public, put a beautiful girl to sleep under hypnotic influence in the store window of Home Furnishing Co., and allow her to remain on exhibition in the window for a period of 24 hours. She will be removed from the window Thursday night at 7:30, brought to the Capitol Theatre and awakened on the stage at Kirma's regular evening performance.

The only nourishment that will be given the sleeping lady will consist of a morsel of Purity Bread and five ounces of pasteurized milk from the Silverwood Dairy. This will be administered to her at 12:00 noon Thursday while she is still in her Cataleptic Sleep. Kirma considers this the only food necessary during her 24 hours sleep because of the nutritional value in both the bread and the milk.

The blindfold automobile drive has rarely been successfully accomplished, but Kirma will drive Monday afternoon.

$600 IN SLOT MACHINES SEIZED

PRESTON (CP)—Slot machines, valued $600 were ordered confiscated and sentences of $100 and costs with the alternative of three months in jail was imposed on four Preston store owners, W. H. Heise, Andrew Goshgarian, Richard Lever and Joe. Rudolph in police court here today. The charge arose from an investigation of slot machines in the municipality by Kitchener provincial police.

BADLY HURT IN SMASH.

DRESDEN, Ont., Jan. 30 (CP).—Cecil Jacques, 25, of (R.R. 2) Dresden, is believed to have suffered a broken back when his automobile plunged into the ditch on highway No. 21 about four miles south of here, last night. His sister, Lily, escaped with minor injuries.

Jacques was taken to hospital at Chatham.

Police believe Jacques attempted to pass another car and that his machine went out of control on the ice-covered roadway.

KIRMA WAS BORN IN FAR OFF INDIA

Home Was Among The Ghandi Tribes—English and American Parentage

Kirma, the wizard of mental telepathy who is appearing for a full week starting Monday, February 1, at the Capitol Theatre, presenting his Bombay Seance which is a performance devoted to the answering of questions for members of the audience, pertaining to love affairs, business, travel, in fact all of the many perplexities of life, was born in India, that mysterious country which no man on the face of the earth has yet learned to understand.

Kirma, however is of English and American parentage. His father being an Englishman and for many years in the service of his government and stationed in India. His mother is an American woman whose home is in Indiana. Kirma was brought to America at the early age of fifteen years where he finished his education.

At a very early age, Kirma showed evidence of his weird calling and rapidly developed his abilities into professional propensities. For two years he travelled in the Orient and mingled with the strangest of people and later accepted a tour of European theatres, where scientists and psychologists were astounded with his deductions of the present, past and future of individuals.

Kirma is now making a special tour of the Famous Players theatres of Canada, and has met with instantaneous success wherever he has appeared.

His appearance at the Capitol Theatre for one week commencing Monday, matinee daily, will make an important epic in the annals of local theatricals.

NEWSWOMAN DIES

Wed British Correspondent of Addis Ababa During Disorders

LONDON, Jan. 30—(C.P.-Havas)—Death has closed the newspaper career of Mrs. G. L. Steer, who married the correspondent of The Times in the British Legation in riotous Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, last May.

Mrs. Steer, who before her marriage was Mlle. Marguerite De Herredo, Ethiopian war correspondent of the French newspaper Le Journal, died here yesterday. Her marriage to the British correspondent took place on May 4 as wild native disorders precipitated by the rapid approach of the Italian forces, imperilled the lives of foreigners in the Ethiopian capital.

AUTHORS RECOGNIZED

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—(C.P.)—Robinson Jeffers, poet; Katherine Anne Porter, short-story writer; James T. Farrell, novelist, and Paul B. Sears, student of soil erosion, will receive the four $2,500 Fellowships offered by the Book-of-the-Month Club this year to able, but neglected, authors, it was announced today.

London now has a population of 335,000 on housing estates.

LORD GIFFORD DIES

LONDON, Jan. 30—(C.P. Cable)—Lord Gifford, a grandson of the noted early Victorian jurist of that name, died to-day at Shrivenham House in Berkshire. He was 79. Lieut.-Commander Charles Gifford, his nephew, succeeds to the title as fifth baron.

Iron and steel mills in Mexico are swamped with orders.

JUDGE ACCEPTS WILL OF WIFE AS HUSBAND'S

Probate Practice Precedent Set By Judgment In Regina

MAN'S WILL NOT FOUND

REGINA, an. 29 (C.P.).—Probate practice without precedent was established here by Judge J. F. Bryant in a judgment in a will case.

The Surrogate Judge accepted proof of reproduction of a lost will on an application made ex-parte rather than by notice of motion. Opposition would have deprived him of jurisdiction and forced application to a Court of King's Bench Judge.

The application before Judge Bryant was on behalf of Mrs. Olava Ask, widow of Jorgen Danielson Ask, Viscount district farmer, who died in November. Ask died last November and his will could not be found.

Arthur Mack, notary public, told Judge Bryant he had drawn up similar wills for Mr. and Mrs. Ask, each leaving all possessions to the other. A copy of Mrs. Ask's will was produced as a reproduction of Ask's will. Four grown-up children were not opposing the mother's application, Judge Bryant was told.

"I am of the opinion this matter can be dealt with in the ordinary way, without necessity of a motion, in view of the fact that all the parties interested consent in writing to the probate of the said alleged copy," Judge Bryant said. He accepted Mrs. Ask's will as a copy of Ask's will "until the original will or a more authentic copy thereof be brought into court."

Mrs. Asks application was made by W. N. Stewart, K.C., who told the court he could not find any similar Canadian case. There was nothing in Canadian courts to use as a precedent for his motion. On consulting the English authorities, however, he believed the proper course was to apply without going to the expense and taking the time to serve a notice of motion on all the children.

An ex-parte application is one by one party seeking a court order without bringing in any other parties to contest. Where a matter is contested the usual procedure is by notice of motion, the notice giving other parties knowledge of what is taking place.

FIGURES ON RELIEF REVEAL PRAIRIES ARE HARDEST HIT

Drought Causes Increase Of 85,640 In Saskatchewan Alone Last Year

ONTARIO BEST OFF

OTTAWA, Jan. 30 (CP).—Preliminary registration figures of the National Employment Commission, issued yesterday, revealed that drought in western Canada more than accounted for the increase in direct relief rolls.

The Commission cited increased Prairie Province totals as constituting the main reason for a net advance of approximately 61,000 in the total of relief recipients last September as compared with the same month a year ago. The announcement followed the first detailed national registration of persons on relief.

New Brunswick Not Included

Increase of 85,640 persons in Saskatchewan alone, as compared with September, 1936, was recorded. Alberta showed a substantial increase, 11,066, this too being traceable to the crop reverse.

Eight Provinces of Canada had a direct relief roll of 959,458 persons in September, according to the preliminary figures. This compares with 891,921 persons in September, 1935; 994,430 in September, 1934; and 963,277 in September, 1933, in the eight Provinces included. New Brunswick, where direct relief is paid entirely by the municipalities, is not covered in any comparative figures.

As this is the first time detailed national compilation and interpretation of cases on relief has been made, there is no strictly comparable basis with which to measure the analysis, it was stated. Subsequent registrations being conducted monthly will afford such for the future. Previously, relief statistics were provided monthly in classified totals by the Provincial authorities and compiled by the Dominion Relief Commissioner, these being published annually in his report to the Minister of Labor.

Payment to 959,458

Grand total of 959,458 persons on direct relief in the eight Provinces is the aggregate number of individuals of whatever domestic status, including dependents of all ages, to whom direct relief was paid by the 1,494 local relief authorities at some time or other during September. Of the grand total 712,009 were in receipt of urban relief, and 247,449 of farm relief.

Totals in Central Canada, with relief figures affected in large measure by industrial conditions, are interesting. Apparently reflecting a revival in industry, Ontario showed a decrease from September, 1935, of 62,261. Quebec, on the other hand, recorded an increase of 40,516. The net decrease as affecting these two Provinces was 21,745. Manitoba showed only a slight increase on its gross figure, while Nova Scotia and British Columbia recorded lesser totals than a year before. Comparison between farm and urban relief in September, 1935 and 1936, cannot be made as figures for earlier years are not comparable in detail to those secured through the registration. Of the total last September, 25.8 per cent. were farm and 74.2 on urban relief.

Tendency of the unemployed to drift to larger cities is revealed by the registrations. Of the burden of urban relief last September, 47.6 per cent. was concentrated in cities of more than 25,000. The smaller cities with populations from 10,000 to 20,000 accounted for 6.3 per cent.

In towns of 1,000 to 10,000, the percentage was 11.3. In communities under 1,000 it was 9.0. These figures accounted for the 74.2 per cent. on relief. The remaining 25 per cent. of rural relief is accounted for very largely by 100,000 cases in the Prairie Province drought areas.

A percentage analysis of direct relief recipients by Provinces showing their Provincial location in September, 1936, with the Provincial percentage of the population of the eight Provinces as of 1931 in brackets, follows: Prince Edward Island, .10 per cent. (.93); Nova Scotia, 1.39 (3.15); Quebec, 36.7 (28.88); Ontario 28.34 (34.46); Manitoba, 5.54 (7.03); Saskatchewan, 15.31 (9.26); Alberta, 5.83 (7.39); British Columbia, 6.7% (6.97).

INCREASE IN CRIME REPORTED BY CHIEF IN ANNUAL REPORT

Chief Newhall Submits His Annual Report To Police Commission

INADEQUATE FORCE

The seventeenth annual report of the Chief Constable was received by the Board of Police Commissioners at an adjourned meeting of that body held on Thursday afternoon under chairmanship of His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke.

On motion of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., seconded by Mayor George A. Macdonald a copy of the report was released to the press, without the attached statement relative to the estimates for the current year. It was the opinion of the Board that the estimates should not be available to the press until they have reached the council.

Relative to matters incidental to the work of his department, the Chief reported as follows:

"Crime"

During the past year this city like many others in Ontario with inadequate police protection finds an increase in crime, drunkenness and petty thefts, the vast majority of offences being committed where it is impossible to have regular police patrol day and night, yet in spite of all our handicaps such as no signal system, no regular outside patrol, no permanent traffic officer etc., this force with the excellent cooperation of Toronto and other forces were able to recover 79 per cent of the total amount of property reported stolen.

Beverage Rooms

There was great improvement in the management of these authority holders reported by officers visiting, only one giving any trouble by keeping open after 11 p.m., many of the public complaints arising from minors being able to get wine and much drunkenness amongst transients came from the same source.

Traffic

This important and ever increasing problem received all the attention possible considering the strength of the police force. The numerous and outlying stop-signs, the parking problem, new highways intersecting at our main corners, all add to increasing police duties, accidents both fatal and minor were more numerous which is to be deplored. again I urge the necessity of more Stop and Go signs, viz; Charlotte and Park street, McDonnel and Aylmer street, McDonnel and Reid streets and also a red glare sign on Hunter street bridge to catch traffic going both ways.

Discipline

During the past year the members of the police force discharged their duties in an excellent manner and on many occasions worked a great deal of overtime.

Pensions

During the past year the department lost a good faithful servant, Sergeant Thomas, who left a wife and a family of five children, practically unprovided for after 20 years service. Through the combined efforts of the police force in organizing a burial and benefit fund we were able to help this family by paying his medical bills, funeral expenses etc., which goes to show what could be done were a pension fund established for the police force.

In conclusion allow me to express my appreciation of the kindly cooperation which has been extended to me by your honourable board, the citizens and press, the members of the Ontario Provincial Police, the County Crown Attorney, the Inspector of the Children's Aid Society and by the various members of the legal profession and the loyal support of the members of this force including the Police Matron.

Peterborough Students Abroad.

Friends of Scott and Mary Medd of Charlotte Street, both of whom are studying in London, England, the former engaged in the study of painting, the latter in music, will be interested in knowing that they spent a part of the Christmas and New Year holidays in Paris. In their letters home, they comment on the fact that New Year's day is not observed as a national holiday in England, but the Yuletide observance stretches out into several days or a week, when most places of business are closed. Scott Medd, who received an Abbey Scholarship last season which gives him from two to three years of free tuition in art, hopes to study in France next year. His sister, Miss Mary Medd, will probably return home during the summer.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

Mrs. E. Gibson and her Lookout Committee were in charge of Thursday evening's A.Y.P.A. meeting at St. George's.

Fifteen members of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. were entertained. The attendance was very small due to so many members attending the hockey match between All Saints' and St. George's.

Games and dancing were enjoyed and refreshments served. Mr. B. Pammett gave a vote of thanks to St. George's for the pleasant evening.

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH.

On Monday evening, All Saints' branch held their weekly meeting. The president, Leslie Cavalier, presided for the business session. The remainder of the evening took the form of a newspaper night.

The editorials were handled by Al. Worsencroft. The fashion column by Marg. Dean was very amusing. Of particular interest was the sports page written by Ralph Charlton. The children's hour written by Leslie Cavalier was also worthy of notice.

Several advertising contests were also held.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

The members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. spent their usual Wednesday evening this week practising for their Minstrel Revue and one-act play, "The Jewelled Hand," to be put on next week. George Nicholls is in charge of the minstrel show and the one-act play is directed by Miss Florence Hutchinson, the dramatic convenor for the branch.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

A SOPHISTICAL rhetorician, inebriated with exuberance of his own verbosity, and gifted with an egotistical imagination, that can at all times command an interminable and inconsistent series of arguments to malign an opponent, and to glorify himself.—Earl of Beaconsfield.

Dear Friends:

There! How do you like that for a description of a man? Look at all the big words strung out in sentences, and all to describe a braggart who wants people to think well of him.

How many times did I see our beloved teacher write these words on the black-board, and make us learn it off by heart, so that we would never get the idea that our little bit of learning put us above our fellows, and also to show us to what extremes we used words to describe someone, when a few words would have sufficed.

Have you never met someone who did that? They went on and on beating words against your brain, and when they were through you looked in vain for any real information in all this talk.

Yet, when we consider that human beings are the only ones who can talk, one would think that they would talk to some purpose, but they fritter away a lot of speech in nothings, and a great deal is said that benefits no one.

Some people's whole conversation consists in nothing else but "he said," "she said," or "they said," and how very wearisome and boring it becomes. You would think they had not a brain in their heads, and must use the sayings of someone else as conversation, before they can get by.

Never in the history of the world has there been so many things of importance given out freely to everyone, by the medium of the newspapers first, and by the radio, yet if you say casually to someone "what do you know today," they are as likely as not to say, "oh, nothing."

All this information strikes against their eyes, or their eardrums, but bounces right off again without registering a hit. It is nothing to them that every day they can be right up-to-date with the world, that they get topics of information which will brighten their talk, and make life more interesting.

And then along comes a smart-alec who has learned a lot of big words, sometimes without ever knowing the real meaning of them. All they know is that when they are string together they sound very impressive, and so they fire them off at you, on any or all occasions, until, you feel like crowning them with a good big dictionary.

There are times when big words are necessary, because the lesser words won't fit, but the most pleasant conversation is the simplest after all.

Some again, think that because they had not much education if they acquire a few large-sounding words that will make up for what they lack. But one of the nicest talking women I have ever met, could not even write her own name, nor could she write a word. Yet she had a nice choice of words, and kept away from those she did not know the meaning of, so that she made no slips.

So, let us be simple in our speech. Newspapers could use all the big words to give us the news, but bitterly would we resent it if they did, so they use the common everyday words we all use, and they are brief in the use of these. And if they kept telling you that "they said" this or that, you would wonder why they could not give us some real news once in awhile.

Words can be so beautiful, or they can be so boring, so let us not overwhelm our friends with big words just to impress them, or only when they are necessary. All public speakers must talk so that the audience understands them, else they become wearisome and tiring.

So, let us not become "inebriated with our own verbosity," but talk so that we are interesting to listen to, and so that we give pleasure to those who hear us. Let us use beauty in our speech, just as we do in our clothes, our homes, and in our person.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

57 NEW MEMBERS ADDED TO Y.W.C.A.

Junior And Babies' Dancing Classes Are Leading Campaign

The standing of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium campaign for new members has reached 57. The lead is now held by the junior and babies' dancing classes with twelve new members. The junior gym. class holds second place with eleven members and the ballet and senior advanced classes tie for third place with ten members each.

The announcement that only those registered before the close of the campaign will be eligible to take part in the gymnasium pageant which this year will feature a fairy flower ballet, has speeded registrations in the new junior and senior ballet classes and in the tap dancing classes. Mrs. J. Forbes, captain of the Tuesday advanced gym. class, has secured six registrations for the newly-formed modernistic class.

The campaign has been extended until next Saturday. During this extra week a health program is being promoted with doctors and nurses co-operating in addressing the various classes. On Wednesday all senior gym. classes will meet at 7.45 p.m. to hear the dental health talk by Dr. Harry Thompson.

First place in the campaign is tied by three members, Hazel Bradley, Mrs. J. Forbes and Beverly Hughes.

I Harvey, Miss Laura Davidson, Mrs. Somerville, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. W. H. Hill, and Messrs. James Hamilton, E. F. Mason and W. C. Ackerman.

In her report as secretary last year, Mrs. de la Fosse paid a tribute to Mrs. Neill's long service to Anson House, as follows: "It is with profound regret that I have to announce that Mrs. Neill's resignation has been received by this Board For twelve years she has been President, and for several years prior to that time acting President, and at all times she has devoted herself to the work. No matter what pleasant or unpleasant duties confronted her she has always proved a kind, wise and faithful leader. She is and always will be dearly beloved by all who have worked with her, and her place can never be adequately filled. I also greatly regret to announce the resignation of Mrs. Scott who for some years has been a splendid member of our Board. We shall miss her very much and we are sorry that she has felt it necessary to take this step."

The financial statement presented the assets and liabilities reflecting the splendid position of Anson House. Total current assets are $40,404.89 as follows: Cash in bank, $1,321.04; Dominion bonds, par, $22,100; City of Peterborough debentures, $14,000; Victoria Trust and Savings Company, debentures, $2,000; Toronto Savings and Loan Co debentures, $500, accrued interest $483.85.

75th Annual Meeting.

The secretary's report to the 75th annual meeting referred to improvements made throughout the institution during the year, including insulation of the roof. "Situated as it is the Home is exposed to all the winds that blow, and it has been almost impossible to heat the third floor in times past. While the work is not entirely completed, benefit has already been felt from this improvement, and though the outlay has been considerable there is no doubt whatever that it will be a great source of comfort in the future."

Ninety-nine persons were lodged in the Home during the year, 90 women and 9 men. Sixty-three of them were admitted during the year Those remaining on January 1 last were 36 persons, 29 women and 7 men. Fifty-nine were discharged during the year and four died.

"The Board feels that tahe work during the year has been done in a most efficient manner and they would like to express their sincere appreciation to Miss Robinson, the superintendent, Miss Harrison, Mrs. Hurry, Mr. Northey and the other members of the staff."

Family Escapes Death

TORONTO—Eight members of a Toronto family escaped death by asphyxiation when Harry Madill was awakened by the thump of his 15-year-old son Billy falling out of bed and discovered the house filled with coal gas fumes. Miriam, sister of Billy, awoke at the same time as her father.

Met Robber Coming Out

KITCHENER — N. W. Zeigler was entering his home when he met a man coming out. "Good day," said Mr. Ziegler, thinking the man to be a tradesman. "Good day," replied the man. Once inside the house, Mr. Ziegler discovered that his wife was out, and more than $100 was missing from a writing desk.

Many Graceful Figure Skaters Thrilled Over 1,300 Spectators As Winter Carnival Is Opened

SOME OUTSTANDING STARS

Glittering, graceful figures on flashing steel skates, speeding over the seafoam sheet of ice, held the attention for over two hours on Friday night of a huge crowd of spectators, between thirteen and fourteen hundred in number, that filled to capacity the Brock street rink, for the performance of near-ly twenty-five of the members of the Toronto Skating Club, gathered in Peterborough to give a spectacu-lar opening to this year's Winter Carnival. The capricious Weather Man, who has been acting quite out of character ever since the dawn of this year, may have been able to prevent much ski-ing activity, but even he was powerless to stop this big spectacle. The crowds that saw these figure skaters at their best last year were anxious to repeat the thrill this season. Last night, long queues of patrons waited for nearly an hour, some of them, stretching from Aylmer nearly to George street, to see the speeding skaters at work.

And their patience was justified, the visiting performers gave of their best, in a generous and lengthy program of figure and formation skating and waltzes that included some beautiful numbers.

The outstanding solo of the eve-ning was that of Mrs. Constance Wilson Samuel, North American champion and Olympic representa-tive for 1928, 1932 and 1936. To watch this auburn-haired skater with the beautifully-moulded figure is to see something. She skates like a breeze, like a ballerina on skates. Rose-pink draperies, the short skirt and bodice touched with gold em-broidery, fluttered about the tall, fine figure which was as poised, as gay and as graceful as a bird skim-ming through the air. It is the apex of graceful motion.

Another young performer who seemed to have much of this bird-like quality in the 'flying' essence of her skating, was Miss Gillian Wat-son, in another single exhibition, while Miss Veronica Clarke, last year's runner-up for the Senior Canadian Championship, got a big hand from the crowd, delighted with her rhythmic grace and skill.

Birds On Ice.

Twisting, turning, speeding over the glassy sheet, poising on one foot like a bird, pirouetting, jump-ing in the air to alight easily, with perfect poise and timing and rhythm in their work, they seem to love this sport, which is most beautiful to watch.

The sea-green ice, colored in a solid sheet, was picked out by bril-liant geometrical motifs, with a harry-pointed oblong in the center, banked by two inverted-circle ef-fects, all in gay yellows, reds and blues. Harmonizing with the colors were the hundreds of pennants dropping from the rafters and the painted pennants adorning the sideboards. Softened lights, with a 'spot' on the central figures, alternated with brilliant floods, while the music of the band of the Prince of Wales Rangers, led by Lieutenant W. H. Perver, ac-companied the skating exhibition.

One of the ten-step formations in which the ensemble takes part opened a happy and graceful open-er to the show, the skaters com-ing dark and light tones in their costumes. The feminine members of the group wore fancy outfits of a masquerade type, with many in flaming white and colored satins, sparkling silver caps, and the ma-jority with bare legs from short tunics to the tops of their high white kid boots. Several, however, wore long sun-tan hose. The men made a perfect foil, many of them in complete outfits of black, with long, tightly-fitting trunks in the same color, and black gloves.

Ralph McCreath, Junior Canadian champion of 1936, in a solo, was a dark-haired, black-suited figure whose tall, flying grace won him much applause. He has an attribute of swiftly-flashing, rapier-like speed that sets him apart. Instead of whirling in dervish, Russian ballet style, close to the ice, as do so many of the skaters, he whirls and turns lightly in 'fir-tree' mode, his arms outstretched. And he goes in for swift successions of jumps into the air that makes his performance just a little different.

A promising young skater, the youngest in the group, the fourteen-year-old sister of Miss Mary Jane Halsted, whose solo exhibition was very beautiful, was Shirley Marie Halsted, already notable for her skill.

Senior "Champ."

Osborne Colson, Senior Canadian champion of 1936, was a glittering skater whose black suit was topped by a gay "corselet" of scarlet and gold. He stated with authority and grace, spinning like a top in a series of one-foot gyrations that brought much appreciative applause. And a youthful member of the group whose performance stood out was Donald Gilchrist.

A brilliant pair of skaters delight-ed their watchers; Miss Ruth Hall, flashing white-satin-clad figure, and Sandy McKechnie, holders of the Junior Pair Championship this year. And another pair who went in for something different in the way of high jumps in perfect tim-ing, "face about" interludes and deftly-executed but difficult one-foot manoeuvres, had the Senior Pair Champions: Miss Veronica Clarke and Ralph McCreath exhibiting their skill.

A gay fox trot was a pretty exhibition; there was a blithesome four-some cutting capers on the ice in perfect time, and composed of Miss Gillian Watson and Miss Ruth Hall in black and silver outfits, with Hubert Sprott and Sandy McKechnie; Miss Mary Jane Halstead and Jack Eastwood had a lovely duo that was an example of almost perfect co-ordination, and one of the prettiest figures of all was the trio number, with white satin-clad performers; Mrs. Constance Wilson Samuel, Miss Mary Jane Halstead, and Miss Lor-raine Hopkins, do-ing a "balloon" performance, the shining white figures forming a beautiful picture on the green ice.

The popular ten-steps and several waltzes formed the ensemble contri-butions to the program, in which the following Toronto skaters took part: Mr. and Mrs. Alan Stewart, Mrs. Constance Wilson Samuel, Mrs. H. Burnham, the Misses Ver-onica Clarke, Winsome Maybee, Lor-raine Hopkins, Greta and Gillian Watson, Ruth Hall, Mary Jane and Shirley Marie Halstead; Messrs. Douglas Neeve, Guy Saunders, Jack Eastwood, Osborne Colson, Sandy McKechnie, Donald Gilchrist, H. L. Sheen, Ralph McCreath, Hubert Sprott, with Miss Margaret Austin assisting in directing the lighting from the bandstand by a telephonic contrivance, and Dr. Frank Mills in charge.

During an intermission last even-ing, His Worship Mayor G. A. Mac-donald spoke in appreciation of the good will shown by "our good friends from Toronto" and of the efforts of the Winter Sports Committee. He also announced that the postponed ski-jumping events will take place in February, if possible.

ASKS BLOOD TEST OF CLARK GABLE IN FRAUD CHARGE

Accused Woman's Counsel Would Determine If Actor Is Father of Client's Child

LETTER IS DISCLOSED

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Joseph Painter, counsel for Mrs. Violet Wells Norton of Win-nipeg, said today he would demand a blood test of Clark Gable to "de-termine" if the husky film actor is the father of Gwendolyn Norton, his client's 13-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Norton is under federal in-dictment with Jack Smith, Los Angeles private detective, and Frank Kienan, retired Winnipeg railroad worker, on charges of at-tempting to obtain money from Gable on a fraudulent claim of parentage.

"I will ask also that Gable appear in person before Mrs. Norton so she may determine, if possible, whe-ther the actor is the Frank Billings she knew 14 years ago in England," the attorney said.

"And I will further ask that Gable make an affidavit to the effect that he has never been in England.

"If these questions are answered to absolve Gable, I will withdraw from the case."

Letter Sent Last March

The letter in which the mail-fraud charges against the trio are based was disclosed in the indictment as having been sent from Winnipeg on March 9, 1936, addressed to Gable at his film studio.

It began with the salutation, "Dear Frank," and was signed, "Violet N." It read, in part:

"You are free and so am I, why not renew our old friendship. No-body need know, let us go away to-gether. XX

"We could put Gwendolyn in a good school and have her taught, give her what her heart longs to be, an actress. XX.

"You could return to the screen if you have to, but I write lovely plays, Frank, if only you would see them. That would bring in money and I can have you correct them into good English.

"Frank, you and I understand one another. No young woman would, and never will, and besides, you have a daughter you can call your own, and a swell kid at that."

Collection Of Old Pictures Depicting Early Day Scenes Are To Be Presented To City

T. H. G. Denne Has Gathered a Most Unique Pictorial Record Of Community

ALL OF UNIFORM SIZE

Thanks to the generosity, the vision and the interest in his native town of a member of a family to whom this community owes much for a wonderful contribution of public service the Peterborough of the last century, the Peterborough of the pioneer period, the Peterborough of the era of board sidewalks and mud-dy roads and gas lamps is to live again in a form that will be a per-manent record of the earlier days.

For years T. H. G. Denne, brother of ex-Mayor Roland Denne, and son of the late Harry Denne, who served Peterborough for many years on the council, Board of Education, cemetery board and other public bodies and himself a former mayor of the city in 1901 and 1902, when Peterborough first embarked in the field of public ownership by ac-quiring the waterworks system, has been collecting a remarkable set of pictures of the people and the scenes that are gone. The first of these portrayals of old Peterborough landmarks came to him from his own family and he began to amass a collection for himself. As the number grew the idea came to him that these old-time pictures would be an asset of the greatest value to his native town and he resolved that when he had completed his labor of love he would present the collection to the municipality of Peterborough to be kept as a record of the early years in the life of the community.

A Job Well Done.

There was nothing half-hearted about the way Mr. Denne went about the task. He was determined to do the job well and the verdict of Peterborough when they see what he has accomplished will undoubt-edly be that he has succeeded ad-mirably. At the cost of hundreds of dollars and the expenditure of countless hours of research, during which he hunted down and secured possession of scores of old time sketches, daguerrotypes, tintypes, steopticon views and ancient photo-graphs he has put together what is unquestionably the most unique pic-torial record of a community in ex-istence in Ontario.

The work of preparing these pic-tures so that they might be dis-played to the best possible advant-age was turned over to the art de-partment of the Robert Simpson Company and for months the em-ployees of that department have been busy photographing and en-larging the Denne collection, making them a uniform size, coloring them and framing them with a descrip-tive legend printed beneath each telling something of its historical significance. The result was so striking that the Robert Simpson Company, rightly stamping the col-lection as an historic research achievement of major importance asked to be allowed to put the pic-tures on public exhibition for a week. They will be shown all next week therefore in the Fine Art Gal-lery of the Simpson Company in Toronto, and it is expected that thousands of people will view them there, incidentally a very effective piece of publicity for Peterborough.

Will Be Formally Presented.

Following this display the Denne pictures will be formally presented to the city of Peterborough and the city council will make arrangements to house them where they can be kept permanently, and where they will be on view at all times for the benefit of the citizens.

These beautifully finished pic-tures will tell the story of early Peterborough more eloquently and convincingly than any printed words could do for they show the early buildings, the first churches, the first mills, the business sec-tion as it used to be, the pioneer steamers that first ploughed the district waters, the men who gave the community leadership when it was a straggling backwoods town, the early lacrosse and hockey heroes, the old volunteer fire brigade, the band that won a provincial champ-ionship and the leader of which died only a few days ago, lumber-ing and river-driving scenes of the long ago—a record in pictures of the achievements of the people who well and truly laid the foundations of the prosperous Peterborough of to-day.

They Go Far Back.

They go far back, these pictures. There is one in fact, of the first white child to be born here. Fit-tingly enough she was Jeanette Scott, a daughter of that Adam Scott who was the first resident of Peterborough and who came up the Otonabee river in a flat-bottomed boat one summer day 117 years ago and selected a site for the little mill that was the start of the indus-trial growth that has broadened out into the great plants where our peo-ple find employment to-day.

There is a picture that shows what the southeast corner of George and Hunter street looked like in 1832 when McKellar's store was the shopping centre. It is only one of a number of striking pic-torial reproductions of what the business section looked like in those early days. One photograph shows George street in 1849 when the al-most revolutionary change was be-ing made of ripping up the old board sidewalk that had been laid length-wise and replacing it with a wider walk with the boards placed cross-wise.

The photographer of 86 years ago had a "spot" picture for it showing the operations underway with the lumber piled high in the muddy street. Another ancient scene is of Water street when the first Exam-iner office was located where J. F. Strickland's law office now stands and the old market building and Denne's mill at King street can be seen further down the road. Still another pictures St. Paul's church before it was remodelled and an-other taken on Murray street fac-ing east depicts Dr. Burritt's house, the Stuart Home and the old school on the hill.

Some of the Gems.

Dixon's saw mill at the quarry, now Jackson's Park, the residence of John Carnegie on the Lakefield road, some of the Peterborough vet-erans who answered the Fenian raid call, Ed. Phelan's stables which stood where the customs house is now located, Alex Gibson's old blacksmith shop that occupied the present site of J. J. Turner and Sons, an early sketch of Scott's first mill, the old Collegiate Institute, the old church clock taken from the tower of St. John's, a Lakefield group that includes the old home of Col. Strickland and pictures of some of the first stores in the village as well as Winneck, the first hotel on Stoney Lake, Hazel Brae, the home of Alex. Smith, Chas. Hudson, one of Peterborough's first mayors, a view of George street looking south as taken from the top of the old Opera House before the present market hall was built, the first cot-tage in Chemong Park built by Henry Denne in 1871, a glance up the George street of old with its gas lamps, and Green store, Ryan's tannery and Morgan's hotel pro-minently on view, the residences of Wm. Lech and the other revered citizens of yesteryear, including the old English homestead on Charlotte street, these are some of the choice pictures in the collection of 125 scenes.

Several of the views go back as far as 1827. There is a sketch made in that year by Captain Basil Hall and there is also a picture of the first dam across the Otonabee built by the government in 1826 at the east end of London street near the site of the present Quaker Oats dam. A birdseye view of the town in 1850 is one of the most interesting of all, and another gem is of the old bridge across the Otonabee at Hun-ter street showing the first indoor skating rink located on the site of the Quaker Oats plant.

Old Sporting Pictures.

Sports of early years is represent-ed in the collection by pictures of the first Peterborough croquet team taken in 1865, of the famous Pe-terborough lacrosse club that won the Gildersleeve trophy in 1877, 78 and 79 and the first Peterborough hockey team to win a championship. In addition there are old time hunt-ing scenes of interest and a view of George Rogers winning a famous old race at the cricket field, Ashburn-ham.

As lumbering was one of the chief industries in Peterborough during the nineteenth century it is not sur-prising to find that the collection is rich in its views of old time saw mills, early dams in the north country and views of booms of logs on Rice Lake and Clear Lake. The steamers of the early days are nearly all represented in picture form. There is the Sunbeam, the Daisy, the Golden Eye, the Cruiser, the Widgeon, the Tiger, Capt. Lil-lecrap's boat of the sixties, the old City of Peterborough, the Empress and many other craft that played their part in the story of the days that are gone.

Young's Point's First Mill.

There are district pictures as well as those taken in Peterborough it-self and among the most interesting of these is a picture of the first dam and mill built at Young's Point in 1827 by Patrick Young, the founder of that village. Early views in the McCracken's Landing dis-trict are included and they will have a distinct appeal for many people who know the neighborhood.

This cursory summary does not cover the whole range of the won-derful collection; it is given merely so that citizens will have an oppor-tunity to judge of the magnitude of the gift that Henry Denne has so generously presented to his native town—a gift that will grow in value and in interest with every passing year.

REAL ESTATE DEAL BELIEVED CLOSED

John Douglas Is Given Notice To Vacate Hunter Street Property

Notice to John Douglas to vacate within a month the property on Hunter street west of the old Ori-ental hotel on which he has been operating a gasoline station is re-garded as evidence of a prospective real estate transaction which has been rumored of late from several sources.

At the office of Mr. Douglas it was reported that his information was to the effect that the Bell Telephone Company was interested in the pro-perty, and that negotiations had reached an advanced stage. It was also learned that the lot west of the old hotel building belongs to the late Martha Dickson estate, and the fact that Mr. Douglas has been no-tified to vacate it is believed to be an indication that the Bell Tele-phone Company has actually bought it.

H. H. P. Johnston, manager of the company, told the Examiner this af-ternoon that he had no official in-formation regarding the plans of the Bell Telephone Company.

The Rambling REPORTERS

JUST SLIP OF TONGUE.

Andy Rutter, announcer at the Skating Carnival in the Brock Street Rink Friday evening, does not really think there are nine innings in a hockey game and is assuring his friends on that fact today as the result of many raised eyebrows. The eyebrows were raised by his hockey announce-ment during a pause in the car-nival program. "Peterborough is leading Belleville 4-2 at the end of the second inning," he said.

DUTY SPEAKS.

Constable Deannard was in somewhat of a dither on Friday night. He was torn between two forces, as it were. The constab-le's natural kindness of heart in-clines him to look with leniency on the antics of small boys. But Duty is a stern taskmaster. So, when an assorted crowd of urch-ins pre-empted, as it were, stand-ing room in the front row of the free section at the rink last night and gazed with admiration at the visiting skaters, he was compelled to assume a stern visage and wave them with dignified black gloves to a higher place where the looking wasn't so good. 'Twas ever thus, however, as far as small boys are concerned.—C.L.M.

NEW FORM OF HITCH-HIKING.

Something new in the line of hitch-hiking was reported to-day.

Members of the Examiner Jun-ior Merchants' harmonica band were meeting the other evening at The Examiner. One of the lads had come to the meeting on skates, making use of the oppor-tunity afforded by the ice coat-ing on the streets.

"I'd better be going now," he said as the hour approached eight o'clock. "I have to catch the eight o'clock bus."

"You can't ride in a bus with skates on, can you?" the chair-man asked.

"I just hang onto the end of the bus and it takes me right home," he explained.—C.P.K.

COLD BUT POLITE.

Peterborough lived up to its reputation as a 'cold' town last night. (Cold being applied, not to atmosphere, but to enthusiasm). Visiting performers of any kind will tell you that local audiences are 'cold.' That is, they don't ap-plaud much or unduly. They are very attentive, it is true, and sit in quiet rows expecting the best from the performer. But they don't warm their hands with clapping—that is, to any extent. So there wasn't a great deal of applause for the visiting skat-ers who scintillated on the ice at the Rink....Just the same, when several falls took place, owing to warm weather conditions soften-ing the ice, the crowd showed its sportsmanship by loud and sooth-ing applause that brought the skater back for an encore every time.—C.L.M.

PRICE OF GASOLINE IS UP ONE CENT

Standard Grades Are Now Being Sold at 25 Cents a Gallon

Peterborough motorists dug just a bit lower into their pockets when they bought gasoline at local ser-vice stations this morning. The price increase of one-cent a gallon an-nounced by oil heads last evening in Toronto went into effect through-out the city as the stations opened for business to-day.

Previously selling at 24 cents a gallon, standard grades are at a uniform price of 25 cents and extra grades were advanced from 26 to 27 cents. Several local dealers in lower grade gasolines also found a one-cent increase necessary and raised the price of the low grade from 23 to 24 cents.

To-day's price change is the first to be effected in gasoline in Peter-borough since the spring of 1936. At that time, prices were reduced one cent.

STUDENTS DONATE 900 CANS OF GOODS

Car Of Supplies For Flood Sufferers Will Be Shipped On Monday

Members of the Kiwanis commit-tee report that the car load of canned goods, vegetables, clothing, blankets and medical supplies to be shipped from Peterborough to Cin-cinnati for the relief of flood vic-tims of the Ohio valley is assured.

With assistance of other volunteer workers Kiwanis are planning to pack the goods at the central re-ceiving depot in Peterborough Bus Lines garage on Sunday afternoon and it is hoped to have the car ready and away by Monday.

Following an appeal which he made to the student body at P.C.V.S., L. J. Pettit, a member of the teaching staff and of the Kiwanis Club declared the response was won-derful. The students at the Col-legiate donated between 800-900 cans of goods, individual contributions ranging from one can to half a dozen cans.

A call for volunteers to assist in packing goods from one of the forms in the school resulted in the imme-diate response on the part of two American students. Teachers it was stated, made cash donations to the fund.

Donations from the Public schools students and teachers was no less gratifying it was reported, and to them and all other citizens who con-tributed in generous measure the committee tenders sincerest thanks.

MANY VISITORS HERE.

The surrounding district supplied many patrons for the skating car-nival event at Brock St. rink last night. A motorist who arrived in town late Friday night remarked that the stream of out-going cars he met in the vicinity of Peterborough made him wonder what had been going on here. Lakefield, Millbrook, Port Hope, Havelock and other points in the district were all re-presented in the throng at the rink.

Ratepayer Paid Penny In Taxes Another Four Pence In Tax Roll Of Peterborough Century Ago

George Hall's Contribution Two Pounds, Six Shillings And Sixpence Largest

AN OLD REVIEW

Taxes in Peterborough one hun-dred years ago were probably no more popular than they are to-day, and yet the roll for 1837 shows that one ratepayer was down in the town's books for two cents, one penny in those days; another four-pence, and so on up the scale of George Hall's contribution of two pounds, six shillings and sixpence.

An old copy of the tax roll of a century ago does not explain the circumstances of a levy of only two cents, or even of eight, and poster-ity is left to conjecture about the meagreness of the public services so lightly assessed against the holdings o fthe men and also the women, who were called upon to pay the town's municipal rates.

The tax-gatherer has immemori-ally incurred protests for his annual round of attention, and it is con-ceivable that in those days that have passed beyond memory and record some of the taxpayers objected that Peterborough's rates were exorbi-ant or something to that effect. And, according to the information that has survived precariously from that time, it seems that the roll of 1837, as published herewith, em-braced not only the ratepayers of the town but also of the townships of North and South Monaghan.

The personalities of these pioneer citizens have vanished with their generation, but the list affords in-terest as a reflection of the finan-cial conditions of the time when the tax collector dealt in British cur-rency and such lowly items as one penny were not scorned as a liability to the community.

The roll of 1837 with its names and the tax amounts in pounds, shillings and pence, is reprinted as follows:

Loses His Post

Appointed to the Employment and Social Insurance Commission by the Conservative government, Tom Moore, well known Canadi-an labor man, has lost his position following the decision of the Privy council which declared four Conservative social measures were "ultra vires".

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 31

Sunday's horoscope shows a very lively and progressive day, as fore-cast by the predominant stellar op-erations. Employment is under ex-cellent auspices for promotion, pre-ferment, dignities or favors at the hands of superiors and those in au-thority. Friendly interest in sound propositions is assured, with splen-did reactions in the private and so-cial life. These affiliations should be cultivated.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of promise in em-ployment and in the good graces of those in power and prestige, both in business as well as private asso-ciation. New and sound projects may seek this influential co-opera-tion and friendly interest.

A child born on this day may be efficient, enterprising, and it should rise to position and prestige through its dependable and energetic quali-ties.

For Monday, February 1.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a fairly successful and active day, but much depends, however, on wise handling of funds. While there may be some inclination to be free with funds, either in extravagance or indulgence, yet there may be gain through speculation. This may be in connection with combines, rings or secret societies.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a fairly active and success-ful year if they exercise sound business acument and wise judg-ment in the management of funds. Speculation might prove profitable, providing there are no indulgences of a rash nature.

A child born on this day may be clever, shrewd and subtle, although personally generous, popular and companionable. It may have pro-nounced tendencies to gambling, taking chances and extravagance.

Because of rearmament the Brit-ish Navy is in need of trained mechanics.

DISPLAY BY PASTOR SHATTERS MAGIC RING ABOUT LOUIS

Young New Yorker Stays With Brown Bomber Simply By Using His Head—And Feet

STRANGE SPECTACLE

By Sam Robertson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(CP)—The aura of ring greatness built around Joe Louis today appeared shattered beyond repair—and Bob Pastor, a comparatively small man who is as much a footracer as he is a prizefighter, supplied the debunking.

A young New York man called by some boxing writers "nothing more than a preliminary boy," Pastor performed the unbelievable feat of staying 10 rounds with Louis here last night.

It seemed the only reason the white man did not meet the knockout fate predicted for him at almost every hand was because he had something with which to think.

Louis, 23¼ pounds the heavier, obviously the stronger and by far the better boxer—mechanically—could not so much as decisively outpoint a man who showed little but the ability to run nimbly in reverse, and the good sense to stay out of harm's way.

With Pastor back-pedalling so fast some fans shouted that Jesse Owens be substituted for Louis, and with the latter bewildered by the moving target, other pewholders dubbed him "The Dumb Detroiter". It proved one of the strangest and dullest fistic spectacles ever served up in any ring.

And, strangely enough, the majority of the 18,800 fans who contributed toward a "gate" of $111,570 seemed to enjoy it. For most of them went to the show certain they would see only two or three rounds before the "Dark Destroyer" blasted the little New Yorker.

If a fighter in a preliminary bout had backed off with the endless energy of Bouncing Bob, the crowd would have blown him out of the ring with their jeers.

Cheer Selves Hoarse for Pastor.

But, equally as bewildered as was Louis at the fact Pastor was able to stay 10 rounds, the faithful reared their disapproval when the judges and the referee unanimously gave the Negro the decision. They backed the Madison Square Garden rafters with their cheers for the vanquished "trackman."

The fight added little to the New Yorker's ring stature except, as one fan put it, "He did well even to foot-race with Louis for all those rounds." He showed defensive skill, but more in his feet than in his hands. He showed nothing in the way of an offensive weapon potent enough to go far among the ranking heavyweights.

However, the dull doings detracted tremendously from the black man's stature. He proved utterly unable to meet the problem of a nimble target. The Garden air was chilled by the many Louis smashes that churned the air. Joe had been painted as the tiger man of the ring, but he didn't show any feline ferocity and the consensus around the ringside was that he could have finished his small tormenter if he had chosen to tear in with his bigger guns booming.

Louis seemed to supply the answer when he complained in the dressingroom after the fight: "That Pastor said in the newspapers he'd come tearin' in and I was waiting for him."

Joe apparently had planned to meet that sort of attack and when his college-trained opponent switched tactics, the former cotton-picker from Alabama couldn't figure it all out.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

FOUR BASKETBALL games are billed for tonight in the "Y" gym. There's a Church Loop juvenile joust at 6.30, followed at 7.15 by the first of the church bantam finals. The Senior City Circuit swings into action at 8.00 with C.G.E. playing the R. Neill Ltd. squad, while the Dominion Life lads tangle with P.C.I. at 9.00 These tilts are followed by some dancing Quite a crowd of gals and guys take in these Saturday eve cage contests this winter and no one yet has asked for money back.

* * * * *

TALK ABOUT a panning, look what a Niagara Falls scribe says of a player who cursed the coach and left the basketball floor when he was replaced by another: "It smells smaller than we ever gave McCutheon credit for. Just why he thinks he is more important than any of his subs is known only to himself and nobody else cares; but such an exhibition of temper, dissatisfaction and babyishness has no place on a team already with enough internal strife without mollycoddling to the whims of a disgruntled player." We haven't seen such a scorching since a certain scribe went after Umpire Woodley over a year ago.

HERE IS a letter from F. W. Moynes of the Lindsay Watchman-Warder: "Dear Sir—The Felt Cup Hockey Tournament will be held in Lindsay, February 9th and 10th, and, although the number of entries may be limited, we respectfully solicit an entry from your club. We might state that the Felt Cup is the largest and one of the finest trophies given in competition in this district. An entry fee of $2 is charged. Good prizes are guaranteed the winners and runners-up, and a competent referee is being engaged. It is hoped to have some of the fastest teams in the district in this competition. The tournament is open and O.H.A. players are not barred. This should aid in making the tourney one of the finest in the district. We trust to hear from you at an early date so that we may govern ourselves accordingly."

TRENTON FLIERS hop into town Monday to play the Petes at 8.30 in the Brock. It'll be the puck tidbit of the season and, no doubt, the fans will flock to see the struggle. The Airmen defeated the locals in the first meeting of these teams, on Belleville ice, but we wouldn't care to hock the gold fillings and wager much on 'em to repeat on the smaller ice cushion here. It'll be a rough, tough and exciting scrap—and if you fans pass this up then you don't know a good thing when you see it.

* * * * *

THOSE "FRONT runners", as the Quinte scribe calls the Petes, came from behind last night in Belleville to cop a 4-2 intermediate O.H.A. decision. They were down two goals halfway through the game and behind by one when the third frame opened. But the local squad—ably handled last eve by Manager Jim Gillespie—went to work in the windup chapter and rapped home three counters to make it a clean sweep of the series over Belleville Redmen this season. All their future group games are against Trenton Fliers, three of 'em here and two in Belleville. Since there is no playoff between the "A" teams, those remaining five frays will be the same as a playoff series—with the locals down one at present. Belleville and the Trenton town team will continue with their "B" schedule.

* * * * *

IT WAS an odd tussle last p.m. Heavy ice made the going slow, the passing poor and stickhandling hazardous. In this sort of mushy mushing, Belleville looked superior for two periods. They worked hard before the large home crowd and appeared to have the tilt in the gunny sack. But the Petes turned it on in a wide-open lively third inning and had an edge then. McDougall, Coughlin and Ellis didn't play this time, the squad being shifted around with Creighton, Schultz and Gardner on the second line—which went fair. Red Creighton had to have a stitch taken in his left ear when cut in the second stanza and he was lost the rest of the game. Vitarelli did the iron-man stunt in the third.

* * * * *

STARS ON the local lineup yesterday? That's easy—Archie Weir, Ned Vitarelli and Gord Clarke. They stood out all through whereas most of the others just looked good in spots. Weir turned in a sparkling game on defence and he scored three goals, Vitarelli also worked his head off and looked good throughout, and Clarke had to shine in goal to hold off the scrappy Redmen. Johnny (Spud) Murphy made his debut with the Petes on defence but the big fellow looked rusty. From what we saw, we'd say that with about two weeks of regular practising and playing with the Petes he will be a big help on defence, but right now he's out of practise. Belleville fans recalled him when he starred in senior "B" company for Queen's and all agreed he used to be a whiz a few seasons back. St. Louis, Jackson, Bentley and Watt were best for the losers last gloaming.

* * * * *

BEING IN Belleville, we naturally missed seeing the figure skating carnival at the Brock St. rink. We did see the color scheme of the ice, though, and have to hand it to whoever did the job. It was a beaut—but somehow we wonder what the Fliers will say when they first spot it on Monday! Reports are that the carnival went over with a bang before a big crowd and some of the visiting artists put on a grand performance. There is an open fancy dress carnival this e'en at All Saints' rink but the dog derby and th ski-jumping (in connection with the planned Winter Sports Carnival here this weekend) had to be postponed owing to lack of snow. Better knock the cobwebs off the snow shovels right away, folks, as it'll be coming down by the ton the first of next week—life being what it is.

* * * * *

DESE, DEM and dose: Plenty of seats still available at the Brock for Monday's big puck tussle . . . . Cobourg gals' puckists want a game with a local femmes' team, but no can do; try the Lindsay ladies . . . . George G.: You send us the stuff and we'll run it . . . . Our three P.C.I. cage teams did okay away from home last night . . . . Weir got a gash in the leg from a skate last p.m. but will be all right for Monday . . . . Lot of fight fans are holding their noses today over the Pastor-Louis bout last evening . . . . Nip Dwan, old coach of Toronto Hillcrests' ball team, has been visiting in Peterborough recently . . . . Three Senior City Hockey League games are listed for the Brock on Tuesday.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

LITTLE HEAD WORK IN RING THESE DAYS SAYS JOE IVANNI

PUSH LADS TOO FAST

ROME, N.Y., Jan. 30—(C.P.). — Joe Uvanni, one-time middleweight boxing champion of Canada, to-day cast a critical eye on the present crop of fighters and suggested most of them needed a thorough course of instruction in the fundamentals of the sport.

Uvanni, who won his crown from Clove Hawkins at Calgary in 1912, said, "Most modern-day ringmen are fighting with their fists instead of their heads."

"Too often," he charged, "young fighters are pushed ahead by money hungry managers to tackle more experienced men long before they are ready. In my day fighters often spent years under the tuteiage of a finished boxing master before attempting any actual ringwork, but once we were pronounced ready we fought as frequently as twice a month."

Joe was born in Dugenta, Italy, in 1884. His family moved to the United States when he was 11, and by the time he was in his late 'teens he was in the amateur ring. He turned professional in 1903 after training under Jim Dailey, the Philadelphian, who also tutored "Gentleman Jim" Corbett.

Held Crown Till 1914

Uvanni smacked the Canadian crown off Hawkins' head in Tommy Burns' Manchester Arena. Burns, the only Canadian to rule the heavyweight roost, refereed the match. It was staged in the ring where Luther McCarthy died in the historic fight with Art Pelky. Joe held the championship until July 1, 1914, when Billy Weeks defeated him at Fernie, B.C.

Altogether, Joe fought 217 battles. He was knocked out only three times, earned 18 draws, and lost 10 bouts. Following his retirement in 1919, he became physical director at the Policemen's Athletic Club in Sydney, N.S. He returned to Rome in 1924.

Despite his 52 years and the fact 200 ring battles are behind him, Uvanni's muscles are tough and his step as quick as when he scrapped the best men in his division. He is sure he could give the current mitt slingers lessons in the scientific art of planting cauliflower ears, and recently offered his services to two of his favorite ringsters, Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers and Harry Belsamo, New York middleweight who has a devastating punch but little else.

Junior P.C.I. Boys Cop Cage Contest

The junior P.C.I. boys' basketball team copped a 33-9 victory over Port Hope in the latter's gym last evening. It was a regular cage interscholastic setto, and the P.C.I. players piled up a high score against the home team. Superior ball handling and shooting resulted in the visitors' one-sided win. The snappy passing and inside work of the winners had the opposition baffled. It was 22-4 at halftime with the Hopers checking somewhat better the last stanza. Weir topped the scorers with 10 points while Cutting, Dougherty and Sedgewick had six each. The work of these four was outstanding, while Quantrill with six points and Collins with two led the losers. The teams:

Port Hope: Quantrill, DeMille, Hodgson, Newton, Fulford, Brown, Sinnott, Collins, Coupland and Peacock.

—30—THE KICK TURN

The kick turn is used for turning while stationary in preference to stepping around. It is especially useful when climbing in alternate traverses to right and left (zigzagging) to change direction at each traverse. Try it first on the level as follows. Stand with skis parallel and close together, sticks somewhat to the rear of the feet. Take all the weight on the left ski and swing the right leg forward freely.

When the leg reaches the horizontal position, the knee should be straight and the heel of the ski placed on the ground close to the bend of the other ski (fig. 1).

Turning the body to the right, let the right ski swing outwards and down (fig. 2) to a position parallel and close to the left ski. As will be seen from the illustrations, the sticks are held pretty much at arms length and swung around as the body turns. Now lift the left ski around over the heel of the right and place it parallel there too (fig. 4).

On a slope when climbing, the turn should be made uphill whenever possible, the upper ski being turned first. If the slope is not too steep, the ski need not be brought down paralel to the other, but can be placed in the direction of the next traverse. If the slope is too steep to permit of the turn being made uphill, it can be executed downhill paying attention to the following points.

Stand with the skis horizontal across the slope and close together. Turn the lower ski first and place it parallel with the upper, then carry the upper one around.

Katherine Dilks and Marcelle Dermerk were sentenced to prison at Bournemouth, England, for holding up and robbing Miss Martha Cooke, aged 87, of articles valued at $1,500.

CURLING
By HERB MARTIN

The ice carnival held in Brock Street Rink Friday night, plus some very mild weather, caused the curlers to once more postpone the schedule games.

And our guess right now is this—that as the carnival is over watch out for snow and cold weather.

The only activity down at the old ice palace was when a big black Persian cat jumped through the window on the east side, ran across the ice and when he tried to jump through the open window on the west side, slid along the ice about 20 feet, bumped his head against the stone wall and knocked himself out cold—and he was a lovely cat.

The open bonspiel committee held a meeting, so we may expect something in that line the next day or two.

And, curlers, don't forget your entry for the Neil Trophy next Tuesday morning at 9 a.m.—Primary and consolation events.

Somehow or other when we were boosting Walter Oke for being on time so regularly, lately, we had a kind of a guilty feeling that everything was not on the "up and up," and now the news has leaked out—his clock has been an hour fast all winter—and he didn't know it.

We thought we had the only sheet of curling ice in the city—but that curling exhibition shown at th Capitol was good—and the gentl man who made that dead dra through the double port, to the sure knew what it was all about.

10 a.m.—We have just receive word from Bobcaygeon, that owi to so many of their members bei sick with the flu, the game for th Harkness' Trophy has been pos poned.

P.C.I. Girl Cagers Tie With Port Hop

P.C.I. girls and Port Hope battle to a 23-all interscholastic basketba draw in Port Hope last evening. I was a classy tight tilt with the scor see-sawing back and forth in th last five minutes to bring the fan to their feet in excitement. M. Mac Pherson shone for Peterboroug with 13 scoring points. R. Ellis notched seven and W. Saunder three. These players with I. Wra strong on defence, looked best fo the winners but all the team wen well. For Port Hope, R. Thompso was main sniper with 16 points an R. Troop clicked with six. both play ers starring. The teams:

P.C.I.: M. MacPherson, R. Ell W. Saunders, M. Lundy, J. Ottewel I. Wray, L. Reed, D. Glover and I Lawless.

Port Hope: R. Thompson, C Brackenberry, R. Troop, M. Kelle K. Welch, H. Barnes, F. Hodgson, I Brooks and D. Cheser.

Petes Overcome Lead Of Belleville Redmen To Capture Game 4-2

Stage a Thrilling Third Period Rally After Being Down 2-1 as Final Frame Commenced — Crowd Cheers Torrid Action in Period

QUINTE CREW FADED BEFORE ATTACK; ARCHIE WEIR SCORED THREE FOR PETES

Staging a thrilling third-period rally, the Petes rapped in three goals to cop a 4-2 decision over Belleville Redmen on Quinte ice last night. They trailed all the way through and had to turn on the heat in a hectic and exciting final frame to come from behind and clean the Belleville series. A large crowd of fans roared at the torrid action in the third chapter after two periods of indifferent hockey on heavy ice.

The count was 1-0 for the homesters in the first and 2-1 for them going into the third. The ice was soft and wet which made combination and stickhandling decidedly uncertain for both crews. The Quinte crew looked to be better mudders and had an edge in play for two innings, but faded before a strong Peterborough attack in the windup stanza. Despite rugged checking, play was fairly clean most of the distance.

WEIR GETS THREE.

Archie Weir starred in a fine all-around performance, scoring three of the goals and going good on defence. Ned Vitarelli also turned in a whale of a game and figured in two of the counters. Calladine assisted in two and Gardner got the last counter of the contest. Clarke was brilliant in the visitors' net, especially on clearing-up plays. The rest of the squad worked hard, also. Red Creighton was cut in the ear in the middle frame and had to get medical attention. The team, handled last night by Jim Gillespie, had several changes from previous lineups. All the Belleville gang went good in this game with Watt, W. Jackson, Bentley and St. Louis best.

Play started slowly on the soft ice and Belleville looked better than their rivals, carrying play in close for dangerous rushes. Both sides found it difficult to pass accurately and frequently overskated the puck. The period was half shot when the home crew scored with W. Jackson taking a forward pass from Barage at the goal mouth to blast it by Clarke. A few minutes later Magee went off for charging and Belleville pressed hotly for a time as they banged up. The game later developed into a brand of shinny with play fairly even at the finish.

Petes Finally Score.

In the gummy going of the second stanza, both teams tried long bouncing shots that had the rival goalies worried. Burton was robbed in close by Watt, and then Burley tore in to bat home Ingram's rebound and make it 2-0 for Belleville as the fans roared in glee. The Petes pressed for a time trying to get them back, Gardner almost tallying on a one-effort, Creighton was cut by a skate and left the game. The Petes were in hard and had an edge on play, Weir finally scoring on a long shot that trickled through the goalie's pads. Belleville came back strong and made Clarke jump to save some hot stabs. Weir went into the boards hard and was dazed but stayed in when the gong sounded.

The third period opened slowly but soon speeded up and had the crowd roaring most of the way at the heated action. The Petes sent their men up the ice and peppered Watt hard, Weir finally tallying the equalizer on Vitarelli's assist at close range. It was fast, even and wide for a time and halfway through the heat, Weir took Calladine's forward pass at the goal mouth and edged the hemp. Belleville then banged up hotly to try to get it back. Calladine was gated for tripping and the place was in an uproar as five Quinte players swarmed around the Petes' cage and peppered Clarke but he kicked them out. Calladine got back in time to break away and go in close for a try which was blocked but Gardner rapped it home with Vitarelli and Calladine getting assists. Williamson was waved off for boarding and again five Belleville boys made it shot as they ganged up. Morgan got the finger just before the finish for tripping and the Petes playing defensively till the bell.

The teams:

Petes — Goal, Clarke; defense, Weir and Magee; centre, Calladine; wings, Vitarelli and Burton; alternates, Creighton, Schultz, Gardner; Murphy and Williamson.

Belleville—Goal, Watt; defence, Murphy and Bentley; centre, St. Louis; wings, Burley and Morgan; alternates, C. Jackson, W. Jackson, Partridge, McGuire and Ingram.

Referee—Joe Smith of Kingston.

OSHAWA TAKES PORT HOPE FOR 3-1

Losers Score Only Counter In Final Desperate Splurge

OSHAWA, Jan. 30.—Oshawa Coca Colas gave some 2,500 children who attended the game as guests a real thrill last night when they eked out a 3-1 victory over Port Hope Ontarios in an exciting Lake Shore group Intermediate "B" O.H.A. fixture.

Goodchild scored Oshawa's first goal in the second period. Doug. Rowden giving them the winning edge with two well-earned goals in the final period. Sandwiched between Rowden's last-period goals was Port Hope's lone counter, scored by G. Rowden in the dying moments as Port Hope used five forwards in a desperate effort to tie up the game.

Fliers And Petes Tangle On Monday

The biggest hockey crowd of the season is expected to fill the Brock Street rink Monday evening, when the R.C.A.F. Fliers play the Petes an O.H.A. Intermediate "A" game. It will be the Fliers' first appearance here this winter, but they have a decision already over the locals on Belleville ice. While reserved seats have been selling steadily for several days now, the rink management states there are plenty still available. If the weather turns colder and a good sheet of ice is prepared, fans can bank on a classic contest.

The husky Aviators play a rugged brand of hockey. They have some exceptionally speedy forwards who play fine combination. The defence is big and bruising. The Petes are rapidly rounding into first-class shape and are an even-money bet to win here Monday. After their two fine showings on home ice against Trenton and Belleville, the locals are confident they can outscore the smart Airmen. Rough play is likely in this tilt following a number of feuds which flared up between rival players when they met in Belleville.

Warsaw Beats Keene In Tidy Puck Tussle

WARSAW, Jan. 30.—On Wednesday night local fans pointed their cars in the general direction of the Warsaw rink, to see Warsaw team clash with Keene, and what a clash it was. Everybody certainly got their money's worth, as both teams were in excellent shape.

T. Watts put on an extra spurt of speed in the first period and whammed in two goals before Renwick had time to get his breath.

Perce Myles also earned honors by slipping in a goal to make the score 3-0 at the end of the first period.

The second period was fast and furious, and Benny Bell held up the Bell name by scoring a goal, making the score 4-0.

Keene came out of the hole in the last period to score two goals, and the game was over in Warsaw's favor 4-2. Only one penalty was handed out during the whole game, and Nelson happened to be the unlucky boy.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE-CRACKER.

Mister Sporting Editor.

Well, Mac, I don't know what is going to happen Fri. nite in Belleville but otherwise this has been a good week for the local entrants in the Ont.A sweepstakes what with Tweed in the jr division and a fine shellacking of Belleville in the inter. dept. The jr game Monday night was just 1 of them things Mac. The Petes win it but they didn't bury themselves in glory doing it, the Tweed gang working just as hard as if they was up at the top of the heap insteda of being right in behind the 8 ball. and their close checking made the local talent look bad at times. However the young Petes is capable of a lot better hockey than that and they'll probably trot it out when they clash with Belleville for the group title.

A Treat, This Was.

Tues. nite Mister E. Thomas of Belleville turned his red shirts loose here and what the Petes done to them was a treat for the home fans. The visitors nipped the 1st marker on the 1st rush of the game which wasn't the rosiest of openings for the home cause, but after that the local lads took command of the fixture and they run the visitors ragged. The afafir was marked by the passing plays of the Calladine-Vitarelli-Burton lines which is shaping up like a real scoring threat. The boys sling the rubber about like they was passing by ear and they give each other all kinds of setups the other nite. Better than that they all know how to cash in on them too and if they can play that brand of hockey all season they'll provide plenty of thrills. The veteran Mister McDougall, centre for the other line, turned on the heat with some wizard stick-handling and the way he pulled the opposing goalie out and lobbed the bootheel into the twine on 1 rush was worth the admission money. The Petes should improve and while I aint glimpsed the Flyers I am willing to make a guess they will find Mister Buckland's lads harder to take everytime they meet them.

Grand Old Veterans Gone.

In the pro ranks Mac, the tough feature of the week has been the enforced retirement of the grand old veterans, Mister Eddie Shore and Mister Howie Morenis. the dropping out of the Boston star wasn't unexpected because he has been suffering since the start of the season with an injured back, but the accident to Morenz just when he was spark-plugging the Canadiens' great old veteran line like he done when he was the greatest drawing card in hockey was a bolt from the blue. Mister Morenz is out for the season and the saddest thing about it is hewill likely find it difficult to hit his stride again in November. You don't break legs at 35 and keep on starring in the fastest game in the world.

The Canadiens may be able to fill the gap by tossing Mister Pit Lepine in between Mister Joliat and Mister Gagnon, but it won't be like the three Musketeers with the strutford flash missing from the scene. The flying Frenchmen men has been beating all and sundry; if they can keep rolling along without Morenz this Mister Cecil Hart is entitled to No. 1 ranking as a miracle man.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

COMBINES BEATEN BY MARMORA 4 TO 3

Norwood-Havelock Team Lose Close Game On Home Ice

HAVELOCK, Jan 30.—Marmora nosed out a 4-3 overtime verdict over the classy Norwood-Havelock "Combines" at the Norwood Arena, in a none too pleasing display of hockey by either outfit. The locals although having most of the play in their favor were completely outlucked when in good scoring positions, as they were time and again.

The play started very slowly, Marmora going to the fore with a counter by Kerr half-way through the initial stanza, only to have L. Rogers tie it up for the Combines, scoring on a tricky shot from a scramble in front of the Marmora cage.

Almost from the face-off in the second period Marmora again took the lead on a goal by Kouri, scoring with a bounding shot from outside the blue line. The Combines again evened things up with the neatest goal of the evening by J. Voyer on a pass-out from Brunton, ending the period with the score still tied.

Tempers began to flare in the last period with five penalties being handed out, one to the Combines and four to Marmora. The Marmora crew however again took the lead on a counter by Burridge only to have Brunton even it up on a pass from R. Webb.

Forced into overtime both squads had to open up, and soon after the bell, Kerr came through with his second goal of the evening, to put Marmora out in front once more. From then on they resorted strictly to defensive tactics, the locals being held scoreless for the remaining few minutes, with a fine display of net-minding by Callery.

The teams:

Marmora: Goal, S. Callery; defence, Smith and Shannon; centre, T. Shannon; wings, W. Simmons and S. Kerr; alternates, F. Burns, J. Burridge, B. Kouri, S. Leonard, and P. Grey.

Combines: Goal, J. Davidson; defence, R. Webb and L. Rogers; centre, B. Hagerman; wings, N. Rogers and B. Jones; alternates, E. Godin, B. Brunton, J. Voyer, and J. Rathwell.

Summary:

First Period

Marmora—S. Kerr (Simmons).
Combines—L. Rogers.
Penalty—Brunton, Burns.

Second Period

Marmora—Kouri.
Combines—Voyer (Brunton).
Penalty—Burns, Webb.

Third Period

Marmora—Burridge (Kouri).
Combines—Brunton (Webb).
Penalty — N. Rogers, Simmons, Smith, Burns, Shannon.

Overtime

Marmora—Kerr.
Penalty — Smith (2), Shannon, Grey.

TWEED IS UNABLE TO HOLD STIRLING

Intermediates Are Beaten 4 To 3 On Their Own Ice

TWEED, Jan. 30.—Travelling into the enemies' ground for the first time this season, the Tweed High School took the Madoc High School into camp on Thursday night 4 to 3. The game was fast and the play was evenly divided. Madoc opened the scoring, when Reeves took a nice pass from Munro and banged it behind Mouck. Doyle, for Tweed, tied it up when he made a solo rush through the Madoc team to tally.

In the second period, Arber tallied twice on passes from Meraw and Sayers, Reeves accounted for Madoc's second counter on a pass from Munro.

In the last canto, Doyle put the Tweed forces two up, when he beat Martin with a shot from the blue line. Reeves scored his third goal of the game when he sunk a penalty shot behind Mouck.

For the Madoc forces, Martin in the nets turned in a stellar performance, while Reeves, Munro and Parks turned in some clever playing. Only on one occasion did Tweed have a chance to put on the works, and that during a lapse in the Madoc team, at which time the Tweed players tallied twice.

For Tweed, Tummon, Doyle, Meraw, and Long were the outstanding players with Long as usual being the hornet and literally being a pest to the Madoc team.

Lineups:

Funeral will take place Monday, from the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Northey of Smith, at 2 o'clock. Interment at Ray's Cemetery, Lakefield.

IN MEMORIAM

PRESTON.—In loving memory of a dear Husband and Father, William Preston, who departed this life, January 30, 1934.

We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts to-day,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
We think of him in silence,
No eye may see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.

—Ever remembered by his Wife and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

Having been retired on pension from the Canadian Packing Company, after 51 years' service, I wish to express my thanks to Mr. Gordon S. Matthews, manager of the plant; Superintendent McGrath and Foreman Percy Heard, and the employees for the treatment accorded me, and for their kindness during my long connection with the company.—Patrick Coursey.

SHOWER IS HELD FOR KEENE PAIR

Enjoyable Event In Honor Of Mr. And Mrs. F. Dixon

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Jan. 30.—A large crowd attended a miscellaneous shower at the Zion Hall for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dixon (nee Bessie Knox) the newly-weds. An enjoyable evening was spent in dancing during the evening. An address was read by Mr. Earl Burns and the Messrs. John Thompson and Clarence Swan carried in many beautiful and useful presents. The groom replied in a few words. All joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows."

Lunch was served and the happy evening was concluded with dancing to music supplied by Red Moncrief's orchestra.

Ladies' Club Meeting

On Wednesday evening a ladies' club meeting was held at the home of Mrs. G. S. Taylor. The topic was "Development of Northern Ontario," and was most interesting and instructive. It was in charge of Miss Wilena Nelson. After some amusing contests the evening concluded when dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Keene girls' hockey club are anxious to arrange games with outside teams.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 52

"THERE was someone to let the murderer in," Selden went on as he unfolded the mystery. "And a murderer who was so well known that his presence in the village was quite natural."

"I don't see that that follows at all. It is a mere theory that could easily have been wrong," Hutchins grumbled. "It might, for example have been someone who came to the village only at night, or even was hiding in the house."

"I know. I had many ideas, but I am only dealing with the one that led to results, I tried everything, and this held together.

"I saw that I must approach the problem at the other end, and announced to you, Hutchins, to your secret pleasure, that I was returning to London."

"You did," the inspector said grimly.

"I had one great advantage over you, Hutchins, and that is why I have been lucky. I had access to documents at Scotland Yard and sources of information, and was able to put one of our best men on to look up certain facts while I returned here in the simple disguise of a woman. That's the best of being young and good-looking, Hutchins." Selden grinned at the inspector. "I made quite an attractive female, with a little paint and a wig. I attended the inquest and the funeral, and found that Hucks was a bit of a gay Lothario and fond of whiskey. We carried on a mild flirtation with one another, amorous and rather liquorish an his part. I got some useful information. I found that Hucks was in the habit of going out at nights, but never in the day, and, what was more important, that Mrs. Thornton was on very close terms with him, I heard them quarreling one day, and then Hucks made a bad slip. He said that his missus did not approve of me. Now, as there was no woman in the hotel except an old cook and the maids, I began to see daylight. He told me quite a lot about his past life when half drunk, but nothing that would implicate him in any way.

"After my nightly talk with our friend Hucks, I found out that he left the house. He could not do so during the day or he would have to account for his absence; he was extremely clever. He would lock everything up, and then slip out through an old door into the dairy now not used, and so into the garden. I shadowed him, of course, and he went to Colonel Graham's house, but the bloodhounds frightened him off—it was the night that you dined with the Colonel, Reid."

"I am hardly likely to forget that."

"I had already put my hand on Mrs. Thornton as the accomplice in the house—Mrs. Thornton, the only one with the necessary character and daring—for the others were country girls, and when she had the effrontery to come to Hutchins and myself, I could see that she was a dangerous woman, and she thought attack was the safest line of defense.

"She protested too much, and her statement rang false. She was very evidently trying to throw suspicion on Eric Colindale and Lady Severinge on account of the rather ambiguous relations that existed between them. Having failed in that, she tried to implicate James, with the results you all know.

"So much for my researches on the spot. There was grave danger to the children. An attack had been made on them on the very night of the murder—why? I think I can guess—though this is mere speculation. Sir Henry's body had been disposed of in this extraordinarily gruesome but clever fashion, and no trace of him would ever be found. What more likely than that he had gone off, taking the children with him, on account of the 'goings-on', as Mrs. Thornton put it?

"Further attacks were probable, for there seemed to be a very determined vendetta against Sir Henry and his family. I was also sure that Colonel Graham felt himself in grave peril, and I warned him, but he was too obstinate and stubborn to tell me anything.

"I had shadowed Hucks, and had found out that he had been in the habit of crossing the lake at night, and Mrs. Thornton had let down a rope for him from her window. Of course, as I was convinced that they were man and wife, this might have been a perfectly innocent means of seeing each other, though in a clandestine manner.

"But if he had access to the house, it drew all my suspicions towards him. And then I heard that you, Hutchins, had asked him to come as night watchman in the Abbey, and I saw that danger was imminent. Why did you ask him?"

Selden turned to Hutchins, who seemed for the first time nervous and flustered.

"As a matter of fact, now you come to mention it, the suggestion came from Mrs. Thornton, the housekeepr. It certainly bears out your fantastic story."

"I thought so. Here was a heavensent opportunity to carry out their scheme, and I made my preparations accordingly. It was clear that a clever person like Mrs. Thornton would soon discover where the children were hidden—she must have seen James taking food somewhere, and tracked him, or she may have known of the organ loft after her years of service. I saw at once that Hucks would make his attempt from the crypt, as the chapel was locked, and I was waiting for him, but Reid upset everything by having come in with Miss Lawrence without my knowledge and thrown down the ladder, otherwise I should have caught him in the chapel."

"But Hucks had been scared by something, and went off," Reid said doubtfully.

"Scared—fiddlesticks! He saw at once that he was in a dangerous position, and had to pretend that someone or something had scared him. He wanted to get away as quickly as he could, and made that excuse.

"You will remember that Mrs. Thornton then went to Lady Severing, and left the next morning. She had to consult with her husband, but by doing so they lost the chance of entering the house."

"But one moment," Reid interupted. "What about the state of affairs you found in the crypt?"

Selden's face became very grim. "Perhaps it is as well not to go into that too closely," he said, glancing at Sylvia. "He reckoned on Mrs. Thornton's help but with any resistence, that method of concealment might have been tried again. They would undoubtedly have attempted to accuse James, who had already hidden the children, remember, and would have to account for their second disappearance—a difficult task. But they thought Reid was still lying wounded at his cottage, and that I had gone to stay with him as I had done before while he had fever.

"So you see the course of events The first attack if successful, would have thrown suspicion on the dead baronet, and the second on James, but who would have suspected a worthy if vitrolic housekeeper or the respectable landlord of a country pub?"

"All this is most interesting," Hutchins remarked sourly, "but it's all conjecture. We shall want actual proof."

Selden turned on him. "Exactly, and that is what you would have said if I had come to you then with this tale. Now you see why I had to keep my own counsel.

"I was convinced I was on the right track, but had no solid proof, and wanted to catch the two together making a definite attempt on the children. You, Reid, thought I was using the children for a bait, and were most indignant. In one sense I was, but not to expose them to any risk.

"I argued like this—Lady Severinge and Colindale had gone. James had been arrested, and the servants had abandoned the place. Very well, Hucks would say that after the attempt in the Abbey I should not be so mad as to leave Miss Lawrence and the children alone in the Abbey."

"But what about the entrance from the cellar?" Reid said haltingly.

"I had taken steps to have that effectually blocked up when there was no further need for it." He smiled meaningly at Reid.

"So I laid my trap. I went to the inn, and let it be known that Miss Lawrence and the children had been taken to the cottage, as the Abbey was shut up, and I stayed there to keep watch on Hucks and his precious wife, meaning to catch them together at the cottage. I hoped that my sudden appearance there would force a confession, or at any rate give me the evidence I wanted. The great difficulty I had to face was that there was no apparent motive of any kind. But Colonel Graham unsuspectingly sent for the woman to get a statement from her, and that gave her the opportunity she had probably been waiting for of getting inside the Manor House, where no females had ever been employed. What took place at that interview we shall never know unless the woman makes a confession, but I have little doubt that she set fire to the place before she left, having taken some device with her for the purpose. Then she went to the cottage where I found her, expecting to meet Hucks. But he, when trying to join her, was caught and killed by the bloodhounds, which would have been loosed when Mrs. Thornton had got away."

"But the proof of all this," Hutchins exclaimed impatiently.

"I am coming to that. I had received a daily report from the Yard on the progress of the investigations, and the last and conclusive one arrived yesterday. We started with Colonel Graham, for it is easy to trace the career of an army officer. He had a good record of service, a brave soldier, but had been hard up, and had transferred to the Indian army from a crack regiment, which is a sure sign of poverty. He came home on leave many years ago on the illfated P. and O. boat, the Lucknow, with his friend, Henry Severinge and Severinge's servant, James Conolly. They were all given in the register of passengers."

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND HAPPY QUIFFY

"Boo hoo! Boo hoo! Hoo boo! Hoo boo!"

Quiffy, the snow jumper, was crying. He cried backward and forward at the same time, you see. And you may do the same if you like, only what's the fun?

"Why, Quiffy, what's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he hopped back up the hill to the start of the snow races after he had leaped away from the Bad Chaps. "Why are you crying, Quiffy?"

"That is no reason," said Mr. Whitewash. The Polar Bear came shuffling back after having chased away the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat, who were after Uncle Wiggily. "You must give us a better reason than that, Quiffy, for crying."

"Did I do anything to hurt your feelings, Quiffy?" asked Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose in such an odd fashion that Frozen Toad laughed most heartily.

"You won the jumping prize," said Quiffy, "and I was hoping I could win it. That's why I came here to this snow jumping race."

"No Use Trying"

"Ther's no use trying to win now," croaked Frozen Toad. "Uncle Wiggily can jump farther than any of us."

"I think it was because I saw the Bad Chaps chasing me," said Mr. Longears, who was very modest. "If you like we can try it over again. You may win, Quiffy."

"No, what's the use?" asked Quiffy, sadly. Along came the Police Dog barking:

"Get a program! Get a program!

"Don't be silly!" croaked Frozen Toad.

"What do you mean, silly?" asked the dog.

"Selling programs now the race is all over," said Quiffy, "Silly, I call it!"

"Is the jumping race over?" barked the Police Dog.

"Certainly it is," answered Quiffy, still a bit sad. "Uncle Wiggily jumped so far none of us would have a chance. He won."

Then the Police Dog began to bark:

"Extra! Extra! Here you are! Get an extra! All about the big snow jumping race. Uncle Wiggily wins! Get an extra!"

Only an Old Program

"I'll take an extra," said Mr. Whitewash. But when he looked at it he saw it was just an old program of the races. "Here! Come back!" cried the Polar Bear to the Police Dog. But he was running over the snow calling:

"Extra! Extra! All about the race. Uncle Wiggily wins!"

"Don't bother about him!" laughed Mr. Longears when the white bear seemed getting ready to start a chase. "He doesn't know any better."

"All right. But what about Quiffy?" asked Mr. Whitewash in a whisper. "He seems very sad."

"I'll make him happy," said Uncle Wiggily. Then he said to the Snow Jumper: "How would you like to come home to my hollow stump bungalow. You can jump against my little rabbit children and I'm sure you'll win. You can even beat me, I think, if no Bad Chaps are around."

So he was very happy and he went home with Uncle Wiggily. Mr. Whitewash shuffled along through the snow with them. It began to get dark. The snow jumping races were over. None would jump against Mr. Longears. But they were very glad he had won.

Now if you can stop the rice pudding from throwing all its raisins at the custard pie, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's shadow.

LONDON DRIVER FREED

LONDON, Ont., Jan 30—(C.P.)—Anthony J. Sansone, 30, charged with manslaughter, was acquitted by a Supreme Court jury last night after a two-day trial.

It took the jury little more than an hour and a half to arrive at a verdict which cleared Sansome of criminal responsibility in the death last October 25 of William M. Coles, member of a prominent London family. Coles was a passenger in an automobile driven by Sansome which overturned on the Asylum sidewalk.

BENSFORT EUCHRE CLUB HAS ENJOYABLE PARTY

Successful Event Is Held At Home Of Mr. And Mrs. R. Perrin

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BENSFORT, Jan 30.—On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Perrin opened their home to the members of the Euchre Club. When all had assembled score cards were passed and seven tables were occupied for a series of eight games of progressive euchre. At the conclusion of the games, scores were counted and the winners declared to be Mrs. Ross Moncrief and Mr. Harold Nurse. Those holding low scores were Mrs. C. Emberson and Mr. E. Wood. Suitable awards were presented in each case.

At midnight lunch was served by the hostess and some of the ladies. Dancing was then enjoyed for a couple of hours. Music was supplied by Harold Moncrief, Harold Nurse, C. Emberson, E. Wood and Helen Howson.

Mrs. Stanley Robinson and Mrs. Stuart Thompson recently visited Mrs. C. Emberson.

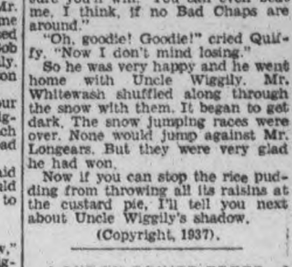
If You Have a Child
ASK YOUR DOCTOR THIS



Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy

Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

SAYS FINANCES ARE PUBLISHED

Denial Given To Criticism Council Withholds Treasury Information

AVAILABLE TO PRESS

The following statement in a recent letter to the Examiner: "It is unfortunate that the council takes the position of giving as little information as possible on financial matters," has been the subject of some protesting comment by members of the city's administration and several others who are close to it.

"This notion has been created during the last month," one commentator said, "and is utterly without foundation. All the treasury information is as much available to the press as it is to the members of the council, and always have been. The preparation of the year's budget is always published in full by the Examiner, and with the facts of assessment and appropriations upon which the fixing of the rate is determined. The items in the appropriations for the police department, the fire department, the Board of Works, the Board of Health, Public Library Board, and other details of expenditure under the control of the council such as relief, parks and so on are all published. Then at the municipal nominations which hardly any of the citizens attend to indicate that they are interested in these matters the Mayor and members of the council who are seeking re-election invariably review the year's expenditure and the state of the city's finances. Some years ago Roland Denne when he was Mayor referred to the fact that within a few years a large block of debentures would mature with a consequent reduction of interest charges which would tend to lighten the tax rate. The council arranged for a thorough audit of all the city's accounts and the auditors' reports are printed annually and are available at the city hall. If any citizen has a suggestion for further publicity of the city's finances I think the council would welcome it."

Another citizen holding a prominent appointive position said that the criticism would be regarded as ridiculous by every person who read the municipal news in the Examiner.

"The confidence of the people in its council is best illustrated by the fact that they re-elected four of last year's aldermen and returned Mayor Macdonald without opposition," this man stated. "I think that is sufficient answer to a recent attempt to cast doubt on the council's frankness in its relations with the people. There may be some people who would believe that kind of subversive propaganda, but I am sure they are very few. It is the cheapest kind of attack on the men in control of the city's treasury, suggesting that they are trying to conceal facts from the ratepayers. Frank Adams, city treasurer for years, Simon Armstrong, W. J. Green, tax collector for a generation, Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, auditor for many years until recently succeeded by Edward Humpage, are the type of men who are in close touch with the city's finances, to say nothing of the calibre of the aldermen. Peterborough has been exceedingly well served by its officials, and the confidence of the ratepayers in the city hall administration is not likely to be disturbed by the reckless type of critic."

Still wearing the tuxedo in which he attended the fatal testimonial dinner at the Manhattan Opera House, Gabrial Klar is shown in the New York station house, where he surrendered for questioning. Klar and Joseph Berger, who surrendered with him, were later booked on a charge of stabbing to death Frank Cicero at the Opera House banquet in honor of a garment trade union executive.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JAMES MILLER.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Jan. 30. — The funeral of William James Miller, son of Mr. Stephen and Margaret Metheven Miller, who died in Nicholls Hospital of pneumonia on Thursday, January 28, took place from Comstock's Funeral Parlors on Friday afternoon, January 29. Rev. Mr. Preston, of whose charge in Warsaw Mr. Miller was an elder, and Rev. J. W. Wilkinson officiated.

Mr. Wilkinson began the service by reading the hymn, "I heard the voice of Jesus say." Mr. Preston led in prayer. Mr. Wilkinson read some passages from Revelation and II. Timothy, with a few notes, and the hymn "Peace, Perfect Peace." Mr. Preston spoke of the character of the man whom he had come to know better having spent a few days' holiday with him, and of the resurrection and the Divine plan of everlasting life, closing his address with prayer, after which Mr. Wilkinson read "Abide with Me."

The pall-bearers were four brothers, Stephen, Stuart, David and Robert Miller, and two nephews, Stephen Miller, Otonabee, and Percy Cullen, Tornto.

Interment took place in the family plot in Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cullen, Toronto, and V. B. Coleman from Port Hope were present, as well as a large number from Peterborough, Lakefield, Douro, and Dummer, for he was well known and respected. The only cousins Mr. Miller had, David Armstrong, Keene, and John Mervin, Peterborough, were there.

Mr. Miller leaves to mourn the loss of a beloved brother his four brothers mentioned, and three sisters, Miss Sarah, now in Peterborough, Mrs. Thomas Cullen of Smith, and [illegible] homestead, where all the family except Robert were born, with Willie, who is at present in the hospital with influenza. The oldest brother Thomas Alexander died about six years ago.

Keene Parishioners Express Regret At Losing Priest After Six Years

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Jan. 30.—On Thursday evening at the home of Michael Kennealey, the parishioners of the Church of St. John the Evangelist acted as hosts at a pleasant farewell evening in honor of Rev. J. V. Masterson, D.D., on the occasion of the latter's completion of a period of six years as priest in charge of the above congregation. Following the serving of a delightful lunch by the ladies of the Altar Society, an address was read and a presentation of a purse made respectively by George Carey and Earl Doris. Dr Masterson, in a most fitting reply, thanked the people of Keene for their many acts of kindness, their spirit of loyalty and glad co-operation in all church activities and expressed his sorrow at his removal from their midst.

Concluding remarks included a brief speech by Harold Roach who spoke on behalf of the parish and brief remarks from the visiting clergy in the persons of Rev. Fathers E. Grant, J. C. Maloney, Jos. Walsh and C. J. Carroll.

The evening closed with the singing of God Save the King.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 30.—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Haines, at Wilberforce was totally destroyed with contents a few days ago. Overheated pipes were responsible for the blaze, which spread with such rapidity that only a few chairs were saved. Mrs. Haines, who is a patient in the Wilberforce Red Cross Hospital gave birth to a child in the burned house before the fire broke out. There are three children in the family, which is left destitute as a result of their loss.

Will Spend $25,000

Lindsay Board of Water Commissioners at a meeting on Thursday decided to go ahead with the proposal to spend the sum of $25,000 on alterations and additions to the present pump house. The chairman of the board, John O'Leary, is opposed to the proposed expenditure. He points out that engineering blunders had been made in Lindsay in the past, and he would be opposed to the new undertaking until he was satisfied it would be an improvement worthy of the expenditure.

BREAK INTO STORE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Thieves Force Entrance With Crow-Bar And Get Away With $5

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 30.—The store owned by J. A. Frederick was broken into and robbed late Thursday night or Friday morning. Forcing their way through a basement door by means of a crow bar the thieves gained entrance to the store where they rifled the safe which Mr. Frederick had left unlocked, and when they found no money in this they proceeded to rummage through the boxes on the shelves, where they found about $5 in cash which was taken. It was apparently money which was being sought, as the proprietor reports that no merchandise was stolen. The local police are working on the case, which up to a late hour last night had yielded no clue.

PASTEURIZED MILK Is SAFE MILK

Pasteurization is named after the famous French research worker, Pasteur, who established the theory of the spread of disease by micro-organisms. Pasteurization involves the heating of all the milk to a temperature of 142-145 degrees Fahrenheit, holding it at this temperature for thirty minutes and then rapidly chilling. His discovery has resulted in the saving of thousands upon thousands of lives.

At Peterboro' pasteurisation plants have always absorbed, at CITY PRICES, milk from distributors, who have given up distribution of whole milk. To these distributors, this plan has been more than satisfactory.

¶ There are three dangerous sources of contamination of milk, first, those from barnyard dirt, second, germs in the milk as drawn from the cow itself, and third, disease producing organisms derived from the milker or handler or from exposure.

¶ The second is of importance because cattle suffer from certain diseases common to both man and themselves. The organisms responsible for these diseases are found in the milk supply when it is withdrawn from the lacteal glands, or they may obtain entry as the result of careless milking, or unsanitary environment, and, finding milk a favourable medium for growth, may develop into formidable numbers before the untreated milk is consumed by the human. Bovine tuberculosis, undulant fever and septic sore throat are the commonest of these disabling diseases. At least 13% of our tuberculosis in children is of bovine origin and is acquired as the result of the drinking of infected milk. Data compiled by research workers at the Hospital for Sick Children, at Toronto, has clearly demonstrated the relationship between the use of unpasteurized milk from cattle infected with tuberculosis and tuberculous glands and other forms of surgical tuberculosis in children.

¶ The third source is also very important. Milk may be made harmful from exposure to organisms which are to be found in the milk containers employed; from contamination with the water used to clean the bottles or utensils; from organisms on the hands of the milker or milk handler. Scarlet fever, diphtheria, septic sore throat, typhoid fever and paratyphoid fever are the commonest of the diseases which may be spread in this manner.

¶ The requisites for a satisfactory milk supply are clean milk from healthy cows, with the added safeguard of PASTEURIZATION. When the simple conditions necessary in carrying out the pasteurization process are observed all of the dangerous germs which may be present in the milk are destroyed and no epidemic of disease can result from drinking it.

¶ From the standpoint of its nutritional value pasteurization postpones souring; it does not change the fat (cream), protein, sugar or mineral salts; it destroys all harmful organisms, a fact so well proved that it is not subject to discussion.

¶ The arguments which have been adopted against the widespread use of this protective measure of pasteurization are exactly those that have been used against other measures, such as chlorinization of water, and by the same people. One group states that there are no such things as harmful bacteria; another says we are interfering with nature; a third insists that the old way which was good enough for our forefathers is good enough for today; a fourth is interested solely in the monetary return and is presumably prepared to profit by the misfortunes of their fellowmen; while a large group is frankly indifferent.

¶ *Even if compulsory pasteurization did work a hardship on the small milk pedlar, so does every other forward step adversely affect a small group in the community. This hardship lasts only during the period of his absorption. A community should not be expected to expose its members to disabling disease and worse in order to avoid the possibility of inconveniencing a group so small that they are only a fraction of those who suffer as a result of this attitude of misguided benevolence.

¶ You are at liberty to line up under the banner of any of the above mentioned forces, or to ally yourself with those who, interested solely in human betterment are convinced that the pasteurization of all milk is essential to safeguard the health of the people and to prevent crippling disease and death.

BLIND FARMER HAS A CHANCE SEEING AGAIN

Pictures Published in Examiner Aid In Diagnosing Trouble

COULD SEE FLASH

Has Sporting Chance Of Regaining His Sight Peter Robertson Told

Confirming a diagnosis he made on studying his picture in The Examiner last week, Dr. Charles M. Scott of this city told 65-year-old Peter Robertson, blind Otonabee farmer, there was a "good chance" his eyesight could be restored, after examining his eyes Saturday afternoon.

The courageous gray-haired man, who operates alone his 100-acre farm despite his blindness, said with a tremor in his voice: "To have my sight back would be a wonderful help to me."

Photographic Freak

Reading the story of Robertson's plight and observing accompanying pictures in Thursday's issue of The Examiner, Dr. Scott noted that, in one picture of the blind man, the pupil of the right eye was represented not by a point of blackness but by an infinitesimal point of white. Extensive acquaintance with blindness through studies in Vienna and London and through experience with thousands of sightless patients in India led Dr. Scott to attach particular significance to the point of white.

Opaque Cataract

If the intense light from the newsphotographer's flash bulb entered the pupil of the eye and was reflected back into the camera by a particularly apaque cataract on the lense, would not that account for the point of white in the photograph? Thus the surgeon reasoned. And disregarding the fact two eye specialists had already told Robertson he was doomed to permanent blindness, he indicated he would be glad to examine him.

Examiner reporters drove to the farm two miles southwest of Keene Saturday afternoon and found the blind farmer sitting on the couch in his home, tidied up neatly in his Sunday best, waiting for them. It was evident he had been anticipating the hour anxiously and with no little bit of excitement. He had finished up his morning chores and locked his faithful dog "Collie" in the stable for fear the animal would follow him. Not for two years had he made a trip so far from the farm he knows so well by touch and memory.

See Moon at Night.

Thorough tests and a verbal examination soon indicated to the doctor that his original diagnosis was likely correct when Robertson had been introduced to him in his

SINKING FREIGHTER REMAINS SILENT

Reports Holds Filling Rapidly--American Craft Believed Nearby

NEW YORK Feb. 1 (AP)—Radio operators hung over their silent keys for hours today awaiting code signals that would disclose the destiny of the 6,601-ton American freighter Meanticut, which sent out an SOS late last night when her holds filled with water in heavy mid-Atlantic seas.

All radio sources reported the silence of the Atlantic had been unbroken since the Dutch steamer Edam had wirelessed that it had proceeded 90 miles from its position at the time the SOS was broadcast and was standing by.

Later messages believed from the American steamer Waukegan stated it was convoying the stricken ship to the nearest port.

The last word from the Meanticut, a Lykes Brother ship en route from New Orleans to Liverpool with a general cargo, crew of 35 men and no passengers, stated at 7 p.m., EST., that "We have two lifeboats ready, but they are not in good condition." The Meanticut reported earlier her number five hold was full of water and that one and two were filling, but the officers expected to keep her afloat until help arrived.

AUTOIST KILLED WEST OF WHITBY

Struck Down By Bus As He Is Walking For Truck To Free Ditched Car

WHITBY, Ont., Feb. 1—(C.P.).—George Hutchinson, 40, was killed when struck by a Gray Coach Line bus last night on the Kingston highway, while he was walking to get a garage truck to pull his motor car out of the ditch west of here. The bus was driven by George McGaffin, Oshawa.

Dr. C. O. Millar, Oshawa, was passing the scene, attended the injured man who was found to have a fractured skull and other injuries. Coroner Dr. R. T. MacLaren, Whitby, conferred with Crown Attorney G. D. Conant, Oshawa, and ordered an inquest for Thursday. Mr. Hutchinson was unmarried.

GOODS ARE PACKED FOR FLOOD VICTIMS FUND STILL OPEN

6,000 Tins Of Canned Goods Contributed By Various Agencies

DISPATCH CAR TUESDAY

Loading of the freight car with canned goods, vegetables, clothing, blankets, and medical supplies were almost completed this Monday afternoon at the C.P.R. freight sidings at the rear of Duffus' garage, and it is expected that it will be despatched from here on Tuesday for the relief of flood victims in the Ohio valley.

Raised as a result of an appeal sponsored by Peterborough Kiwanians, the car load of goods is to be consigned to the Kiwanis Club at Cincinnati. It will go through freight and duty free and will be rushed on its way through plans completed by the American Consulate in Toronto, and with the cooperation of the railroads and customs officials.

Members of the Kiwanis committee with other volunteer helpers worked Sunday afternoon in the garage of Peterborough Bus Lines which was utilized as the central receiving depot. There they packed 6,000 tins of canned goods donated through the various agencies who co-operated in the fullest measure to help provide for the immediate needs of flood sufferers.

P. J. Giffen, chairman of the Kiwanis Public Relations committee, said the committee has spent approximately seven hundred dollars in the purchase of blankets, clothing, medical supplies, and other needs. While most of the money has already been contributed, he said other cash donations will be accepted for the fund, and for this purpose The Examiner offices are remaining open this evening.

While the total sum spent was not fully contributed, the committee went ahead confident in the belief that the balance will be donated by the public of Peterborough.

Among donations received over the week-end were generous supplies of canned goods donated through the city's Separate schools.

WRITER TELLS OF HIS FLIGHT FROM PADUCAH

Water Rose So Fast He Was Unable To Recross Street After Eating Lunch

WOMEN REMOVED FIRST

Allowed One Blanket, Bag Each—Nearly Drowned When Boat Hit Top Of Truck

(In the following story, written for the Associated Press, John T. Ross, of the Paducah Sun-Democrat staff tells how he and others were caught by the flood 10 days ago and of their hardships before reaching safety. The Sun-Democrat now is published at Mayfield, 24 miles south.)

(By John T. Ross.)

PADUCAH, Ky., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Having refinished my stint at the newspaper officer on a certain Friday in January (dates have ceased to matter to us folks down here in the Ohio Valley flood zone), I walked out of the front office to get a bite to eat. Water was over the sidewalk then but you could hop across a stretch of it if you were nimble.

By the time I had eaten lunch, the rain which had been falling steadily for many hours had turned to snow, and the water was so deep you couldn't get in the front door without hip boots. I had no boots.

It snowed harder. I tried to get to my residence, three blocks distant, to see about scaffolding furniture, but the flood waters had risen so fast I couldn't get within a block of the house. I plowed through the snow to Broadway and tried to buy hip boots. Paducah was bootless. I couldn't even get a pair of overshoes. Then I went to a hotel where my family had taken a room.

Hotel Furnace Goes Out.

Two days later water flooded the furnaces in the hotel basement and we were paddling in cold rooms, using overcoats and anything else handy to keep warm. To add to our misery they announced that a 20,000-gallon tank of gasoline had collapsed somewhere on the south side, creating an extremely dangerous fire hazard. We had to stop smoking.

They took out the sick, the women and children and babies first, in boats. Each was told to take a blanket and was allowed one bag. My family went with the first load. Ten hours later I had a chance to depart not knowing when I might see the wife and kiddies, or where, if ever.

It was a two-mile trip from our starting point to the refugee landing in the high west-end. At the widest street intersection in town our boats hit the top of a submerged truck, where we stuck hard and fast. The pilots decided the rudder was caught.

Past Comes In Review.

They rocked the craft while I kept bailing water. I had visions of flinging my overcoat from my shaking body and trying to swim the cold waters. If ever I felt like praying it was then. I recalled sundry mean things I had done and made some excellent resolutions.

But we got off at last and reached the landing dock and I staggered out. An hour later I luckily found my family, huddled at a registration camp set up in a suburban high school.

And this was only the beginning. Now my left arm is so sore from a typhoid shot I can hardly punch the typewriter. And Paducah faces the biggest job in all its history—faces the same task a lot of other stricken towns in the once beautiful Ohio Valley confront in weeks to come.

NORTHERN LIGHTS GUIDE FOR PILOT IN ARCTIC RESCUE

Picks Up Bishop Of Arctic And Eight Companions Stranded Over Two Months In Wastes

SHIP BROKEN DOWN

SEATTLE, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The "Bearded Bishop of the Arctic" came back from the North to relate today how 10 shipwrecked travelers were rescued by an airplane pilot who used the northern lights for landing flares to pierce the polar night.

The Most Rev. Peter Falaize, Catholic bishop of the vast Yukon territory, bearded veteran of many a harrowing hardship in his snow-bound diocese, was one of the party saved. He came here to be treated for snow blindness.

"We had left our mission on the Coppermine River and were trying to go 400 miles to the Mackenzie in our small schooner," he said. "The gales were the worst in 60 years and they littered the Arctic ocean with icebergs.

"Finally the strain of bucking the ice tore out bolts on the boat's propellor shafts. We beached her and left her at Pearce Point.

"We had no food, and no dogs, and it was 60 miles to a mission. There were Father Binami, Father Kraut and Father Griffin, two Eskimos and four children we were taking to school at Aklavik.

Eskimos Lend Assistance.

"We found some old meat. It tasted worse than castor oil, but we ate it. Then we found an Eskimo family and they took care of the children for us for a while and lent us a dog team to go to the missions."

A bear had robbed the mission's food cache, so, with the temperature 40 below zero, the priests cut holes in the ice of nearby lakes and fished Eskimo fashion.

"After a while we went back to the ship and sent radio messages. I did not feel we should ask for an airplane, because it is so dangerous to fly there in the winter and, by now it was night all the time.

"But Matt Berry flew one, by the light of the moon and the northern lights, and he landed in a gale. We were beached September 24, and December 9 he came."

Last Minute News Flashes

NEW YORK—Dr. M. Mortimer Sherman, a psychiatrist formerly employed by New York city, said today papers have been filed for the commitment of Edward J. Reilly, lawyer, to the Brooklyn State Hospital for the Insane.

2 Lochalsh Hamlets Get Miners Muddled

Wingham, Feb. 1.

But a lot of people, including postal officials, seem to think it is, and for that reason, D. A. McLennan, proprietor of the general store, is each day plagued with dozens of letters inquiring where and how to stake claims, start laundries, take in boarders, open bars and buy huskies.

The letters are simply addressed "General Store, Lochalsh, Ontario," and because Mr. McLennan runs a general store which is also in Lochalsh, which, in turn, is also in Ontario, the mail business has become rather complicated.

VIOLENT DEATH TAKES 5 LIVES

Car Driven By Hon. Harry Nixon Kills Man At St. George

TWO OTHERS AUTO VICTIMS

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Violent deaths in Ontario during the week-end claimed five persons. Auto accidents, the premature discharge of a shotgun and a drowning caused the fatalities.

Identified by a card in his pockets as J. Honeycott, Toronto, (412 Bloor street east) a man was killed on the highway Sunday near Waterdown, about seven miles north of Hamilton, when struck by a car driven by Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Ontario acting premier and provincial secretary. Police in checking the man's residence said no person by the name of Honeycott lived at the address on the card.

After speaking to police, Mr. Nixon continued his journey to Toronto from his St. George home where he spent Sunday with his family. A preliminary inquest will be held into the man's death at Burlington today.

Mr. Nixon told police he was driving back to Toronto from his home at St. George. He said the man was walking on the north side of the highway in the darkness and started to cross just as the car approached. Mr. Nixon swerved his machine and jammed on the brakes but the pedestrian was struck by the left headlight and fender of the car.

Coroner Dr. R. T. Dingle, Burlington, said the victim's skull was fractured and both his legs were broken.

Police are seeking relatives of the dead man, who is described as about 50 years old, of medium height and wearing a dark overcoat, blue suit and a sweater coat.

Driver Faces Charge.

William G. Laidlaw, 25, London, was killed when struck by a car on the highway just north of Winery Hill at London. Walter W. Ray, said by police to have been the car driver, was charged with manslaughter and will appear in court tomorrow. Inquest into Laidlaw's death will be held February 8.

When struck by an auto driven by Elgin C. Winchester of Toronto, William Stoneman, seven-year-old son of Gordon Stoneman of Clinton township, was almost instantly killed. The accident occurred near Beamsville.

Gordon Yule, 36-year-old farmer of Godolphin, five miles southwest of Campbellford, was killed Saturday when the shot gun he was handling accidentally discharged, the contents lodging in his head.

The body of Raymond Lanoue, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moise Lanoue, Tilbury North township, was found in the well near the family home Saturday. He had been despondent for some time, it was stated, after suffering a sunstroke.

ONTARIAN-MADE SOLE VISCOUNT IN HONORS LIST

Lord Greenwood, Born In Whitby, Is Promoted From Rank Of Baron

PRESS IS CRITICAL

Queen Elizabeth Heads Group--Writers Would See More Women Included

LONDON, Feb. 1 (C.P. Cable). — Absence of General Sir Hubert Gough's name from the deferred New Year's honors list created considerable newspaper comment today.

Gough's handling of the Fifth Army's retreat before the great German offensive of the spring of 1918, which at the time cost him his command, of late has been vindicated, and in many quarters the inclusion of his name in the honors list had been anticipated. One suggestion that has been pressed is that Sir Hubert be appointed Field-Marshal when the first vacancy occurs.

The promotion of Lord Greenwood from Baron to Viscount in the ranks of the peerage drew criticism from the News-Chronicle. "The conferment on Lord Greenwood of Black and Tan fame of the one and only Viscountcy seems scarcely calculated to smooth the negotiations in progress for an Irish settlement," the paper declared.

Lord Greenwood, the former Sir Hamar Greenwood, was born at Whitby, Ont., and was the last Chief Secretary for Ireland.

The Manchester Guardian thought the honors list was sparing in recognition of eminence in the arts, literature, and the learned professions, and of the claim of women to distinction.

Honors for Queen Elizabeth and other members of the Royal Family headed the list.

From a Humble Start

LONDON, Feb. 1—(C.P. Cable).—Lord Greenwood, elevated from Baron to Viscount in the King's deferred New Year's honors list issued to-day, is a native of Whitby, Ont., who had a humble start in life.

He left Canada at the age of 25, with little in the way of money or practical experience, but with a wealth of ambition. Once in England, he struggled to make ends meet while completing his legal education. Then his rise was rapid, as a lawyer, member of parliament, and member of the cabinet.

Hamar Greenwood was born February 7, 1870, a son of John Hamar Greenwood, who was a barrister-at-law. He was educated at Whitby Schools and graduated from the University of Toronto as a B.A., class of 1896. William Lyon Mackenzie King, Canada's Prime Minister, was a fellow-graduate.

Politically, Greenwood made his mark as Chief Secretary for Ireland. He held the post for two years during the period when relations between Ireland and Britain were sorely strained, and which culminated in setting up of the Irish Free State.

Once Was An Actor

The now Viscount Greenwood had a varied experience before he left Canada. He served eight years with the Canadian Militia and, for a time, was with the Ontario Department of Agriculture. After graduating from the University he joined a travelling troupe of actors in Western Ontario, but the venture ended quickly when the troupe went bankrupt.

His three brothers are now dead. Of six sisters, Charlotte Jane married Henry A. Moore of Toronto, and Margery Virginia became Mrs. Frederick Cross of Brooks, Alta.

Sir Harry McGowan, one of the new Peers, is well known in Canadian business circles and is a director of Canadian Industries Limited. He was born in Glasgow 62 years ago. In addition to holding the chairmanship of Imperial Chemicals, he is a director of the Midland Bank and General Motors, and in 1931 was president of the Society of the Chemical Industry.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Creeping yellow waters sloshed over the walls of Cairo, Ill.—prime danger spot in the 1200-mile battle against the river—as the flood-girt city's army of defenders, 4500 strong, awaited "zero hour" today behind a barricade 16 inches thick.

Lashed by wind and a swift current around the river's bend, waves broke over the lower ramparts of the 60-foot concrete seawall and drummed ominously against the frail three-foot superstructure crowning the main barrier.

With the cresting Ohio at the all-time record height of 59.50 feet, six inches from the top of the concrete bulkhead, only a mud-boxed wall a foot and a half wide remained to stave off the threatened deluge.

All women and children were ordered to leave the city at once. It was the second evacuation. Some had drifted back, cheered by reports that no immediate danger impended.

Mounting water warned of an early crisis. Throughout the freezing night, in the glare of floodlights, levee sentinels patrolled the walls, looking for weak spots or leaks.

While Louisville, Cincinnati and other Ohio River towns, battered and bruised by their worst flood, cheerfully turned to rehabilitation efforts, man-made dikes on the long river front from 50 miles below Cairo to the Gulf of Mexico held the flood waters of the Mississippi. United States army engineers reiterated their predictions the levees would meet the test when the crest of the flood passes down the Mississippi this week.

115,000 Guard Dikes

"If vigilance, supplies and manpower can do it, the levee line will be held at all costs," said Lieut.-Colonel Eugene Reybold, directing the vigil of 115,000 men along the Mississippi's $1,000,000,000 - dollar dike system.

The flood situation neared the crisis around Cairo as the water crawled up the seawall which towers above some sections of the city of 13,000.

It was now virtually a city of men only. Evacuation of women and children was ordered when the gauge showed the flood level more than 59 feet—one foot less than 60-foot seawall. A three-foot bulkhead now tops the seawall as a last line of defence.

Above Cairo, residents of towns began evacuation as the river gradually rose in its streets. The only dry spot in Harrisburg, city of 12,000 northeast of Cairo, was the business section. Harrisburg is 22 miles away from the river's normal course.

Flood fighters in the Cairo sector had a busy night plugging minor breaks. The Slough Landing Neck dike gave way at Beesle, 10 miles north of Tiptonville, but engineers said it would not endanger the Tennessee city. The flood-waters cut across the 1¼-mile neck of the Horseshoe Bend to rejoin the Mississippi and ease the strain at New Madrid, Mo., at the head of the bed.

Only One Drowned

Tragedy apparently was averted when a large barge returning a large number of Works Progress Administration rescue workers to their base at New Madrid capsized last night. Army officers said their check indicated that only one man may have drowned.

Awaiting a report from the flood commission headed by Harry Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, which began an inspection of the flood-areas to-day, President Roosevelt was advised that 180,000 Federal relief workers were aiding nearly 1,000,000 persons driven from their homes. The Red Cross counted 966,6503 persons whose homes had been flooded and of these 676,176 abandoned them.

Meanwhile the Red Cross said its goal of $10,000,000 for the flood relief was in sight. Contributions totalled $8,319,500.

Ground Hog Defies Chills Of Winter

Cayuga, Feb. 1.

HE may end up with frost-bitten toes, but a ground hog near the home of F. B. Goodwillie is acting mighty queer these past three days, as though he might have the idea there isn't going to be any more winter. He comes out of his den on the side of the hill and basks in the sun by the hour. He may have seen his shadow, but if he has, it doesn't seem to worry him much.

CARCASSES 8 DEER ARE FOUND ROTTING IN HASTINGS WILDS

Piled In Single Heap Wanton Slaughter By Poachers Includes Young Fawn

ONLY ONE PARTIALLY USED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 1.—Game-wardens of this and the entire eastern district were aroused this week over the finding of the carcasses of eight red deer found in one heap near Wolfe Lake, directly west of Bon Echo Inn. Included in the heap of dead animals was the body of one small fawn. Only the hindquarters of one animal had been cooked and apparently eaten by the poachers.

The deer were brought to Northbrook by Game-warden Edward Morley, and locked in the warehouse of Thompson and Son. The seizure of the dead animals has been reported to the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries.

Lad Breaks Ankle

Sleigh riding on a hill in the village of Bancroft near his home last week, Howard Vance, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vance, sustained a fractured ankle when his sleigh overturned. While his young companion, Grant McCaw, had gone for assistance, Howard managed to attract the attention of Mr. and Mrs. George Barker, who took him in their car to the office of Dr. W. O. Anderson, where the fracture was reduced.

Almost Drowns in Well

What might have resulted in a drowning fatality was narrowly averted by the loud cries of four-year-old Kenneth Howard of Shannonville, on Friday afternoon, who desperately clutched at the projecting end of a log as he was about to fall into a well at his home.

Kenneth had been chasing a cat in the field, when he stumbled and was about to fall through the ground-level opening of the well. Grabbing the log which partly covered it, he yelled for help. His cries were heard by his father, who rushed to the lad and lifted him to safety.

Brantford Centenarian Dies After Life Under 7 Sovereigns

Mrs. Sarah MacDonald Spent Early Married Life In Gold Fields Of Australia

11 GREAT-GRANDCHILDREN

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 1 (C.P.). — Mrs. Sarah Macdonald, one of Brantford's three centenarians, died here yesterday. Had she lived until February 14, she would have been 101 years of age, having lived under seven sovereigns.

A native of Yorkshire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clayton, she resided as a girl in Hamilton, and then at Cathcart, Brant County. At 19 she married Archibald Macdonald. They set out for the Australian gold discovery at Ballarat, the finale being a 400-mile journey in an oxcart, with a maximum speed of 20 miles a day. After five years in Australia, they returned to Canada, taking up residence at Cathcart.

Her husband farmed there until 1901 when he died and Mrs. Macdonald came to Brantford.

Five of her 11 children survive: John W. Macdonald, Portage la Prairie, Robert, Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. H. Judson Smith, Brantford; Melbourne, British Columbia, and Miss Sarah at home. There are 22 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Dog Stands Guard Month Over Body

Salmon, Idaho, Feb. 1 (AP)

MONGREL dog, faithful to a master stilled by death, stood guard beside the body a month.

The story was told today by George England, who found the body of Frank Chod, 59-year-old mountaineer, in his isolated cabin, England said the emaciated dog, barely alive, lay nearby. Coroner Charles Doebler said Chod had been dead a month, apparently from natural causes. The dog was "adopted" by Chod's friends.

England Peeved At Sunspots As Cricket Broadcasts Fail

Fans Hear Nothing But Cracklings From Australia—Believed To Be Storms

U.S. IN WET CYCLE

Today's cricket broadcast from Australia had to be abandoned. Thousands of horrified fans heard nothing but cracklings interspersed with bits of commentary.

Sunspots have nearly doubled in size during the last few days. They cover an area of about 3,500,000,000 square miles. This, it is explained by the mathematically minded, is less than 1-700th of the sun's surface. But it is 18 times the area of the earth.

Sunspots reach a maximum this year in the regular cycle of activity—11.4 years. They are supposed to be gigantic storms emitting huge quantities of electrons. These affect wireless waves passing through the upper atmosphere.

Two More Years of Storm.

SAN JOSE, Calif., Feb. 1 (AP).—At least two more years of terrestrial storms, causing increased precipitation and extreme temperatures, were forecast here today by Dr. Albert J. Newitn of the University of Santa Clara.

Dr. Newlin, director of the Ricard Memorial Observatory, said he based the prediction on the sunspot theory developed by the late Father Jerome S. Ricard, noted "Padre of the Rains."

"Five years ago I forecast that we were about to enter a cycle of increased precipitation based on the Ricard theory," said Dr. Newlin, successor to the noted priest.

"Since then sunspots have shown a considerable increase approaching a maximum period about two years hence, when the peak will be reached.

"We have found over many years of observation that a wet cycle accompanies the appearance of the solar spot groups. In the past two years hardly a day passed that the solar surface was clear of eruptions."

DUKE OF WINDSOR HAS CHANGED FROM GAY MERRYMAKER

Interest In Common People Remains As Former Monarch Spends Days Quietly

SMOKES CHEAP PIPE

VIENNA, Feb. 1 (A.P.). — Viennese noted to-day that a serious mood has settled down on the Duke of Windsor.

Vienna first became acquainted with him as the Prince of Wales. When he was heir to the British Throne he came to Austria for light-hearted vacations. He went skiing at Kitzbuehl, gladdened proprietors of night clubs with his patronage, sang the lilting Viennese songs, and rewarded dancers with 100-shilling tips.

Then Vienna saw him as King Edward VIII. Mrs. Wallis Simpson was with him, and again there were rounds of merrymaking.

To Vienna Occasionally.

The Viennese now are observing him as the Duke of Windsor, the man who preferred to be beside the woman he loved rather than on the Throne.

For weeks he remained within the grounds of the estate of Baron Eugene de Rothschild at Enzesfeld. Then he started coming to Vienna occasionally. He visited his good friend, the venerable President of Austria, Wilhelm Miklas. He went to church. He met his intimates at the British Legation, and occasionally shopped or patronized some of the city's baths.

Smokes Thirty-Cent Pipe.

The Duke's activities at the estate soon fell into a well-defined routine. The days began with brisk calisthenics, then a variable time was devoted to correspondence. There were frequent long-distance telephone calls, so many, in fact, a telephone line was set up directly from the castle to Vienna. An afternoon golf match usually was followed by an evening of bowling on the estate's alleys.

Snow finally fell on the mountains at Semmering, a drive of an hour and a half from Enzesfeld, whereupon the Duke became an energetic skier.

One thing that is exactly as before is the Duke's delight in speaking with humble folk about their lives and their troubles. Often he is seen conversing with the grounds-keepers at his host's estate. One groundsman said the Duke, while smoking a pipe that cost the equivalent of 30 cents, chided the laborer because he was puffing a $1.75 pipe.

The keeper of the Vienna bath said the Duke wanted to know why, if the bath-water came from the Danube, it was not blue.

Woman 78 Is Allowed Retiring Fee By Schenectady.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., Feb. 1 (CP)—Mrs. Kate Melber, 78, has performed her janitorial duties in the Union College Administrative Building for the last time. She retired today on a special allowance voted her by the board of trustees.

For 50 years she cleaned up the building daily and now she does not quite know what to do with herself, she said. She has never been out of Schenectady.

Fifty years ago, she said, she had to clean 45 rooms a day, compared with the present daily limit of 13 rooms.

NEW JAP WAR MINISTER

TOKYO, Feb. 1 —(C.P.-Havas) — General Hajime Sugiyama, inspector-general of military education and one of the Japanese army, was authorized by military leaders today to accept the post of war minister under General Sanjuro Hayashi.

This cleared up the major obstacle to formation of a cabinet by Hayashi, who earlier today received the imperial mandate from Emperor Hirohito.

The political parties are also expected to co-operate with Hayashi, known as a moderate.

CANADA-U.K. PACT DETAILS MAY SOON APPEAR IN HOUSE

Supplementary Estimates Also Reported About Ready For Tabling

C.N.R. BILL HEADS LIST

OTTAWA, Feb. 1 (C.P.-. — Bills designed to bring major changes in the nation's transportation system will be debated this week in both Houses of Parliament, beginning in the House and Senate to-morrow.

Transport Minister Howe's important measure to revise the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways will appear for second reading in the House. The Bill, which is to abolish duplication of $1,500,000,000 in the debts of both the Dominion and the railway will be discussed chiefly in committee, but may nevertheless produce considerable expression of opinion in the House itself before it goes to committee.

The supplementary estimates are understood to be about ready for tabling, and it is within the possibilities that details of the revised Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement may appear soon on the parliamentary horizon. Agreement in principle for the revised trade arrangement has been reached.

Committees To Be Named.

Standing committees of the House are to be constituted during the week with a consequent increase in activity. Correspondence with implement manufacturers was tabled a few days ago in the House and will be referred to the Agriculture and Colonization Committee which began last session a study of farm machinery prices. Redistribution of constituencies is to be considered by the Committee on Elections and Franchise.

The Bill to revise the C.N.R. capital structure will be sent to the special Committee on Railways and Shipping owned and operated by the Government. This is the committee which also considers the C.N.R financial report each year.

The question of whether Canada will continue to use the rope for murderers or adopt lethal gas as a means of carrying out the death penalty is to be referred to a special committee for study, Justice Minister Lapointe told the House a few days ago.

Highest Soviet Executive Refuses Clemency—Trotzky Thinks Radek To Die

MOSCOW, Feb. 1. —(AP)— The impenetrable secrecy of Soviet officialdom today hid the lives—or deaths—of 13 confessed conspirators against the Soviet Union whose last hope of escape from a firing squad was gone.

All that was known of the doomed Trotskyists was that the foreign office said there had been no official announcement.

The prisoners, convicted of treason and sabotage, had appealed despairingly to the presidium of the communist executive committee, their last resort.

B.C. TO INAUGURATE COMPULSORY PLAN HEALTH INSURANCE

Propose To Restore Family Physician To Proper Sphere In Medicine

IN FORCE MARCH 1

VICTORIA, Feb. 1 (CP)—Restoration of the family physician "to his proper sphere in medicine" is proposed under North America's first compulsory state health insurance scheme which goes into effect in British Columbia March 1.

The health insurance commission, announced yesterday the contemplated system of medical treatment and method of payment of doctors, circulated all physicians and surgeons in the province and asked their co-operation.

As yet the plan has not been fully accepted by the insurance committee of the college of physicians and surgeons.

As a safeguard against unnecessary calling of medical aid, a patient must pay direct to the doctor $1 for the first call if in the daytime and $1.58 if at night. This is in addition to the two per cent of their salaries which 100,000 wage-earners making less than $1,000 per year will pay for the services supplied to themselves and their families, employers will pay one per cent weekly of their insurable payroll.

Choose Own Doctor

All insured would register with a general practitioner of their own choice, the announcement by Dr. Allon Peeples, commission chairman said. The practitioner would decide when a specialist should be called.

The commission would set aside $5.50 per year for each insured person to provide for doctor's fees. Out of the $5.50 the general practioner would get $4.00. From the remaining $1.50 there would be set aside 35 cents for oostetrics and 65 cents for referred surgery, specialists and consultants. Fifty cents would be put into a reserve fund for distribution every six months. Specialists and consultants would be paid on the scale of fees allowed for their services but limited to the size of the fund available.

Emphasizing the place of the family physician the commission announcement said: "Short-cutting to specialists will be abolished, and medical shopping eliminated. The general practitioner is placed in the position of doing as much as he wishes for any patient on his list."

In maternity cases the commission will permit the insured patient to select any qualified physician to take full charge of the case, the general practitioner must attend, however, for other ailments not due to pregnacy during the period.

Services Available

The list of medical services available to insured is as follows:

1. General practioner service: medicine, surgery and midwifery.

2. Specialist service: eye, ear, nose and throat treatment; brain and spinal surgery; certain regional surgery requiring special equipment; certain orthopedic surgery and complicated conditions.

3. Consultants: anaesthetist, assistant surgeon, cardiologist, dermatologist, roentgenologist, specialist surgeon, pathologist, pediatrician, internist, psychiatrist, neurologist, obstetrician, orthopedist and general practitioner.

These services are designed to cover all ailments except for certain chronic conditions and pre-existing diseases and physical defects which, for the first year at least, will not be included in benefits. A list of these will be prepared.

CONCERT IS GIVEN BY SUNDAY SCHOOL

Pageant "Castle Building" Presented As Part Of George Street Program

The annual concert of the George Street Sunday School held on Friday night was a most enjoyable success, attracting many adults as well as hundreds of children. C. S. Thompson was chairman for the occasion and words of welcome were expressed by A. Stewart and Rev. M. C. Parr.

A feature of the program was the closing pageant "Castle Building," which was written and arranegd by Mrs. J. A. McKone. Lloyd Gilders was of much assistance through his operation of the lantern and motion picture machines. The program was as follows:

Opening number by the Cradle Roll Department; chorus by the Primary Department, Knight's Marching Song; recitation by seven pupils from the Beginners' Department; song by Douglas Beatty of Beginners; recitation by Evelyn Rendall, of Beginners; chorus, Instrumental Band, by a group from Primary Department; piano duet, Esther Renshaw and Betty Mather, Primary Department; recitation, Betty Griffiths, Junior Department; skit by six boys of Ron. Burns' Class, Junior Department; recitation by Connie Nicholson, Junior Department; two exercises by a dozen Primary Girls, (a) One Little Penny, (b) A Swarm of Bees; piano duet, Beatrice Greatrix and Hilda Pearson, Junior Department; recitation, Kenneth Dormer, Junior Department; vocal solo, Dorothy Tucher, accompanist Adele Fitzgerald; recitation, Dorthy Saunders, Junior Department; Hawaiian guitar, Dorothy Anderson and Alma Tucher, Junior Department; piano solo, Adele Fitzgerald; intermission, comedy film; duet, "In the Garden," Tretheway and Beryl Lee, Intermediate Department; playlet, "Good King Wenceslas," four classes of Intermediate Department; recitation, Eva Blanche Parr, Intermediate Department; piano duet, Mary and Jean Lillow; one-act play, "Dollars or Diana," Miss Margaret Skitch's Class; pageant, "Castle Building," Senior C.G.I.T.

LAKEFIELD

HIGH SCHOOL DANCE ENJOYABLE EVENT

Annual "At Home" At Lakefield Well Attended And Most Successful

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 1.—When the Lakefield High School Literary and Athletic Association held their fourth annual At Home on Friday, January 29, in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, it was one of the most successful events of the season.

The hall, decorated in black and gold—the school colors—was pervaded with an atmosphere of gaiety as the High School students and their guests entered into the spirit of the school's biggest dance of the year. Mose Yokom and his seven-piece orchestra provided good music for dancing. There was a variety of novelty numbers including Paul Jones', spot and balloon dances. A woman soloist, who accompanied many of the orchestra selections, lent the melodious charm of a feminine voice to the syncopating rhythm of the instruments.

Delicious refreshments were served by the Fifth Form students of the High School, who were in charge of arrangements.

Shower Is Held

About one hundred friends of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosborough, whose marriage took place on Saturday, January 23, gathered at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Dunford, Douro, on Friday evening, where they held a miscellaneous shower in honor of the newly-weds.

The first part of the evening was spent in dancing for which Orville McConkey, Lakefield, provided music on the violin. Then Miss Roleen Darling and Mr. Charlie Dunford brought in a large beautifully-decorated basket of gifts which they presented to Mr. and Mrs. Rosborough. Mrs. Russell Little read an address, and Misses Dorothy Coons and Margaret Croft assisted the bride in the task of unwrapping the presents.

Mr. Max Rosborough, on behalf of his wife and himself, thanked the guests for the many beautiful gifts received. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Friends of the couple from Peterborough, Apsley, Selwyn, Young's Point, Lakefield and district, were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosborough (formerly Miss M. Blanche Dunford) will reside at Keene.

A week of sermons in 10 different languages were preached at St. Patrick's Church, London.

BLIZZARDS CHOKE WEST COAST ROADS

All Schools Close In Portland—Weather Bureau Warns All Shipping

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1 (AP). — Gales whipped another winter storm down the Pacific coast today, striking Portland, Ore., with a terrific blizzard and piling snow deeper on already choked highways.

All schools were closed in Portland. Street cars still running pushed through 10 inches of snow.

The weather bureau warned ships from the Canadian border to San Francisco and predicted storm conditions for most of the Far West by tonight.

A rescue party, fighting to reach Rawhide, Nev., received unverified reports that two of 30 persons snowbound there for two weeks were dead.

Northern highway patrolmen estimated that upwards of 50,000 persons were snowbound.

TOKYO, Feb. 1 (A.P.). — Tension and anxiety of Japan's 10-day constitutional crisis relaxed to-day as it became increasingly apparent General Senjuro Hayashi would succeed in forming a Cabinet, despite some opposition from Army Extremists.

Still unannounced was the dominant post of Minister of War, but observers generally conceded Hayashi, at the army's prompting, would accept General Kotaro Nakamura, former commander of the Japanese garrison at Tientsin.

BRITAIN, GERMANY DIFFERING SHARPLY

Hitler Bars Russia — London Wants Her In General Settlement

LONDON, Feb. 1 (CP Cable).—Britain is to go ahead on plans for a European settlement of peace.

Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech admittedly holds out little hope to this end. British and German ideas differ sharply over Russia. The British conception of a European settlement is one which would link a Western Locarno with an eastern pact, thus bringing Russia within the general scheme. Hitler rules out Russia.

Ten Weeks ago Britain sent an aide memoire to the powers suggesting lines along which negotiations could profitably proceed. France is the only country which has so far replied.

Britain is likely to seek elucidation on several points of Hitler's speech.

ADVISES REFORM IN BRITISH ARMY

Singapore Paper Presents Case Of Infantry On Foreign Service

SINGAPORE, Feb. 1 (CP-Reuters) —A strong plea for better conditions for men of British infantry regiments on foreign service has been made by the Straits Times. In a leading article this journal expresses the belief that the army can get recruits "but only if it offers better terms, and the sooner the War Minister puts the issue before the British taxpayer the better."

Singapore as a garrison town, it contends, knows how well-founded are the criticisms made in Britain of the soldier's life abroad.

"Officers of the regiments and corps stationed in Singapore are themselves emphatic and unhesitating in admitting the need for certain reforms which are now being demanded," the writer states and goes on to ask a series of questions:

"Why should a private in a line regiment get two shillings a day while a man of corresponding rank in a technical corps gets three or four shillings? Why should a soldier have to spend eight years continuously on foreign service? Why should pay on foreign service be as inadequate as we know it to be in Singapore? Why should there be the absurdity of compulsory church parade and other petty annoyances which might well be removed?"

"Surely it is possible to maintain the highest efficiency and yet do away with all these grievances which have been revealed in recent months," he concludes.

Works Of The Late Homer Watson, R.C.A., Are Being Shown In City

A large exhibition of paintings from the brush of the celebrated Canadian artist, the late Homer Watson, R.C.A., opened this afternoon at the Y.W.C.A., and can be seen daily from 2 to 10 p.m.

Peterborough is indeed fortunate in having the opportunity of seeing these well-known pictures and is among the first of a number of cities in Eastern Ontario to view the exhibition.

Homer Watson was born at Doon 81 years ago and became famous overnight when his "Pioneer Mill" was accepted at the inaugural exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy in 1880 and was later purchased by the Marquis of Lorne and presented to Queen Victoria. It still hangs in Windsor Castle along with a subsequent picture, "The Last of the Drought."

During the next few years, Mr. Watson spent a considerable portion of his time in England. In 1886 he won the bronze medal at the British and Colonial Exhibition in London to be followed by many other honors. When the Canadian Art Club was formed in 1907, Mr. Watson was elected president. In 1918 he became president of the R.C.A., remaining its titular head until 1922. A few days before his death last May, he was honored by the University of Western Ontario with the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Mr. Watson is represented in the National Art Gallery of Canada, the Art Galleries of Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver and many other important public and private collections.

Ross Hamilton, Toronto, well-known art critic, writer and old friend of the late Mr. Watson, will be in attendance during the exhibition, and this evening will give a lecture on the life and art of Homer Watson at a meeting of the Women's Lyceum and Art Association.

The local Art Association feel gratified in sponsoring this outstanding exhibit for its patrons, but they also take enviable pride in presenting the collection to the youth of the community. "Art conscious youth" is one of the chief aims of the organization.

Tremendous interest has been aroused wherever this artist's productions have been hung—90 canvases in all present a comprehensive group of subjects. One feels a decided warmth of color greeting the eye (snow scenes are decidedly in the minority) and the harmony of tones in the autumn vistas, the water scenes, rugged and sweeping slopes, rich verdure in meadows, blushing blooms in orchards, here a moonbeam, there a sunbeam, but in all a placidity and divinity that makes a decisive appeal. One of the noticeably outstanding features in many of the canvases is the artist's portrayal of lofty trees. He loved their beauty and strength, hence his treatment of the giant oaks, the graceful elms and the colorful beeches and maples.

The Women's Lyceum Art Association opens this evening at 8.30 at the Y.W.C.A., where a rare opportunity is offered in not only viewing the exhibition but in hearing Mr. Hamilton give his lecture on the life and work of the artist.

There is, of course, no charge for admission to the exhibition during the afternoons and evenings the pictures are on display at the Y.W.C.A., and the public is cordially invited during the hours mentioned.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors. Conducted by Roberta

I WATCHED a sail until it dropped from sight
Over the rounding sea. A gleam of white,
A last far-flashed farewell and like a thought
Slipped out of mind. It vanished and was not.

Yet to the helmsman standing at the wheel
Broad seas still stretched beneath the gliding keel,
Disaster? Change? He felt no slightest sign.
Nor dreamed he of that far horizon line.

So may it be, perchance, when down the tide
Our dear ones vanish. Peacefully they glide
On level seas, nor mark the unknown bound.
We call it death. To them 'tis life beyond.—Author unknown.

Dear Friends:

If you have ever lived in a seaport town, you will have seen many sails slip over the horizon away from you, and many a one slip over it towards you. It works both ways, and if we have a pang at seeing them go away, we have also the joy of seeing them return.

But there is one journey when the sails slip out of our sight, and we know that never on earth shall we see them coming towards us again. Not while we live shall we hear the step we listened so often for, come home to us, nor hear the beloved voice speak. The chair is empty, and our hearts seem empty too.

Yet, if we let ourselves think that this is the end of all things for us, that there is nothing beyond, then we are bereft indeed.

Did you ever read the story of the wandering Jew? He it was who was supposed to live forever all down the ages. Some base it on the saying of our Lord, when He said: "What is it to thee, if I say, Tarry thou till I come," and some base it on the assumption that one was condemned to live forever for a sin he had committed.

But whatever the cause, and if it were true, wouldn't it be an awful fate, to be condemned to go forever living, to see time after time those you loved slipping away from you, to go through the stress and the toil forever and forever, to be the only one thus to live, so that you had none to talk things over with, and never never be able to think that you too could die and be done with it.

I wrote you recently about the adventures of living, but death is the greatest adventure of all, for we do not know truly whither we go, nor why we go. But from the moment we draw our first breath we are under sentence of death, and instead of it being cruel as so many seem to think, I think it is kind.

Do not think I am morbid. A child is not morbid when it wants to sleep at the end of a long day. A man or woman is not morbid when they sigh with thankfulness that the long hard day is over.

I remember when I was about nineteen, and a doctor told me that in all likelihood I would die within three days, that at first I resented it bitterly. Then I started thinking about all the other doctors who had said the same thing, it could happen in twenty-four hours, in six weeks, in six months at most, and here was another telling me the same thing.

I had lived through the other times, but maybe it would come this time. I had the natural fear we all have of dying, and my health would not let me forget it, and I was tired hearing it. So I read all I could about it, I asked nurses and doctors and professors if it were painful or pleasant, and each said that altho' there may have been pain before, yet when death actually came it was easy and pleasant.

Then I began to look forward to it as something better than what I was having, and on the third day I began to get better, and I thought "oh fiddlesticks. Here I was all ready, and it didn't come." They all said it was a miracle, but I had heard that often, and was not interested.

So I thought if it is always hovering in the background, I might as well do all the things I want to do while I am still here. So I did just that, and here I am still. I suppose when it does come, I shall be mighty surprised, but not fearful.

And now, if you have watched the sail of someone you loved sink over the far horizon, just think that they may be having a far better time than you who are left behind. They are off adventuring, while we are still doing the same everyday things. Time to stop.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Gay Little Washable Frocks and Blouses

CLEVER LITTLE wash dresses for the resorts and for spring and summer, and chic and original little blouses occupy the minds of women nowadays. They are gay and colorful and cheer one up for the long dark days remaining of the winter. That is, of course, for those who cannot take time out to go where the sun shines and the air is warm.

Below the blouse is a frock, folded. It is a multicolored print on pre-shrunk white cotton shantung, and it comes in sizes 14 to 42, and costs $3.25.

Right, is another frock folded and photographed. It is a paper seersucker in plaid, with natural wood buttons in the bodice and box pleats in front of the skirt. It comes in brown with white, red with white, or navy with white, sizes 14 to 20; cost, $2.95.

Dark Stitching on Light

Below that is another frock folded under and using dark stitching on cotton shantung. It may be had in rose, Dubonnet or light navy, in sizes 14 to 44, and will cost you $4.50.

It's a peasant season at Palm Beach. Girls in full pleated and gathered skirts are seem everywhere, and the heads tied in bandannas are legion—very picturesque.

Slacks are being very much worn in California resorts such as Palm Springs. And western women like their slacks beautifully tailored, and often order them from their husband's tailors. As a general thing slacks are pleated at the waist, fitted over the hips, and sharply creased down the centre, say observers.

White and gray are the colors used most often, but they are also seen in pastels—dull pink flannel or aquamarine. They are just as tailored, however, as in the more ordinary shades.

Polo coats are no longer casual at the resorts. They have an expensive, made-to-order look.

Fashion Service

The smart casualness of this button-down-the-front princess, makes it suitable for almost any daytime occasion.

The leg o'mutton sleeves create young wide shoulders. The slim waist may be belted or beltless as suits your own particular taste. The hem is moderately flared.

It will brighten your winter wardrobe in raspberry, aqua, beige, green or grey silk or wool crepe.

Multi-colored crepe print on black, navy or brown ground is another delightful choice that hints of spring.

What a joy to sew! It cuts in one-piece from shoulder to hem. The price will fit into your budget allowance.

Style No. 2576 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 4⅛ yards of 39-inch material.

NEVER MAKE UP MIND FOR CHILD

Celebrated Violinist's Mother Advises "Growth Without Too Much Supervision"

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (A.P.) — Yehudi Menuhin's mother believes that a good parent, "like a good gardener, lets the young plant grow without too much supervision."

"Don't push and pull, never force, and don't make up your children's minds," advises Mrs. Moshe Menuhin, mother of the 20-year-old violinist, who electrified the musical world as a child prodigy, and of two musically-talented daughters.

"A husband, a home and children are a woman's greatest happiness. No normal woman really wants to fling them all away for a career.

"My first wish for my daughters is a happy home life.—I have enjoyed motherhood and I'd hate for my girls to miss it.

"However, if they have an overpowering urge for a career in music at the sacrifice of these things, I would not block them although I would be disappointed. We have never found it necessary to punish or restrain."

MARMORA

Holy Trinity Group of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held a successful bake sale in the Parish Hall on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. R. A. Elliott and son Robert spent a few days this week in Toronto.

The annual meeting of the Sacred Heart League was held in the church on Sunday morning. At the close of the session the president, Mrs J. A. Shannon and the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. C. Crawford, were re-elected.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Smith and daughter Joyce visited relatives in Trenton on Sunday.

A very successful euchre party was held in the Separate School on Thursday evening, sixteen tables being in play. Ernest Shannon won the gentlemen's prize, while the ladies' prize went to Miss Alice Henry. Mrs. J. Clairmont received the door prize. Refreshments and dancing wound up the evening.

Special collections for the work of the Council of Social Service were taken at St. Paul's Church on Sunday. At the close of the morning service, the church wardens, H. J Mumby and G. A. Gordier, B.A. were introduced by the rector to the congregation. Mr. Gordier briefly addressed the congregation.

PROMINENT MASON IS DEAD

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—J. Twining Hartt, 78, prominent fraternal official, lawyer and well known marksman, died in hospital here last night.

For 40 years he was non-elective secretary of the Grand Masonic Lodge of New Brunswick.

OBITUARY

A. CLARK LESLIE.

The death occurred on Saturday of A. Clark Leslie, a resident of Peterborough for nearly forty years. Born near Port Hope, Mr. Leslie died after two weeks illness. He was a member of the Lawn Bowling club and took a prominent part in politics, being chairman of the north ward for the Conservative party. For years he was an employe of the William Hamilton Company and a member of George Street United Church.

There remains his widow, formerly Cecelia Maybee and sisters, Mrs. John Campbell of Smith township, Mrs. Elizabeth Callander of Canton and Mrs. E. Haw of Cobourg and one brother Dr. Henry Leslie of Hamilton.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday from late residence 274 McDonnel street at 2.00 p.m. with interment in Welcome cemetery.

MRS. JOHN LANGTON.

The funeral of Mrs. John Langton was held on Saturday 30, from her late residence to Little Lake cemetery. Mrs. Langton was the daughter of the late Arthur May and Mary Ames. Relatives attending from out of town were, her son Percy from Peoria, Ill., her sister Mrs. Harmer, Detroit, her four nieces, Miss Lily Craig, Mrs. Meade, Mrs. Leggett, Mrs. Rice, all of Toronto, her son Wm. Langton and wife from Mt. Pleasant, with their two daughters. She was carried to her last resting place by her six sons.

MRS. MARIA SEDGWICK

The funeral service of the late Mrs. Maria Sedgwick, widow of the late Joseph Sedgwick was held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Edwin Heap, 390 Roger street, to St. Luke's church, on Saturday afternoon, January 30. The service was conducted by the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, B.A., and attended by a large number of friends.

The late Mrs. Sedgwick was in her 93rd year, and although she had lived in retirement for the past 10 years, she will be remembered by many, as a most kindly lady. The many floral tributes gave evidence of the high esteem in which she was held.

Interment was in Little Lake cemetery. The deceased is survived by four sons, Joseph E. Sedgwick and Albert Sedgwick of this City, Thomas J. Sedgwick, Vancouver, and Frederick Sedgwick of Kingston; also two daughters, Mrs. Agnes Easson, Toronto and Mrs. E. Heap, Peterborough.

SARAH ANN SANDERSON
(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 1. — There passed away in Millbrook, following a lingering illness a highly-respected citizen in the person of Sarah Ann Fleming, widow of the late George Sanderson, in her 87th year.

Born in Ireland in April, 1850, deceased came to this country with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. James Fleming. She was married to her late husband in December of 1877 by the late Venerable Archdeason Allen at the Millbrook rectory.

Surviving are three sons, Charles and Albert of Millbrook and William of St. Catharines; two brothers, Isaiah of Detroit; William Fleming of Manitoba. There are several grandchildren and great grandchildren.

The funeral held from the family residence was conducted by Reverend A. L. Siscoe, B.A., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church and largely attended. Floral tributes were many and beautiful. Pall-bearers were Messrs. Alex. Hunter, A. J. Henderson, William Hilton, H. C. Lord, T. Lang and M. McDowell, Millbrook.

Among those from a distance attending the funeral services were Mrs. J. McCall, Apsley; Mr. A. Henry, Peterborough; Mrs. M. Henry and daughter, Miss Mabel Henry, Fraserville, Mr. I. Fleming, and Mrs. J. Ross, Detroit; Messrs. A. and William Sanderson, St. Catharines.

LAKEFIELD

FRENCH, GERMAN VETERANS DESIRE HITLER, BLUM MEET

Think Two Leaders Could Iron Out Differences On Collective Peace

THREE-YEAR EFFORT

PARIS Feb. 1—(AP).—A face-to-face meeting between Premier Blum and Chancellor Hitler to iron out Franco-German differences ove collective peace was set to-day as the goal of veterans' organizations of the two countries.

While the unofficial machinery for close cooperation was set in motion by the erstwhile enemies in battle, official quarters said, France and Great Britain mapped a plan to woo Hitler from his virtual isolation from Western Europe.

Striving to hold the door open to peace, foreign office sources said, the two western European democracies have decided to persist in appeals to Germany through public speeches by their principal statesmen, hoping thus to break down Hitler's resistance to collective security.

Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos fired the initial gun yesterday at a popular front meeting at Chatearcux, declaring Franco- German differences centered only on methods not on aims.

The private conference between leaders of the veterans' groups marked the renewal of a three-year effort to restore friendship between France and Germany.

Maurice Randoux, member of the Executive Council of the France-Germany committee, announced "most authorized leaders of our great groups of veterans desire an early interview between the chief of the French government and the Chancellor of the Reich. "They consider direct conversation would be more efficacious than an exchange of ideas across space."

The negotiations, conducted by Ernest August, Duke of Cobourg, for Germany, previously received the approval of both governments.

Delbos yesterday expressed scant hope Germany's attitude would make European disarmament an easy task, but he insisted France was anxious to do all in her power to avoid war.

"Do Something About It"

This old world is not nearly as tough as some people claim. There remains within it that feeling which "wants to do something about it" when human need or infirmity makes itself apparent. To illustrate: A few days ago Examiner reporters found a gentleman of 65 years who though blind operates a farm of 100 acres and does his own house work. The story was illustrated by several views taken at the farm home.

As soon as one of our city physicians read the story and saw the pictures he wanted to know more about it. His attention was attracted by the manner in which the blind man was standing, and he wanted to know if there was any difference in the attitude of the farmer when a flash was used to secure an interior picture. Then he wanted the reporters to make arrangements to bring the gentleman to the city for a thorough examination regarding his eyes—and at no cost whatever. This physician has no idea of seeking for publicity; he does not need to nor does he desire to do so, but he merely wants to "do something about it."

Another resident sent the clippings from the newspaper to the Canadian Institute for the Blind suggesting it might be possible to have a radio placed in the man's home, as his only company at present is a dog.

That idea of wanting "to do something about it" is like the salt of the earth. There are plenty of us who would say "Well, that's too bad, and life must be hard for that man," and there we let the matter drop. Fortunately we have a percentage of our population the world over who begin where others stop. They are practical folk, and to them sympathy is not a quality in itself, but it is rather a starting point for future helpful action. There are no barriers which prevent people enlisting in that class which we are pleased to designate as those who desire "to do something about it." A good many might well enter before there is any crowding.

At Least They Spend It

The St. Thomas Times-Journal refers to some of the greater parties which have been given by rich people in United States, where there is an excessive display of wealth, and wonders if such events "engender labor unrest and strikes particularly among those who have barely the means of existence."

Reference was made to an affair which Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. B. Widener 2nd of Philadelphia threw for Mrs. Widener's daughter, Joan Peabody. Peter's grandfather left something like $50,000,000, so there was no particular need for any member of the family to sit down and figure on the back of an envelope how the money was to be found. Three floors of the Bellvue-Stratford Hotel were hired; there were 75 musicians in the orchestra; on one floor was a replica of a race track with wooden horses for the guests to ride upon.

Miss Elsa Maxwell put on a barn dance at the Waldorf-Astoria, show place of New York. Two sections of the luxurious ball rooms were turned into temporary barn yards in which there were cows, sheep, chickens, geese and a donkey.

Such events cost money and a great deal of it, and it may be one method of blazing wealth before the world. But a question of that kind is worth considering before arriving at blunt conclusions. One is willing to concede that those who sponsor such events dearly love to make a show and all that, and it is just possible it may dangle before the world the fact that some people seem possessed of more money than they know how to use wisely. But back of all that it is a fact that these people are spending money and a great deal of it. That is what they should do with it, because when they spend it other people have a chance to get some of it. The musicians are paid; those who work to make alterations in the place are paid; there is a demand for the services of those who produce all the edibles and other material which is placed on the tables; the people who work in greenhouses are busier by reason of the added demand for flowers. In all there must be many people who directly or indirectly get some of the money which is spent on these great parties. Taking a long look at it we believe it is better that this stored-up wealth should be made to run out that way than that it should be placed under lock and key to await the day when it shall yield more interest or be made subject to the process of coupon clipping.

The Skating of 1937

Skating as exemplified by members of the Toronto Skating Club on their visit to Peterborough is an art, a skillful and somewhat daring business. It must provide a splendid outlet for those who find themselves possessed of an excess of exuberance. It is difficult to find adjectives which are entirely suitable to give full vent to skating as it is done by the Toronto folk in the year 1937.

But it is vastly different to what it used to be on the Tenth Concession or in the village nearby. The basic principle is the same, that of sliding about on the ice with runners attached to the pedal extremities, but right there similarity has run its course. On the Tenth most of the boys had plates on the heels of their shoes, their school shoes, their work shoes, because we do not know of any one who had an extra pair. There was a hole in the plate from which snow and ice had to be dug with a nail before putting on the skate and there was a little knob on the skate which fitted in there and it held. The toes were strapped. Most of the skating on the Tenth Concession was on what was called the frog pond. Across one corner an old tree had fallen and it was considered a mark of extreme progress when one was able to take a long start and jump over that fallen tree in the frog pond. Some mastered the business of skating backwards and a few loose-limbed youths could put their heels together and do the split. We recall one chap who visited out there once, but he had spring skates and could do what he called cutting the grape-vine. He was regarded as rather smart, but some said he was trying to show off. He never tried to jump over the log in the frog pond so his prowess was never measured by local standards.

The Toronto skaters go at it differently. The gals who used to skate on the frog pond wore a good deal of raiment of the flowing variety, for it was necessary at times to sit about a fire and adjust skates and warm the hands. But never did we try to go hopping and frolicking about as did the Toronto folk. It is a new thing which has come upon us in recent years. With frog pond skates we doubt whether they could do it. The idea of causing one's self to go spinning around like a top never occurred to us on the Tenth, nor did we go about it with the idea of conforming to formation or treading to music. All new and strange are these movements. Likewise this jumping up into the air and responding to the force of gravity with grace and ease which makes for a perfect three-point landing. All new, strange and wonderful. But we would like to know if those remarkable skaters could have jumped over the log in the bull frog pond on the Tenth Concession.

More About the Muskrat

There was a story in the Examiner a few days ago saying there would be more muskrats this season as they have been increasing in number since the time when trappers started taking more bull frogs for the market. This paper has been in receipt of several notes from doubters. They claim somewhat facetiously there is no connection between bull frogs and muskrats. Chief Dan Whetung of the Curve Lake Reserve says there is. He recalls that a few years ago it was almost impossible to go to sleep at night for the noise of the bull frogs. Now in season they make less noise because there are not so many of them. Several trappers have also informed the Examiner they have found frogs inside of which was a baby rat, about the size of a field mouse. And they are about that size at birth and start moving about when a week or so old.

Chief Whetung also says it is a mistake to believe that the muskrat lays up supplies for the winter. We have seen it stated even in encyclopedias that the rats provided in fall for winter feeding. The muskrat's winter home is in the bank and when he burrows in there he works upward, but his kitchen and pantry are elsewhere. The mounds he erects in marsh or low water land serve as the dining room. As a rule, according to the Chief, these little mounds built about five feet high, are put over a stump or part of a submerged log, and from there the rat is able to go about the business of digging up roots from the bottom of the lake or marsh. In the words of Chief Whetung that little mound which the muskrat builds away from his home is really his dining room and he eats food which is fresh and clean. A vegetarian always.

There has been a good deal in print within recent weeks about the spearing of muskrats. The spear is an iron bar not much bigger than a lead pencil fastened to the end of a pole. At the end is sharp or barbed. This is driven in at the top of the outdoor headquarters of the rat. Knowing the habits of the animal the man with the spear has a fairly accurate idea of when the rat is inside. That is strictly outside the law, but Chief Whetung informed us that was the only way muskrats were caught before the white man came along with his traps. The traps can be operated only within season, the dates of which have not yet been announced for 1937.

The trapper knows the rules. He must place his trap five feet from the entrance of the house and traps are not baited. It is largely a case of the trapper knowing the habits and paths of the animals. Often the trap is covered with a little grass; often placed on a submerged log where an inch or so of water covers it. There are trappers who run as many as 300 traps in season, and a fair estimate is that at times they are ten per cent. effective daily. Chief Whetung recalls that 15 or 16 years ago the price of a muskrat pelt went as high as $5.50. Last season the price was about $2. He also says by way of reminiscence that 50 years ago a muskrat was worth from eight to fifteen cents. The muskrat has long been considered good to eat by the Indians. And still is. It is also the best commercial asset the trapper has in this district.

The Boat Might Sink

Agnes Macphail, M.P., does not believe that all world conferences should be held in troubled Europe. There is too much trouble in the land where these conferences are held, and the stuff comes in every time the door of the conference room is open or closed. So Miss Macphail would have those interested come across the ocean to this continent. Likewise she looks upon a good many of the people who attend peace conferences as professional trouble makers and suggests that if on the way across the ocean the vessel happened to sink "this would be a nice quiet way of getting rid of a lot of trouble."

But there is some point in what she says. Europe wants all the games played on her own home grounds and according to her own rules, and she insists on dominating the world as a result. If some of the conferences were held in this land or United States there might be a possibility of some outspoken individual telling the European folk that the new world considered them suffering from a form of armed insanity and that the outside world was growing weary of being expected to shiver and shake each time some war speaker in Europe makes another and more violent speech.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Bad food is blamed for the Guelph riots. It is a cause that has precipitated near riots even in family circles.

The price of gasoline has climbed a cent but it is a strange commentary on human nature that the increase will not cause nearly as much complaints as if the price of milk or bread had advanced.

Toronto has had an epidemic of false fire alarms. In these days of motorized fire departments the individual who calls out the firemen needlessly may be helping to cause a shocking accident.

There were only 22 Liberals in the House at adjournment of the Legislature. After some of the measures recently passed who would have thought the others would have been so anxious to get home to their constituents?

Jesse Owen the American colored sprinting star has been signed on as an orchestra leader for a tour that is expected to earn him $100,000. That is what might be described as running into a lot of money.

Prison fare was served the members of the commission investigating the Guelph prison riots but so far their verdict upon the quality of the grub has not been made public. At all events they didn't try to burn the place down after the meal.

Provincial Treasurer Cockroft of the Aberhart ministry has resigned his portfolio, the second minister to drop out in a month. The Social Credit administration craft seems to have lost its rudder and to be heading directly for the rocks.

Alberta man has discovered the oil stock he bought 23 years ago and that has been in a trunk all that time has become valuable. The publication of the item will probably cause a lot of folk to do some rummaging around the attic tomorrow.

Jean Francis Pouliot would fire every Tory who holds a public office, and repeal all the legislation passed by the Bennett government. If we were forced to hazard a guess as to Mr. Pouliot's political allegiance we would be inclined to say that he has strong leanings toward the Liberal party.

Two crooks have been collecting money in Brantford on the plea that it was for flood sufferers. Every calamity seems to produce its own crop of chiselers and these particular offenders should be given the full benefit of whatever unpleasantness the law provides for this miserable type of fraud.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra's out of luck, though flattened by a ten-ton truck, and he is full of gloom; he finds no joy at break of day, no gladness as he goes his way, it's darker still at noon.

¶ The widow who lives next to him, a pretty creature fair and slim, well, Ezra does her chores, he goes there like a stalwart man, and for her totes the garbage can, and nails the winter doors.

¶ The widow bakes prize apple pies, they're deep and brown, of goodly size, the crust is flaky too; she gave my cousin one of these, it made him shaky at the knees, he knew not what to do.

¶ So Ezra took the pie in home, told how the widow lived alone, spoke of her lonely days; but Ezra's wife seemed full of gloom, she up and straightway left the room, not listened to his praise.

¶ She says if she can't cook his stuff, she wants to know it soon enough, then she'll pack up and leave; and Ezra couldn't say a word, no adjective or softened verb, could only sit and grieve.

¶ And Ezra says that life is sad, his wife stays hostile like and mad, and she is full of fight; she says that Ezra is a sham, and just like any other man — can't trust him out of sight.

We Found These In House Debate

(From Parliamentary Debates)

THOSE SAD WORDS

Mr. SPEAKER: I am sorry, but the hon. member's time has elapsed.

Mr. HEAPS: I am sorry if I have exceeded my time limit. The courtesy of additional time has often been given to other members and I had hoped you, sir, would do unto me just as you have done unto others.

WHO DID SAY IT?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Is my hon. friend quoting the president of the United States?

Mr. HEAPS: Yes.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I think that is what I said.

Mr. JACOBS: Great minds move in the same direction.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I think my hon. friend will find he is quoting from a statement I gave out at the time.

MOVE CAREFULLY

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I hope my hon. friend will not misconstrue what I said. I was not taking any exception to the United States calling a world conference if they saw fit. I was pointing out that such a step was a matter for the United States to consider; that it was not for us to make a suggestion to them.

Mr. HEAPS: I do not think that has the importance which has been attached to it by both the Prime Minister and the leader of the opposition.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I think it is very important in international affairs.

SOME OTHER TIME

Mr. WILFRED GARIEPY (Three Rivers): There is an important matter which I would like to call to the attention of the government. In the city of Three Rivers, represented in the local house by the premier and attorney general of Quebec, there took place the night before last a large gathering in the form of a banquet at which the attorney general made certain charges which I find reported in the daily papers particularly verbatim in Le Devoir of January 26, that is, yesterday. It states that in the province of Quebec—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: I do not think the hon. member has any right to bring this question before the house at this stage. The orders of the day have not been called.

Mr. GARIEPY: According to the clerk, Mr. Speaker, we shall not reach the orders of the day to-day. understand that this is the proper time—

Some hon. MEMBERS: No.

Mr. GARIEPY: In the speech in question an important charge is made against the government, a charge which I think calls for immediate attention.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member is out of order at this stage.

IMPERTINENCE

On the orders of the day:

Mr. R. E. FINN (Halifax): I desire to call the attention of the house to a telegraphic dispatch from the city of Toronto appearing in this morning's Citizen. It is, I think, a reflection on every hon. member of this house, and particularly on the government, whether it be in power or—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order.

Mr. FINN: The point is this: the wisdom of class taxation was questioned by C. H. Carlisle, president of the Dominion Bank in an address to the shareholders at the annual meeting:

Excessive class taxation may be an asset to party politics as a means of securing votes—

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I would ask the hon. member to direct his question, if he has any, to the government. I do not think he can read a statement from a newspaper in this way.

Mr. FINN: I should like to ask the Prime Minister or the government whether their attentin has been called to a telegraphic report from Toronto appearing in this morning's Ottawa Citizen of a statement made by the president of the Dominion Bank in his address to the shareholders at the annual meeting. He is reported as follows:

"Excessive class taxation may be an asset to party politics as a means of securing votes, but it undoubtedly retards national progress and development, and brings injury to working people," said Mr. Carlisle.

I say, Mr. Speaker, that that statement is an insult to all hon. gentlemen who sit in this house, particularly the Prime Minister, whether he be Liberal, Conservative, or a representative of any other party, who is doing the best he can at much less salary than this gentleman is receiving. Therefore hon. gentlemen should not have to put up with such impertinence, which I repeat is an insult to every hon. member in this house.

NO STAMPS ON THEM

On the orders of the day:

Mr. JEAN-FRANCOIS POULIOT (Temiscouata): May I ask whether it is within the knowledge of the government that the Commissioner of Employment and Social Insurance, Mr. Romeo Beaudet, sent out Christmas greetings last December under the frank of Mr. Harrington, who resigned a year ago, which is all he did last year? And if it is within the knowledge of the government, in view of the decision rendered by the privy council will he be discharged to-day and the commission abolished?

Right Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE King (Prime Minister): I may say to my hon. friend that what he has just said comes as a great surprise to me. I imagine that the decision of the privy council will settle the question of Mr. Beaudet's position.

Beer War Makes History.

(From the Financial Post.)

THE Opium War is an episode in British history in which Britons do not take much pride. Perhaps the Beer War which is now in full swing among the provinces of Canada will occupy a similar place in the history of this country.

Premier Bracken of Manitoba has come out with a statement frankly recognizing the war-like character of Manitoba's present beer policy. Recently the provincial liquor commission decreed that beer from outside the province might be sold in provincial liquor dispensaries and in licensed beer parlors only at a price five cents a bottle greater than charged for the provincial product. At once he was attacked for abandoning the free trade principles of the West, and there were threats of desertion on the part of some of his supporters. He now defends the action as resulting from the discrimination practised by other provinces against Manitoba beer.

"On the relative merits of some form of retaliation as against submission to unfair practices of others, the Legislature will have a chance to express itself. If the members wish to go on record as saying that other provinces may exclude our trade from within their boundaries, but that Manitoba may not interfere with their trade within our boundaries—a decision I cannot conceive any Legislature with any sense of responsibility ever making—we would not under the circumstances that exist at present, refuse to accept even that improbable decision."

The beer now practically shut out by Manitoba came principally from Ontario and Quebec. But the soreness in Manitoba against beer policies of other provinces is mainly directed against Saskatchewan. Manitoba brewers, a published statement declares, formerly did a business of $1,200,000 annually in the province to the west. This has been almost completely wiped out by Saskatchewan's protectionist beer policy.

Constitutional lawyers in different provinces are hard at work on the problem. The provinces are forbidden to erect provincial trade barriers. May they do indirectly, through their control of liquor stores, what they may not do directly? No doubt in due course the Privy Council will be called on to pronounce judgment. But in the meantime the ugly word "retaliation" has cropped up, expressing an idea that ought not to exist in connection with relations between different parts of the country or different governments in Canada.

At least we have an object lesson as to how troubles may start between different states, and also one as to how quickly free trade sentiment may give way to protectionist ideas.

The "Kids" Got Even.

(From the Winnipeg Tribune.)

DURING the recent Wintry weather in Vancouver, some Burnaby children were having the time of their lives riding a hilly street. They were making a good deal of noise, for what is sleigh riding without noise?

They were at the peak of their fun when a policeman came along driving an automobile. He started up the hill, but couldn't make it. The hill was steep and icy, and he had no chains. He rolled back to the bottom of the hill, took a flying start, and tried again. Same result. He rolled down again, and sat there thinking it over.

The children took in the situation and offered to help. Individually, they were not very strong, but collectively they might do much. It was agreed that the policeman should try once more to get up the hill, and the youngsters would push on the back of the car at the critical moment?

It worked. That little extra boost from behind was just what he needed. He got over the top in fine style, then stopped the car and got out.

Maybe the youngsters thought he was going to thank them, or even treat them, for they came and gathered around him to hear what he had to say. This is what he had to say:

"You kids are making too much noise, and will have to cut out playing on this street. Now, get your sleds, and beat it."

The kids did as they were bidden, but not until they had "come up" with that policeman. Before he had time to realize that they were about, they had laid hands on his car and started it rolling down the hill the way it had come. Too late, he divined what was happening, and called on them to stop. He shouted—some say he swore—but all in vain.

There was but one thing he could do, and he did it—jumped aboard, took the steering wheel, and kept the car in the road while it rolled gracefully back to the foot of the hill again.

Right there is where the story comes to an end. As far as we know, he is still at the foot of the hill.

Drama on the Mississippi.

(From the New York Herald - Tribune.)

WHEN it rains on one half the United States it means, as the drowned cities of the Ohio demonstrate, an enormous quantity of rain. The Ohio Valley has been submerged under the inflow; there now looms, as these mighty masses of water slide heavily down past Cairo, the tense question of whether the Mississippi system can carry the run-off. The Army district engineer at Memphis has predicted a "super-flood" in the main river with a crest passing the levels of the great disaster in 1927; the lowland populations are already in flight before the slow, but inevitable, approach of potential calamity from above. They have the $300,000,000 system of defenses erected after 1927 to protect them against its arrival. Will they work?

It was in 1927 that the engineers finally admitted they had lost their long battle to wall a major Mississippi flood within the levee lines of the main stream. Over the decades, the higher the levees had been built, the higher the waters had risen within their confines when the great floods came; the more frequent were the resultant breaks and the more relentlessly did these rain-made oceans wash their way down through the low basins beside the river. The 1927 plan admitted at last that the only way to carry off water in such quantities was to give it the room which it so frequently demanded anyway. The main river levees were to be raised to uniform grade and strength, but they were to be supplemented by four further works.

Below the confluence of the Ohio, the New Madrid "setback" was provided, really a great emergency catchbasin to take the top off an Ohio flood. The engineers estimated it would be needed only once every ten years or so; and it is ten years since the 1927 flood. Its fuse-plug levee has been blown; the next few days will show whether it will save Cairo. The waters from this emergency reservoir must all go back again, however, into the main stream, though at a slower rate. Below the confluence of the Arkansas were to come the Boeuf Basin and Atchafalya floodways, designed to take the water out of the main stream and send it down to the sea through the shallow parallel valleys along the west side. But the first long section, between the mouth of the Arkansas and the Red, has not been constructed; only the lower section is partially complete.

The fourth work was the Bonnet Carre spillways just above New Orleans, to divert flood waters into Lake Pontchartrain. Will the system hold the river as intended, or will it break out, as in 1927, and flood not only the designed floodways but the great additional areas on their margins which it has customarily used? That, as "The Engineering News Record" suggests, is the drama of "surpassing" interest now about to be enacted.

Restoring Wage Earners.

(From the Niagara Falls Review.)

PROBABLY this year, earnest efforts will be made to reduce the relief lists and to bring them down to the lowest possible level; after all unemployables have been removed. Sir Robert Borden put his finger on the problem, in an address at Toronto this week, when he said in part:

"It is important to remember that a certain type of unemployed, especially the unemployable, will always be with us. Care for the sick, the destitute, the helpless, the unemployed, and provision for the unemployable must find a permanent place in our social order. Out of the unsystematic methods of the past there has developed a marked tendency, in a certain element, to consider themselves as permanent pensioners of the State, to decline work on any convenient pretext and to regard idleness on relief not only as highly desirable, but as an absolute right. This tendency, not less detrimental to the individual than to the State, should be discouraged and corrected by effective and, if necessary severe measures."

It must be recognized that there are many families in receipt of relief, the breadwinners of which are incapable of earning their own livings; but that must be recognized and dealt with. Already there is machinery in Ontario to take care of cases where the father is incapacitated. In such cases, if there are children under sixteen, they are eligible for mothers' allowances and, in Niagara Falls already some are in receipt of such assistance. When that has been accomplished, the task of providing work for those who are left will become the prime task and then it will be possible to penalize those who refuse work on trivial pretences.

To The Editor

PASTEURIZATION OF MILK

Editor Examiner,

Sir: I notice in your issue of January 27 a letter in regard to the pasteurization of milk. I think this letter is perhaps misleading because of its one-sided viewpoint.

It suggests "Our broadminded mayor and city council turn a deaf ear when asked to force such a measure as compulsory pasteurization." Why? The answer is obvious, for the protection of the interests of the farmer, at the expense of city people. Is not our mayor and council elected by the people of the city for the people of the city? Then why protect the raw milk man, when he pays practically nothing in taxes compared with the dairies, and hires practically no help. If any help is required he pays them such ridiculous wages that it is impossible for a single man to support himself much less support a family. In any dairy, even the smallest, many men are employed at a fair wage:

(1) The farmer producer, his help, and family.

(2) The dairy man who pasteurizes and his assistants.

(3) The delivery men or salesmen.

(4) The manager and his office staff.

Now who would dare to say any one man has the right to hold down the producing, the bottling and distribution of the milk. Let the raw-milk man choose any one of the three jobs which he has the privilege to do, and make his living at it the same as the city people, let the man who is schooled and trained to the work, protect and guard us from a health standpoint.

The fact that about 70 per cent. of the milk sold in Peterborough is pasteurized proves that most people are in favor of pasteurization. The letter signed "Consumer" wants to ask those who are interested in pasteurization if they were not raised on raw milk. Yes," undoubtedly will be the answer in many cases. Ask those same people were they not brought up to driving a horse and buggy. The answer in most cases will be yes. Yet those same people are driving cars and who would say the car isn't an advancement over the horse and buggy.

Federal, provincial and municipal Health Boards advise us that only pasteurized milk is safe milk.

Many men are employed by the dairies of Peterborough, many farmers are producing milk to supply these dairies, so let's be fair to one of Canada's foremost industries, the dairy industry.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

I remain,

INTERESTED.

Peterborough, Jan. 30.

NO PLACE FOR NEWS.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

DISSATISFACTION with the arrangements for obtaining news at Buckingham Palace, and with the treatment meted out to representatives of overseas newspapers by Palace officials, has been expressed by the London correspondents of a number of Dominion newspapers recently. . . . It would be interesting to know what sort of news the complaining correspondents expect to get there anyway. Certainly no gossip, either from the King's secretaries or the household servants. The fact that Buckingham Palace is not a centre of news is a good thing. During the reign of George V the only news that ever came out of there was when he was desperately ill.

HEAVY TRADING IN INDUSTRIALS

Prices Are Selectively Higher On The Toronto Industrial Exchange

BRAZILIAN NEW HIGH

TORONTO Ont., Feb. 1 (CP) — Industrial stocks changed hands in heavy volume in the opening session of the month and prices were selectively higher. Action centred in the steels in the morning trade at higher prices but bids were lowered in the afternoon, erasing the bulk of the gains. A United Steel Corporation traded about 10,000 shares and finished the day with a minor loss. Nickel scored an advance, Smelters was steady to strong and gains were showing in the late proceedings for Brazilian, C.P.R. and some of the beverages. Brazilian hit a new high, just under 23. John Lang was at a new high at 20.

POTATO MARKET STRONG

FREDERICTON, N.B.—(C.P.), — Potato shippers believe that before the export season ends, New Brunswick prices will be more than double those of last year. A rate of $3 or more a barrel is expected by spring.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Feb. 1. — Touching the high points in the closing stages, wheat prices finished ½ to 1¼ cent higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange on Saturday. Light offerings were easily absorbed.

Export buying estimated at 300,000 bushels and Wheat covering contributed to the strength along with purchases by local and Southern interests and mills. The export business was worked out of both Atlantic and Pacific ports.

Liverpool engendered strength and its influence was felt in Winnipeg and United States markets. Firming of Argentine prices were a factor in the advances of ⅝d to ¾d were shown in the Liverpool close. United States markets were firmer, and Buenos Aires closed ⅞ to ⅝ cent higher.

office. A report by the blind man that he had seen the light of the photographer's flash led him to the conclusion that the optic nerves were still functioning. Among other evidence which supported the diagnosis that cataracts were the cause of the man's blindness was the report, by Robertson that, although he could see nothing when looking directly into the sun in daytime, he could seen the moon dimly at night.

"You have a sporting change of regaining your sight through an operation," Dr. Scott finally told Robertson.

"I should point out to you that even under the most ideal circumstances there is an element of danger attendant on any operation through unforseen complications, yet your chance would be a good one.

Dr. Scott explained that the operation would involve removal of the lenses from the eyes in order that the light would be allowed to pass unobstructed through the pupils and back to the retinas. At present, if the cataract diagnosis be correct, the light is obstructed by a black film on the inside of each lense.

Dr. Scott had previously offered to do what he could for the elderly man "in the name of humanity" and assured Robertson that he need not concern himself with the cost of the operation if he should wish it performed. An offer to pay the cost of the hospitalization was later extended on behalf of The Examiner by Managing Director Perry J. Giffen. Two weeks in the hospital would be involved.

Robertson was returned to his home later Saturday afternoon, the decision remaining in his hands.

Prices Tighten Up On Mining Market

TORONTO, Feb. 1 — (C.P.) — Trading expanded to high figures to-day on the Toronto Mining section and prices tightened up on the rushing of buying orders, giving the whole board a higher close. All the gains were not held through the last hour profit-taking. A half-dozen golds, embracing secondary and junior issues, advanced to record high prices, among them, Central Patricia, Pickle Crow, Dorval-Siscoe, Wood-Cadillac and Naybob.

WORLD'S OLDEST HARBOR MASTER ACTIVE AT 104

Native Nova Scotian Emphasizes Diet Among Rules He Has Observed

IS ALWAYS SMILING

Richibucto was a busy port before the ice closed in this winter. In addition to numerous small vessels, 27 large steamships called here, Mr. McDonald looked after them all.

A native of Antigonish, N.S., he claims diet was the most important factor in achieving healthy longevity. Nearly every person eats too much, he believes, advocating careful mastication and selection of sensible, nourishing foods. His creed includes sufficient sleep, moderate exercise in the open, and pure air at all times.

"Keep smiling and look upon life optimistically," is his motto. Life frequently is shortened by digestive disturbances and other stomach ailments resulting from worry and pessimism, he says.

Always smiling and cheerful, Mr. McDonald has the activity and endurance of the ordinary man of 60. His clear memory and mentality, coupled with much reading, make him an unusually interesting conversationalist.

In early manhood he entered the blacksmith trade here, continuing this business until his retirement a few years ago. This activity was enough to keep him in good physical trim, but he attributes his present bodily and mental vigor to a systematic adherence to his own regimen.

Mr. McDonald was thrice married. His first wife, Mary O'Leary, Richibucto, died in early womanhood. His next marriage was to Catherine Lanigan, Rexton, who also died at an early age. Fifty-eight years ago he was married to Annie McDonald, of South Branch, N.B., who died some years ago.

FIGURES REVEAL SOUND PROGRESS

Empire Life Assurance Company's Report Shows Year Of Sound Progress

Advance figures released by The Eppire Life Insurance Company of Kingston, Ontario, prior to the annual meeting to be held on February 13, show a year of sound progress, Charles P. Fell, president, reports assets of $8,632,361.53, an increase during the year of over 166 per cent. Insurance totalling $4,304,547 was issued and revived during the year, an increase in excess of 50 per cent. over the previous year. Business in force now amounts to $34,550,000. Cash benefits paid out during 1936 were the largest on record, and during the past ten years the company his distributed to policyholders and beneficiaries over $1,692,000. After making full provision for all the company's liabilities and establishing a special increased dividend reserve, there remains more than $558,000 net surplus funds for the additional protection of policyholders.

SENTENCED TO FIVE YEARS

Pleads Guilty To Three Charges In Connection With Garage Robbery.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Feb. 1 (CP). — Nicholas Uvanelli, of Brantford, pleaded guilty in county police court here today to three charges in connection with the Plattsville garage robbery on December 28, in which Melvin Lachman, the proprietor, was injured when he and his assistant, Walter Love, attempted to stop the intruders. On a charge that he "together with James Bullock, Sr., and two others did rob Melvin Lachmann of a .303 calibre Savage rifle and Walter Love of a .22 calibre Remington rifle." He was given five years.

You can feel PENETRO heal!

So prompt is the healing action of PENETRO that you can actually feel its penetrating strength—feel the congestion in chest and throat loosening, the cough abating, the nasal passages clearing.

PENETRO acts quickly—the way you want a cold remedy to act—because its concentrated medication is carried down to the very seat of congestion and inflammation.

At the very first sign of a cold in head or chest use PENETRO according to directions with the package. It's better, quicker and easier than the old-fashioned mustard-plaster. It penetrates! Wonderful for children—a boon to mothers. Get a jar of PENETRO to-day, and be ready for the emergencies of winter weather.

Quits Cabinet

Alberta's Social Credit government lost another member, the second within the last two months when Hon. Charles Cockroft, (ABOVE), Provincial Treasurer announced his resignation to take effect, January 31. Hon. C. C. Ross, mines minister left the Aberbart cabinet earlier. Mr. Cockroft's resignation was officially credited to failing health and business reasons.

FASCIST FORCES CIRCLE MALAGA

Legionnaires Arrive Within Sight Of Sea In Drive On Port

SALAMANCA, Spain, Feb. 1.—(AP) — General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano's southern drive against Malaga thrust the spearhead of his Fascist army within sight of the sea today, virtually surrounding the Socialist port.

The insurgent column described a wide arc from Marbella, 35 miles west of Malaga, to the small village of Otivar, 40 miles eastward, where from the mountain heights General de Llano's advance guard were in sight of the Mediterranean.

Only a scant few miles were open as a narrow connecting corridor between the beleaguered city and the rest of government-held Spain.

Swimming the flooded Cacin River, the Fascist attackers captured a government supply depot east of Malaga, a factory converted into a workshop for manufacturing bombs and hand grenades.

Near Alhama in the flooded Cacin River Valley the Socialist force seeking to relieve Malaga was reported to have retreated with little or no resistance to General de Llano's advancing legionnaires.

The semi-circle of the Fascist positions ran from Marbella, on the Mediterranean, northeastward to Antecuera, 25 miles almost due north of Malaga.

Thence it swept east and southeast to Alhama for a swing to the heights of Otivar in the Almijara Mountains, which dip precipitously to the sea overhanging the narrow shelf on which runs the coastal highway to the east.

Madrid reported government forces were menacing Granada on De Ilano's left flank after taking the towns of Beas de Granada and Quentar and inflicting heavy casualties.

A judge at the Swansea Assizes, England, is boasting that he began summing up a case in the reign of Edward VIII and ended it in the reign of George VI.

Canada Starch Loses Its $150,000 Suit

Toronto, Feb. 1 (CP)

MR. Justice Nicol Jeffrey today dismissed a $150,000 suit by the Canada Starch Company against the St. Lawrence Starch Company and remarked the public had been misled by St. Lawrence Company advertising which stated the Dionne quintuplets were fed Bee Hive syrup in the first few weeks of their lives.

The supreme court justice did not find, however, that the St. Lawrence Company, manufacturers of Bee Hive syrup, was guilty of false advertising.

Canada Starch Company, manufacturers of Crown Brand Syrup, claimed the quintuplets were not fed Bee Hive syrup first and that St. Lawrence advertising to that effect seriously impaired the business of Canada Starch Company.

LIFFORD LINE

YOUNG PEOPLE'S ENJOYABLE PARTY

Fifteen Members Of St. Mary's A.Y.P.A. Hospitably Entertained

LIFFORD LINE, Feb. 1. — On Wednesday evening, January 27th, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward and Ben Page entertained about fifteen members of St. Mary's Church A.Y.P.A. at their hospitable home.

The president, Ben Page, was in charge of the meeting and a delightful program was presented. Lawrence Staples gave an interesting and instructive talk on the origin of various hymns. Kenneth Henderson and Lawrence Steer contributed appropriate mouth organ selections. Isobel and Robert Sisson sang a duet in pleasing voice. Marjorie Page sang a solo to her own accompaniment. A hearty sing-song of A.Y.P.A. selections was enjoyed by all.

A novel musical contest in which the names of familiar tunes were guessed was much enjoyed, the winners being Isobel Sisson and Robert Reid.

A game called ""Consequences" was entered into with great zest and caused much amusement as names of A.Y.P.A. members were introduced.

At the conclusion of the program a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess' family to whom a hearty vote of thanks was extended for the use of their home and a pleasant and profitable evening.

An invitation to hold the next fortnightly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morton was gratefully accepted by the members.

CONTRACT IS LET FOR NEW BUILDING

Canada Slate Products, Ltd., Plant Near Madoc Pushes Ahead

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 1.—Canada Slate Products Ltd. whose mine is located near Madoc, is making rapid progress, contracts having been let for the roofing slate process building. The president, Mr. L. Ampleford gives the following progress of work: "The contract for the erection of the Roofing Slate Process building for the Canadian Slate Products Ltd. plant at Madoc was on January 23rd awarded to the W. G. Steel Works. STILL 'Tweed' ONE 'Tweed' STILL building will be 75 by 125 feet steel frame with 28 gauge sheet iron side all erected on concrete foundation.

The number of men necessary to process roofing slates in this building will be approximately forty, made up as follows: 25 splitters, 10 trimmers, 2 sawyers, 6 laborers, 1 foreman.

This building is expected to be completely erected and the machinery in full operation by March 15th, 1937. Owing to the mild weather this winter, the company has been able to employ, steadily between twenty-five and thirty men and it is hoped that this will continue during the balance of the winter. Other buildings will be erected during the summer.

WEATHER TESTS MAY PROVE BOON

Aerial Observations In North May Enable Advanced Predictions

FORT SMITH, N.W.T., Feb. 1.—(CP)—Under supervision of members of the Dominion Meteorological Service, aerial weather observations are being made at this outpost, 535 miles north of Edmonton that may prove of inestimable value to business and agriculture throughout Canada and the United States.

Royal Canadian Air Force men are making flights to altitudes of 15,000 and 17,000 feet in temperatures ranging under 40 degrees below zero, gathering data on conditions in the upper air that may enable experts to predict weather well in advance for almost the entire North American continent.

Made in North.

The United States' federal weather bureau has taken an active interest in the work being done in what some observers call the weather "pantry" for the continent. They believe the weather for most of Canada and the United States is "made" in the Mackenzie river basin.

Formation of air masses over the Mackenzie basin usually herald cold waves which sweep down from the north, it is believed, and a fuller knowledge of conditions is expected to facilitate forecasting of weather.

Co-operating with the meteorological service and the air force is the Royal Canadian Signal Corps wireless station which works with the pilot in radio beam flying. The station also works with three United States stations at Fairbanks, Alaska; Fargo, N.D., and Dallas, Texas.

Gerald Gill of the Dominion Meteorological Service, is in charge of research work. R. C. Jacobsen of Toronto another member of the service, has just arrived to supervise aerial observations so that Mr. Gill will be able to devote more attention to radiation measurements.

Temperatures, pressure, and humidities in the upper air, are recorded by instruments carried on the airplanes during daily flights. Balloons are sent up daily to determine wind direction and velocity. Measurements of solar and terrestrial radiation also are taken. All this information is necessary in the research work.

FIND GROUNDHOG A SLEEPY FRAUD AS WEATHER MAN

DUE ON FEBRUARY 2

(By The Canadian Press)

Up comes Feb. 2 with the tradition of "Groundhog Day" and the old story if the groundhog sees his shadow at noon he gallops back into seclusion indicating the people are in for six weeks more winter.

As a matter of fact, if you could get this burrowing rodent out of his hole any cold day and have him stand up, there would be a good example of an animal asleep on his feet.

Then if you were to take this perhaps somnambulistic woodchuck and drop him in a pail of warm water he would be a changed creature. The sleep would leave his little brown eyes and he would look about him with new interest. This is on the authority of L. L. Snyder, zoologist of the Royal Ontario Museum.

Wake Up Naturally

That is, if you ever should want to wake the groundhog to joke with him about the weather. Sometimes the temperature of the earth where they are hibernating rises to a point where it has the same effect as warm water and the little beggars wake up naturally. They think it is spring and they scurry out of their burrows up to the good earth under the sunshine.

Sometimes it is spring when they come out but on the other hand it may not seem just right so they scurry back in and go to sleep again. These seem to be the facts of the case.

Groundhogs have been called fraudulent weather prognosticators by such well-informed persons as Dr. Raymond Dimars, curator of the Bronx Zoo and Willis R. Cregg, chief of the United States weather bureau.

There has been a lot of fun about it but no one seems to know where the groundhog "shadow method" of predicting weather originated. Even Professor T. F. McIlwraith, expert in anthropology at the University of Toronto and keeper of the ethnological collection at the Royal Ontario Museum, figuratively threw up his hands as he declared "I haven't the faintest idea, really."

Out On January 2

Anyway, up in the Nobleton district north of Toronto, the woodchucks were out in droves on January 2 of this year, a month ahead of Groundhog Day.

In line with the reputedly modern spirit of pessimism and skepticism, the correspondent telephoned the Riverdale Zoo at Toronto.

"Is the groundhog still there?" he asked.

The reply was that the little rodent is still in captivity.

"Well, tell him I'm not coming around to see him this year," explained the newsman in his chilliest voice. He hung up.

CAMPBELLFORD

WOMAN IN MACHINE CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Arthur MacDonald Dies Suddenly While Sitting In Car On Street

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 1. — Sudden death claimed Mrs. Arthur MacDonald, 56, on aSturday afternoon while she was sitting in her husband's car on Front Street. A friend who was passing by at the time noticed her in the car, and when a physician was summoned she was pronounced dead. The body was removed to Bennett's Undertaking Parlors.

The deceased's maiden name was Minnie McAlpine. Born in Stanwood, she moved to Healey Falls, where her husband is employed on the Trent Canal System.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one brother James, two daughters, Mrs. Craig Beatty and Mrs. Cecil Bertrand, and one son Harold, all of whom reside in town. Although she had not been fell for some time, the end was totally unexpected.

She was a member of the United Church. The funeral will be conducted from the family residence at Healey Falls, with interment at Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

I picked up in appetite and weight and was relieved of a cough due to a cold." Sold by druggists. Tablets 50 cents, liquid $1.00 and $1.35.

Man Is Trapped By Flood Blast

This remarkable picture illustrates the blasting of the Birds Point, Mo., levee as a measure to relieve the threat of inundation of Cairo, Ill., by the raging waters of both the Ohio and the Mississippi rivers. The scene shows a geyser of earth roaring upward, and at its base, to the LEFT, is the figure of a man (CIRCLED) seemingly startled and rooted to the spot by the horror that unfolds before him. The dispatches failed to note what the camera has recorded here. There is no record of the fate of the man.

SECRECY CLOAKS 13 PLOTTERS' FATE

When the committee rejected their pleas for clemency yesterday it became a virtual certainty they would be put to death by 3:16 a.m., tomorrow (8:16 p.m., E.S.T. tonight) —72 hours after the military collegium of the supreme court pronounced sentence.

That was the legal interval during which the government's terse announcement, "The court's verdict has been carried out," was expected.

Four of the defendants—Karl Radek, prominent Russian publicist, Gregory Sokolnikoff, former Soviet ambassador to Great Britain, M. S. Strolloff and V. V. Arnold escaped with prison sentences. The judges said these four had been guilty only of "political crimes", not of terroristic acts.

Radek To Die Secretly?

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1.—(CP-Havas)—Leon Trotzky today charged that secret death awaited Karl Radek and the three other confessed conspirators who were sentenced to prison terms at the end of the Moscow trial.

"Each of those spared remains a sort of explosive bomb threatening the Soviet leaders, for they can reveal the inner workings of the trial while they are in prison," Trotzky asserted. "The danger will become more acute as the fight for international judgment of the trial gains ground."

He expressed the belief Radek, V. V. Arnold, M. S. Strolloff and Gregory Sokolnikoff will disappear mysteriously from prison as did the writers Groman and Sukhanoff, survivors of the Menshevik trial of 1932.

FRENCH TAX PLAN WILL SOAK THE RICH

Measure Will Also Find The Rich To Soak--Assess Finished Products

PARIS, Feb. 1—(A.P.).—Premier Blum's Socialist Government put into effect to-day France's fiscal reform measures not only for "soaking the rich," but also for finding the rich to soak.

Finance Minister Vincent Auriol said the main object of the government bill, passed by parliament January 2, was to simplify France's tax system, in an effort to improve collections and stimulate business.

The principal provision was a single tax of six per cent. on finished products, instead of the former multiple two per cent. turnover taxes.

The tax structure reform requires Frenchmen to make full declaration of their incomes if they show "certain exterior signs of wealth."

Tax collectors had estimated incomes on the basis of mandatory declarations of ownership of automobiles and radios. Now, if the taxpayer live at a certain standard, he must do the work and submit the figures for the approval of government investigators.

To business men, the principal reform was the change from multiple taxes to the single finished tax. Retail merchants and wholesalers both had protested the "turnover" tax, insisting it required costly book-keeping, retarded business and was an almost imsuperable barrier to recovery.

SELF SERVICE

Waiters Strike So Cafe Patrons Look To Own Needs.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (CP)—When waiters in Louis Saltzmann's Fifth Ave. cafe went on strike it was just so much fun for the customers.

Almost 50 of the 400 diners remained last night until the regular closing hour, apparently getting quite a thrill out of going to the kitchen and carrying food to the tables for themselves.

The waiters said they were dissatisfied with working conditions.

SELASSIE HOLDS HIS FAITH FIRM BUT HEART SAD

Ethiopian King, An Exile In England, Views Future With Hope

SAYS PEOPLE UNHAPPY

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

BATH, England, Feb. 1 (AP)—In a gray stone house at the top of a hill, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, king of kings and lion of Judah, now rules just two acres.

"When one's heart is sad," he says quite simply, "it does not really matter where one lives." But his faith in his destiny is as strong as it was in the days at Addis Ababa and he still hopes that one day he will return to rule his empire.

Lives Simply

With King Victor Emmanuel styled sovereign of his country and his own imperial family dropped from the pages of the latest Almanach de Gotha, the emperor without an empire lives simply at Fairfield lodge, on the steep hillside overlooking the spa city of Bath.

Thick clumps of trees shield his garden from a crop of new bungalows which are springing up at the very edge of his domain. Here he lives a quiet, retired life, seldom appearing in public, never meeting local society. A meeting with the negus is still an "audience." With due formality a seven-foot aide leads the visitor to the lofty square room where the sad-eyed monarch now spends his days.

Maps of Ethiopia dot the bare walls, ever present reminders of the empire he ruled and lost. Books are piled on shelves; papers litter the solid writing-desk. Sometimes he stands for minutes at a time gazing through the windows over the ancient city of Bath — begun by the Roman predecessors of his conquerors when they invaded England centuries ago.

Legations Maintained

In adjoining rooms the royal staff clatter their typewriters, sending out endless communications to the imperial legations which Haile Selassie still maintains out of his own purse, in London, Paris and Geneva. Although his aides have adopted the smart double-breasted suits of Saville row, the emperor still wears the black robe, short cape and white stockings which made him a familiar figure in news reels all over the world. He is little changed since the last fateful days in Addis Ababa. He shows the same innate courtesy to his visitors but still expects to be called, "Your Majesty."

"Never shall I cease to hope," the emperor told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview. "I still have faith in the ultimate triumph of international justice." He denied reports that he intended to move to some other part of Europe.

"The English have been very kind to me since I was driven from my own country," he said. "For the present I shall remain here, but one day I hope to go back to Ethiopia."

The emperor would not discuss his financial position, but it is generally believed that upkeep of the legations and retention of their staffs must be a heavy drain on his resources.

The recent sale of his silver in London, which brought in about $12,500, took place he said "by force of circumstances. Besides, he added, "I do not need it now. I do no entertaining here."

Real 'Blind Flying' With Beam

Pilot H. B. Snead, of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., demonstrates a 'homing-pigeon" device 3,000 feet above Frenchtown, N.J. His co-pilot had "lost" the aeroplane while Snead was blindfolded and a hood drawn over the cockpit windows, then turned the ship over to Snead, who had no difficulty in immediately determining his exact location and turning in the direction of Newark Airport. The gadget used is a new shielded anti-static loop antenna, which took two years to perfect.

OBITUARY

GARVENE HEAD

The death occurred in Toronto hospital on Wednesday morning of little Garvene Head, only beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Head of Centre Dummer. She was 9 months 11 days old.

The funeral was held from the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lee, on the Ninth Line of Dummer, on Friday, January 29, at 2.30 o'clock. Service was conducted by the Pentecostal pastor, Mr. Frank M. Harvey.

Bearers were Norman Lee, Ross Woodcock, Bruce Rodgers and Harold Rodgers. Interment was made in Norwood Cemetery. The entire community extend their deepest sympathy to the young parents.

MRS. W. H. JACKSON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TEED, Feb. 1.—The death occurred at the Belleville General Hospital, on Saturday morning, of Mrs. William Henry Jackson, of the 1st Concession of the Township of Sidney. She had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Jackson, prior to her marriage, was Miss Nina Edith Kaiser, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kaiser. She was in her 49th year. For the past 19 years she has resided in Sidney Township and was well esteemed by all who knew her.

Surviving her are her husband; one daughter, Mrs. Russell Hill, Sidney Township; one son, William Jackson, Thurlow Township; one half sister, Mrs. Morris Weston, Montreal; three brothers: John Kaiser, Florida; Wesley Kaiser, and David Kaiser, Toronto, and an adopted daughter, Isabel Jackson, at home.

The funeral was held from her late residence on Monday, February 1, to White Church, with interment in White's Cemetery.

ALLAN C. WALLBRIDGE.

MARMORA, Feb. 1.—The death occurred at his home in Marmora township on Saturday of Allan Campbell Walbridge, well known farmer of the district, at the age of sixty-eight. Deceased had suffered from asthma for some years but until stricken with his last illness about a week ago, had been able to perform his usual daily duties. Before taking over the Webb farm some years ago, he had resided in Marmora village for some time, being an employee of the Pearce Company and working in and around their mill. He was of an industrious nature and highly esteemed for his neighbourly qualities His wife predeceased him almost two years ago.

He is survived by two sons, Clarence at home and Kenneth, Toronto, and one daughter, Mrs. Ross Loveless, Marmora. The funeral leaves his late residence at 2 p.m. on Monday for service at St. Andrew's United church at 2.30 p.m. with Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth officiating. Interment will take place in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

JAMES K. McKINNON.

MARMORA, Feb. 1.—James William McKinnon, sole surviving son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McKinnon of Marmora township, passed away in Kingston on Friday in his 74th year. For many years he lived near Deloro on the farm now occupied by John Clemens. Besides farming, he also worked for some years as a carpenter and was employed for a while in that capacity at the plant of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. With his brothers, Daniel and John, in earlier years he operated a threshing outfit.

He was of an amiable nature and took a deep interest in the affairs of the community: The undermining of his health a few years ago forced a retirement from active life and occasioned his removal to Kingston. He was a devout member of the Sacred Heart church. He is survived by two sons, Thomas, Regina, and Frank, Marmora township, and two daughters, Mrs. Norman Doyle, Detroit and Miss Clara McKinnon, Madoc.

The funeral left the residence of his son Frank at 9.30 a.m. this (Monday) morning for the Sacred Heart church for requiem mass. Interment took place in the adjoining cemetery.

HENRY W. ELSON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 1.—A well-known and highly-respected citizen succumbed to a brief illness during the past week in the person of Henry Wordsworth Elson in his 77th year.

Born in the Township of Hope, son of the late Henry and Jane Elson, deceased has lived in Millbrook for the past 14 years and before that resided in Cavan Township where he was well and favorably known.

Predeceased by his wife two years since, surviving members include three daughters: Olive, on the teaching staff of Queen Mary School, Belleville; Mrs. C. G. Sled (Alice) of Prescott; Ella, at home; two sons, George of Regina, Sask., and Wilfred, Cavan; and three sisters, Mrs. James A. Walker, Welcome; Mrs. Joseph Lancashire, Millbrook, and Mrs. Charles Lye, Vancouver.

The funeral, largely attended, was held from the family residence, Tupper street, and conducted by Reverend A. L. Siscoe, B.A., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, assisted by Venerable Archdeacon Simpson, rector of Cavan parish.

Pall-bearers included Messrs. J. N. McGill, W. H. Combe, P. Stinson, W. T. Wood, W. McCamus, and W. W. Kennedy. Interment was made in Welcome Cemetery.

JOHN F. FOX

MARMORA, Feb. 1.—After several months of suffering, patiently borne, John F. Fox passed away at his home on Madoc street, Marmora, early Sunday morning at the age of 53 years.

The late Mr. Fox, familiarly known as Fred Fox, was born in Madoc township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fox. Like his father, "Fred" followed mining for a number of years and over a period of eighteen years was an employee for long intervals of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. He was married in 1917 to Minnie, widow of late David Gawley Three children were born of this marriage, all residing at home—John, Freda and Marilyn. Stepchildren surviving are Alexander at home, Angus, Mrs. G. Froats, Mrs. Angelo Pirolli and Mrs. Joseph Birmingham, all of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Andrew, also in the States. He is further survived by four brothers, and one sister, namely, Charles, Point Anne; Walter, Eldorado; George A., Stirling; Russel, Marmora township, and Mrs. James Fox, Eldorado. Two sisters and a brother predeceased him.

Deceased suffered a stroke in November, 1934, and failed to recover from a second seizure which occurred in March of last year and robbed him of the power of speech. He was of an agreeable disposition and made many friends. He was an honorary member of Nickle L.O.L. 285 and also a member of Madoc Preceptory of the Black Knights of Ireland. The funeral under Orange auspices leaves his late residence Tuesday for service at Fox's United church, Eldorado, at which Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth of Marmora will officiate, assisted by Rev. S. M. Slack of the Standard church, Madoc.

Rev. D. J. Thomas has completed 50 years as minister of the English Congregational Church, Carmarthen, Wales.

Rheumatism in Joints Caused Her Intense Pain

Read this letter from a woman describing the manner in which she was affected by rheumatism.

"For seven years," she writes, "I suffered with rheumatism of the joints, especially in my hands, and this caused me intense pain. I was even afraid to shake hands with anyone, for it made me suffer terribly. I began taking Kruschen Salts regularly, and after a little while my pains disappeared completely. I am naturally delighted with Kruschen." —(Miss) K.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently caused by deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating your liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action, and so help them to get rid of this excess uric acid.

R. Mallory of Percy Township. The appointment is for two years. Mr. Innes has had many years of experience as road commissioner.

LOW VITALITY MAY CAUSE 'FLU

Beware of widespread epidemic! Keep your system free from poisons that lower resistance.

Doctors agree that one of the greatest causes of 'Flu is lowered resistance caused by accumulation of harmful body wastes and poisons. Don't take chances. Keep your system free from these harmful wastes and poisons by taking Fruit-a-tives regularly. Start right now too, because 'Flu strikes quickly, without warning. Fruit-a-tives, the prescription of a prominent Canadian physician, contain extracts of fruits and herbs and act to stimulate the liver and four other vital organs to normal healthy action; activate the flow of bile, cleanse the intestinal tract of harmful wastes and poisons; tend to purify the blood of poisons and acids. Guard against 'Flu. Get your supply of Fruit-a-tives right now. Every druggist has them. Be sure you get only genuine "Fruit-a-tives".

WHEN SHOULD A FAMILY BORROW?

There are times when a family must borrow — to meet emergencies, to satisfy insistent creditors, to get out from under a crushing load of debt. Only when the loan is to be used constructively — to improve the family position—do we advise borrowing.

Counsel in Money Management

We try to make every Central Finance loan part of a practical plan to reorganize the family's finances. To this end we promote and encourage Money Management and Better Buymanship. We show borrowers how to make their dollars buy more — how to stretch the family income.

If you must have money for a worthy purpose, come to Central Finance. Central Finance has helped thousands of families in need of financial first aid.

7 advantages of the CENTRAL FINANCE LOAN PLAN

1—If you can make regular monthly payments you can borrow from Central Finance.

2—Small monthly payments. For example: $15 a month repays a note of $180 in 12 months.

3—No co-makers or endorsers required.

5—Recently reduced charges on all loans over $120.

6—Charges rebated for payment ahead of schedule.

7—No embarrassing inquiries of employer, friends or relatives.

For Tuesday, February 2

ALTHOUGH THERE may be sudden upheavals and quite unforeseen events on this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects, yet, in the long run, these surprising and disturbing circumstances may result in definite benefits. Removals, changes and journeys may call for rearrangement of plans and desires, with new environs, interests and contacts causing concern. New contracts are presaged. Once these anxieties and rearrangements are composed, however, there should be success and gratification.

Those whose birthday it is may find themsives launched in a year of sudden upheavals, removals, change and travel, possibly in connection with new contracts or agreements. These may be tacit or secret understandings, with elements of intrigue or subtlety, which may cause much anxiety and perplexity at first. After adjustments are made, however, there should be much satisfaction.

A child born on this day may be given to intrigue, schemes and subtlety. A restless and erratic nature may keep it moving about a great deal. It will lean to the curious and mysterious.

OLDEST ADDING MACHINE.

The oldest adding machine in Peterborough is in use at the city hall, according to Alderman Hamilton's information. He and Mayor Macdonald and City Treasurer Shaver were appointed a committee to report to the council to-night on a proposal to buy one or two new machines and also a typewriter.

VITAL STATISTICS.

Thirty-eight births for the month just ended were the lowest on record since November, 1934, it was revealed by a perusal of vital statistics at city hall. In that month there were thirty-four births. Complete figures for the first month of this year were: Births, 38; marriages, 18; deaths, 42. In January a year ago the figures yere: Births, 53; marriages, 13; deaths, 30.

COLOR QUICKLY DISAPPEARS.

Those who saw the skating carnical the other night and noticed the coloring that had been used to decorate the ice had an idea that for the balance of the year the local hockey teams would be playing their games on a highly colored cushion. However, much of the color has already faded and patrons of to-night's Intermediate 'A' game between the Trenton Air Force team and Peterborough will find conditions perfect for fast hockey.

ACCIDENTS IN '36.

During the year 1936, the police department investigated and reported on 221 automobile accidents, in which there were 63 persons injured, 3 killed. Out of that number 71 special reports were made and sent to the Ontario Department of Highways (Motor Vehicles Branch), in which either personal injury was sustained or damages exceeded $50. This information was revealed in the annual report of the chief constable.

GARBAGE COLLECTION CHARGE.

Five dollars a year will be charged for the collection of garbage from any house across the city boundary, the property committee of the council has decided. The fee will be prorated upward for houses of more than $5,000, the valuation of the property to be decided by Alderman McIntyre, chairman, who said he would get the advise of W. J. Henry, assessor. Payment will be made by cheque to the city treasurer.

SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Bishop O'Connor celebrated today the seventh anniversary of his nomination for consecration as Bishop of the diocese of Peterborough in succession to Bishop M. J. O'Brien, the present Archbishop of Kingston. The announcement seven years ago was published on February 17, 1930. Bishop O'Connor was ordained to the priesthood in London, Ontario, May 5, 1909, and prior to his coming to Peterborough he was Vicar-General of the diocese of London and president of St. Peter's seminary.

A HARDY PERENNIAL.

In the Dominion Government's estimates for 1930 the sum of $79,000 was allotted for extensions to the Peterborough Post Office. The Examiner gave the story a front page position with a six-column streamer in a spirit of elation, and that was the last heard of the project recently revived again, possibly with the same enthusiasm and expectation as in the days when J. H. Burnham persuaded the Borden government to buy the Sherbrooke-George Street property for the same purpose.

New Device Permits Land Planes To Become Amphibians

In the first public demonstration of a new float gear, this aeroplane comes out of the water at the North Beach airport at New York on wheels. This gear, developed by the Air Commerce Bureau, makes an amphibian out of a standard land aeroplane in four hours. According to George Post, president of the company which manufactures it, aeroplane owners will now become water conscious and will double their field of operation, landing on either land or water.

GREATER DEGREE OF EFFICIENCY IS NOW REQUIRED

Adrian Macdonald Of Normal School Addresses George Street Open Forum

GROWTH OF DEMOCRACY

It is a question whether the democratic form of government has the efficiency to carry on the complex business required of governments in the present day, Adrian Macdonald of the Normal School staff, told the George Street Open Forum gathering Sunday afternoon. Administration of complex social services and big business interests in modern states demands a degree of efficiency unnecessary in earlier days of democracy, he said.

Mr. Macdonald traced the growth of democracy stating it had its roots in the 13th Century when lords of the church and state met with the King of England to discuss the cost of foreign wars and representatives of the Commons were called in for advice for the first time. The power of the representatives of the people grew steadily from that time, he said.

Dealing with the question of inefficiency, he said many safeguards against the concentration of too much power in the hands of cabinets or other smaller groups were effected as the democratic system grew. It is that insistence that a large and unwieldy body shall ever have the governing power that results in inefficiency, he said.

He spoke of the development of Communism and the development of Fascism in reaction to Communism. In the Communistic and Fascist systems, efficiency has been gained at the cost of the happiness and freedom of the governed peoples, he pointed out.

E. L. Sackville presided over the meeting, Alex L. Elliott introducing Mr. Macdonald.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

A charge of theft of 127 pounds of sheep's wool was further enlarged, when Frank Penn appeared on remand before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Monday) morning, with a plea of not guilty. Representing the Crown, E. A. Peck, K.C., declared he was not prepared to proceed with hearing of the charge. As his reason for asking a further remand, he said, that both Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., and Provincial Constable David Silvester were absent from duty through sickness, while F. D. Kerr, K.C., was out of the city attending the funeral of his brother, who is dead in Toronto.

INVESTIGATE CAR THEFT.

Police are investigating theft of an old car from the rear of J. K. Hughes' garage late Saturday night, which some hours later was found overturned and abandoned on River road between Peterborough and Lakefield. They are said to be considering the possibility that five youths seen hanging around the garage around closing time may have been implicated in the matter. The car, which was to have been sent to the wreckers as being unfit for further use, was towed back to the garage early Sunday morning. It was stated there were no signs at the point where the car overturned to indicate that anlone might have been injured.

Students Proclaim German, King England

Oxford, Eng., Feb. 1 (CP Havas)

Fifty students gathered in the university grounds to "proclaim" the German Prince "rightful King of England, Scotland and Ireland."

According to Jacobites, who have supported the Stuart claims to the throne for more than two centuries, the throne rightfully belongs to the descendants of Charles. I.

All Saints march forward in advance of the news. Norval Selton was invested as a tenderfoot. Bernard Rose, Frank Steward and Bill Kemp received their first year service stars; Walter Dunford his second, and Gerald Carpenter his third year star.

On Saturday, under Leader S.M. Rose, the boys went on a hike to Nassau and went through first and second class signalling.

Next Friday, St. John's hold their annual Father and Son banquet. There is a charge to this affair of 25 cents per plate and anyone is invited. Field Secretary Edgar Jones is guest speaker. A camp fire program will be held afterwards.

At St. John's Rover Crew, Frank Pammett gave a very vivid talk on "Loyalty."

Now, Cubs:—

Let's talk about cuts this week. You know something about germs. You learnt about them when working on you first-star badge.

The first thing to do is to kill the germs and for that we use what is known as "antiseptic." The most usual one in use is iodine. Wash the wound with boiled water, and then paint with iodine; that makes the germs hop it. Now we have chased the enemy away, we must keep him out, so we place a dressing over the wound. Gauze is the most common thing used. We now place a little gauze over the wound, not letting fingers touch the material. If it is a bad cut, put some cotton wool on top of the gauze, then cover with bandage. Do not tie bandage too tight, or circulation will be stopped; and finish off with the reef knot.

CHIMNEY FIRES

Several calls to chimney fires were answered by the Fire Department over the week-end. They were to the homes of George Rayner, 284 Rogers street; Frank Mace, 149 Park street; M. Schwardt, 58 Victoria avenue; and P. Hasman, 306 Brock street.

SLEIGHING IN THE NORTH

Light falls of snow in the northern part of the county have been sufficient to provide sleighing as an aid to farmers who have logs and wood to haul out of the bush. This seasonal work has fallen behind schedule while the weather has remained open, and residents of the northern townships depend to a large extent upon the revenue from wood cutting operations.

GASOLINE FIRE

Examiner reporters were able to cover a fire by looking out the editorial room windows on Saturday afternoon when gasoline blazed up at the Armstrong Service Station on Hunter street. It is believed a spark may have ignited gasoline which stopped from the tank of a truck which had just been serviced but Chief Gimblett is still investigating. No damage was caused by the blaze. A large crowd was quickly attracted by the flames.

BUSY MONTH FOR COUNCIL

Members of the council recorded their first midnight session of the year last Thursday night with committee meetings that ended shortly after the clock struck twelve. After the regular meeting of the council tonight, February promises an active month with the preparation of the estimates to be completed, in addition to several other questions which have recently developed. Mayor Macdonald was engaged at the city hall Thursday from 4 p.m. until the midnight hour with a brief intermission of half an hour for supper from 7 until 7.30 o'clock.

DENTAL CAMPAIGN IS ABLY OUTLINED BY DR. THOMPSON

Field Director Tells Local Service Club Members Of Need Of Education

DIET IS IMPORTANT

The necessity of a campaign of education to protect the people of Canada against dental diseases, from which other ailments might originate, was effectively hammered home to an appreciative audience of Peterborough service club members at the Empress Hotel to-day by Dr. Harry Thompson, field director of the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council. The occasion was the regular luncheon of the Rotary Club, and members of the Kiwanis and Kinsmen's clubs and many local dentists were present to hear Dr. Thompson's message.

Chris G. Graham, president of the Rotary Club was in the chair, and the visitors were welcomed by Rotarian J. Fred Reed. Don Loucks, president of the Kinsmen's Club, and Al Sharpe, president of the Kiwanis Club, occupied seats at the head table.

President Graham commended the Kiwanis Club's enterprise in securing a carload of food and supplies for the Ohio flood victims, and Kiwanian Perry J. Giffen reported that the car would be loaded this afternoon and that over 11,000 tins of canned goods, as well as cases of blankets and new clothing and medical supplies were available.

Introduced by Rotarian James Dutton, Dr. Thompson began by stressing the fact that the laws of nature were inviolate. There was no commuting of the sentence if a mistake were made and no tempering of justice with mercy. The penalty had to be served when nature's laws were broken.

A Laymen's Organization

The Canadian Dental Hygiene Council, he explained was purely an organization of laymen whose work was educative and not operative. It was supported financially by the Federal Department of Health and was also aided by the Canadian Life Insurance Association which in the last five years had donated $40,000 to the Dental Hygiene Council, because insurance heads felt that public dental health work was the most important form of preventive health work. The council had been invited to stage a four-year campaign in the Province of Ontario, and it was working in co-operation with the Minister of Health and the Minister of Education.

The Dental Hygiene Council was not concerned with the cavity in the tooth or the loss of a tooth, but in the effect that diseased teeth might have on other parts of the body. Here the speaker explained the nature of the tooth structure to show how it was possible for infection to get from the diseased tooth into the blood stream and set up trouble elsewhere in the body.

Education is Necessary

The problem could not be solved by treatment, the speaker said. Only 20 per cent. of our people ever went near a dentist unless driven there by pain; and the only way to deal with such a situation was by education. The death-rate in tuberculosis had been reduced 64 per cent. by education; and typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox had been almost driven out in the same way.

Dr. Thompson pointed out that 97 per cent. of Anglo-Saxon peoples had decayed teeth, while in Central Europe the percentage was 35 per cent.; and among the Eskimos there were only three cases of bad teeth in each one hundred, and among the Maroris only one case in a hundred. Among the Anglo-Saxons, the diet until recently, he said, had been practically mineral-free.

The speaker emphasized the necessity of a proper diet in order that the elements for tooth construction should be supplied at the period when they were most needed: that is the pre-natal months and the first three years of life, although he pointed out that these elements were needed all through life. This diet, he said, should include vegetables and fruits, raw and cooked; eggs; whole grains, and all the dairy products. In addition, proper brushing of teeth or the eating of some raw fruits or vegetables at the end of a meal in which carbohydrates had been used and the adoption of periodic inspection were outlined by the speaker as part of the campaign of prevention.

Kinsman H. H. P. Johnston moved a vote of thanks to the speaker on behalf of the assembled service clubs, and it was carried enthusiastically.

BLINDFOLDED MAN DRIVES HIS CAR ON CITY STREETS

Kirma Dodges In And Out Through Heavy Traffic At Noon Hour

OUTSTANDING FEAT

Securely blindfolded to the complete satisfaction of independent witnesses who applied the heavy black mask, Kirma astounded noon hour crowds by driving an automobile through heavy downtown traffic for the greater part of an hour.

Accompanied in his car by two representatives of The Examiner, Kirma handled the wheel with faultless accuracy, and by the uncanny exercise of a sixth sense seemed to be fully aware of stop lights, the nearness of other vehicular or pedestrian traffic, and the dangerous closeness with which lads with boyish enthusiasm ran alongside the car.

Throughout his tour of the business section Kirma drove cautiously at the rear of an automobile fitted with sound equipment. From the lead car his press agent broadcast details connected with Kirma's appearance every night this week on the stage at the Capitol Theatre for the information of the large throngs of people that lined the sidewalks.

A sceptic was heard to state that Kirma was assisted in his demonstration by the sound issuing from two loud speakers at the rear of the lead car.

Pulls Out, Passes Other Cars

Be that as it may, it did not account for the way in which he steered in and out of the maze of traffic. It did not account for the amazing manner in which he sensed the presence of the curious throng when they pressed dangerously close to his moving car. Nor did it account for the spectacular conclusion of the drive, when Kirma stepping on the accelerator shot ahead of the lead car on George street, and swerved to the right to make a faultless stop in front of the Capitol Theatre.

Starting his blindfolded drive from Hood and Cumming's, Kirma drove north on George street, and made his first stop at J. W. Watson's tire and radio service at the intersection of Brock street. It was here that The Examiner representatives accepted an invitation to drive in the mystic's car.

As the cavalcade of cars proceeded north on George street and circled in front of the Red Indian Service station, Kirma offered a reporter seated next to him, a cigarette, and remarked that he was troubled with a bad cold.

At Hunter street the blindfolded driver turned east sounding his horn for a white coupe that was approaching from the opposite direction. In front of The Examiner building he halted for the stop light then went south to Simcoe street and made another halt at Ken McCannan's radio store.

Immediately in front of the car door where Kirma had pulled into the curb four pails of ashes lined the sidewalk. A reporter stepping from the car first silently moved one of the cans, and without hesitation Kirma stepped between the small space made for him, with a polite "thank you."

Leaving McCannan's store after selecting a radio which is to be used by him on Wednesday night for his demonstration of hypnotism in the window of the Home Furnishing Company, Kirma walked unaided though still blindfolded to his car.

As he was about to step in to the car he grasped Ernest Armstrong by the shoulders and said: "You'd better not run too close to my car sonny."

At Elite Restaurant Kirma made another brief stop for "the pause that refreshes." While there his press agent held out a box of cigarettes with the invitation, "Have one of these."

"No. Thanks. Not now," the mystic replied.

Re-entering his car he drove on to Charlotte street, making two calls the first at Madame Merriam's where he arranged for beauty treatments for the young lady who is to be hypnotized, and at The Home Furnishing Store to inspect the bed in which the girl will lie while in the hypnotic state.

Sounded His Horn

As the procession of cars was about to start away after making the last call on Charlotte street a cyclist stopped near the left front fender of the car to stare curiously at the blindfolded driver. Kirma sounded the horn warning the cyclist that the cars were about to start.

At Charlotte and Aylmer streets the cars circled around and went east again. They turned in front of Lillico's service station, where two pedestrians stood on the corner their backs to the approaching car. Skilfully steering between them and the gas pumps at the station, Kirma safely got through a space which did not offer too much clearance for safety under the circumstances.

Swinging around at George and King streets, Kirma stepped on the gas and shot ahead of the lead car, as if providing the answer for the sceptic who believed him to be unable to drive blindfolded independent of the sound. There were two or three cars parked in front of the capitol Theatre where the drive concluded, but Kirma stopped his car within a few inches of the rear bumper of the last of them.

"How do you do it?" he was asked admiringly as he removed the bandage.

His answer was a little chuckle of mirth.

Lucky Photograph

This is the photograph of Peter Robertson, blind Otonabee farmer, which led Dr. Charles M. Scott to believe that his eye-sight may not be beyond restoration. Dr. Scott noted the point of white light representing the pupil of Robertson's right eye and interpreted it as reflection of the intense light of a photoflash bulb from a cataract. Examining him Saturday, the surgeon confirmed the diagnosis and told him he had a "sporting chance" of regaining his sight through an operation. Highlights on eyes in photographs are not uncommon but the angle at which the blind man sits in this photograph allows the attachment of particular significance to the reflection.

STRUCK BY CAR MAN SUFFERING HEAD INJURIES

James Collins In St. Joseph's Hospital With Concussion Of Brain

CONDITION FAVORABLE

Struck down by a motor car as he was crossing the street near his home on Saturday evening, James Collins, 73, of 436 George Street South, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain. His condition today was reported as favorable. Dr. G. R. Scott is in attendance.

Louis Hubbel of R.R. 1, Norwood, alleged driver of the car involved, was not held by police. He was driving north on George Street near the Romaine Street intersection and the man had just stepped off the west curb to cross the street in an easterly direction when the accident occurred.

The injured man was carried to Jack Ashmore's service station, and after being examined there by the doctor was rushed to hospital in Comstock's ambulance. He was unconscious on admittance.

Mr. Collins, who was employed by the C.G.E. Company for many years prior to his retirement, lives with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Neary.

THREE CRIMINALS TWO CIVIL CASES DOWN FOR ASSIZES

Three Men Face Trial On Charge Of Manslaughter Following Car Accidents

$15,000 DAMAGES ASKED

Three manslaughter charges and two civil actions are listed for jury sittings of the Supreme Court which opens at the Court House Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Justice Hogg will preside.

The three manslaughter charges are against James Allen, Allan Cookerill and Edward Harrington. Allen is alleged to have struck and killed Fred Gandy while driving on the Hunter street bridge on September 19. Allan Cookerill is charged in connection with the autobicycle collision which resulted in the death of Wesley Flannery at the corner of George street and Barnardo avenue on November 18. The charge against Edward Harrington, Ennismore farmer, arose from the accident in which Billy McKane, 10, and Francis Burke, 12, were killed on the Chemong Road on November 20.

C. L. Snyder, K.C., of Toronto, has been named special prosecutor for the sittings. He will be assisted by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., G. N. Gordon, K.C., is to represent all three defendants.

One of the two civil actions listed arises from the collision between an automobile and a C.N.R. freight train near the corner of George and Romaine streets on the evening of February 16 last year. Four occupants of the car are asking a total of $15,000 damages from the railway. The plaintiffs are Mrs. William Muskratte, seeking $10,000; William Muskratte, seeking $500; Robert Cowie, seeking $1,500, and Mrs. Robert Cowie, seeking $3,000.

W. J. Arthur Fair is acting for the plaintiffs and Laidlaw and Company for the defendant.

In an action against the Robert Simpson Company, Limited, Kathleen Cooney of this city will ask $5,000 damages for injuries she claims to have sustained when she slipped and fell on the floor in the company's office at 392 George street, on February 15. Mr. Gordon is acting for Miss Cooney and Phelan and Richardson are solicitors for the Simpson firm.

OBITUARY

SAMUEL HUGHES.

The death occurred in St. Joseph's Hospital early on Saturday morning of Samuel Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hughes of Smith Township, in his 18th year. The deceased had been in ill-health only a short time, and was removed to the hospital the Sunday before his death.

PHILLIP JOSEPH HEFFERNAN.

A life-long resident of the city was removed in the death of Phillip Joseph Heffernan, 270 John Street, at St. Joseph's Hospital on Saturday afternoon. He was 65 years of age.

He was born in Peterborough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Heffernan. He was long in the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company. A member of St. Peter's Cathedral, he was active in the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Surviving are three daughters, Margaret, Theresa, and Anna Marie, and four sons, Edward, Joseph, John and Thomas, all of this city. Also remaining are three brothers, William and Michael of this city and Jack of Providence, R.I.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday, proceeding from the home at 8.45 a.m. to St. Peter's Cathedral and to St. Peter's Cemetery.

BRADDOCK WILL MEET JOE LOUIS NOT SCHMELING

Gould Thinks Latter Would Draw Only $200,000 Gate—Wants Million

SOLDIERS' FIELD, JUNE

Garden Insists He Can't Set Aside Agreement To Fight German June 3

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—(A.P.). — Convinced the world's heavyweight championship is worth $1,000,000 and a title defence should net the champion at least $500,000, Jim Braddock plans to scrap his agreement to meet Max Schmeling "for peanuts" so that he can take on Joe Louis for $500,000.

The title-holder's manager, Joe Gould, certain a Louis-Braddock championship bout will draw a $1,000,000 gate and that Schmeling can attract no more than $200,000, announced yesterday he had accepted a $500,000 offer for Braddock to tackle the Brown Bomber in Chicago's huge Soldiers' Field in June.

In so doing, he would set aside the contract for a June 3 bout between Schmeling and Braddock in Madison Square Garden's Long Island Bowl, and the Garden insists he "can't get away with it."

While Gould was explaining the Louis fight offer came from Sheldon Clark, wealthy Chicago sportsman, once associated with Tex Rickard in promoting the fight game's biggest all-time gate—the second Dempsey-Tunney clash—the Garden's promoter, Jimmy Johnston advised all concerned last night to "pay no attention to Gould." Schmeling, too, was incredulous, and decided it was a "publicity stunt."

Iron-clad Contract

"We have the champion signed to an iron-clad contract," Johnston declared. "And nobody ever got out of a Garden contract. Gould can't go through with it. To my mind, it is a slam of further mishandling of the champion by Gould."

The titleholder's pilot said his next step is appearance before New York State Athletic Commission this week to ask return of the $5,000 cheque he posted as evidence of "good faith" in Braddock's intentions, at that time, to fight Schmeling June 3.

"But whether the Commission returns the cheque or not," Gould insisted, "we'll still go through with the fight in Chicago. My business is to make the most money I can for Braddock, and a Louis fight is the best bet.

"I'm not interested in what Madison Square Garden may do," he said in reply to a question. "That's up to them."

Schmeling has been designated as the Number One challenger since he knocked out Louis last year.

Wiremen Gain Nod Over Fractionals

The final tilt of the four-game C.G.E. Shop Hockey League bill staged at the Brock St. rink Saturday afternoon was the closest and saw the Wire Dept. nose out a 1-0 nod over Fractional Motors. Close checking and nice goaltending on both sides marked this tussle, with Barry banging in the only marker on Crowe's assist. Despite the close checking on ice that was becoming quite heavy, only two penalties were drawn, one to each squad. Spencely, Coursey and Higgins played a bang-up game for the losers; while Crowe and Williams looked best for the Wiremen. Heal missed a penalty shot. The teams:

Fractional Motors: Goal, Clarke; defence, Palmer, Spencely; centre, Field; wings, Higgins, Coursey; alternates, Bailey, English, Jobe, Roberts.

Office Outfit Win Shop Puck Contest

Industrial Control were whitewashed, 4-0, by the Office outfit in a snappy C.G.E. Shop Hockey League game Saturday afternoon at the Brock. The white-collar crew had a little the better of the argument but Jay had to kick out a flock of hard ones to earn a shutout. Starr, Rooke and Murphy looked outstanding for the winners, all of whom went good. Starr got two goals and an assist while Williams scored twice. Armour was fair in the losers cage, while Weir, Leith and Houghton played a good game. Play was speedy, fairly even most of the way, and clean. The teams:

Office: Goal, Jay; defence, Rooke, Murphy; centre, Starr; wings, Williams, White; no alternates.

Referee—Lou Lebarr.

Remember When—

Thirteen years ago today the first goal was scored against a Canadian hockey team in Olympic competition. It happened at Chamonix, Switzerland, when Great Britain got two goals in a 1924 Olympic match. Canada, represented by Toronto Granites, won the game 19-2 and went on to win the world title two days later by defeating United States 6-1.

C.G.E. Basketeers Beat Neill's 25-21

C.G.E. copped a 26-21 Senior City Basketball League victory over Neill's before a packed gallery at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday evening. It was a fast, open game with the Electrics having a slight edge in the first half to gain a 16-12 lead but being held on even terms through the last period. Both sides drew a number of free throws — with Magee having four fouls— and the losers cashed in on most. A. Holmes topped the winners in marksmanship with nine points while Hunter had six and Richardson five. For Neill's, Stanger led with nine points and V. Holmes collected six. Some fine passing and shooting were shown throughout this lively cage contest. The teams:

C.G.E.: Hunter, A. Holmes, Richardson, Magee, Cameron, Archibald, Williams, Crowe.

Neill's: Stanger, M. Hunter, Broadley, Gadd, Rennie, Taylor, Wolstenholme, V. Holmes.

Referee, Jim McClenaghan.

Central Takes 3-1 Nod Over King Edward

Central took a 3-1 decision from King Edward in a fast School Hockey League fixture at All Saints rink on Saturday morning. Central took an early lead by scoring in the first period but the south-enders came back to tie it up in the second. Then the winners ran in two smart goals in the last stanza while holding their opponents off the score sheet. R. Clark was the individual star of the game. He scored Central's three tallies while his back checking was a feature. Self scored King Edward's lone marker.

The teams:

Central—Goal, Lomax; defence, Ascott and Moorehead; centre, R. Clark; wings, L. Clark and Manbeck; subs, Hogg, McWilliams, Lee and Millen.

King Edward—Goal, Leether; defence, Henthorne and Roberts; centre, Jamieson; wings, Jobe and Self; subs, Cox, Reader and Hodson.

Referee, H. Fisher.

King George Loses 3-0 To Queen Mary Squad

Queen Mary defeated King George 3-0 in the first School Hockey League game on Saturday morning at All Saints rink. The winners were superior in all departments and forced the play continually. King George, although out-classed, fought hard from start to finish and played good hockey. Mortimer, Weaver and Ackford were the successful marksmen for Queen Mary with the former showing nice form all during the game.

The teams:

Queen Mary—Goal, McBride; defence, Morley and Weaver; centre, Mortimer; wings, Ackford and Horton; subs, Neiman, Ridyard and Smith.

King George — Goal, Robinson; defence, Morgan and Sackville; centre, Downer; wings, Wyatt and De-Long; subs, Eason, Cullen and Moore.

Referee, H. Fisher.

N.H.L. All-Stars

Nels Stewart, Americans, who picked up four points as the New Yorkers split a doubleheader against Canadiens, his two goals paving the way for Saturday night's 4-0 victory.

Toe Blake, Canadiens, whose two goals, the second in overtime, brought the Frenchmen a 3-2 win last night.

Harvey Jackson and Gord Drillon, Toronto, who shot three goals each in Leafs' 7-4 drubbing of Montreal Maroons Saturday night.

Wally Kilrea, Detroit, who assisted in the tying goal and scored the deadlock breaker as Red Wings whipped Boston 2-1.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

AND SO tonight we have the Fliers playing the Petes here. About everything has been said of this game already and it looks like a sellout at the rink this evening. Red Creighton won't be with the locals since he had his ear cut and some shoulder ligaments torn in Belleville last Friday. It'll be Calladine, Burton and Vitarelli on one line; with McDougall, Gardner and either Ellis or Coughlin on the other—maybe both, if seven forwards are used. Magee, Weir, Williamson and maybe Murphy will be on defence, with Clarke in goal. The ice should be okay and the game a thrilling, rugged, bitterly-fought battle all through. With the issue always in doubt. Yeah, a puck natural.

* * * * * *

YE AVIATORS will have Laurie Gibson in goal. Others, with their numbers, are: Johnny (One Man Gang) Lalonde, No. 2; Cab Carling-Kelly No. 3; Cy Beck, No. 4; Dan Cowley, No. 5; Eric McNeeley, No. 6; Roy Laing, No. 7; Frank Lowrey, No. 8; Flash LeCompte, No. 9; Ernie McNeeley, No. 10; Stan Partridge, No. 11; and Windy Wingate, No. 12. This Lalonde is a huge, bruising bouncer on defence and he likes the rough going. It'll be a real scrap this e'en, and the referee is going to earn his dough.

FOUR C.G.E. Shop Hockey League games were staged on colored ice at the Brock St. rink Saturday afternoon. Switchgear made Induction Motors looker greener than the frozen surface with a 7-3 swish; the Office Outfit splashed some 4-0 whitewash over Industrial Control; Machine Shop lads figure-skated through Transportation to a 5-1 tune; and the Wiremen just scraped through the paint to get a 1-0 nod over Fractional Motors. While three of the four tilts were one-sided, lots of rousing action made 'em all interesting. Four more will be served up there next week-end.

TUESDAY IS Blood and Thunder Loop night at the Brock with three Senior City Hockey League games listed. Westclox play Outboard Marines at seven or a bit later, Lakefield meets Mayfairs an hour later, and Bewdley winds it up after nine with Millbrook. Most of the players on these six squads will cast the lorgnette over the Fliers-Petes' brawls this eve and no doubt get some new ideas on mayhem which may be workable in their own games. As payoff time approaches in this circuit the defencemen will be bringing their Sunday bodychecks out of the moth balls and shaking up rivals like a crapshooter in a heat shakes the bones.

ST. PAUL'S took a 16-13 win over St. Johns Bantams in a Church Cage Loop playoff Saturday night in the "Y", thus grabbing off a two-point lead for the return tussle next week-end for the title. Must have been a neat contest, judging by the score. The juvenile schedule reached its end the same night when a short-handed St. Andrew's squad defeated St. John's to put St. Andrew's on top with five wins and a loss, while St. Paul's have four nods and a reverse, Murray St. have won two in six and St. John's but one victory in six starts. Playoff tilts next Saturday are: St. Paul's vs. St. John's Bantams at six, and St. Paul's vs. St. Andrew's Juveniles at seven.

TWO SHUTOUTS featured the three School Hockey League games played Saturday morning at All Saints' rink. Queen Alex blanked Prince of Wales 2-0; Queen Mary had a 3-0 decision over King George; and Central put the kibosh on King Edward 3 to 1. Games next Saturday are: Queen Mary vs. Prince of Wales at 9.00, King Edward vs. Queen Alex at 10.00 and King George vs. Central at 11.00. Schedule winds up a week from next Saturday and then top two teams have a two-game playoff serial at the Brock. Hockey will be well on the wane before this month is over—or do you realize it is February?

SOMEONE IN Fenelon Falls sends us a poster with this request: "Give us a blast, please." On the noisy side of the poster is this bit of ballyhoo: "F.F.H.A.—Calling all hockey clubs to the Fenelon Falls Annual Hockey Tournament—a hockey meet for the fleetest feet. Ontario's largest hockey tournament; prizes of special and outstanding value. Your team deserves this outing—plan now to attend. Please Stand By! For announcement of dates and special attractions!" Perhaps a local team or two will decide it has the fleetest feet and may shuffle 'em toward the Falls in the quest of honors and prizes. Certainly they have plenty of open puck tourneys each winter up around Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon and Lindsay.

Grove Puck Teams Gain Draw And Win

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 1. — A good crowd of spectators turned out on Saturday to see the hockey double-header in the Lakefield Rink, where two teams from Pickering College met the two Lakefield Preparatory School teams. The first game between the "Pickering Midgets" and the Grove's junior team ended in a 4-4 tie. The line-up was:

Pickering Midgets—Goal, Stewart Henry; defense, Roberts, Campbell; forwards, Creed, McGillivray, Willson; alternates, Phipps, McComb, Robertson.

Grove Juniors—Goal, Morley; defense, Roberts, Goldsmith; forwards, Morley, Bayley, Gemmell; alternates, Warren, Crickmore, Winslow; Pearse, sub goal.

The senior game was won by the Lakefield Prep School and though it was a hard-fought, closely-matched battle, the Grove retained the lead throughout the largest part of the play. The score was 4-3 at the end of the second period, and the Lakefield lads tallied twice in the final canto bringing the final count to 6-3 for Lakefield. The goals for the winning team were made by Robertson (2), Frewer (2), Flintoft (1) and Passy (1). Marsh, McKee and Stephenson did the tallying for the visitors. The line-up:

Lakefield Preparatory School Senior—Goal, Stewart; defense, Passy, Simpson; forwards, Frewer, Robertson, Flintoft; alternates, Christmas, Peck and Shepherd.

St. Paul's Bantams Take Cage Playoff

In the first Church Basketball League bantam playoff game on Saturday night at the Y.M.C.A., St. Paul's took a 18-13 win over St. John's. It gives the former a two-point lead for the final game next Saturday night. The victors were given a real scare by the hard-checking Anglicans who are trying to hold the championship for another season.

St. John's were leading 9-4 at halftime and had a 13-4 lead when the Presbyterians suddenly went to town on a scoring spree. Land left the game with four fouls and his loss weakened St. John's in the final few minutes. St. Paul's, in winning their eighth straight victory, had to fight hard all through, being checked almost off their feet by the losers. Fraser starred with some opportune shooting, and Taylor shone with clever play-making. All the St. John's team worked hard, with Castle hooping three fine field goals. The winners made seven of their 12 free shots count as the other side collected but one in seven. The teams:

St. John's: Moore, Castle, Land, Sage, Thompson, Crowter.

St. Paul's: Taylor, McBride, Hall, Ferguson, Fraser.

Referees — G. Johnston and O. Weir.

The juvenile game of January 28th between Aces and St. Peter's has been thrown out due to two players who were ineligible being used by Aces. It will be replayed if necessary. The midget game of January 12th between Beavers and King Edward may be thrown out if it has any bearing on the final standing, as the Beavers used an overage player. The Canucks-Beavers' postponed game of January 5th will be played tonight, February 1st, at nine. The St. Peter's-Canuck's game at seven tomorrow night has been postponed due to a Lindsay team playing here at that time. The game originally scheduled for seven between Beavers and King Edward will be played at six tomorrow, February 2nd.

Switchgear Wins C.G.E. Loop Game

Switchgear slapped a 7-3 defeat on Induction Motors in the first C.G.E. Shop Hockey League game staged Saturday afternoon at the Brock St. rink before a fair crowd. The winners had it all over their rivals and Fleming had to be good in the losers' goal to keep the score from going any higher. Play was clean and fast all through with the victors using neat combination and tidy work in close. Leggitt and Padgett starred for them, each getting two goals. Whatley, Maudsley and Abraham got their other counters. Campbell and Archibald were best for the Induction gang, the former scoring twice and Johnson once. The teams:

Queen Alex. Puckists Beat Prince Of Wales

Prince of Wales dropped a 2-0 shut-out to Queen Alexandra in the final School Hockey League tussle at All Saints rink on Saturday morning. The north-enders appeared to have an edge on the play from the start of the game. The Prince of Wales boys tried hard all the way but could not break through the stout defence of their rivals. Packingham netted the first score for the winners in the first period of the fracas while Lewis ended the scoring with another count in the second twenty minutes. The losers staged a ganging attack throughout the final stanza but could not bulge the twine. Lewis stood out on defence for Queen Alexandra.

The teams:

Queen Alexandra — Goal, Woodgate; defence, Lewis and Forsythe; centre, Kirn; wings Staunton and Packingham; subs, Mackie and Saunders.

Prince of Wales—Goal, Spooner; defence, Scott and Todd; centre, Jackson; wings, Bucknell and Stewart; subs, Doubty, Morley, Gladwin, Lacheur and Gardner.

AUSSIES' BOWLING HOLDS DOWN SCORE IN FOURTH TEST

England Obtained a First-Innings Lead Of Forty-Two Runs

STRONG REPLY IS MADE

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 1 (C.P. Cable). — England obtained a first innings' lead of 42 runs in the fourth cricket test match against Australia to-day. The touring players were dismissed for 330 runs before the tea interval in the third day's play after their opponents' initial attempt yielded 288. In their second turn at the wickets the Antipodeans had made 63 for one at the close of play.

After scoring 174 for two wickets, Saturday, England's chances of establishing a big first innings margin appeared very bright, but splendid bowling by the Aussies kept the score down. Charles Barnett, Gloucestershire opening batsman, registered his first century in test cricket, carrying his overnight score from 92 to 129.

Leslie Ames was the only other Englishman to stand up successfully against the home team's attack. The Kent wicket-keeper batted vigorously for 52 runs, his hits including eight fours.

P.C.I. Win Cage Tilt Over Dominion Life

P.C.I. nosed out a 26-22 decision over Dominion Life in their Senior City Basketball League game before a big crowd at the "Y" on Saturday night. Play was speedy most of the distance and open, with some close checking shown in spots. Of the free tosses, the winners cashed in on most. They had a 14-11 lead at the breather but play was tighter in the second stanza. Galley had 10 points for the Students with Turner, Smith and Gemmell also effective. For the losers, Hammell and White were main snipers. During intermission, four gym acrobats—Tom Dunlop, Jack Wolstenholme, Bill Taylor and Mick Magee—put on some entertaining stunts on the rings to draw hearty applause; the "Tarzan turn" by Wolstenholme going over especially big. The teams:

P.C.I.: Turner, Johnson, Gemmell, Ward, Galley, Gunsolus, Patterson, Smith.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

It looks as if the weatherman is going to give us a break for tomorrow—and that means good fast ice for the playing of the Neil trophy.

As we have said before this competition is open to curling clubs in the county of Peterborough and we expect a large entry.

This year there will be two competitions, the primary and the consolation with prizes in both events.

The boys are asked to be on time at 9 a.m. Tuesday so they can get away to a good start. . . . It will be long enough day for those reaching the finals.

We don't know how many local rinks have entered but we know there are a lot would like to play, and are only waiting to be asked. . . . So to make this a success it is up to the skips.

C. Giroux, W. Harvey and O. McGill were the winning skips on Saturday.

High-pressure salesman—"I went to college, stupid."

Office Boy—"And came back the same way."

Machine Shop Wins Puck Tilt By 5 To 1

Machine Shop scored a 5-1 verdict over Transportation in the third C.G.E. Shop Hockey League contest run off on Saturday afternoon in the Brock St. arena. It was a heavy-hitting rough battle with both defences laying rival forwards regularly and the front men slashing and tripping. The husky Machinists had a little edge most of the distance but had to battle hard. Giardino scored the lone goal for the Transportation team, this squad having no particular stars. Ned Vitarelli went good but spoiled his effectiveness by frequent trips to the cooler. Magee, Seabrooke and Jamieson shone for the winners and Heath was hard to beat in goal. Jamieson got two of the goals with Riel, Magee and Rowbotham getting the others. The teams:

Transportation: Goal, Gippy; defence, Cox, Flint; centre, Kearney; wings, Vitarelli, Giardino; alternates, Howarth, Ralph.

Referee—Lou Lebarr.

Volleyball Results

The results of the business men's volleyball games at the "Y" on Saturday follow: Lions 8-15-15, Bears 15-10-1; Tigers 15-14-2, Pumas 11-16-9; Wildcats 5-15-15, Gorillas 15-2-6; Bisons 3-4-3, Beavers 15-15-15; Leopards 15-15-15, Kangaroos 4-8-6.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

31—SWISS INSTRUCTION

In central Europe, skiing has undergone a very rapid development in a comparatively short time.

In Switzerland, as in all other countries, this development has inevitably led to differences of opinion on the execution and teaching of the sport. In the course of years, these differences have had a detrimental effect both on individuals and associations working for the improvement of skiing in Switzerland.

One of the most important tasks for the Swiss Ski Association was unification of the teaching in the country. This has been accomplished by seven years of concerted effort.

We believe we have been successful in organizing more than 200 of the most brilliant Swiss experts into a body of genuine ski teachers worthy of the title of Swiss ski instructor.

We are trained and licensed by the state and have accustomed ourselves to eliminate the spectacular stunts with which each used to appear as a sort of skiing superman and to confine our practice to a recognized and uniform technique.

To us our technique is our dogma and until someone can show us a better we will continue to render homage to this gospel. It is this technique we are following in these articles.

China Clippers Win Against Canucks 8-5

China Clippers took an 8-5 Southend Hockey League intermediate win over Canucks at the Sacred Heart rink last Friday evening. It was a fast, open contest with the rival defences having trouble with fast-stepping combination-playing forwards, and the goalies were kept busy. B. Leggitt and Jamieson were the main snipers for the Clippers with three goals each, while Heal notched two. For the losers, Foster and Todd tallied two each and N. Downer got the other one. The teams:

China Clippers: Goal, Castle; defence, Callan, Hopkins; centre, Heal; wings, Leggitt, Jamieson; alternates, Jobe, Ridley, Hunt.

BOXER IS FATALLY INJURED IN BOUT

Pittsburgh Featherweight Mitman Dies Of Injuries Received Saturday Night

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Tony Marino, Pittsburgh featherweight boxer, died early to-day in Wyckoff Heights Hospital from injuries received in an eight-round bout on Saturday night against Indian Quintana.

Marino, who was floored five times by Quintana at the Ridgewood Grove, collapsed after the decision had been awarded to Quintana. He was carried to the dressing-room, where he was examined by Dr. Eugene Kenny, N.Y. State Athletic Commission physician.

Dr. Kenny diagnosed Marino's injury as a cerebral concussion, and had him removed to the hospital. Attaches there said he never regained consciousness.

Marino, 23 years old, has been fighting as a featherweight and bantamweight for the last five years. Up to mid-December he had engaged in 40 fights, winning 27, seven by knockouts, and holding two rivals to draws. He was knocked out in three rounds by Willie Felice of Brooklyn, and lost to Sixto Escobar in a technical knockout in 13 rounds last August.

Dr. Kenny said to-day he had examined Marino before the fight, and "found him in perfect physical condition." He described the death of Marino as "one of those things. It is absolutely unaccountable."

Fliers And Petes Play Here Tonight

Intermediate O.H.A. standing to date:

Team	P.	W.	L.
Fliers	4	4	0
Petes	5	4	1
Belleville	6	2	4
Trenton	5	0	5

The R.C.A.F. Fliers of Trenton tackle the Petes at 8.30 tonight in the Brock St. rink, it being the Airmen's first appearance here this season. They have one win over the locals at present but the Petes figure they can even it up tonight. The biggest crowd of the season is expected to see these powerful, classy and well-matched teams clash.

Clarke will be in goal with Weir, Magee and Williamson on defence—and possibly Murphy, also. Calladine, Vitarelli and Burton will make up one line; with McDougall, Gardner and either Ellis or Coughlin on the other. Coach Buckland may use seven forwards and three defencemen tonight. The speedy, hard-hitting Fliers will be at full strength, and it should be a slambang struggle.

EDMONTON — An estate valued at $300,000 is involved in the will of Edward R. Geake, Pouce Coupe, B. C., farmer and once in the British navy, filed for probate here. Geake and Major John G. Hartley, Vancouver, were killed by bandits last Nov. 6 near Coampo, Mexico, while seeking a lost gold mine.

LEAFS BATTER MAROONS 7-4 WIDE-OPEN TILT

Jackson And Drillon Score Three Each In Brilliant Style

FOUR ASSISTS FOR APPS

Toronto Piles Up Lead Of 6 To 0 Before Gorman's Squad Comes To Life

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—Down Boston way yesterday, Art Ross, probably was suggesting another saliva test for Conny Smythe and his Leafs, as he learned of the decisive 7 to 4 defeat inflicted upon the Maroons here Saturday night.

Close to 11,000 enthusiastic fans saw the Leafs maul the Maroons as they seldom have been mauled before. They piled up a convincing 6 to 0 lead before Tommy Gorman's morose men came back in the wide-open going to tally four times in the last frame in one of the wildest-scoring struggles of the N.H.L. campaign.

Hats off to "Busher" Jackson. The rambling left railer undoubtedly is playing the greatest hockey of his career. He started the Irvinites on the path to victory in the opening minutes with a brilliant shift and goal that made the Maroon defence look foolish. And when the final gong had sounded, Harvey was credited with three goals and an assist, for a grand evening's work.

But that's only half the story. Orchids, too, for Gordie Drillion and Syl. Apps. Drillion's record for the night was identically the same as Jackson—three and one—while Apps, skating faster than he ever has before, drew down four assists.

"Junior" Gets One

It was added glory for the Jackson family when brother Arthur whipped in the fourth goal for Toronto after a neat passing attack led by Defenceman "Red" Horner—and assisted by Nick Metz.

While the score stood 4 to 0 against them after two periods, the Maroons were far more dangerous than the tally indicates. Rus. Blinco, Robinson, Ward and Gracie made dangerous raids on Broda, but the Turk was strictly "on"—which made the path to victory so much easier for the local troops.

At 3.27, Harvey Jackson dashed in with Apps. Upon reaching the defence, he faked a pass to "Syl" and the move carried both Lionel Conacher and Wentworth away to the left, while the "Busher" shifted back and whipped the puck past Beveridge.

Another spectacular goal came at 18.00 minutes as the Busher gathered in an Apps relay, cut over sharply to centre ice and fired a high back-hander right between Conacher and Wentworth—and into the top corner of the cage, much to the astonishment of Mr. Beveridge.

Sewing Up Victory.

The second frame was only 1.09 old when, from a face-off close to the Maroon cage, Jackson took Apps' pass, relayed to Drillon in front of the net—and the latter slammed the puck past Beveridge from close quarters. Five minutes later Horner rushed and passed to Metz on the left. Arthur Jackson dashed in from the right and Metz, spying him there uncovered, immediately drove the puck over. "Junior" made no mistake, as he picked the open side of the net.

It was added agony for the Maroons, and Connell, when Drillon and Apps combined for goal No. 5 at 38 seconds of the third, the former driving the puck in off the goalpost. Less than two minutes later, the lanky right-winger broke clear with H. Jackson and Apps again faked a pass. He rounded Wentworth, sole defender, quite easily, and picked the lower corner of the goal.

Up to this stage, brilliant goalkeeping by "Turk" Broda had thwarted the Maroons on numerous dangerous looking plays but finally the Montrealers realized success when they scored two fast goals.

From a face-off at 3.35, Earl Robinson, one of the stars of the evening, battled in Rus. Blinco's pass from a face-off. Seconds later Robinson piled over top of Broda into a maze of skates and sticks—and was carried off with a bad cut on the forehead, which bled profusely.

Then Blinco sprung into the spotlight with his first goal of the season, as he shoved the puck in under Broda's pads, after the goaler had blocked a shot from Stew Evans.

Spectacular Finish.

That wound up the scoring until the dying minutes, when a spectacular closing was provided. Three goals were scored in a little more than a minute—Harvey Jackson, assisted by Drillon and Apps, chalking up his third of the night as he shoved in his own rebound.

Then Jerry Shannon, who was pivoting Ward and Northcott, capitalized on Evans' pass when he drove past Broda. And, at 19.21 the scoring jamboree came to a close when the aggressive Evans connected, netting a pass from blond Paul Runge.

Maple Leafs— Goal, Broda; defence, Day and Hamilton; centre, Apps; wings, Drillon and H. Jackson. Alternates, Thoms, Finnigan, Boll, Metz, Jarvis, Davidson, A. Jackson, Fowler and Horner.

Art Jackson Jubilant As He Beats Ranger's Goalie

This sweet bit of hockey action, as far as Toronto Maple Leafs are concerned, took place during a game between New York Rangers and Leafs in New York. Art Jackson (with raised stick), brother of the famous Harvey "Busher" Jackson, also of Leafs, has just scored on Goalie Andy Kerr of Rangers in the third period of a hectic game. Art Jackson was burning up the ice and leading the International-American league in scoring when Leafs recalled him. Rangers won the game by a score of 4-2.

AMERICANS BLANK CANADIENS 4 TO 0

Fiery Canucks Miss Morenz As Nels Stewart Goes On Rampage

MONTREAL, Feb. 1.—(CP)— The unbeaten sequence of Montreal's Morenzless Canadiens was at an end today after six successive games without defeat, Nels Stewart and the New York Americans attended to that, whipping Canadien's 4-0 before a Saturday night crowd of 8,000.

The usually fiery Canucks, with the peerless Howie Morenz out of their line-up because of a broken leg, lacked their customary drive against the New Yorkers. Down one goal in the first period, Canadiens saw their wide-open third-period play result in three more Amerk goals.

Americans — Goal, Moore; defence, Jerwa, Murray; centre, Chapman; wings, Schriner, Carr; subs, Graham, Stewart, Hemmerling, Cunningham, La m b, Wiseman, Emms, Anderson, Fields.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press)

Harvey Jackson, replacing Charlie Conacher as Toronto's "Big Bomber," and Americans' Dave Schriner garnered four and two points respectively to move into a tie for the National Hockey League scoring leadership during the week-end. They overhauled Larry Aurie of Detroit, who went pointless, and held a one-point margain with 30 points each. Jackson's three goals against Maroons left him only one behind for the leadership in that department.

The leaders:

Lakefield Prep Team Defeats Pickering

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 1.—In the Prep School group of St. Andrew's College Aurora, Trinity College School Port Hope, Pickering College and Lakefield Prep., the last named school trimmed Pickering at Lakefield Saturday afternoon 6-3. Pickering had previously beaten St. Andrew's 4-1 and Port Hope 6-0.

The game was played on mediocre ice, and the Pickering team failed in the last period. The heavy checking of Pickering was offset by the speedy forward lines of the Grove, and with Robertson leading the attack, the local team finally won out. At the end of the first period it was 2-1 for the visitors, and in the second period the Grove had secured three goals to one more for the Blue and White team, making it 4-3 for the Lakefield Prep. The pretty work of Robertson was ably supported by Prewer; in fact, Prewer's backchecking has not been equalled here in recent years.

The final result was due to the training and the condition of the Lakefield boys; their passing was good; they stayed on the ice having but two penalties; but in the last period, Pickering weakened visibly, and the Grove constantly took advantage of this by five-man rushes, despite their lead. Their coach evidently believes in the maxim: "The best defence is offence." Robertson, Prewer, Christmas, Flintoft and Peck were outstanding for the Grove, while for Pickering the goalie and the two centre men were the best.

Previous to this game, the Second teams of the two schools played a tie, 4 all. For the Grove, Morely and Bailey were good and seemed to outskate the opposing team. Both games were clean, though in the senior game the weight was used frequently, and in consequence the Pickering team did not always choose the best time for their pounding, which resulted in penalties from Louis Sabaino, who refereed both games well. He might have been a little more severe in the senior game, which packed the rink with crowds and noise.

Kilreas Score Both For Victors —Win Is Fifth In Row Over Boston

BOSTON, Feb. 1.—(C P)—Boston Bruins, still helpless against the champion Detroit Red Wings, dropped a 2 to 1 decision to the champions last night as the Detroiters pulled out seven points ahead of the National Hockey League's United States section.

Bruins took command of the action early in the first period when their farm hand, Lorne Duguid, celebrated his recall from the Providence International - American Club by caging a shot that Bun Cook had bounced off the Detroit back boards.

The speedy Wings, however, pulled even in the second frame, when Hec Kilrea scored his second goal of the season, with the assistance of his brother Wally and Pete Kelley.

Early in the final session, Wally lashed an easy 15-foot angle shot that struck Allan Shields on his left side and bounced into the Boston goal for the tally that gave the visitors their fifth consecutive triumph over the Boston forces.

Officials—Mickey Ion and Babe Dye.

CANADIENS TAKE OVERTIME GAME

Defeat New York Americans Sunday Night 3-2 In 70 Minutes

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — (CP).— Montreal Canadiens came from behind to defeat New York Americans 3 to 2 in seventy minutes of speedy hockey before 12,000 fans here last night.

With only fourteen men in uniform, the International group leaders saw their opponents gain a two-goal lead in the first fifteen minutes of play, through goals by Nels Stewart and Art Chapman.

The first came while Tee Blake, speedy Canadien wingman, was serving a penalty. Blake atoned for this at the three-quarter mark of the period by scoring the Montrealers' first goal.

There was no scoring the close-checking second session. Jack McGill, blond Montreal forward, was credited with the tying marker early in the third chapter when Happy Emms, American defenseman, deflected the puck into his own cage.

Blake notched the winning marker early in the overtime period on a slashing shot from the left boards that gave Alex. Wood no chance. Wood guarded the American cage last night as Alfie Moore, who blanked Canadiens in Montreal Saturday night played for New Haven of the International - American League. Wood is spare goal-keeper for that circuit.

Americans—Goal, Wood; defense, Murray and Jerwa; centre, Chapman; wings, Schriner and Carr; subs, Graham, Stewart, Cunningham, Jenkins, Wiseman, Lamb, Emms, Anderson, Hemmerling.

Officials—Clarence Campbell and Duke McCurry.

FALCONS TROUNCE HORNETS AND STARS

Double Week-end Victory Gives Squad Chance In Playoffs

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Don't count Cleveland out of the International - American League hockey playoffs yet—the Falcons are in full flight. So deep in the western section basement a couple of weeks ago that their case looked hopeless, today the Birds' chances of entering the extra money play looked promising at least.

They chalked up their third and fourth straight victories at the week-end. The wins were mightly valuable as the second-place Pittsburgh Hornets were taking a pair of lickings, one of them thanks to the onrushing Falcons. Only two teams of the three-team section figure in the playoffs.

Sending all their power into the fray against the floundering Hornets, Falcons took an early lead and held on to win 2-1. Earl Barholome scored what proved the winning tally after one minute and 35 seconds of the middle period. Then the Birds moved into Syracuse Sunday night and trimmed the classy Stars 3-2.

The double victory moved Falcons to within five points of Hornets, closer than they have been all season. After taking a two-goal lead in the Syracuse fixture, the Clevelanders faded to allow stars to tie it up half-way through the final session. Earl Roche scored the winning goal on a play with Bud Cook.

Cotton Scores One.

Week-end play saw Harold Cotton make his Int.-Am. debut. The New York Americans' winger, sent down to the minor to replace Tony Hemmerling who is getting a try under the big-tent, scored one of New Haven's goals as Eagles tied Providence Reds 4-4 Sunday. Alfie Moore who guarded Amerks' nets the previous night as they beat Canadiens 4-0 was back at his old post with New Haven.

Looking the class of the circuit, Philadelphia Ramblers continued to run wild in the eastern section. They increased their lead over Springfield Indians to 12 points as they downed Providence Reds 6-0 Saturday and Pittsburgh 4-1 Sunday. They skated through defensive systems of both opposition squads with comparative ease.

Danny Cox had a big week-end with Ramblers, scoring four goals. Charlie Mason and Clint Smith, two Saskatoon boys helping Herb Gardiner's team, each added two markers to their scoring averages. Young Bert Gardiner, who also started his puck-blocking in Saskatoon, goaltended smartly in both games.

Although beaten Sunday, Syracuse increased their western group lead by downing Springfield 5-3 Saturday night. It was quite an accomplishment as only once before this season had Indians dropped a decision on home ice. Mike Miller, rookie from South Porcupine, Ont., led Stars' attack with a pair of goals.

MAROONS DOWN BLACK HAWKS 2-1 IN LIVELY TUSSLE

All Goals Come In Final Stanza As Montrealers Turn On Heat

STRONG DEFENCES

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (C.P.)— Most of the action was packed into a furious third period last night as Montreal Maroons defeated Chicago Black Hawks 2-1 to take a firmer hold on second place in the National Hockey League's Canadian division.

Both offences encountered stubborn defences in the first two periods, and all goals came in the final stanza. Jimmie Ward put the visitors in front early in the period, rifling a blazing shot past Goalie Mike Karakas unassisted after feinting the Chicago defence out of position.

Only six penalties were handed out, three against each club. It was Chicago's eighteenth defeat this season and a fifth straight setback by Maroons.

Officials—Stewart and Smith.

HAVELOCK SCHOOL TRUSTEES MEET

Estimates On County Needs Left Until Union Board Is Organized

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 1.—The last meeting of the High School Board, prior to the organization of a Union Board including both Public and High School Boards, was held on Friday evening, when the newly-appointed member, Mr. Harrison Wing took his declaration of office. Trustees Mrs. George Rigby, P. Spencer and F. Breckenridge were present with the latter presiding.

Miss F. E. Morgan, principal extended Mr. Breckenridge an invitation to act as chairman at Commencement exercises Thursday evening.

Caretaker Buchanan reported that everything was in order and that the two broken desks had been repaired as requested at the last meeting.

Correspondence was read and showed receipt of a check for $57.81, from the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, in payment of costs of county pupils for last half of the 1936 school term.

Moved by Trustees Spencer and Mrs. Rigby that the estimating of the requisition for the county treasurer be left over until the meeting of the Union Board. This estimate is to be in the hands of the county treasurer by February 28th.

The following accounts were passed on motion of Trustees Spencer and Mrs. Rigby: Village of Havelock, Deb. and int., $97.56; Commercial Assurance Co., premium, $5.10; A. C. Denike, supplies, $15.32; Ryerson Press, supplies, $3.35; C. C. Snowden, supplies, $27.12; Western Assurance Co., premium, $11.03; General Accident Assurance Co., premium, $5.57; Royal Insurance Co., premium, $6.30; Village of Havelock, temporary loan, $400; teachers and caretaker's salaries, $386.84; E. APSLEY

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO FRED BULLIED

Ex-Reeve Has His Foot Badly Crushed Unloading Logs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Feb. 1.—Fred Bullied met with a severe and painful accident on Thursday afternoon when unloading logs at the mill here. His foot was badly crushed when one of the logs slipped and pinned it to the ground. Mr. Bullied was rushed to Peterborough for treatment.

On the same day, it is reported, Mrs. Hermon Harris fell on the icy road near her home and broke her arm.

Vestry Meeting

St. George's vestry meeting was held on Monday evening when the following officers were elected for 1937: Rector's warden, Herb. Lean; people's warden, William Everett; lay representative, Norman Jones; advisory council, John Coones, George Sloan. The financial report showed a debit balance of $14.16. The allotments had been paid in full and $90 paid off the church debt.

At St. Stephen's vestry meeting on Tuesday, Hector Montgomery was appointed rector's warden and Ernest Tanner re-elected people's warden. Eddie Everett was chosen as lay representative and W. Jeff re-elected secretary-treasurer. A committee was formed to consider ways and means of placing a suitable memorial in the church for those who served in the Great War.

WARKWORTH

PUBLIC LIBRARY ANNUAL MEETING

Warkworth Institution Reports Circulation Of 100 Books Every Saturday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Feb. 1. — On Thursday night the annual meeting of the public library was held in the community hall. Owing to the condition of roads the attendance was not as large as was anticipated by members and directors, but gratifying reports of an active year were presented by the secretary, treasurer and the convenor of the book buying committee. The following is a brief summary of the years activities:

The board held two regular meetings. The book buying committee four meetings. Ninety members received books during 1936. An average of one hundred books circulated every Saturday. Total amount of fees for 1936 amounted to $79.63. 102 books were purchased during the entire year, 21 books donated by members and friends, 25 books repaired and put back on shelves. Balance on hand December 31, 1936, $62.32.

New members are always appreciated, and the hearty co-operation of the public.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 53

James' face assumed a sallow color as Selden told of James coming home on the ill-fated P. & O. boat from India with his master, Henry Severinge, and the latter's friend, Colonel Graham. His hands trembled, but Selden went on in a cold impassive voice.

"The Lucknow went down in a gale off the Casquet rocks, with terrible loss of life. The boats that were launched were smashed to pieces, and only the arrival of a 'tanker' which was able to throw a life-line by means of a rocket over the vessel saved a few survivors, among whom were the three I have mentioned.

'Colonel Graham shortly afterwards threw up his commission and came to settle down at Paynton Manor, and you know the story of Sir Henry and James.

"So far had we got, and there was little doubt that the sudden wealth must have had some connection with the wreck. I asked my man to find out all he could about the other passengers, and received his information only yesterday. It is conclusive.

"On the same boat there was a rich tea planter who was coming home with his young wife—then shortly to become a mother. He had brought all his money with him —a very big fortune—in bonds, and had boasted about it on the vessel. He was drowned, but his wife was saved, half mad with grief. She seems to have told the authorities that her husband had all this money, and that she was penniless, but in her distracted condition little notice was taken of this statement, though it was recorded at the time. With her on the boat were the maid and valet, who had copied their master's example and been married before leaving Assam. Their names were given as Sarah French (maid) and John Brown (valet) in the list, but inquiries at Assam show that they were man and wife.

"By a lucky chance, my man was able to get hold of an old newspaper photograph of some of the survivors, with the names."

"There are the two servants, with the names given, and in spite of Hucks' broken nose and his wife's pince-nez, that she always wore, and the passage of time, it is not difficult to recognize these two as Mr. and Mrs. Hucks."

He passed the paper round to the astonished listeners, who viewed it in complete silence, waiting for the rest.

"There are gaps, of course, but I have no shadow of doubt in my mind that these two servants suspected that Severinge and Graham had stolen their master's money and had followed them up with implacable hatred, and have finally taken their revenge on both Sir Henry and Colonel Graham'—he looked straight at James—'for the theft, and probably the murder of their master, Henry Escott."

A strangled cry came from James, who had half risen to his feet, and Hutchins forced him back into his chair.

"Colonel Graham dead!" His immobility had gone, and he shook like a man with palsy.

"He was burnt to death in his own strong room," Selden said solemnly. "Now, perhaps, James, you will tell us the truth."

The butler sank to his seat with a sob, and covered his face with his hands. They waited for him to recover, feeling that at last a revelation would be made that would clear up the mystery. He lifted his head with a muttered apology, but he looked old and worn.

"I can speak now, sir," he addressed Selden. "Now that Colonel Graham is dead, the promise which I swore to him no longer holds good.

"Mr. Selden has got so near to the truth that there is little that I can add. It's quite right what he says about the wreck. Whether my poor master and Colonel Graham had any idea of stealing the money before the wreck took place I can't say.

"We joined the vessel at Karachi, and Mr. Escott and his wife were already on board. Mr. Escott soon became friendly with Mr. Severinge and the Colonel, and I heard them discussing their affairs many times together. He said that he never trusted banks, and had converted all his fortune into bearer bonds, and had placed them in charge of the purser. When we struck the rocks and everyone was wondering what was going to happen, Mr. Escott and the Colonel got hold of the purser, and obtained the leather case which contained the money. I saw it slung round Mr. Escott's shoulder when we were clinging to the deck.

"There was a rush for the boats, but some could not be launched, and others were smashed. Those that were able to be launched were capsized in the storm. When the life-line was fastened to the mast, there were few of us left, and Mr. Escott put his wife into the 'cradle' with the maid. When the cradle came back there was an ugly rush for it. The valet of Mr. Escott, named Brown, tried to force his way in, and Colonel Graham drew his revolver and shot him down. I thought at the time that it was merely to save the lives of the women, but afterwards I came to a different conclusion.

"They got the women off, and then put this man into the cradle unconscious, and we four were left till last. I thought it was rather fine of them at the time. They pushed me in, and I got safe across, and at last Mr. Severinge and the Colonel came. They reported that Mr. Escott had slipped off the rope and had been drowned, but Mr. Severinge was carrying the case over his back by a strap."

"But surely you would have known the servant again?" Selden asked searchingly.

"I never saw them on the boat. They looked after Mrs. Escott in their cabin, but on account of her condition we never went there, and Mr. Escott used to come to the Colonel's cabin and talk there or in the smoking room. I only knew them by name, and took no particular notice of either of them.

"On the tanker there was a lot of confusion; the maid had gone below to look after her mistress, and the man had been taken to the sick bay. When we got to Southampton, Mr. Severinge and Colonel Graham hurried off to London, and left me behind to find out what had happened to Mrs. Escott. She had been taken to hospital, where she gave birth to a son, and I returned and reported it to my master. We lost all trace of her afterwards, but I know Sir Henry, as he had become, endeavored to find out."

"I can tell you a little," Selden said sternly. "The shock of her husband's death and the loss of all her money temporarily deranged her. We traced the poor woman's movements from the hospital records. She had been transferred to a home at Wimbledon, and one day she disappeared with her four-month-old child, which she abandoned on the Common and then threw herself into the Thames. No relations came forward and the baby was placed in an orphanage."

Reid's face had suddenly gone very white, and his knuckles clenched. "My name is John Escott," he said quietly, "and I was brought up in an orphanage—the Victoria Memorial institute."

To the surprise of everyone present, James said quietly, "Yes, sir, the moment I first saw you I thought there was a very strong family likeness, although it was so long ago, I saw it at once, and was disturbed for my master's safety."

The tension was relieved by Selden, who laughed. "I see now, James, you thought that Mr. Reid, as we called him, had come to take revenge, and you watched him carefully."

Reid broke in with:

"I believe both Hucks and Colonel Graham recognized me from the likeness, that is, if I am really the person in question, for they both asked questions about Escott, and seemed anxious to know about me."

"We will go into that later," Selden remarked. "Let's hear the end of James' story."

"It was only when we came here, sir, and I found that my master had suddenly got rich, that I suspected something. Then one night, when I asked him to release me from his service because I was uneasy in my mind about it, he told me in his study that he and Graham had stolen the money from Escott, Graham had thrown him into the water, and that it weighed on his conscience. He swore that he would only use the income and keep the money intact in case they could trace the child of Mrs. Escott, and he made me swear that I would never breathe a word of what happened. I had been with him for years, and I was deeply attached to him, and I swore to him that I would keep the matter secret if he would hand over to me the entire control of the money, which he did. I saved enough to pay back what Colonel Graham had taken as his share. That is why Sir Henry left it all to me. I held it in trust, sir, hoping that one day we should find the nearest relation to Mr. Escott or the child."

"You were conniving at a murder," Selden said sternly.

"I know, sir. I make no excuses, but apart from my sworn word of honor, if I had gone to the police with this story, there was no evidence, and both these respectable gentlemen would have said I was lying, or trying to blackmail them. Mr. Escott was dead, and I couldn't bring him to life by saying anything. I know I've done wrong, but I could not betray my master, and if I said anything about Colonel Graham it would bring him into it. We have tried to make what reperation we could."

"It is quite evident," Selden commented, "that the two servants must have had strong suspicions, but they lost touch with Graham and Severinge, and had to earn a living. Hucks I found went to the States as a boxer of quite good second-class. When they returned they must have set about finding the men they hated, and discovered that they were living in luxury. After all these years their flimsy evidence would have carried little weight, and they devised this cunning plan, one getting into the Abbey as a servant, and Hucks taking the public house. For years they waited."

SELWYN

VIMY PILGRIMAGE IS ABLY DESCRIBED

Miss Meta Thorn Of Lindsay Tells Of Her European Trip

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, Feb. 1.—One of the most interesting and educational travelogues ever presented in Selwyn was given on Friday evening when Miss Meta Thorn of Lindsay, who was at one time school teacher of S.S. No. 9, Smith, came to Selwyn and presented a travelogue on "My Trip to Vimy," in the church.

Miss Thorn, who had many friends here when she resided in the neighborhood, gave a very vivid description of the highlight of the Vimy pilgrimage, and her audience was unanimous in the opinion, that Miss Thorn's recital of her experience was most interesting. After she had concluded her talk, everyone was free to view the pictures and souvenirs which she had with her. The pictures included snapshots taken by herself of the Duke of Windsor and Duchess of Gloucester.

Y.P.S. Holds Meeting

The weekly meeting of the Y.P.S. of Sylwin United Church was held in the church on Friday evening. The president, Miss Opal Preston, presided. There was no business to be discussed.

Miss Mildred Purdy read the Scripture Lesson from the 5th chapter of Romans. The president then called on Miss Meta Thorn of Lindsay to present her travelogue on her trip to Vimy.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SHADOW

"Well," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, as she set a plate of hot carrot pancakes in front of Uncle Wiggily one morning, "it's about time you came down to breakfast."

"I'm a little late, Janie," admitted Mr. Longears, as he reached for the pitcher of maple syrup. "But I had such a good sleep after my adventures with Quiffy, the snow jumper. I hope I didn't miss an adventure this morning by sleeping later than usual," went on the rabbit gentleman, as he watched his pancakes swimming in the syrup.

"Maybe you did and maybe you didn't," said Nurse Jane, teasing like, as she shuffled back into the kitchen to bake more cakes.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Well, he's been here twice and he said he would come back but you can't tell," squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Who has been here twice?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Mr. Chuck."

"You mean the groundhog gentleman?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Nobody else," spoke Nurse Jane. "Ouch!" she cried suddenly.

"That was an odd thing for him to say," remarked Uncle Wiggily.

Plate Was Hot

"Mr. Chuck didn't say 'ouch!' I did," went on Nurse Jane. "I took hold of the hot side of the plate," she explained, setting more cakes in front of Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, that's too bad, Janie. Put some wet baking soda on the burned place. But tell me what did Mr. Chuck want of me that he came so early and often?"

"I don't know," Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy answered. "But here he comes now," she went on, looking from a window. "He can speak for himself."

"Come in, Chucky, come in," invited Uncle Wiggily, as the groundhog gentleman stood on the steps. "Have some hot cakes?" Is that what you have been here after? Do you want to borrow some hot cakes?"

"No, thank you, Wiggy," answered the father of Woodie and Waddie, the groundhog boys. Only they weren't with him then. "I came to borrow your shadow," he went on in a low and mysterious voice, making sure Nurse Jane was out of the room.

"My what?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"No, not your what—your shadow! Hush—not so loud! Come on out and I'll tell you about it," whispered Mr. Chuck, as Nurse Jane came in to clear away the breakfast things.

Wondering what his friend meant, and not being sure whether or not he had heard him right, Uncle Wiggily followed the ground hog gentleman out of doors. It was a cold, Winter day and snow was on the ground. The sun was shining brightly.

Wanted Shadow

"There it is! May I take it?" suddenly exclaimed Mr. Chuck, pointing to something behind Uncle Wiggily.

"Take it? Take what?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "I don't see anything."

"It's your shadow I want. It's behind you. Turn around and it will be in front of you," said Mr. Chuck. Uncle Wiggily turned. Surely enough, there in front of him was his shadow cast by the sun on the snow.

"Please let me take it!" begged Mr. Chuck. "Just let me borrow your shadow. I'll bring it back after tomorrow, Wiggy!" Before Mr. Longears could answer, all of a sudden the woodchuck whispered: "Hush! Not a word. Here he comes. Don't tell him." And he began to whistle.

Now, if the frame doesn't drop off Grandma's picture so she catches cold and sneezes, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Frosty Jack.

OBITUARY

JAMES BLOCKSIDGE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Feb. 1.—James Blocksidge passed away on Sunday evening last at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Pashler, at the ripe age of 85, after a short illness. Mr. Blocksidge was born in England, and had lived in Canada about sixteen years. His wife predeceased him last April. The funeral service was held in St. George's Church on Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. C. A. G. Spence officiating. Interment was made in the churchyard, in the family plot. The pall-bearers were: George Tanner, Albert Wilson, Stanley Windsor, C. Sketcher, T. Barto, F. Tanner.

JAMES GRIFFITH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 1.—The funeral of the late James Griffith was held Friday afternoon from the home of Mr. George McNeely, Belmont township, at 2 o'clock. The service was conducted by Rev. S. A. Kemp, who chose his text from John 14. Hymns sung were: "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and "There is a Land of Pure Delight." The pall-bearers were: James Paget, William Preston, Joseph McNeely, Joseph Johnston, Williamson Burgess and Ed. Wildman. Interment made at Norwood cemetery.

GARVINE HEAD

The funeral was held on Friday from the home of Mrs. Head's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Lee, Centre Dummer, to the Norwood cemetery.

PRAIRIE LIBRARY HAS QUEEN'S AID

Lady Tweedsmuir's Scheme Gains Interest At Marlborough House

MONTREAL, Feb. 1—(C.P.)—During her stay in England, Lady Tweedsmuir has not been unmindful of the prairie libraries scheme which owes so much to her initiative, says the Gazette.

"During her interview with Queen Mary, her Majesty made many inquiries about the progress of the work done in sending books to lonely people in isolated parts of Canada, and expressed her intention of sending books for this purpose, asking to be reminded of it.

"The reminder was not given, but in spite of her many other pre-occupations, Queen Mary never forgot, and Lady Tweedsmuir received a special message asking for the address to which books could be sent, from the lady-in-waiting at Marlborough House.

"Canada has a long leeway to make up before it can rival the book-shops in Scandinavian towns, but if the English are not book-minded, it isn't from want of opportunity," the Gazette goes on. "Thanks to their magnificent Central Libraries in London, any man—no matter how poor—who can be relied upon to use the books with care, may have even rare and expensive books sent, from the Central Library for his use to any library in the Kingdom.

"The playwright who said with so much heat the other day that far too many books were being written, will be still more annoyed by the latest development in the art of book-making for children, where the children have been engaged to write their own books."

PONTYPOOL

Word has been received in this district of the death of Mr. Thomas Argue of Yelverton.

Miss Doris Driver, teacher of Carscadden's School, was unable to resume her duties until Thursday of last week owing to illness.

The roads in this district are very icy. Farmers who have not sharp horses are unable to go on the roads. Percy Mantle, the local blacksmith, has been kept busy shoeing.

Many farmers have their wood cut in the woods and are anxiously waiting for snow to haul it home.

After opening devotions it was arranged to hold a pancake social on February 9 at which a short play and other numbers will be given. Mrs. G. G. Taylor sang "In the Beautiful Garden of Prayer." Mr. Wilkinson read the scripture lesson and gave a few notes on the life of St Paul. Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Gordon Payne gave readings.

Mrs. David Tucker, flower convenor, appointed two assistants, Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Harold Payne. Visitors were Mrs. William K. Payne, Peterborough, and Mrs. Ernest Garbutt, Bethel. Lunch was served by Mrs. Arthur Edwards, Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Harold Payne.

FAMILY IS HOBBY OF MAYOR'S WIFE

Mrs. Fred Warriner Of Winnipeg Has Several Interests

WINNIPEG, Feb. 1—(C.P.)—Mrs. Fred Warriner, wife of the new Mayor of Winnipeg, has many Ontario associations. In an interview in The Tribune by Lillian Gibbons, she said she and her husband, Dr. Warriner, were born in Stouffville, near Toronto. They were married in Toronto, leaving for the West in 1913.

When they were first married they visited Bracebridge, in Muskoka. Her bride's house was a little suite over the dentist's office, which she made attractive with wedding presents. But the furniture was delayed in its shipment from Toronto and the young Warriners had to board for a few days.

"The first morning we had our own things we invited some of the boys for breakfast — they'd been promised. I made it all as nice as I could, and had a real good meal, with orange juice and bacon and eggs, and everything. We found out afterwards that these friends of my husband didn't believe they'd get much to eat at a bride's first breakfast, so they fortified themselves with a meal before they came.

"My chief hobby is my family; up till now they've been young enough to need me." Mrs. Warriner is a member of the ladies' auxiliary to the Institute for the Blind, also a member of the women's association of Young Church.

This is Mrs. Warriner's family: Beverley, Fred and Bob, the three youngest, at home; Jack at dental college in Toronto, and Lorraine—now Mrs. Herbert Brittain, in London, England.

HASTINGS ORANGE LODGE CONSIGNS MORTGAGE TO FIRE

Eleven-Year-Old Debt Officially Ends At Ceremony In Springbrook Hall

PROGRAM, LUNCH, DANCING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Feb. 2.—The burning of an eleven-year-old mortgage was the grand climax to a splendid program given in Springbrook Hall on Friday evening to mark the third annual social No. 1 district Central Hastings County of the Loyal Orange Association.

Wor. Bro. Harold Spencer of Campbellford, W.M. of Springbrook L.O.L. 442, at the time the mortgage was drawn up, Wor. Bro. John Morrison, Deputy Master and Bro. Sam McComb, treasurer of the Lodge the same year, had the pleasant task of consigning to the flames what Wor. Bro. Spencer humorously remarked was not a piece of newspaper as it might appear to be from a distance, but the form of mortgage which they had as officers of the lodge affixed their names to, as required by law.

The presiding officer at this interesting ceremony read the roll of officers for 1925 as follows: W.M. Wor. Bro. Harold Spencer; D.M. Bro. John Morrison; Chaplain, Bro. Charles Lough; recording secretary, Bro. George Joyce; financial secretary, Bro. Roy Barton; marshall, Bro. Ed. Bateman; 1st lecturer, Bro. Fred Bateman; 2nd lecturer, Bro. Charles Burkett; Committee, Bro. Archie Hazlett, Bro. William Styles, Bro. Ed. Gordenier, Bro. Ab. Bateman, Bro. Chris. Burkett; tyler, Bro. Thomas Webb. The officers of 1925 who were present were on the platform: Bros. G. Joyce, R. Barton, Charles Burkitt, Ed. Gordenier and Chris Burkitt. Absentees and Bro. Ab. Bateman deceased were represented in the group of officers at last night's ceremony by Bros. Gordon Webb, Burton Bateman, Allan McComb, George Thompson, Cecil Bateman and Percy Mumby.

Included in the ceremony was a speech by Wor. Bro. John Morrison, (who sketched the history of the graceful building in which the large audience was assembled. He mentioned how $500 was donated by members as the nucleus of the fund and how the mortgage was reduced by a celebration the following year, to be completely wiped off by the celebration at Springbrook on July 11th of last year. Wor. Bro. Spencer read an excellent treatise on Orangeism and Canon W. G. Swayne led in the recitation of the Lord's Prayer after the gathering had sung "Praise God from Whom all blessings flow" with Mrs. (Canon) W. G. Swayne at the piano.

Pianoforte duet, Mrs. Carman Sine and Miss Laura Tucker; address, Bro. Canon W. G. Swayne; song, Mrs. Francis Jeffrey; recitation, Mrs. Albert Bateman; song, Miss Margaret Bateman; dialogue, "The Darky Wood Dealer," Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Tanner and John Courtney; address, Wor. Bro. W. J. Cottrell; vocal duet, Mrs. Carman Sine and Miss Laura Tucker; congratulatory remarks, Wor. Bro. L. Mumby, Noble Grand of Springbrook Oddfellows Lodge; speeches by Wor. Bro. D. Sanderson, W.M., Marmora L.O.L. 319; Wor. Bro. M. Johnston, W.M. Tanner L.O.L. 509; Wor. Bro. Reg. McGee, W.M. Wellman's Corners L.O.L. 172; Reeve G. Thompson, Rawden Township.

The latter eulogized the Lodge for the splendid spirit of co-operation shown since the undertaking of the erection of the new hall had been commenced. At the conclusion of the program, the dining hall was visited where all partook of an excellent lunch after which dancing was enjoyed by the many who stayed.

A Face Covered With Pimples Causes Much Embarrassment

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

There is little doubt but that impure and impoverished blood is the soil on which those red, white, pus filled pimples develop and thrive, and that nothing short of a vigorous, persistent blood purifying treatment will eradicate them from the system.

Burdock Blood Bitters banishes bad blood and with the bad blood banished the skin becomes free from pimples.

SUGGESTS COUNTY BECOME PARTNER IN CITY MARKET

To Modernize Market Should Be All On One Floor Bruce Johnston Says

CHANGE PRESENT SITE

If Peterborough is seriously considering changing its market, Bruce Johnston of North Monaghan suggests that the county should be made a partner.

"In fact I have sometimes heard that the county did have some part in the ownership of the present site," Mr. Johnston said. "If the city is going to make any move as has been reported recently it seems to me that an ideal location would be on the south side of Charlotte street immediately west of the creek. To modernize the market it should be all on the ground floor. Get rid of climbing stairs, an inconvenience for everybody. Probably stores could be made along the street for rental, and if the county would participate in the investment, the cost to the city would be greatly reduced, and the farmers would be represented in the control and management."

Mr. Johnston said that some of the townships across the county boundary might be consulted, especially Cavan and South Monaghan and Emily.

"Peterborough is one of the best markets in eastern Ontario, and, if these improvements were made, building for years in the future, there would be no question about our position. No market east of Toronto could compare with us. It is not necessary to go into details at this stage. The city has to make up its mind first as to whether it really intends to go ahead with a radical change in its market. In that case Alderman McIntyre's committee might consider the point of consulting with the county council and others, and especially of taking the farmers into their confidence. The city might get some helpful suggestions from those who sell their produce week after week at the market counters."

At the city hall the other evening an alderman remarked that Peterborough needed a new hospital more than a new market. However, Alderman McIntyre's property committee has authority to begin investigations and surveys. The possibility of a partnership with the county has not been contemplated by the council, and Mr. Johnston's idea might become a factor when the committee applies itself to the market proposals.

Discoverer of Dome Mines Makes Another Rich Find

Harry A. Preston, Pioneer Prospector and Co-founder of Porcupine Gold Camp, Finds Dodd's Remedies Bring Relief from Backache and Dyspepsia

MR. HARRY A. PRESTON

Mention the name of Harry A. Preston to any mining man and immediately will spring to his mind two other famous names, those of Dome Mines and Porcupine. It was early in 1909 that Harry A. Preston arrived in the Porcupine area—he was one of the original founders of the Porcupine Gold Camp—and was prominently associated with the discovery of the Dome Mines. Even in those early days of prospecting, Mr. Preston knew the value of Dodd's Kidney Pills and took the wise precaution of carrying a supply in his pack. But quite recently Mr. Preston, now 62 years of age and living in South Porcupine, had occasion to again experience the benefits of these favourite remedies.

In a recent letter, published with his permission, Mr. Preston states—"About four years ago I was stricken with severe backache and I also had bad attacks of nervous dyspepsia. I would almost choke with gas and could eat only certain foods which agreed with me. After using six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the backache began to leave me. A friend advised me to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. I must say it was a blessing that I took his advice, because after using the first box I could eat almost any kind of food without bad results therefrom. Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are genuine pals and I would advise anyone troubled as I was to use them. I keep the pills and tablets in my trunk, so as to have them anytime they may be needed. I take a few of the Dodd's Kidney Pills once in a while to make sure my kidneys are kept in order."

Mr. Preston's experience is only one of many on record telling of how Dodd's Kidney Pills have helped relieve backache and other ailments attributed to kidneys that are out of order.

Active men, whose work calls for long hours of strenuous physical exertion, exposed to wind and weather, dampness and cold, will find special benefit in Dodd's Kidney Pills to help keep the kidneys in good condition. Dodd's Kidney Pills are equally beneficial to women who may suffer from backache, headache, rheumatism, "nerves," or other illness which may be caused by a faulty kidney condition. Ask at any drug counter for Dodd's Kidney Pills and look for the blue box with the red band. They are not habit-forming and may be taken with safety by young and old.

TEXTILE FIRMS BREAKING FAITH McRUER CLAIMS

Should At Least Give Ottawa Accurate Statements After Having Special Protection

TURGEON REPORT

Increased Profit For Selves, Cut Employees' Wages, Blocked All Organizing

OTTAWA, Feb. 2 (CP)—J. C. McRuer, counsel for Justice Turgeon's Textile Commission, presented a brief today arguing industries enjoying special tariff protection should at least observe an obligation to give the government accurate statements of their finances to permit just and equitable taxation of their profits.

Several counsel today filed long briefs with the commissioner as its hearing resumed after a recess of two months. Mr. McRuer's filled more than 400 typewritten pages. He argued largely on the effect of Japanese competition on the Canadian textile market, tariff protection, investment profits and cost, organization of the industry and public and governmental relations of the industry.

Tariff on artificial silks were excessively high, he claimed. Various duties payable by Canadian importers in June, 1935, boosted the Japanese price 25 cents a pound for the commodity to $1.53 plus transportation costs in Canada, he said.

Intimidation Tried

"Efforts to intimidate the government" followed cessation of the Canada-Japanese trade war Jan. 1, 1936, he claimed.

A large delegation of textile industrialists interviewed a committee of the cabinet, representing that all branches of the trade were concerned with the Japanese situation, the whole trade of the country was upset, deliveries were being cancelled, new orders were not being placed and production was being stopped. Jan. 16, 1936, G. Blair Gordon, general manager of Dominion Textiles, ordered the Sherbrooke, Que., rayon mill closed, declaring "This action is necessary in view of the threatened invasion of the rayon market in Canada by Japanese goods at the present time." The mill was "to remain closed indefinitely."

Sherbrooke authorities appealed to the government and a week later Finance Minister Dunning asked appointment of a royal commission to investigate closing of this mill and "all aspects of the textile industry." The mill was re-opened Jan. 29.

No Evidence of Cancellation

Mr. McRuer declared no evidence showed cancellation of orders for the goods made at Sherbrooke.

"It is fair to say that any evidence

NOMAD OF COBOURG REQUIRES NO FIRE

Picked Up Near Paris Living Like Animal—4 Sweaters, 2 Pair Pants, Underwear

BRANTFORD, Ont, Feb 2—(CP). —Provincial police near Paris to-day picked up a strange, nomadic man of Cobourg, who has been sleeping out without a fire for the past six weeks. The man, who gave his name as John Kinnale, lived like an animal, police said, only appearing when he needed food.

He roamed gravel pits near the town and slept in tin shacks that were without warmth. Wearing four or five sweaters, two pair of pants and underwear, he would curl up in the corner of a shack with his overcoat pulled over his head and remain there for hours, police said.

Kinnale said he was 50 and never wore a top shirt because it bothered his teeth. For six weeks he has stood the snow, rain and wind without being inside a house.

Charged with vagrancy, the old fellow, who claimed he was a "corn doctor," was remanded for a week when he appeared in court here.

SILK STOCKING EXTORTION PLOT ENDS IN ARREST

VICTIM CUTS STRING

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 2 (C.P.). — A carefully laid police trap, with a bundle of old paper substituting for money as bait, was sprung on Egerton Street South last night. As a result, Ernest Bell, 47, is in custody on an extortion charge.

After a midnight chase along the banks of the South Thames, officers claim that Bell tried to walk along the river ice only to fall into the water.

An attempt to collect money from Thomas Murphy of Westminster Township was uncovered, according to the officers.

The scene had been prepared so that the alleged extortionist could pull the money to his hiding-place with a long piece of string.

Bell appeared before City Magistrate Menzies to-day, and was remanded one day.

Murphy received an unsigned letter, allegedly making threats unless $35 was handed over. The note instructed Murphy that a woman's silk stocking would be attached to his mail box last night.

It told him to go to the stocking, between 11 and 11.30 o'clock, place $35 in cash in it, and then leave the scene immediately without notifying anyone.

Takes Note To Police.

Instead of carrying out the instructions, Murphy took the note to Provincial Police. They told Murphy to prepare some old papers which would look like bills. He was to take the paper to the scene, and if he found the stocking in place, put the paper in it, and then tie a knot in the stocking, as instructed in the letter. Meanwhile, the officers would be in hiding, waiting to arrest whoever appeared.

When Murphy got to the stocking, he found a long piece of cord attached to it. Apparently the note-writer planned to pull the stocking to his hiding-place.

Murphy broke the string, and told the officers what he had found.

At that moment, a sound of breaking ice came from the river. Both constables set out in full pursuit. When they got to the river, they claim, they found Bell floundering in icy water. He had been walking on the ice and had broken through.

They fished him out and took him to the County Jail.

Officials Holding Own In Fight Against Disease Only Just Begun

COLD ADDS SUFFERING

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Dread "sand boils," bursting up in the heart of beleaguered Cairo, Ill., forewarned of deeply undermined barriers guarding the flood-sieged city today.

Emergency squads rushed to the danger spots, dumping hundreds of sandbags on the miniature "geysers" boiling through the thin strata of protective surface over the city's foundation of sand.

Major R. D. Burdick, U.S. army engineer, estimated there were about 50 "boils" scattered throughout the city.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Cairo's legion of flood fighters watched apprehensively today as a freezing north wind swept huge waves of the Ohio River against the Illinois city's reinforced defences.

The waves battered a three-foot emergency bulkhead which tops the 60-foot seawall. Other towns on the Mississippi river below were similarly menaced.

Weary men found some encouragement in the slow rise of the Ohio and in predictions the crest expected tomorrow or Thursday would not exceed 60½ feet — six inches less than previously anticipated.

As the defence of the city, built on a tongue of land at the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, moved toward its climax, a grimy, tired levee fighter said:

Revised estimates of the havoc already wrought by the flood confirmed previous descriptions of the disaster as the worst in the history of the United States.

It drove 1,000,000 persons from their homes, and the damage probably will exceed $500,000,000.

Kentucky Hit Hardest.

An official statewide survey indicated Kentucky, exclusive of Louisville, suffered $150,000,000 damage, and estimates in the derby city have been as high as $200,000,000.

The death list stood at 368, including six victims of the sinking of a New Madrid floodway barge Saturday night. United States Army engineers searched for the bodies of 28 men missing from the 100 rescue workers aboard.

Disease Worst Menace Now

The homeless constituted the largest army ever created by disaster in the United States. Dr. Thomas Parran, Jr., chief surgeon of the U.S. Public Health Service, said the government had tackled a long time job. The fight against disease, he said, is in good shape but had just begun.

As the Mississippi valley's defences were raised higher and higher between Cairo and New Orleans in preparation for the crest, residents along the Mississippi delta were stirred by reports of levee dynamitings.

It developed that a Tallahatchie River barrier near Tippo, Miss.,

HARRY MEREDITH DIES AT HIS HOME IN HIS 78TH YEAR

Was For Forty Years In The Tailoring And Retail Clothing Business

RETIRED IN 1929

Forty years in the tailoring and retail clothing business in this city, Walter Henry (Harry) Meredith succumbed to an illness of three weeks after a period of declining health at his home, 376 Water street, Monday. He was in his 78th year.

Well known here through many associations, Mr. Meredith was born in Manotick, Ontario, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Meredith. He served apprenticeship in the tailoring trade in Belleville and came to Peterborough to set up his own tailoring business in 1887.

Several partnerships in the clothing business followed in Mr. Meredith's forty-year business career. For many years he was established on George street near the site of the present Woolworth Store in the firm of Tully, Merrell and Meredith, later Merrell and Meredith. He operated alone a short while before his retirement from business in 1929.

He was widely-known as a one-time member of the Ourling Club and of the Lawn Bowling Club. He was a member of the Corinthian Lodge, Masonic Order, and was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving is one daughter, G. Meta Meredith of the Collegiate staff, and one son, Elton R. Meredith of Toronto. Two sisters, Mrs. W. C. Moore, of Ottawa, and Mrs. Cuyderman of North Gore, and two brothers J. K. Meredith of Ottawa, and P. W. Meredith of this city, remain. His wife predeceased him in February, 1928.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m Wednesday from the residence to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr will officiate.

A BRANTFORD PROTEST

Township Asks More Relief—Claims City Men Flock There.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 2—(CP) —Brantford township council in a body will carry its relief problem to Queens Park in an endeavor to obtain an increase in the governments relief subsidy. Figures supplied the council showed approximately 95 percent of these on the townships relief rolls are there because of the municipality's close proximity to the city.

"The heads of families of that percentage of the relief recipients were formerly employees of Brantford factories—men, women and children who in the years of employment earned and spent their money in the City of Brantford, said Reeve Geddie.

Dog Acts As Eyes For Blind Dog Pal

Hollywood, Feb. 2 (AP)

EVERY afternoon, two dogs walk slowly along a quiet street in Hollywood, a big one, holding a leash in its mouth, leading the smaller one.

The little dog, "Cocktail," is blind. For 10 years it has been almost as well known in the movie colony as the stars. It belongs to Edmund Lowe.

With "Cocktail" it is just a case of old age—12 years—Lowe said.

"It is enough to break your heart," the actor said. "The first I knew of it was six months ago when he began to miss catching his ball at play."

"Cocktail," it seemed was doomed to spend the rest of his days in his own backyard.

Then, Lowe said, he thought of dogs specially trained to lead the blind.

U.S. DOCTOR HELD FOR $5,000 RANSOM

Missouri Family Reported To Have Tried Unsuccessfully To Make Contact To Pay

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 2 (AP) —The Springfield Leader and Press said today it had been learned reliably that Dr. J. C. B. Davis, 66-year-old Willow Springs physician who disapeared a week ago is being held by kidnappers for $5,000 ransom. The paper said it had learned members of Doctor Davis' family made an unsuccessful effort last Saturday midnight to contact the abductors and pay the ransom.

The published account said a ransom note in the physician's own handwriting, explaining his plight, was delivered to his family the night he disappeared. Members of the family have denied receiving any such message.

OTTAWA IS PEEVED

City Thinks Government Should Consult It Before Erecting Memorial.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—(CP)—City council, by a vote of 19 to 2, last night referred back "until such time as the Dominion government makes an official announcement or advises council" the report of the town planning commission regarding the site for Canada's national war memorial.

The commission felt it should be consulted as to location of the Memorial or any other matter necessitating changes in city streets. It also objected to the Federal government proceeding with plans to erect the memorial on Connaught Square without first consulting the city.

GUARDSMEN SET MACHINE GUNS UP IN FLINT STREETS

Seize Strikers' Sound Truck, Disperse Pickets—Block Food Going Into Plants

JUDGE DEFERS DECISION

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP)—National Guardsmen enforcing order in the strike zone here seized the United Automobile Workers' sound truck this afternoon, dispersed two score or more pickets and set up machine guns in the middle of the street in front of Chevrolet plant No. 4.

Col. Joseph H. Lewis, National Guard commander of the strike area, said today that the United Automobile Workers of America would not be permitted to take food through the military lines to "stay-in" strikers in the Chevrolet Motor Co. plants.

Union leaders had said they planned to seek permission from Col. Lewis this morning to carry food to the strikers who have occupied plant No. 4, the motor assembly department, since yesterday afternoon.

"When the men get hungry they can go out and eat," Col. Lewis said. "Nobody is keeping them from going out."

Previously, he had said that no striker leaving the plant would be permitted to return through the military lines.

Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola meanwhile announced he would defer his decision on General Motors petition for an injunction against sit-in strikers until 2 p.m.

Baby Bride May Be State's Last As Tennessee Moves New Laws

Don't Scare Her, Mountaineer Warns Newsmen As They Interview His 9-Year-Old Wife

MATCH SUITS MOTHER

SNEEDVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 2 (CP)—Aroused over the marriage of Eunice Winstead Johns, nine-year-old mountain bride, Tennessee's legislature began setting up a legal barrier today to future child marriages.

Two weeks ago little Eunice wed a 23-year-old mountaineer, Charlie Johns. The ceremony was conducted by a Baptist minister in the middle of a country road.

In Nashville, Senator George H. Freeman of Lincoln County introduced a bill last night that would render "null and void" the marriage of any person under 14, regardless of the parents' attitude.

He said the marriage of the mountain child and the young farmer caused Tennessee to be "humiliated in the eyes of our sister states."

Another bill, offered by Senator Fletcher R. Morgan of Chattanooga, provides that a county court clerk issuing a license to anyone under 16 years of age would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Banquets At 8 Cents Ruled Costly Enough

Montreal, Feb. 2 (CP)

ALDERMAN Emile Dubreuil stopped the series of $3 post-election banquets to successful candidates by telling an unemployed group he wouldn't stand for a banquet at more than eight cents a ticket.

Beans and bread will be supplied free by merchants. Perhaps there will be coffee, too.

OTTAWA POWER HYDRO CHIEFS GO INTO HUDDLE

Rumor Purchase Of Electricity For Niagara System Or Chats Falls Plant At $9,000,000

ROEBUCK EVASIVE

TORONTO, Feb. 2 — (C.P.). — Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission was in conference to-day with officials of the Ottawa Valley Power Company, at Commission offices here.

It was reported two major proposals were under discussion:

2.—Purchase by the Commission of the Ottawa Valley plant at Chat's Falls at a price around $9,000,000.

Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck, member of the Hydro Commission said the conference was about "things in general."

The Power Company was represented by H. J. Symington, a director; G. A. Gaherty, vice-president, and Engineer Steers.

"These gentlemen have called on us this morning and we are just discussing things in general," said Mr. Roebuck. "There is no expectation of any immediate settlement of the contract situation arising out of these conversations to-day, but there are possibilities."

"For the past two years, I have said whenever the Power Company wanted to see sense the door would never be closed to them," continued Mr. Roebuck. "They have now availed themselves of that opportunity."

NEWS PLANT BURNS

Nelson B.C. Staff Move to Trail and Will Keep Publishing.

NELSON, B.C., Feb. 2—(CP)—Fire of unknown origin swept through the press room of the Nelson Daily News here last night, putting the press out of commission but failed to halt publication.

The staff packed up typewriters and paste pots, grabbed news copy and moved into the offices of the Times at Trail, 40 miles from here where both papers will be published until repairs are completed to the Nelson Press. No estimate of damage was available.

FIND NEGRO HANGED.

HEADLAND, Ala., Feb. 2.—(AP). —The body of Wes Johnson, 18-year-old negro farm hand whom officers charged with an attack on a white girl, was found hanging in a woods near Headland to-day, a few hours after he was seized in jail.

Raw Milk Distributors Vigorously Oppose Course At Meeting

COMPLIED WITH TESTS

Vendors Of Raw Milk Claim They Serve Twelve Doctors In City

A bylaw recommended by the Board of Health, requiring the pasteurization of all milk sold in Peterborough, was halted in its second reading at Monday night's meeting of the council, and its embodied amendment to the present regulations was referred to the finance committee for consideration.

"This is a serious matter and should have serious thought," Alderman Hamilton said. "I think we could discuss it among ourselves and then call in the milkmen to get their views."

"I can't give a fair and independent judgment without more study," Alderman Gordon stated. "I feel that pasteurization will come ultimately, but for the present question we should know more about it."

Alderman Gordon moved that the committee of the whole for the second reading, with Alderman McIntyre in the chair, rise and report progress. Alderman Wilson seconded this motion, and the bylaw was given an indefinite "hoist."

The Board of Health's recommendation which was read at the opening of the meeting, proposing that a bylaw be prepared, was later referred to the finance committee on Alderman Blocker's motion, seconded by Alderman Wilson.

Opposed By Deputation

Opposition to the bylaw was presented by T. J. Carley on behalf of a deputation from the Raw Milk Distributors' Association, composed of L. J. Clancy, Edward Butler, Norman McConkey and P. R. Castle, and also independently by Thomas J. McMurray and by Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee who was present with a county delegation on another mission.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, explained briefly why he had advised the Board of Health to ask the council for a pasteurization bylaw.

Complied With Tests

The association is composed of twenty-one individual raw milk dealers," Mr. Carley informed the council. "Pasteurization is done only on a large scale by dairy companies. These men have complied with the tests prescribed so far in regard to the vending of milk in Peterborough. The regulations covering the vending of milk are drastic. The

O.M.E.A. DEMANDS VOICE IN HYDRO

We, Not The Government Are The Owners Says President Elliott

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP)—Representation for the association on the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission was urged today by President F. C. Elliott of Ingersoll at the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

Addressing the opening session, Mr. Elliott said: "We, and not the government, are the owners of Hydro. Hydro matters in Ontario should be discussed on a non-political basis or the utility was "headed for the rocks," he said.

"That is true in Ontario and I'm not casting reflection on either party," the president asserted. "I've never taken part in politics, my viewpoint has been without political feeling, but governments must realize that, no matter what the party, it devolves upon us to divest ourselves of political bias and deal with Hydro from a sane, watchful attitude."

Government co-operation "as a needed for Hydro but the administrative responsibilities of the O.M.E.A. entitled the association to representation on the commission, he said.

"We represent $540 municipal consumers and we intend to continue to ask for that representation and a voice for the consumer," he told the convention. "Control in our hands is part of the solution to our problem and difficulties."

$15,000 Cow Is Guest Of Honor But Finds Banquet Fare Taboo

Holder of Four World's Records And Seeking Fifth Has To Leave Party Early

TRIED TO EAT HER ORCHIDS

TORONTO, Feb. 2 — (C.P.). — Wearily shaking the orchids out of her hair, the belle of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club's banquet minced daintily from the elevator of a downtown hotel last night and sank gratefully into the deep cushions of a homeward-bound truck.

For like all country Cinderellas, Brampton Basilus, the $15,000 Jersey cow, who holds four world's records as a milk and butterfat producer, doesn't like late hours, even though she was the fete's guest of honor.

The little fawn-colored champion "broke training" with the full consent of her owners, R. H. Bull and Son, to appear as the feature of the club's banquet and neither party seemed to think that the night-life will interfere with her chance of setting a fifth world's record by producing 100 pounds of butterfat every month for the rest of the year.

Penned in the middle of the main dining-room, the 10-year-old Jersey merely batted a mildly inquisitive ear when press flash-bulbs exploded under her nose, and made continued determined efforts to eat her huge flower-bedecked crown.

Deprived that that, she reverted to her routine fare of hay, mash and sugar beets, occasionally raising her head to look reproachfully at her master satting at the head table, as if to say, "Indigestible laurels, phooey!! I wanna go home!"

Too Zealous Nazi Gets Himself Jailed

Berlin, Feb. 2. (CP Havas)

ZEAL for "racial purity" displayed by George Preuss, 38, a well-known anti-Semite, landed him in jail for a five-month term today.

Preuss was walking down a Berlin street when he encountered a group of three persons with an Oriental expression, at whom he yelled: "Dirty Jews! you ought to be run out of the country!" The three Orientals proved to be the Secretary of the Iraq Legation in Berlin and two Turkish friends. They brought a complaint against Preuss, who was promptly sentenced.

FALSE PRETENSES

Woman Gets Annulment — Says Hubby Told Her He Was Millionaire

MONTREAL, Feb. 2—(C.P.). — When her "millionaire" husband turned out to be a boot and shoe salesman who failed to contribute to her support since 1932, Florence Isabelle Martin decided she had enough of married life. To-day Justice C. A. Ducloe in Superior Court annulled her marriage to George Victor Passant, on the grounds she was induced to enter the contract by false pretences.

The woman told the court she was 17 years old when she married Passant, and that he was 19, although at the time he told her he was more than 21.

TERRIER HAS 11 PUPS

WINNIPEG, Feb. 2—(C.). — There's nothing like a good-sized litter of pups to keep a man company when he's sick, thinks J. Gunn. Lt. Gunn said to-day his 16-month-old terrier, Tiny, had given birth to 11 pups, something of a record of dogs of her breed.

COLDWELL LOSES MOVE FOR ACTION B.N.A. AMENDMENT

Proposed Committee To Recommend Specific Constitutional Changes In Act

ALLOW SOCIAL LAWS

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—(CP).—Consideration of changes in the British North America Act has advanced another stage in the House of Commons, but the government has not disclosed definite proposals for dealing with the subject.

For that reason M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) refused last night to withdraw his resolution calling for appointment of a committee to suggest constitutional amendments giving Parliament power to enact social legislation.

During the greater part of yesterday's sitting the House debated Mr Coldwell's resolution, defeating it without a recorded vote after discussion fed by comment on the Privy Council's recent decision on Bennett's government's "new deal" legislation.

The veteran C. H. Cahan (Cons. St. Lawrence-St. George), who said he had known and talked with some of the framers of the Confederation pact thought the question could be brought to a head. He suggested drafting of a simple amendment necessary to give Parliament power to legislate for social security and uniform labor laws and its presentation to Provincial Legislatures and Parliament for approval.

Chance of Unanimity.

This, Mr. Cahan said, would direct the discussion into a definite channel with some hope of unanimity. If the provinces agreed the amendments could be submitted to Westminster in the usual way — a joint address of Parliament's two Houses.

Labor Minister Rogers opposed the resolution and argued that in a country Canada's size these laws could not be efficiently enacted by Parliament alone. He suggested that provinces, which according to recent Privy Council decisions had exclusive jurisdiction, should be given an opportunity to take the initiative.

J. T. Thorsen (Lib. Selkirk) replied with the argument that if a province enacted laws for minimum hours of labor, minimum wages and social security, it might be boycotted by industry. He agreed with Mr. Cahan's proposal.

Mr. Rogers criticized Opposition Leader Bennett, claiming he defied

MOVE TO PROTECT SMALL SHOP FOLK

Society Formed In Britain To Meet Chain Store Competition

LONDON, Feb. 2 (C.P.). — Great Britain — which Napoleon once scornfully described as "a nation of shopkeepers"—is concerned about the fate of the small shopkeeper.

An organization, entitled the Society for the Preservation of the Small Shopkeepers, Ltd., has been formed to assist in meeting competition from the large chain stores.

The organization hopes to enable "the small man to sell his goods as cheaply as they can be obtained in the hundreds of branches of the great multiple store companies." Membership will be restricted to the proprietors of retail shops or stores owning not more than three shops with a maximum of 10 full-time assistants in each.

"No greater calamity could befall the British people than that its shopkeepers should be exterminated," the society contends. It goes on to say their existence is threatened by the big chain stores.

WILLIE ⅝ Smith, 24-year-old garage proprietor, grinned today and observed he is free of one trouble that bothers several million other Smiths.

"My mail is never sent to the wrong Smith," he said. Frank Smith, his father, decided on the name when Willie was born because his mail was frequently going to the wrong Frank Smith. Father Smith decided to spare his son similar annoyance, and picked the fraction ⅝ for Willie's middle name.

submitted to the commission by manufacturers in Canada of cancellation of orders on account of Japanese competition is practically negligible," he said.

"It is submitted that the evidence is conclusive there was no Japanese competition existing on Jan. 15 which would justify any reasonable businessman in Mr. Gordon's position assuming he would no longer be able to manufacture goods at Sherbrooke that could not be sold; and that it was therefore necessary to close the mill indefinitely and throw approximately 500 employees out of employment, to either starve or become objects of public charity."

Mr McRuer argued the real object of closing the mill was due to large stocks already accumulated at Sherbrooke, coupled with shortage of machinery in the Magog print plant. "It was convenient for the company to close this particular mill at that time. If fact," he said, "it had been convenient to curtail production for some days prior to the closing."

The representatives of the industry, failing to get their demands met immediately at Ottawa evidently decided the government might be intimidated, he said, and the Sherbrooke mill was used for this purpose.

Heartless Disregard For Employees

"The action of the company in closing the mill for such ulterior purposes shows a heartless disregard by officials of the company for the welfare and comfort of its employees," said counsel.

Dealing with representations to Mr. Dunning by A. O. Dawson, president of Canadian Cottons Ltd., that "just as we are about to burn the corner Japanese rayon has started pouring into Canada," Mr. McRuer declared evidence showed while they were threatening to close, their mills were actually increasing their purchases of raw materials.

Of tariff protection Mr. McRuer said "consumers of Canada had a common-law right to buy the textiles they require at the cheapest price th are offered in any market of the world."

Special Makers Tax.

For 75 years the Canadian government had seen fit to interfere with this right by legislation in the form of customs duties. When a government did that, it did more than tax the consumer of imported goods by indirect taxation. It gave the Canadian manufacturer of similar goods a right to impose on the consumers a private tax for his own benefit. Viewed in this light, said Mr. McRuer, Canadian tariff laws were a governmental subsidy to Canadian industry.

"One would almost think, from the attitude of the protected industries, that customs tariff laws were a right instead of a privilege," he declared.

Citing the evidence of Gordon E. Hooper, government tariff expert attached to the commission, Mr. McRuer traced tariffs imposed on a large variety of textile commodities. It had been shown the Canadian mill-gregde were wider than those of the United States and that Canadian prices for like commodities were higher he said.

Cut Wages On Higher Profit.

One of the chief arguments for protection was that it would ensure good wages for Canadian workers, yet evidence was that while Canadian manufacturers increased profit for themselves they reduced the wages of the employees.

Investment profits occupied a large section of the brief. Whatever mighe be regarded as fair return on capital invested in a protected industry, he said, it could not be argued owners of the industry were entitled through operation of the tariff to a further return on capital created out of profits in excess of reasonable return on the original capital.

"If a protected industry makes in profits $1,000,000 over and above a reasonable return on money actually invested in the industry,' said Mr. McRuer, "the consumer has in reality been taxed to raise that $1,000,000. It is not just to the consumers that the investors should claim this $1,000,000 as their capital and demand a further tax from the consumers to pay a return to the investor on it."

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Mr. McRuer said, possessed powers almost as effective as a court of law and a Royal Commission appointed under the Public Inquiries Act. He challenged the contentions of the association in its claims of inadequate tariffs.

No Effort To Better Conditions.

"There appeared abundant evidence of the activities of the association for the protection of the interests of its members as to tariff action by the Government," he said. "But there seemed to be very little evidence of any action by the association that was designed to improve working conditions or to advance the welfare of the employees."

It appeared to be a body demanding private right of taxation but disclaiming any responsibility regarding administration of funds realized from consumers after its members had been given that right, he said. Most of its energies seemed to have been directed either to promoting legislation for protective tariffs or promting price-fixing agreements."

Aims of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association, Mr. McRuer said, ranged "from the dissemination of propaganda by various means at or about election time to the united presentation of causes before those making and administering the tariff laws of the Dominion."

Charges Monopoly.

He charged Canadian Celanese of Drummondville, Que., and Courtaud's (Canada) Ltd. of Cornwall, Ont., of monopolizing the field of acetate and viscose yarns respectively. He criticized Courtaud's for allegedly violating their obligation to the Minister of National Revenue in 1930 when, he said, instead of lowering prices when given increased tariff protection, it boosted them.

Price-fixing agreements by members of the Silk Association came in for severe strictures in Mr. McRuer's brief. He quoted evidence relating to such an agreement between the Paton Mfg. Co. and Dominion Woollen and Worsteds Ltd.

"It is common justice that a law more dominant and inexorable should be invoked to safeguard the interests of the consumers than the self-made regulations of the members of the trade associations within the industry," he said. It was imperative that the law of competition be restored in Canada. He urged that the evidence placed before the commission should be referred to those in charge of the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. McRuer dwelt on various concessions given many of the companies by municipalities in which they were established and on tariff privileges.

"It is from the taxpayers and consumers of the country that a protected corporation receives its right to make special profits that is otherwise could not make," he said.

"It is the right of those conferring these benefits to be furnished with accurate and honest information in regard to the benefits accruing to the recipients of the special privilege."

Side-stepped Taxes.

He charged Canadian Cottons, Ltd. with "not only setting aside concealed reserves" but with not disclosing to the proper authorities its true profits and thus depriving the government of the taxes justly and legally due.

"It has in fact been shown," he argued, "that the officers of the company falsified the returns to the government in order to conceal the existence of its secret reserve which, between 1916 and 1936 reached a maximum of $2,506,128 and is admitted in 1936 to be $2,277,208."

For this reason, he said, Canadian Cottons, Ltd. was "open to the severest criticism" and all facts had been placed before the proper taxing authorities.

Mr. McRuer said the employers demanded elimination of competition from abroad and asserted the right to organize, regulate and eliminate competition among themselves. At the same time he said, they arbitrarily denied their employees the right to organize in their own interest.

"The employers have for the purpose of asserting their own rights created a powerful and complex scheme of organization, but take prompt steps to suppress the most feeble attempt on the part of the workmen to organize for their protection.

"Such action is a selfish denial of natural justice to that great body of men and women on whose behalf the industry claims the right to be subsidized by the consumers of Canada. It is submitted that the law which gives to any industry this right ought to safeguard to the workers the benefits flowing from the exercise of the rights."

HERBERT E. WILTON HAMILTON WEST IS HEART VICTIM

Death Of Former City Mayor Reduces Tory House Membership To 39

IN HIS 68TH YEAR

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 2—(C.P.).—Death of Herbert Earl Wilton, member of Parliament for Hamilton West, has reduced Conservative representation in the House of Commons to 39. Former mayor of this city, Mr. Wilton died in hospital here yesterday following a heart attack which seized him Saturday.

His death raised parliamentary vacancies to two, for Hon. Charles Marcil, Liberal member for Bonaventure, died last Friday. The Liberal Government now holds 177 seats.

Born in New Sarum, Ont., 67 years ago, Mr. Wilton engaged in the grocery business with his father at Strathroy after leaving school. Later he became a telegrapher for the Michigan Central Railway. After publishing a small paper at Springfield, he joined the staff of The Hamilton Spectator in 1910. He joined The Hamilton Herald in 1920 and worked there for a year before taking over managership of the Strand Theatre here. He was stricken with the fatal heart attack while at work in his office at the theatre, a few hours after returning home from Ottawa. His last speech in the House was in support of a move to substitute a lethal gas chamber for hanging.

Alderman for Ward 1 from 1926 to 1930, Mr. Wilton was elected mayor in 1933, and was later returned for a second term. He was elected to the House of Commons in the general election of October 14, 1935.

Surviving are his widow; two sons, Frederick C. Wilton of Toronto and Harold L. Wilton, St. Catharines; and three daughter, Mrs. W. Reid, Hamilton; Mrs. George C. Johnson, Lansing; and Mrs. R. B. Brent, Hamilton.

CHARLES W. KERR IS LAID TO REST

Service Conducted By Chancellor Wallace Of Victoria University

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—Representatives of legal circles and Victoria University as well as personal friends attended the funeral service of Charles W Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg, held yesterday afternoon in Victoria College Chapel. The service was conducted by Rev. Edward W. Wallace, D.D., Chancellor and President of Victoria University, assisted by Rev. R. N. Burns, D.D.

Chancellor Wallace declared it fitting that farewell to Mr. Kerr should be said in Victoria College Chapel, remembering the debt Victoria owed his family, including his father and grandfather. Tribute was paid Mr. Kerr's devotion to his profession and the part he had played as a barrister and at one time in the public life of the country.

Among those present were four members of the Class of '87—the class with which Charles W. Kerr, K.C., graduated from Victoria College—Norman B. Gash, K.C.; Rev. George W. McAll, Professor Walter Libby, and Rev. W. H. Garman. Henry Mason, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. L. Starr, Dr. M. E. T. Addison, Rev. Dr. A. J. Irwin were also present. The pallbearers were: Judge A. Cochrane, Judge O'Connor of Cobourg, Lachlan Burwash, Dr. William Packenham, Professor J. C. Robertson, Dr. C. A. Chant, Professor George R. Anderson.

Interment was in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

BRIDGENORTH

Bridgenorth skating rink was opened last Wednesday night for the first time this winter. The ice was reported in splendid condition, and a large number of skaters enjoyed the opening of the rink to the fullest extent.

Mrs. James Grant, who had the misfortune to break her leg a few weeks ago, was able to return home from the hospital last Wednesday.

Mrs. James Mann has returned to her home at Hamilton after a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Agnes Westlake.

Mrs. W. R. Wedlock of Peterborough is spending the week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McLachlan.

Miss Mary Wheeler of Peterborough visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler, over the weekend.

Mrs. Fred Jopling was removed on Monday to Nicholls Hospital for an ear operation, following an attack of flu.

Quite a number of cases of "Flu" have been reported in Bridgenorth and vicinity the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Sisson and little son, of Peterborough, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler.

The young people and children of the village had a very enjoyable time the past week skating on the icy streets.

Miss O. Sidey returned home on Saturday from Amherstburg and Toronto, where she spent the past month visiting friends.

Owing to so much sickness, the card party to be held at Mr. James Jopling's for the benefit of the Rink Company was postponed until Friday night of this week.

2 BADLY INJURED AT KIRKLAND LAKE WHEN HIT BY CAR

Victims Struck When Walking Behind Sleigh With Party From Social

PAIR IN AUTO ARRESTED

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP)—Frank Bowman, 20, of Toronto, playing for Tekimas here in the Gold Belt Hockey League, and Wiley Millyard, auditor with Clarkson, Gordon Dillworth, and Nash of Toronto, were in hospital here today with serious injuries suffered when they were struck as they walked behind a sleigh bringing a party in from the Queen Lebel bunkhouse where they had spent a social evening.

Earl G. Kelly, shift boss at Bidgood Mines, driving the car which struck down the pair about a mile and a half from Kirkland Lake, was charged with criminal negligence and was released on $4,000 bail. Reider Storen, a former mine superintendent at Bidgood, who owned the car and was a passenger in it, at the time, was charged with being intoxicated.

Has Spine Fractured

Bowman, a brother of Detroit Red Wings, "Scotty," Bowman, suffered a fractured spine and Millyard, whose father is Dr. Millyard, of Coboconk will be in bed for two to four months. His left leg was broken and his right leg had all muscles and sinews ripped to the bone between the hip and knee.

Kelly was arrested at the scene of the accident and Storen was apprehended an hour later in Kirkland Lake.

The sleigh from which Millyard and Bowman jumped to run a bit to warm up, was going the same way as the Kelly driven car, coming towards Kirkland Lake with Kelly, Storen and a prospector, Colin McCrea, of Larder Lake, whom the two were bringing into Kirkland Lake for a mining deal today.

Although the impact drove the box sleigh forward on the team of horses drawing it, no person in the sleigh was hurt.

Berry Bourne, Kirkland Lake, sitting near the rear of the sleigh which had about 30 occupants in sleigh ride party style, straw and blankets for warmth, was nearest to the car when it struck the rear of the sleigh. The toe of his boot was skinned by the bumper.

POLICE CAPTURE 2 LADS IN CABIN

Admit Robbing Brantford Store —One Fugitive From Bowmanville School

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 2. — (CP).—Hiding in a chilly cabin at Rest Acres Reserve, a summer camp about five miles northwest of Brantford, two boys, one a juvenile of Brantford, and the other 16-year-old Earl Wickworth, Toronto, who escaped from the Bowmanville Industrial School, Saturday, were found Sunday night by police. Police said the boys admitted breaking into Gowman's grocery on West Colborne street. They had no food outside of some cake they had stolen. Shivering, the boys cowered in the cabin as police sought them. They were afraid to light a fire. Near the reserve, police found an automobile the boys are alleged to have stolen from Bowmanville.

They reached Brantford Sunday in the car, they said, broke into the store and went to the reserve, where there are a number of cabins.

The juvenile was sent to Bowmanville after he was arrested after a gun fight with Motorcycle Officer Kellas. Several shots were fired. The gun fight started as the officer chased a stolen car used in the robbery of the liquor store here. Both boys may be charged here before being returned to Bowmanville.

THREE SMALL LADS ADMIT CRIME WAVE

All Teachers' Straps Among Loot That Included Articles From Long List Of Stores

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 2—(CP).—Three small boys who created a minor crime wave, and drove Hamilton police almost to distraction, sat in central police station to-day and confessed robbery after robbery.

"I'm gettin' kinda dry. If I had a bottle of pop I could tell you some more," one of them volunteered as a detective wrote down a long list of places which had been entered and robbed recently.

Police have been combing the city for a gang of criminals as stores in the uptown district were entered and robbed. The robberies were peculiar as the thieves often passed by things of value and took inconsequential articles.

To-day the officers, acting on a tip, arrested three lads, aged 11, 12 and 13. The lads promptly admitted the shop-breakings.

The boys admitted breaking into the Queen Victoria school, where they were pupils, and stealing all the straps from teachers' desks so they could not be punished for their misdeeds

IMPLEMENT PROBE TO BE CONTINUED

Special Committee Of 25 To Take Over Job Formerly Handled By 60

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—(CP).— Steps were taken in the House yesterday to continue the probe into the cost of agricultural implements left incompleted when Parliament prorogued last session. A special House committee was named by Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture and is expected to begin investigation this week.

The probe last session was conducted by the standing committee of agriculture but as this was unwieldy with its 60 members, a special committee of 25 members will take over the job. R. T. Graham, of Swift Current, Sask., will again be counsel and W Macdonald, of Winnipeg, accountant for the committee.

Before the present government came into power tariff protection of 25 per cent. was extended to the farm machinery manufacturers. There was an understanding between them and the government the protection was to remain in force on condition the firms did not increase their prices to the farmers.

When the present government reduced the protection under the reciprocal trade agreement, with United States to 12½ per cent, the implement makers boosted their list prices around 10 per cent. They contended prices had been too low heretofore

Questionnaires Sent Out.

This increase in the face of lower tariffs caused the Government to start an investigation which gathered much evidence last session, it sent a questionnaire to the leading implement makers asking information as to cost of production, distribution costs and losses from bad debts.

The questionnaires went out so late in the session they had not been returned when the committee reported suggesting the probe be continued this year. The answered questionnaires are now available, and will be submitted as soon as the committee is organized.

40 P.C. PRIESTHOOD KILLED IN SPAIN BY RED ELEMENT

Nearly All Churches In 23 Dioceses Burned And Eleven Bishops Victims

ORDERS FROM "HIGH UP"

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 2 (AP). — Statistics published in the Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, and attributed to the Spanish college in Rome, asserted today that between 40 and 50 per cent of the Spanish priesthood and 11 bishops have been killed "by Reds" in the civil war.

The article said:

The casualty estimates, it added, were based on 200 letters from bishops and priests and on the testimony of 188 priests and bishops who fled Spain to come to Rome.

"This testimony indicates for all Spain that 40 to 50 per cent of the priests and 11 bishops have been assassinated by the Reds," the college stated.

"In nine dioceses, the percentage of priests executed was 60 per cent. At Malaga, it reached an even 90 per cent.

"Reports from 23 dioceses indicate almost all of the churches have been burned.

"Many localities have been victims of hatred of the Communists but that does not mean precise orders have been given in regard to them. But the massacre of priests and destruction of churches was certainly ordered in high quarters.

"It is still difficult to say who was responsible for these high orders."

INQUEST ON NIXON VICTIM FEB. 10

WATERTOWN, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP) —Inquest into the death of a man believed to be J. Honeycott, Toronto, who was struck and killed last night by an automobile driven by Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary and Acting Premier of Ontario, will be held Feb. 10, it was announced today.

WHY PUT UP WITH PIMPLES, WRINKLES AND A SALLOW SKIN?

So many women throw their charm and beauty away — look years older than they are—because they neglect common constipation. They forget that badly balanced meals, over a period of years, can change how they look and feel.

Often their menus lack the "bulk" needed for regular habits. Then constipation, the beauty-killer, sets in. Other effects may be headaches, listlessness, sleeplessness.

Get "bulk" back into your meals with a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It absorbs moisture within the body, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as a cereal or in cooked dishes. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London.

"AND IN 15 MINUTES I'M SUPPOSED TO BE FUNNY!.." BUT STRANGE TO SAY, HERB BELL PUT ON THE GREATEST RADIO SHOW OF HIS LIFE!

Spirits Revive...as you respond to the friendly stimulation of this delicious coffee!

HAVE you ever tasted the indescribably delicious flavour of truly roaster-fresh coffee? That is the flavour of Maxwell House.

And how the friendly stimulation of this matchless blend of choice coffees buoys you up. Vita-Fresh Maxwell House comes to you fresh because it is packed in a super-vacuum tin, the only sure way to bring you coffee truly roaster-fresh.

Junior Welfare League Bridge and Tea.

The Community bridge party and tea of the Junior Welfare League was an interesting event of Monday afternoon. Hostesses for the card games were Mrs. Keith Lech, Mrs. Gordon Munro, Mrs. J. Blaiklock, Mrs. Paige Rowell, Mrs. C. G. Collins, Mrs. W. Perks, Mrs. Walton Stevenson, Mrs. D. B. Falkner, Mrs. D. Lawrie, Miss Claire Mason and Miss Elizabeth Mulholland.

Approximately twenty-five tables of bridge games were played, with Mrs. Rowell, Mrs. Lawrie and Mrs. Blaiklock uniting their tables at Mrs. Gordon Munro's home, where nine tables were played. Each hostess presented prizes to her guests.

Tea was served at the home of Mrs. Fred Collins, McDonnel street, where the hostess was assisted in receiving by the president of the League, Mrs. Walter Perks, and Miss Helen Munro ushered. Mrs. Gordon Munro was convenor of the tea-room. Mrs. D. B. Falkner was treasurer.

Tea was poured by Mrs. R. T. Hicks-Lyne, Mrs. Walton Stevenson and Miss Elizabeth Mulholland. Assistants were the members of the League. The table was done very attractively with a crystal bowl filled with tulips, on a lace cloth. Tea was served in the dining-room and the long drawing-room.

Many guests came in at the tea hour, in addition to those who played bridge. Among the latter were Mesdames N. D. Buchanan, J. D. Collins, J. R. Marshall, C. Lech, F. Hills, R. Abbott, A. W. SPRINGVILLE

OFFICERS ELECTED BY UNITED CHOIRS

Annual Party Of Springville, Fairmount Organization Is Enjoyable Event

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Feb. 2.—Springville-Fairmount United choirs held their annual choir party and election of officers on Wednesday evening last in the basement of Springville church.

The short business session resulted in the officers of the past year being unanimously returned with Bernard Preston as president; Fred McIndoo, treasurer, and Mrs. (Rev.) H. P. L. Seymour, secretary, for the new year. At this opportune time Mrs. Seymour was presented with the gift of a purse, as a slight expression of the appreciation of the choirs for her devoted services as organist. Mrs. Seymour suitably thanked them for their gift.

Rev. Mr. Seymour also spoke a few words of encouragement to the organization.

Crokinole was the amusement of the evening. Seven tables were filled and the game progressed, mingling humor with skill.

Late supper was served, consisting of oysters, ice cream, pie, etc., thus bringing the evening to a happy close.

Quilting Dinner Held

Recently the W.M.S. held a quilting and pot luck dinner at the home of Mrs. Melville Johnston. Twenty or more ladies were present and the dinner proved to be a real banquet. Four quilts were made, the tops having been previously pieced by Mrs. H. Clark, Mrs. Wm. Whitfield and Mrs. M. Johnston.

Many thanks were expressed to Mrs. Johnston and family for their hospitality.

Ricrac trims this attractive cotton home ensemble.

The young wide shoulder line makes the dress especially simple to sew. The yoke cuts in one with the flared sleeves. They're cute! Aren't they? They're roomy and comfortable too, for home tasks. The skirt has a cleverly arranged kick plait. It gives a youthful flare and necessary fulness.

A bright cotton print in aqua blue ground is as smart as can be with navy ricrac. The apron may match or contrast.

You'll wear the dress for local shopping or porch later.

Style No. 2739 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material with 4¼ yards of braid for dress; and 1⅞ yards of 39-inch material with 5⅝ yards of braid for apron.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

Reports Reveal a Successful Year Just Closed By Southend Congregation

Reports received at the annual congregation meeting of St. James' United Church Monday night, revealed that a successful year had just been closed. Rev. F. W. Craik is pastor of the church, and F. J. Hogan was appointed secretary pro tem.

A short worship service opened the meeting, with Rev. Mr. Craik in the chair.

Reports were received from the various organizations of the church and Sunday school, showing splendid progress throughout.

The pastor addressed the meeting, speaking of his work during the six months of his stay in St. James', and stressed the wholehearted sympathy and support of his boards and the congregation in general as being most encouraging and inspiring.

Election of Officers

Elders, for three years, were elected by acclamation, and included R. B. English and J. H. Spence.

Elder for one year.—W. M. Wood.

Stewards for three years were elected by ballot: E. Kitney, E. Frost, G. Cuff, S. Rowe and B. Pitchford. For two years.—H. Fife and Roy Moynes. For one year—A. Davis and E. McKinstrey.

C. F. Kitney was re-appointed representative to Nicholls Hospital Board.

A sincere vote of confidence and appreciation to the pastor was tendered by A. E. Saunders and W. Littlefair, and endorsed by the congregation.

The business also included a vote of thanks to all who assisted in the recent renovation of St. James' parsonage, both in time and donations. In this vote, thanks were conveyed to Miss Peterkin for her thoughtful gift through which the pastor was provided with an individual Communion set for his visits to the shut-ins of the congregation.

The evening's business was carried out as a supper meeting, at which the Ladies' Aid Society were hostesses and provided a bountiful repast. The financial reports are not given here, since all were not presented, but were entirely encouraging and promise a very successful year in all departments.

Prayer, offered by the pastor, brought this another year's work, to a conclusion.

TRINITY CHURCH HAD GOOD YEAR

Total Amount Of Money Raised For All Purposes Was $19,247

The annual congregational meeting of Trinity United Church was held on Friday evening. The minister, Rev. George S. Easton presided and conducted the devotional exercises. R. F. Downey acted as secretary of the meeting. Reports of the Church activities for 1936 were presented by the following societies and organizations of the congregation: Trustee Board, Finance Board, Missionary and Maintenance Fund, Sunday School, Cradle Roll, Choir, Women's Association, Women's Missionary Society, Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary, Living Link Mission Circle, Olive Mission Band, Canadian Girls in Training, Junior Congregation, Flower Guild, Trinity Club (Young Peoples), and Men's Association. These reports revealed that good progress had been made in all departments of the Church's program for 1936 and that much valuable service had been rendered by voluntary and gifted workers in the various fields of endeavor. The membership report showed that 73 new members had been received into the Church during the year, 29 by Profession of Faith and 44 by Certificate. There were 38 removals, leaving a net gain in membership of 35. The total amount of money raised by all societies and organizations for all purposes was $19,247, of which $5,509 was for missionary and benevolent causes. The amount raised for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund was $3456, being an increase of 20 per cent. over the givings for 1935. All the Women's Missionary auxiliaries exceeded their 1936 objectives by a substantial amount.

At the close of the meeting there was a social hour when refreshments were served by the ladies of the Women's Association, bringing to a happy conclusion a meeting reporting a most successful year of Church life and activity.

ST. ANDREW'S Y.P.S. SPECIAL PROGRAM

Interesting Papers Are Read By Several Members Of Society

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—The Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lakefield, was in charge of the evening service on Sunday, January 31, when they held a special program, the theme of which was, "Christ Pre-eminent." Miss Ethel Blakely, president of the society, presided. The service opened with song, which was followed by the Bible lesson read by Evelyn Moore. Rev. Robert Boyle led in prayer, after which T. W. Chaplin spoke, explaining the purpose of the service.

Interesting and instructive papers were given by Misses Mary Davis, Mary Borland, Ethel Lake, and Jean Clark. A solo, "Out of Christ," was rendered by Mrs. T. W. Chaplin.

WEDNESDAY

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

GROW old along with me! The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made;
Our times are in His hand, Who saith, "a whole I planned," Youth shows but half, Trust God, see all, nor be afraid.
—Robert Browning.

Dear Friends:

So many think that youth is all there is to life, but when we look back we see how inexperienced we were, so if you are feeling the years steal up on you, and not liking it overly well, just think how good it is to get past the heat of the day.

And if we have lost all that youth stood for see how much we have gained. We have experience, that most priceless of all possessions. If you have travelled much, you know that there comes a time in your life when you are tired of all the scenery, all the new friends, all the different sensations, and you want to go home.

Home, with all its drawbacks, all its staying there. Home to those who know you as you are, where you need not entertain and be entertained, where you can don some old clothes and really enjoy yourself, where you can rest and enjoy your soul.

Where you can put down roots, for the wanderer keeps pulling his life up by the roots, and although I will grant you that it has its thrills, yet it can become tiresome too.

Don't mistake me. I love to travel, and have done much of it, but when we get tired and weary, it is good to stay put sometimes, to get better acquainted with those around you, whether it is your own home town or not, for people in the main essentials are the same the world over.

The Frenchman gets just as annoyed as we do at certain things, so do all the rest. Meeting new faces can be great fun, but talking over the old days can be nice also.

About the only things I do not like about growing older is not being so fleet, shortness of breath, and looking older, for truly I feel as young sometimes as I did at seventeen, and other times I feel as if I had lived a hundred years.

And yet we know that every day is bringing us nearer that home which we shall all go to, sooner or later, and we know also that there are compensations in being a certain age, for no longer need we fear to say we are tired, no longer need we hurry to dance and make merry.

Listen to what Young the poet says about growing older:

"At thirty man suspects himself a fool;
Knows it at forty, and reforms his plan;
At fifty chides his infamous delay,
Pushes his prudent purposes to resolve,
In all the magnanimity of thought
Resolves, and re-resolves, then dies the same."

All we know about it is, that there is no going back, so it is up to us to make it as pleasant for ourselves as ever we can. We do not want to go into the next world and think of all the things we might have done, all the things we could have seen, and remember that we let ourselves grow old without really living.

Sometimes we hear a person say, "Oh if I only had gone ahead and done so-and-so while I was young," but there are few things we cannot start to do, even if we are older. If it is never to late to mend then it is not too late to live.

So forget about your years and your white hair, and start right in to do all you want to do before you are a day older. Do not let age hold you back, but go to it now.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

The Trained Man Knows How

After all the trained reporter knows how a story should be written. For a good many days we have been reading stories appearing in morning papers and watching others as they came in here on the wire, telling of floods in United States. There have been articles speaking of damage in millions of dollars, in hundreds of millions; others telling of the loss of lives here and there; of thousands of men working day and night rescuing people, and of soldiers patrolling areas under orders to shoot those who persisted in looting.

But the intimate, close-up picture did not appear until John T. Ross of the Paducah (Ky.) Sun-Democrat told just how a flood spread and how it dealt with him and his wife and children. John Ross says he went out of the office to get a bite to eat in a nearby restaurant. We can believe that because a reporter's hours are irregular. When he stepped out there was water on the street, but he could hop over it. When he came out of the restaurant the water was so deep one could go through it only with hip boots and John Ross had no hip boots, nor could he get any. He couldn't even get a pair of rubbers or goloshes. Then he thought about getting home to see how it looked there. It was but three blocks, but he could not get within a block of it. His wife and children had gone to a hotel and taken a room.

In short order the hotel was flooded and the fires went out. It was time to move again, the sick folk being taken away first and then the women and children. John Ross stayed behind until he had a chance to enter a boat. Going down the widest street in the city the boat struck the top of a submerged truck and there it stuck. It was necessary to pitch out water and John Ross did that. The journey from the hotel to land high enough for safety was two miles and it was all made along city streets. He found his family huddled with others in a concentration camp in a high school on a hill. And the only complaint John Ross made in his story was that his left arm was so sore from a typhoid shot that he could hardly make his typewriter go. Yes, the trained reporter understands the step-by-step narrative which enables people to understand the experiences through which thousands of people to the south have been passing within recent days which stretches themselves out into torturous weeks.

Jurors Fear Manslaughter

Manitoba and British Columbia are studying the Criminal Code to see if there is some way of securing more convictions in cases where automobile fatalities are brought before court. When drivers of cars are placed on trial facing the charge of manslaughter it is difficult to get a jury to agree to conviction. The feeling seems to be that it is about the same as finding a man guilty of a modified form of murder through carelessness which caused an accident. The suggested amendment would carry heavier penalties than that of "driving to the common danger" charge, but it would get over the frailty of the jury to register a verdict of guilty when manslaughter was the charge to be dealt with.

The fear in the mind of the average juror is not so much that an accused person shall receive adequate sentence, but there is a decided disinclination to return a finding of guilty of manslaughter. There has been no formal application made to Ottawa yet, but we believe there will be and should be. There is something wrong with the present method, so that in itself is sufficient reason for trying another.

Thus We Make Progress

Perhaps it is a matter which we should fix up quietly without letting the outside world know anything about it. But Peterborough in its arrangement of offices in the civic buildings is at last going to fix up an office for the Mayor.

So far the Chief Magistrate has had to conduct his dealings with callers or deputations in the Clerk's office, and if that room is fully occupied then the Chief Magistrate has had to be content through all the years with meeting folk in the corridors or at any particular point of vantage which might be unoccupied.

If the caller arrives and asks for the Mayor's office it is just possible that the person undertaking to furnish guidance and direction might be hard put. He might point one direction on Monday and another on Tuesday.

We are inclined to believe Peterborough is rather unique in this regard, so 1937 with its other marks of progress will go down in history as the date when the Mayor of this splendid city had an office for himself.

He Had Feet and Brains

There are a good many people who know very little about boxing or prize fighting who must have smiled broadly the day after Joe Louis of Detroit tried for ten rounds to knock over Bob Pastor in New York. For days the writers of sports in metropolitan papers had been telling it would be only a matter of a few rounds before the Louis person was declared the victor, and those who are in the habit of betting money were giving odds of ten to one that Louis would end the thing in three rounds.

No question that Louis is the superior man with his fists, and he weighed some 24 pounds more than Pastor, but this unknown Pastor was in the ring at the end of ten rounds and apparently no damage had been done to him. The secret of the whole thing was that it was a case of footwork on the part of Pastor. It was described by some writers as "running away," but one cannot run far in the small roped-off space in which such events are staged. When the slower and mightier Louis was set to fly one of his heavy punches Pastor had moved.

A veteran of the Boer war enjoyed reading of the encounter. He told the Examiner "It was much like that in South Africa for a while. We would surround the Boers, draw in from all sides, and then when the closing-in movement came we'd find they weren't there."

We hope the prize ring and those who follow it have not lost their sense of humor because there is something in that affair about which they should smile to the point of a broad grin. A great smasher was prepared to do great smashing but the man who was going to be smashed decided not to be at any given point when the process was going to be made effective. Then he was elsewhere. Louis had a better set of fists but Pastor had more brains and better feet.

Rich In Historical Value

T. H. G. Denne has done something for Peterborough. In most cities there are in existence some old-time pictures; now and then they are on exhibition when there is an old-home week or some similar event. But this exhibition is different; it is greater and better and it is uniform. Mr. Denne has secured the original pictures from many points in the Dominion; he has had people borrow them for an hour to take them to a photographer; others he has pursued in person until he had been successful in securing what he required. In all the work has taken months of patient effort and a good-sized outlay in cash, but it has been brought to completion and Mr. Denne admits he is pleased with the work. It shows Peterborough as it used to be.

In due time the collection will become the property of Peterborough. When that is done Mr. Denne will be suitably and officially thanked, but as newspapers have the habit of rushing in ahead of customary routine the Examiner right now extends the thanks of this city to Mr. T. H. G. Denne for the unusual contribution. It will be here as a lasting exhibit; it will be a sort of magnet for former residents to turn aside and come this way to inspect the collection. In historical value the Denne collection will be rich.

Ironing a Hard-Boiled Shirt

Diplomats in Moscow are in a bad way. Right now they are in the centre of the social season, and it is stated the social season is bright and gay in Moscow. The foreign diplomats are often called upon to attend a dinner each evening of the week, and that calls for a good supply of fresh-laundered boiled shirts.

The trouble in Moscow is there is but one hotel, the National, which boasts a place where shirts can be laundered. There are Chinese laundries to be sure, but the Chinamen say they cannot get enough starch. One laundryman promised a 30-day service but the charge was $3 per shirt. The latest development is a pooling of shirts which will be rushed to Finland to be laundered.

If these diplomats had wives from the Tenth Concession of other days they would have no trouble about having their hard boiled shirts placed in order. Grandfather always wore one and it was stiff as a poker in front, and it was ironed right on the premises, and the ironing board used to rest between the kitchen table and the back of a kitchen chair a short distance off.

The polishing that was done on the front of that shirt was the high mark of Tuesday, for Tuesday was ironing day. There might have been other garments and furnishings which went through with a lick and a promise, but grandfather's boiled front shirt was not one of them. A great deal of stiffness had to be brought into existence before it was completed. No laundry ever had a chance to operate on the broad expanse of that bosom. A succession of flat irons which sat and roasted on top of the kitchen range attended to that. Each in turn was tested by moistening the tip of the finger with the tongue and then trying the iron to see to what extent it sizzled, or the newly-heated iron was first tried on a bit of paper to see if it would scorch. It took longer to iron grandfather's shirt than it would to milk three cows, but the ironing of that boiled shirt seemed to be regarded as the standard by which the household on Lot 4, Concession Ten would be judged. There was pride and relief in the final movements which placed the arms and the tail around at the back and saw the shirt taken upstairs and placed in the chest of drawers in the back bedroom.

These diplomats in Moscow must have wives who know nothing at all about fixing up a man for special occasions. Certain it is they never came off the Tenth Concession.

NOTE AND COMMENT

WEE ANGUS

(By A. B. K.)

¶ I train Wee Angus best I know, and tell him how he ought to go, and keep the lad in check; I emphasize how he must scrub, and be acquainted with the tub, and wash around his neck.

¶ I talk to him about his boots, on hanging up his ties and suits, being tidy at his meals; I've made him shine his shoes at night, because I want them done up right, and polished at the heels.

¶ I tell Wee Angus reasons why, I want to see him stand up high, and do the best he can; when he grows up he'll do the same, and bear an honored sort of name, and be a dandy man.

¶ But he came home the other day, in doubt of all the things I'd say, on keeping neat and trim; he said the top boy in the class, the one who couldn't help but pass, was way ahead of him.

¶ And Skinny seldom brushed his hair, he always said he didn't care, that filled me up with grief; and Skinny's tie was in a knot, his collar never looked so hot, he never cleaned his teeth.

¶ And Skinny never shined his boots, for style he didn't give two hoots, he used no looking glass; his hands were never scrubbed too clean, on fixin' up he wasn't keen—and yet he topped the class.

Here and There In The Debates

NO BACKER NEEDED

Mr. HEAPS: I should like to know whether the lending companies take any lien on a property for any loan they make.

Mr. DUNNING: None whatever. The only security is the individual's note. No endorsement is required.

Mr. McGREGOR: Does the minister mean that anyone can get a loan without someone else backing his note?

Mr. DUNNING: Absolutely; that is what I say. This scheme is devised for the individual on his own credit, without endorsement and without collateral security. That is why the government is standing behind the scheme,—in order to make it easy for people who have character and credit, and can assure the bank of their ability and willingness to repay, to get a loan without note or collateral, in the simplest possible way. That is why the scheme has started off so successfully. In spite of the winter season, $1,200,000 has been lent in small amounts in less than two months. All this, of course, will develop during discussion of the details of the bill itself.

Mr. McGREGOR: That is not being carried out in my constituency. Anyone who applies for a loan must have someone to back his note before he gets the money.

Mr. DUNNING: If it is a loan under this plan?

Mr. McGREGOR: Yes.

Mr. DUNNING: Well, a bank making such a loan cannot qualify for the guarantee of the government.

Mr. McGREGOR: I can tell the minister that the fact is as I have stated, because I personally have backed two of the notes.

Mr. DUNNING: I should like to have the particulars, because one of the conditions is undoubtedly the one I have stated. It will be possible to discuss this more intelligently on the bill itself, but if the loan is under the provisions of this plan unquestionably a borrower does not require an endorsement.

Mr. McGREGOR: I will give the minister the details, including the name of the bank, when the time comes.

HE WANTS AN ANSWER

Mr POULIOT: Mr. Chairman, I have been sitting here quite impatiently for the last fifty minutes and I cannot say that I have listened very carefully to what the right hon. gentleman (Mr. Bennett) has said. What he took fifty minutes to say he could have said in ten had he cut out all repetition. You are presiding, sir, over a committee made up of seventy-nine members of this house. May I ask each one of the other seventy-eight members of the committee if the hon. member for Calgary West has answered my questions. They were fair, very easy to understand, and spoken in very plain language. I want an answer, Mr. Chairman. The right hon. member for Calgary West stated, according to page 2200 of Hansard of April 27, 1936, that he had realized that Mr. Hungerford was weak. Now he is the gentleman who appointed Mr. Hungerford as president of the Canadian National Railways, a most important job. I ask him now, When did he realize that Mr. Hungerford was weak, according to his own statement? I ask him if it was before Mr. Hungerford's appointment by the right hon. gentleman himself or if it was after, and if it was after, why did he not discharge Mr. Hungerford on account of that weakness? This is no joke, sir. The right hon. member for Calgary West said, "I know whereof I speak." It was probably not the first time he said it, but he said it on that occasion. I should like to have an answer to those three questions, if you please.

Oh, no answer? I shall sit down then because I should like to have an answer; it is very important. No answer? There will be a long speech, a long lecture on everything, and I am surprised the right hon. member for Calgary West has not given us the name of the first locomotive between Montreal and Laprairie. He was telling the story of the railways, and he could have told us that, as well as the length of the locomotive, the number of wheels, and all that. That is the kind of story we listen to in the house when we have important business to carry on. Now I ask him a question concerning a position of the greatest importance, equal to that of the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway. I am not a rich man, but I am a good Canadian citizen, just as good as anybody else, and I should like to know why the right hon. gentleman appointed Mr. Hungerford as president of the Canadian National Railways if he thought he was a weak man, and I shall ask him, further, if it was not because he thought he was a weak man that he appointed him to that position.

YOUTH'S PROBLEMS.

(Kitchener Record)

IN THE last 20 years Canadian industries have not been called upon to absorb into employment more than the youth of the country who have come of age in 18 years, and in the last ten years not more than those who have come of age in nine years. This is because ten per cent of young people have remained in the schools.

In cities and towns something like another ten or 15 per cent on the average day of the year are out of school but idle, by reason of being laid off work or not getting started in a gainful occupation at all. So it cannot be stretching the truth to say that in the country as a whole, since pre-war days, industry has come 15 per cent short of absorbing the biological supply of youth. If the same tendency is continued for a few more years, the average young person will still be dependent on his parents when he is in his twenties.

A Bit of Nonsense

A boy from the town was passing through a hay field with a country friend. "What are those funny things?" he asked the country boy, pointing to haycocks.

"Oh, that's hay," replied the friend. "Pull my other leg," shouted the city youth. "Hay doesn't grow in lumps like that."

EUROPE MIGHT NOTICE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Last week our newspapers carried a news item to the effect that the Canadian Red Cross had forwarded its cheque for $1,200 to aid the flood refugees in the United States. With thousands of millions of dollars in gold bars in the United States treasury, the cynic may be inclined to enquire: "What does a contribution of $1,200 amount to?" In this reader's judgment, it amounts to a great deal. This gesture of human brotherhood across the international boundary is—or should be—a fine example for the peoples of Continental Europe, with their multiplicity of "isms" and their racial hatreds. On the other side of this ledger of the human heart, Canadians recall that American Red Cross train, which spontaneously set out for Halifax when disaster visited that city.

And I recall this little item in your own columns a while back: "Hastings, Dec. 12—A bale, including 3 warm quilts, blankets, clothing and useful articles, valued at $21.00 was packed on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss D. Plant by the members of St. George's Women's Auxiliary."

Here the same rich principle is at work—a gift of $21.00 to the mighty West, out of which thousands of millions of dollars in golden grain have streamed East since 1900! One of these days the sun of prosperity will again glorify those Prairies. Those heart offerings will be remembered in happier days. They tie this wide land together with bonds tougher and more enduring than its steel rails. Wasn't it only the other day that F. D. R. in the shining hour of his electoral triumph spoke to one of our newspaper representatives thus: "Canada! Oh, send them my love!"

WANT IT PROBED

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The following letter has been sent by the Co-Operative Commonwealth Youth Movement, Ontario Section, to Attorney General Arthur Roebuck. We hope you will give it the publicity it deserves:

"Hon Arthur Roebuck, Attorney General,

"Dear Sir: The attention of our organization has been directed to a press report of Tuesday, January 19th, emanating from Sudbury and concerning the arrest of Allvis Bouillard on the charge of vagrancy.

"This press report, we believe, indicates that investigation is necessary to clear up the allegation of threatened arrest for seeking employment and the assumption of presiding Magistrate McKessock that the law requires imprisonment as an adequate solution to unemployment.

"We ask the opportunity of discussing with you this particular case and the law governing similar cases. Our delegation awaits your reply as to the most convenient time of meeting."

Sincerely Yours,
EAMON P. PARK
General Secretary

Toronto, Jan. 26.

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The above letter which we are forwarding to you from our Provincial Executive bears the hearty approval of our local club, in that we believe it should be investigated and publicized, in order that we might be informed of the final disposition of the case, the laws and ruling of the court concerning same.

From the report we believe that Allvis Bouillard is a boy who normally would become a good citizen, and an asset to any community that might adopt him. He is young, ambitious, and not afraid of menial or hard work. As he stated to the judge, "I will take any kind of bush work; I can swing an axe as well as anyone else. I don't want to go to Burwash."

It is obvious from the report that Burwash is not the place for this lad. There is no evidence or even suspicion that he has violated any moral or social code. He has a sense of honour and duty in that he would not sponge a living from his father.

Mr. Editor, if we as citizens of the province of Ontario have passed laws by which the poor are oppressed, is it not time we rectified this situation? Every working man in Canada pays taxes to the government, legislative, and administrative bodies for the purpose of keeping the unfortunate, and all the forces of reaction have failed to agitate a concordant Voice of Protest even from property owners, to abolish this levy and dispersal of funds. Why was this boy not given the helping hand? We pay for it, we have a right to expect it. If there are legal technicalities in the way they should be abolished to conform with the will of the people through the Cleansing Powers of Publicity.

Sincerely Yours,
H. R. LONG

CHEAPER HYDRO?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A great deal has been published about Hydro being reduced in price to home consumers. In Peterborough this is not a fact, as will be seen by the following comparisons:

1936 Bill—Consumption, 140 k.w.h.
First rate 100 k.w.h. @ 2½c.... 2.50
Second rate 40 k.w.h. @ 1½.... .50
Service charge ..... .56
3.56

1937 Bill—Consumption, 140 k.w.h.
First rate, 110 k.w.h. @ 3c 3.30
Second rate, 30 k.w.h. @ 1.2c .. .36
3.66

It seems the new rates have been arranged to benefit the more wealthy consumers. Nor are the new gas billing arrangements convenient to consumer. They should be monthly.

OLD DOCUMENTS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Reading a few days ago in your paper about a man's apprenticeship papers, reminded me I have in my possession my great-grandfather's papers when he was apprenticed to the trade of a baker which includes his freedom in the Bakers' Guild. I am told these are parchment dated 1804, and in the 44th year of King George III. It sets forth in very strong terms what an apprentice must and must not do. It is printed in the old English language which at first sight is somewhat difficult to read. I have also another paper, a copy of the oath of every person that is admitted a Freeman. If you should know of anyone who is interested in such things I am at home nearly every evening except Saturday and Sunday and am willing to show them to anyone who might call.

I do not wish to part with them.

Yours Sincerely,
JOHN T. THOMPSON, SR.

WHAT DO COUNTRY PARSONS DO?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The following week's log was taken at random because of a chance remark implying that the country parson should do more than he is doing.

Sunday: Took three public services, one Bible Class met two committees, read three plays in advance for coming week and drove thirty miles. During the remaining six days put in thirty hours at chores—attending cow and chickens, repairing barn, putting on storm doors and windows, lighting fires and making cupboard, etc.: made eleven calls including one trip to hospital which took about six hours; attended four church meetings which took about eight hours; six hours were taken up preparing a heap of loose change for the bank, taking it there, shopping, and a call at the hospital; twenty-one hours were given to reading and sermon preparation.

To do this involved driving one hundred and eighty miles and including Sunday, would equal about ninety hours, excluding meals and reading in bed. Worked in there somewhere are two trips to a garage and the receiving of callers and visitors. All the same it's a great life if one doesn't weaken or get thin-skinned, and most of the people are generous, friendly and kind.

Signed,
CLERICUS

NOT MEANT FOR THEM

Editor Examiner:

Sir: It is somewhat amusing to read in Saturday's Examiner the rather tempermental remarks of city employees and others in regard to a criticism of lack of information supplied by the council and especially the retiring members seeking re-election.

The criticism did not refer in any way to the conduct of the treasury or any other civic department. The criticism refers to the isolated items of information regarding council and committee meetings, that they are scattered over different sections of the paper and that the council should arrange for a condensed readable report of these meetings, with the view of giving the electors full information on current matters.

There has been a noticable improvement in this regard recently. This public information does not mean that matters of a private nature such as occurs in relief should be made public.

Council matters are the ratepayers' business and they are not asking favors in requesting full information on civic affairs, and such information would prevent the "slip over" attempts sometimes made by interests not concerned with the taxpayers burdens.

The criticism is aimed especially at the practice of not giving information at the very time it is most in need, that is at election and nomination dates and should be previous to either.

One comment is that this information is "invariably furnished" at the nomination. This is exactly what is not done. Apart from a brief—and commendable—review by the Mayor and Ex-Ald. Tuggey what information did the electors get?

Of course, we had the effusions of the "rainbow chasers" but from our finance committee—the most important—what information was furnished? I voted for all the retiring members of the council, but it was not on account of the information furnished.

Electors should have a basis for choice that would make an election something more than a mere guessing contest. The publishing of the estimates and the auditor's report—both satisfactory—does not touch the points at issue. The estimates come long after the election, the auditor's report deals with past events and is not easily understood by those not familiar with accounts. If civic matters were presented in a way that would encourage a continuous interest, there would be less talk of compulsory voting, no interest, etc. The employees at the city hall will doubtless recover from their little "brain storm" especially when they discover it was a case of "mistaken identity." With some live criticism within the council and some without ratepayers may expect a keen interest in civic matters and have them conducted in such a way that ratepayers may be able to intelligently support or check the council's action.

ARGENTINE WHEAT.

(Welland Tribune)

WHEAT from the Argentine is now a factor in the retardation of marketing of the Canadian surplus.

Shipments from the new Argentine crop have been increasing in volume since the end of December and they are exerting a depressing influence on the market. It is possible that Argentine has, in this harvest, a crop of 260 million bushels which would be the fourth largest in the history of the country. However, due to frost in the south and heavy rains during the harvesting season, quite a lot of the new crop wheat will be off color and not as acceptable as the Canadian grain. But wheat moving toward Europe at a rate of five or six million bushels a week, is bound to affect the export market in a way that will not help the sale of the Canadian cereal and that is the principal obstacle that the Canadian crop will meet and it is doubtful whether the existing price for Canadian wheat can be maintained during the next two or three months. The Argentine wheat can be sold at a lower price because it is not of the same high quality but it is wheat and some of the European buyers are not particularly discriminating on that score.

SIX MORE WEEKS WINTER

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP) —Six weeks of "hard winter" were forecast here today when Bill Campbell's bear, Teddy, came out to see his shadow, yawned, refused to eat anything and went back in his den for another long sleep.

The sun was shining when "Teddy" made his exit, the first time he had come out of his den in several weeks. Mr. Campbell, who owns a coffee shop at Cainsville, has two cub bears who are experiencing their first winter. They have not hibernated at any time and have eaten heartily each day.

Johns, meanwhile, expressed dislike for strangers who talk to his wife.

"They are living for the present with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Johns, whose farm adjoins that of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Winstead.

Mrs. Winstead defended the early marriage of her daughter, one of several children.

"My girl has a right to marry," she asserted. "She has a right to have her man the same as me or any other woman. And Charlie is a good boy. He don't throw away his money. I set a lot of store by Charlie.

"My girls always work. I put 'em in the corn field almost as soon as they can walk. My girls don't loaf and they don't get in trouble neither."

DEATH WAS THE VICTOR

Man Who Got Enough to Drink—Finds Quart of Whiskey is Fatal

CHICAGO, Feb. 2—(A.P.)—Albert Jybula, 24, handyman in a north-side tavern, is dead because, witnesses said, he accepted a stranger's challenge to "buy you more drinks than you can stand."

"It can't be done," retorted Jybula, so two beer steins were filled with a quart of whisky.

Jybula gulped them down and staggered out. Found unconscious in his room, he was taken to a hospital, where he died last night.

Said Dr. Joseph Welski: "This man has had too much alcohol."

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 2. — An early buying wave swept the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, but gains were pared more than a cent and wheat prices held to a restricted groove in late dealings. Strength at Liverpool and an improved demand for Canadian wheat more than offset by late weakness in markets to the south, and values finished ¼ to ⅝ higher.

NAVIGATION AIDS MAY CAUSE DELAY AIRWAY OPENING

Aeronautical Experts Feel It Would Be Best To Wait Until 1938

TILL FIELDS COMPLETED

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—(CP).—Shortage of navigational aids to-day was reported threatening a handicap to next summer's projected launching of the long-heralded Trans-Canada Airway.

Aeronautical experts were said to feel flying would be possible in the summer as originally planned, but that it would be better to wait until 1938 and start with the best possible facilities. It was recalled also the government had found some airports at important points would need improvement to make them suitable as landing fields for high-speed modern aircraft.

The government was reported almost ready to give the House a bill to establish machinery for flying a trans-continental air and passenger service and the Senate was scheduled to receive to-day a bill enlarging powers of the Board of Railway Commissioners, giving it authority over air transport rates, among other things.

Some observers pointed also to long-time silence of the government regarding a year-old proposal for establishment of a trans-Atlantic air service linking the United Kingdom, Irish Free States, Newfoundland and Canada and connecting at Montreal with the Trans-Canada airline.

Due Last Summer.

Experimental flying of the Atlantic skyway was to have started last summer but none has taken place yet. Last spring it was reported the delay was due to shortage of suitable commercial planes in the United Kingdom where aeronautical manufacturers were swamped with orders for military craft.

It was understood the Trans-Atlantic and Trans-Canada Airways were designed to form a major link in the round-the-Empire air service, but there was never any suggestion that this country's air development would await launching of the Trans-Oceanic airline.

Canada, as far as has been learned, has not nominated a commercial concern to represent it in the joint operating company which will fly the Atlantic. This country and the Irish Free State agreed early in 1936 to name representatives to hold a little less than one-quarter of the stock each while Imperial Airways were named by the British government as its representative to hold a controlling interest in the joint company.

WAITED TOO LONG

Court Refuses Annulment To Man Wed 30 Years.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (CP).—Frederick Vath, 50-year-old piano tuner, waited too long before he sought annulment of his 30-year-long marriage to the mother of his 13 children on the ground that her first marriage had never been annulled.

Justice Leander Faber denied the petition yesterday after Vath testified he knew of the first marriage all the time and had never done anything about it previously.

DINNER IN PEACE

Viscount Plays Knock Knock When Toastmaster Is Absent.

LONDON, Feb. 2 (CP)—Viscount Leverhulme, who recently married by special license Mrs. Winifred Agnes Morris, had a knock-knock story to tell at the day before his wedding.

He was a guest at a luncheon to inaugurate the first national appeal of the People's League of Health and told of a dinner he had just attended where the toastmaster was absent and the chairman had to do his own knocking.

"When he knocked some wag called out 'Who's there?' he answered, 'Leverhulme.' The wag said 'Leverhulme who?' and the answer was 'Leave a human being to have his dinner in peace."

HARD TO SNUFF OUT

Man Who Became Father at 94 and 96 Recovering After Heart Attack.

NEW BERN, N.C., Feb. 2.—(AP). —George Isaac Hughes, who became a father at 94 and again at 96, apparently was on the way to recovery to-day after a heart attack.

The nonagenarian was seized on Sunday, but late yesterday he rallied sufficiently for his physician to say he "had a good chance to recover."

Up until a few months ago Hughes chopped wood and did chores about the house.

His wife is 28. They were married three years ago. Their first born, a boy, is two years old. A daughter was born seven months ago, just before Hughes' 97th birthday.

SUGGESTS UNION SERVICES

Church Of England And Free Church Urged To Unite For Coronation Services

BRADFORD, Feb. 2 (CP Cable).—Rt. Rev. A. W. F. Blunt, Bishop of Bradford, today suggested the Church of England and the Free Churches unite in Coronation services in parish churches.

"I am willing to authorize that a Free Church minister be invited to read the lessons or give an address at such a service," he wrote in the diocesan publication.

REBELS TORPEDO RED FREIGHTER

Spanish Crew And Cargo Believed Saved In Malaga Vicinity

By Francisco Ocana
(Copyright, the Havas News Agency.)

MALAGA, Spain, Feb. 2.— (CP-Havas).—The Spanish government freighter Delfin was the target for a torpedo attack to-day by a submarine between Point Torrox and Nerja.

Two torpedoes crashed into the 1,254-ton ship after the guns of a government warship cruising nearby had driven off an insurgent airplane, which circled the ship prior to the submarine attack.

The undersea craft followed the Delfin, trying to escape, for a short distance before launching the missiles. The attack occurred near the coast.

The news caused a stir throughout Malaga, as Leftist commanders hastened preparations to repulse expected heavy insurgent land attacks.

First reports said the crew and cargo of merchandise aboard the Delfin had been saved, leaving some speculation as to the exact fate of the ship.

Utilities Take Lead On Strong Market

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP).— The Utilities led the way in to-day's industrial share market, piloted by Brazilian Tractor, a gainer of more than a point to 24¾, its top price since 1931. Foods, banks and implements also did fairly well while the steels appeared a bit weary as a result of the fast footing of the leaders of the group in recent sessions. C.P.R. was another feature, trading about 14,000 shares on an advance of more than a point to 17½, its top since 1933. Loblaw 'B' posted a new high at 22¾ and the market was up also for Lob'aw 'A,' National Grocers, Fanny Farmer, Canada Packers and Canada Bread.

THE BEAUTY OF BRITAIN

Member Meets Refusal in Idea to Have Minister Named to Preserve It.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(CP).— The beauty of Great Britain and how to preserve it was the subject of a question asked in the House of Commons recently.

A member asked Prime Minister Baldwin if "in view of the rapid and widespread destruction of the beauty of Great Britain, he would consider the appointment of a Minister of Amenities to combat this destruction."

Mr. Baldwin: "While I have every sympathy with the object which my honorable friend has in view, I do not consider that the appointment of an additional minister for the purpose would be justified."

YEAR OF SUCCESS IS REPORTED BY OMEMEE UNITED

Annual Meeting Of Trinity Church Marked By Encouraging Reports

STEWARDS CHOSEN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Feb. 2. — The annual meeting of Trinity United Church, Omemee, was held last Wednesday in the Sunday School room, with Rev. F. G. MacTavish in the chair.

Miss H. Lamb was appointed secretary. Rev. Mr. MacTavish presented the report of the session, showing 164 homes were ministered to, with 547 persons under pastoral care and pastoral calls were 536.

During the year there were removed by death, 6; by certificate one; and received by certificate, 17. The membership now stands at 230 residents and 10 non-residents. During the year there were four marriages, 12 baptisms and nine funerals.

Mrs. Shields read the Women's Missionary report. In the society there are 26 annual members and eight life members. The amount of money raised and sent to Presbyterial treasurer was $205.06.

The Mission Band report was presented by Mrs. MacTavish. It showed a very successful year with $50.23 being raised.

As usual, the Sunday School had a successful year during 1936, as reported by Miss Doris Vaughan. It revealed total receipts during the year as $181.94, with expenditures amounting to $181.81.

Dick Vaughan presented the report of Young People's Union. This organization is still a great factor in the life of the church. During the year the receipts amounted to $165.60, with expenditures $153.43 and a balance on hand $12.19.

Women's Association

The next report presented was that of the Women's Association. This organization, as usual, was alive during the year. The total receipts were $425.79, and the association closed the year with a balance of $197.65.

Mr. D. W. Wilson, treasurer of the Men's Association, reported for that organization. When all expenses were paid a balance of $11.90 was on hand.

The Trustee report was given by Mr. T. C. Ivory. This report showed that considerable work had been done at the church and parsonage during the year, which made expenditures heavier than usual. Nevertheless, Mr. Ivory was pleased to report all expenses paid and a balance of $2.75 in the treasury.

The Treasurer's Report

The treasurer of the church, P. E. Race, reported that 1936 has been a very successful year. The givings have increased both to ministerial support and to missionary and maintenance. To general fund he reported a balance of $75.69, but expected further contributions before the end of the month.

Mr. D. Weir and H. Lamb were appointed auditors.

The stewards appointed for three years were A. Stinson, Irvine Connell, Edward Jones, and Walter Thurston.

S. D. Vaughan and F. Parker were appointed a committee of ushers.

Rev. Mr. MacTavish at this time expressed his thanks to the congregation for flowers and sympathy during his recent bereavement in the death of his mother.

Moved by Mr. Weir, seconded by Mr. Race, that a vote of sympathy be extended at this time to Rev. Mr. MacTavish in the recent passing away of his mother. Coupled with this motion was a motion of appreciation to Rev. and Mrs. MacTavish for their splendid work they are doing in the church and community life. The motion was carried by a standing vote.

Mr. MacTavish expressed his thanks to the congregation. At the close of the meeting the ladies served refreshments.

FINE REPORTS AT VESTRY MEETING

W. G. Stephenson And A. Hill Are Omemee Wardens For Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Feb. 2—The annual vestry meeting of Christ Church, Omemee was held in the basement of the church last Wednesday evening. In spite of the very slippery roads a good attendance was present. The rector, Rev. H. Johnson opened the meeting.

Horace Hill vestry clerk read the minutes of last year's vestry meeting which were approved and adopted. Mr. Hill acted again as vestry clerk. A very satisfactory report of the work of the parish was given by the rector.

Mr. Johnson has only had charge of the parish since Sept. 25th and very satisfactory work is being carried on.

W. G Stephenson was again chosen as rector's warden while A. Hill was appointed people's warden. Mr. Hill gave a very clear and satisfactory statement of the year's work.

H. Hill presented a splendid report of the Sunday School showing a good attendance and a fair cash balance.

The report which was indeed very satisfactory of the Women's Guild was given by Mrs. S. Nurse. The A.Y.P.A. report was read by Miss Audrey Weir in the absence of the treasurer, Mr. C. Weir.

Young People Active

The young people of the church have had a splendid year's work. The Women's Auxiliary report was read by Miss E. Curry. This is the chief missionary side of the church. All the societies showed a fair balance.

The rector read a letter from the Synod dealing with the forming of a new society in each parish consisting of men only and calling for one representative from each church, Mr. A. Adams was chosen by the rector to represent Christ Church. The sidesmen for the coming year are as follows: C. Weir, M. Jones, J. Johnson, D. Shrum, E. Magee, C. Stephenson. The next appointed was the advisory board, W. Burgess and V. Jones were appointed by the rector and vestry meeting these along with one representative from each society of the church, namely the A.Y.P.A., Women's Guild, Women's Auxiliary and Sunday School and the two wardens W. G. Stephenson and A. Hill also the rector Rev. H. Johnson compose the board. The societies are to appoint their representative at an early a date as possible. W. G. Stephenson was appointed representative to the Synod. The auditors for the year, Mr. O. A. Sawyer and W. Burgomaster. The same caretaker was appointed for this year. Votes of appreciation were returned to the wardens and the many societies of the church for the excellent work carried on during the year also to choir leader Mr. Stephenson and members of the choir.

FLOODS EXPECTED SEND POTATOES UP

Vegetables May Also Rise In Price Due To Tie-Up And Demand In Mid-West

TORONTO, Feb. 2—(C.P.).—Serious floods in Mid-West United States may substantially help to boost vegetable and potato prices in Ontario, a Toronto wholesaler declared to-day. Merchants generally expect higher potato prices in the spring.

Flood conditions have delayed shipments from some parts of United States into Canada and have slightly raised prices for lettuce and carrots.

About 200 cars of vegetables and food materials have been submerged under flood waters at Cincinnati, Ohio, for several days, merchants were advised to-day by wire. It is expected that when provision is made for homeless, huge shipments of all kinds of vegetables will have been made from Eastern States, increasing the demand from Ontario.

Criminal Cases Are Before Grand Jury

Presiding at the opening of the Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario here this (Tuesday) afternoon, Mr. Justice Hogg presented to the Grand Jury three indictments respecting charges of manslaughter all arising out of automobile accidents, which comprise the entire criminal docket. The accused are: James Allen, Allen Cockerill, and Edward Harrington. In charging the Grand Jury, His Lordship told them they were entrusted with one of the highest responsibilities any citizen could be called upon to perform. After the Grand Jury had retired to consider the indictments presented to them, His Lordship declared the court adjourned. Members of the Grand Jury were sworn in as follows: Messrs. William L. Ferguson, foreman; Max Board, Charles S. Cummer, Albert Dryland, Robert H. Howden, George Hutchinson, David H. Charlton, Lakefield, Arnold Dafoe, Belmont, Hugh Givens, Harvey, Walter Hope, Otonabee, Andrew McGee, Asphodel, David Payne, Dummer, Keith Tate, Douro.

THRESHERMEN SAY BUSINESS IS HURT BY TRAFFIC LAWS

Convention Passes Resolution Calling Upon Government To Amend Regulations

McMILLAN PRESIDENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 2.—The Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen held their eleventh annual convention in Lindsay last week when the following were elected as officers for 1937:

President, W. H. McMillan of Hastings; vice-president, Percy Gillis of Oakwood; secretary-treasurer, Jas. Lamey of Hastings; executive committee, Herbert Jones of Omemee, Arthur Barons, Bruce Trotter of Hastings; legislative committee, Charles Mills of Omemee, R. W. Henderson of Ida, Percy Wilson of Norwood.

Over eighty members from the district between Belleville on the east and Lake Simcoe on the west were represented at the convention, when important discussions dealing with the thresherman took place.

Mayor H. D. Logan, in opening the convention, extended a very cordial welcome. W. H. McMillan was again re-elected as president of the organization and in his opening remarks thanked the organization for their co-operation and the confidence they had displayed in him during his term as president. He also highly praised the work of the executive during the past year and thanked Mr Robert Henderson for his interest shown towards the benefit of the association.

Want Act Changed

The highway traffic act, with respect to driving threshing machines on highways came in for considerable censure by the threshermen who decided some change should be made if they were to carry on. Under the present ruling, regulation bands are required to be attached to the wheels of threshing machines travelling highways and gravel roads, and some heavier types of machines are practically barred altogether.

It was decided to have the executive draft a resolution, supported unanimously by the organization and present it to the government and district M.P. requesting relief from this ruling.

Mr. Harrington of Warkworth in expressing his views in regards to this discussion said that threshing was a dog's life in the first place and that with the additional burden of being chased off the roads after freeze-up they were almost forced to remain at home and that some resolution should be forwarded to Queen's Park to provide the desired effect.

Collecting Accounts

The collecting of threshermen's accounts was discussed. Many thought that something must be done to help the thresher collect from those who thought they weren't obliged to pay until they felt inclined. Some thought farmers should pay cash in advance while others favored accepting grain in exchange for threshing.

Mr. Harrington stated he had not had a great deal of trouble collecting in his district. "I always go after the man who is slow and sometimes get it, the others I just leave alone and they pay before too long."

Mr. Miles of Lindsay had a cure for threshermen's troubles and suggested that the only way to settle all their problems was to have everyone of the seven thousand threshers in the province sign up to leave their machine in their own yards until better conditions prevailed regarding roads, etc. The government will be coming after us then and we won't have to be sending petitions to them.

Getting New Members

The committee of three men appointed to deal with the matter of securing new members were as follows: John McCrea of Lindsay, Mr. McKim and Mr. Norris of Peterborough. It was also stressed that there was a need for stronger organization and closer affiliation with the Western Brotherhood.

Lock Bell of Verulam said no man in his right senses should purchase a new threshing outfit. "The old traps," as they call them, are the ones money can be made from. He said the manufacturers of threshing outfits were the threshers' worst enemy and that their interests concluded after the sale was made.

Although Mr. Bell severely attacked the threshing machine companies their representatives provided a sumptuous banquet for the Brotherhood which was supervised by the ladies of the Lindsay Women's Institute. Seventy-seven sat at the long tables and did justice to the bountiful supply of good things provided. The Goodyear Rubber Company then extended a welcome for them to attend the free talking picture show after the close of the banquet.

It was unanimously decided to hold a picnic sometime in June at Cobourg for the Brotherhood.

W.I. BIRTHDAY TEA SPLENDID SUCCESS

Tables Well Patronized And Sale Of Cooking Is Large

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb 2.—The birthday tea and sale of home-made cooking in celebration of the third anniversary of the Hastings Branch of the Women's Institute was held on Saturday afternoon and the occasion was one of the most successful in the history of the Institute.

Lynch's Hall, with its spacious room, was an ideal spot for the event and was most bright with gay ceiling decorations. As one entered the hall attention was attracted to the birthday cake, with its three lighted candles, made by the president, Mrs. C. Baker. A central table was arranged very attractively with a handsome cloth cornered with crocheted lace medallions and centred with a silver basket containing white narcissus. The individual tables with their snowy covers had silver vases holding daffodils.

The menu was generous and provided a delicious meal daintily served by Mrs. V. Findly, Mrs. H. Stephenson, Mrs. Hay, Mrs. Gowans, Mrs. T. A. Welsh, Mrs. S. Fife, Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. C. Dodd who spared no effort in seeing that everyone got a real treat. During the tea hour musical duets and piano solos were contributed by Miss Carrie Doxsee, Miss Marjory Scriver and Mrs. Roy Johnson.

At the booth containing home cooking one could buy cakes, tarts, pies, etc. of all descriptions, so tempting that one could not resist buying for the Sunday meal. Mrs. J. A. Brown, Mrs. O. Phillips, Mrs. C. Baker, Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Kerr with assistants took charge of the sales.

The ladies are most pleased with the response given them in commemoration of the birthday of the Institute.

HEARING IS POSTPONED.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1 (C.P.). — First hearing of the Conciliation Board considering the wage restoration application of the Canadian National Railways 10,000 clerks and other members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees failed to get under way here to-day when the railway representatives failed to turn up.

Through an error, they had not been notified. The hearing will proceed to-morrow with spokesmen for the unions presenting their briefs.

A FAST RECOVERY

Police Find Chickens Stolen in Night As They Are Cooking For Pie.

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 2—(CP)—Within an hour of being advised of the theft of two live chickens from a farmer near here, police had arrested his employee and seized two chickens well on the way to becoming chicken pot-pie in a large kettle on his neighbor's stove, they declared to-day.

The young employee, George Swartzentruber, New Hamburg, confessed he had taken the chickens, killed, cleaned and sold them to the neighbor, police said. The farmer missed the chickens at 6.15 p.m. Friday, notified police at 6.30 p.m., and the seizure was made at 7.30 p.m.

CONVENORS CHOSEN BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Fourteen Societies Of Presbytery Are Asked For $50 Grant

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, Feb. 2.—On Friday evening the executives of the Young People's Societies of Peterborough Presbytery met in the Sabbath School hall, the Rev. Dr. Barr of Peterborough presiding. Representatives were present from Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg, Warkworth and Centreville.

The provincial society requested that the fourteen societies of the Presbytery send $50 to help defray expenses in connection with its work. It was also recommended that wherever possible oratorical contests should be held.

Three special Presbyterial convenors were appointed to co-operate with each local society regarding the program for the meetings: Devotional convenor, Miss Norma Jennings, Port Hope; service convenor, Miss Helen Pellow of Cobourg; fellowship convenor, Mr William Johnston, Warkworth. Efforts will be made to make the societies a greater power for good in the church and community.

CHANGES URGED IN DIVORCE LAW

New Grounds For Breaking Marriage Tie Proposed In Alberta

CALGARY, Feb. 2.—(CP)—Miss Mary Duncan, convenor of the laws committee, told the Local Council of Women here that "Laws should be boiled down to be in accord with changing conditions."

She urged that the council this year direct its efforts at changing the Canadian divorce law and the foundation of a boys' reform school in Alberta.

Miss Duncan branded the divorce laws as "ridiculous." Pointing out divorce at present was granted only on grounds of adultery, Miss Duncan urged that extreme cruelty with specific references to mental cruelty, incurable disease or desertion be made grounds for divorce.

A study of the reform problem in Alberta, she said, had convinced her of the need of a boys' reformatory. Assurances of Premier Aberhart that the proposal would be considered had been obtained by the laws committee, Miss Duncan said. Attorney-General Hugill pointed to the difficulty created by lack of money, Miss Duncan added.

COUNTY ASKS CITY TO SUPPORT MOVE FOR FISH HATCHERY

City Council Names Committee To Accompany Deputation To Toronto

TO GO NEXT MONDAY

An infrequent episode in local municipal affairs was the reception of a deputation from the County Council by the City Council on Monday night.

Warden Roy Brown, accompanied by Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore and Reeve W. A. Anderson, proposed that the city participate in a deputation to Toronto to ask the Department of Fish and Game to establish a fish hatchery in the Kawartha waters as recommended by the Departments biologist last year.

"The County Council believes that this matter is of more interest to the city and county than it is to the Fish and Game Protective Association," Reeve Gifford, last year's Warden, said. "The Council feels that practical steps to increase the supply of fish in this district will be a benefit to us as ratepayers."

"The three of us have been appointed a committee to arrange for a deputation to go to Toronto," Warden Brown explained. "Our mission is to present the need of a hatchery, and also to urge that the biologist's other suggestions, such as providing more breeding grounds, be carried out. The county is hoping that the city will send some of the members of its Council along with us."

"If we are going it would be well to go before long as the Government's estimates will soon be prepared if that has not already been done," Reeve Anderson added.

Reeve Gifford said J. J. Duffus had told him he would be available next Monday. James Hawthorne could also go, and T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., was already in Toronto.

On Alderman Sloan's motion, seconded by Alderman Cotton, the Council's representatives on this deputation were appointed as follows: Aldermen Juby, Cotton, Glover and Dutton.

Alderman Glover said at first that he would like to be at home for the Rotary Club meeting. Alderman Gordon was also named, but he expected to be engaged in court. He suggested that Alderman Dutton should go with the deputation.

"If I can get away I'll go and pay my own expense," Alderman Gordon said.

TO HONOR MRS. HUSTLER

Club Member Seeks Grave of Woman Who Made First Cocktail.

LEWISTON, N.Y., Feb. 2.—(AP).—Equipped with a graveyard register, Bjarne Klausen, a young business man, undertook a curious one-man mission to-day—to find the grave of a woman reputed to have invented cocktails.

Should the burial place be found, said Rob Roy McLeod, president of a club in nearby Niagara Falls, it will be marked by a plaque, by the club.

The name Klausen sought, he said, was that of Mrs. Betsy Flanagan Hustler, reputed to have run a tavern in Yonkers during the revolutionary war. Because she concocted an original drink and stirred it with a cock's tail feather—so the story goes—the drink was named cocktail. After her marriage she reportedly moved to Lewiston.

JUDGING BY the planetary configurations, this day may be a conflicting and perplexing one. While there may be decided benefits in business, new contracts and speculative enterprises, yet there are perils from too rash, hasty and impetuous acts or unwise decisions. Be careful with finances, which may increase through understandings of a secret nature or in collusion with rings or secret bodies.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of fair prospects, with benefits through new contracts, subtle agreements and speculative ventures. These advantages would be imperiled by hasty, reckless decisions. Dealing with mergers, secret organizations or by secret understandings may prove profitable. Safeguard employment and preserve the private life from discord.

A child born on this day may be talented, energetic and enterprising, although disposed to rash and hasty acts and words. It may be popular and have a pleasant prosperous life.

Kirma's Answers

Following are the answers to questions submitted to Kirma on Monday. See Coupon on this page for particulars:

C. P. H.—An operation will prove necessary to completely correct this condition. In fact I see you undergoing an operation within two years and that it will prove successful.

M. A. H.—Yes. The crystal shows that you will obtain the money in question. However you will be disappointed as to the time.

H. L. M.— By all means retain your present position. I see a betterment in your present employment in the very early spring.

N.G.—There will be no change of residence in the near future. All three will be working by summer.

G. L.—The article in question is in the possession of a young man living away from this vicinity. It will not be recovered.

M. L. M.—It will not be necessary for you to appear in court regarding the matter in question. I feel that the entire issue will be settled outside of court.

M. J.—The crystal shows steady employment for you the late part of March. It will not be in this immediate vicinity, however.

E. P.—Your son will remain in Canada indefinitely. There will be permanent employment for him in the near future.

B. V. F. D.—The mallet was taken by a youngster who will return it in the near future. In fact he will be caught using it as a plaything, by his parents who in turn will compel him to return same to you.

E. J. M.—Yes. I see a change of the nature you have in mind. It will be made no later than this year and for the better.

G. K. J.—The watch was removed from the dressing table drawer by your little son who accidentally dropped it through a hole in the flooring of your back porch. Raise the flooring and you will recover the article. It is beyond repair, however.

A. T.—This condition is due to a nervous condition. I suggest that you contact some nerve specialist.

C. W. A.—He will never return to you nor make any effort to support you. It is my suggestion that you forget him and start anew.

R. F.—Your sister is living and you will eventually hear from her.

F. M. R.—You will not be disappointed regarding the money. It will come to you in March of this year.

H. B.—Make the change up north and you will obtain the position you desire.

F. W.—Your suspicion regarding your husband is correct. However, I feel that this affair has about come to a close and that he has realized his folly. He will return to you and you will have no further trouble

L. R. P.—Money conditions will be greatly improved for you this year.

W. J. S. T.—An effort will be made on his behalf to repay you within the next few weeks. You will not get the entire amount at one time, however.

H. F. J.—Place no confidence in the man in question. He has no intention of marriage whatever. In fact he is already married and the father of two children. Discontinue your association with him immediately.

E. J. P.—You will make a move of the nature you have in mind in the month of August of this year.

V. P.—Space does not permit details, but have no fear regarding the responsibility in question. You will be successful in meeting obligations through an unexpected betterments coming to you in the immediate future.

CARLOAD OF FOOD FOR FLOOD VICTIMS SHIPPED TO STATES

368 Boxes Of Canned Goods And 179 Bags Of Vegetables In Car

ALSO CLOTHING

The freight car load of canned goods, vegetables, clothing, blankets and medical supplies raised by the people of Peterborough city and district for the relief of flood victims in the Ohio valley is on its way to Cincinnati tonight.

Loading of the car was completed late this afternoon by members of the Kiwanis Club who sponsored the appeal and by other volunteer workers. They labored Sunday at the garage of Peterbrough Bus Lines which was utilized as the central receiving depot for donations to the fund and on Monday started the heavy job of loading the car.

Last night they had stowed away in the capacious space of the car, 368 boxes of canned and package goods; 89 bags of vegetables; 8 boxes of clothing and blankets; 2 parcels of clothing and one carton of clothing. The weight of this produce and supplies aggregated 22,965-pounds, but the car was still a long way short of being loaded to capacity.

With the sum of $776.50 which was donated to the fund, the members of the committee purchased a further 90 bags of vegetables and quantities of blankets, canned goods and other supplies, to be stowed in the car preparatory to its journey as a messenger of cheer and goodwill to the flood refugees south of the international border.

The Examiner office remained open Monday night and donations in kind and in cash came pouring into the fund from generous individuals throughout the city whose names are too legion for particular mention. One very generous donation of 15-bags of potatoes was received from Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C., while the sum of $218 was received through the C.G.E. employees fund, along with $25 from the Kinsmen Club.

MISS M. WILLSON IS LAID TO REST

Engaged For Seventeen Years As Chief Clerk In R. C. Braund's Store

The funeral of the late Miss Mary (Mollie) Willson who died in Detroit last Thursday was held on Monday from Comstock's funeral home to the Thomasburg cemetery, in Hungerford township, seven miles south of Tweed.

Miss Willson had many dear friends in Peterborough to whom her death brought a deep feeling of sadness. She is well remembered as a kindly, charming personality, a sterling Christian spirit, and a lady of innate dignity, refinement and warmth of friendship. She was engaged for seventeen years as chief clerk with R. C. Braund in his department store at the corner of Albert and Park Streets, and in that association she was known to almost every household in the south end some years ago.

The last of the thirteen children of Edward and Jane Willson, a well known family on the farm at Thomasburg, Miss Mollie Willson was preceded in death twelve years ago by her sister, Miss Zetta Willson, who had also been employed by Mr. Braund. The funeral by motors left Comstock's Monday morning, and interment was in the family plot at Thomasburg. Accompanying the body from Peterborough were Miss Willson's nieces, Miss J. R. Tucker of Detroit, with whom she had resided latterly, Mrs. George Davis and Mrs. Stella Brown of Kirkland Lake, and Mrs. Frank De Brouse of Cleveland, and Mr. Braund. The funeral service here Sunday night was conducted by Rev. George S. Easton of Trinity United Church of which Miss Willson and her sister had been members. The death of Miss Willson has terminated a long friendship continuing through five generations between the Willson family and that of Henry Greene, father of Mrs. R. C. Braund, extending back to days when Miss Zetta Willson used to carry Mrs. Braund to school as a little girl. On their retirement from business here the two sisters lived for some years on Wolfe Street opposite Knox Church.

Contributory Insurance For City Hall Staff To Be Discussed By Committee

Contributory insurance for all salaried employees of the city will be discussed by the finance committee of the council on the authority of a resolution by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman Dutton, Monday night.

The idea was proposed by Alderman Sloan and supported by Alderman Cotton, in a motion to refer the question to a special committee composed of Mayor Macdonald and Aldermen Gordon, Glover and Hamilton. Ald. Gordon advised that the insurance idea was important enough to receive the consideration of all the members, and would require close study.

Property Insurance

Another resolution by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Sloan, requests the City Trust Commission to divide insurance risks and premiums on city property equally among all the licensed agents who represent tariff companies, "and if any such insurance agents are members of a firm, then each of the members of the firm shall be considered individually as an agent entitled to his proportionate share."

Alderman Glover said he supposed the City Trust Commission would inform the council if there was an equal division.

"I think they will," Ald. Gordon replied.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By Examiner Reporters.

JANUARY RELIEF.

Peterborough's relief bill for January amounted to $12,610.22. There were 1,401 heads of families listed, and the total number of individuals was 1,937.

LIGHT FIRE LOSS.

Peterborough's fire loss in January was $27, Chief Gimblett reported to the council last night. Damage to buildings was only $12.50.

RETAINED AS TRUSTEE.

W. R. Morris was reappointed to the City Trust Commission for five years by the council Monday night.

KILLS SNAKE.

Another harbinger of spring has appeared in the Janetville district, where Edward Bradburn, returning from his wood lot, encountered a lively green snake, which he beheaded with his axe.

AT THE EMPRESS.

Among the Empress Hotel guests are: Franci H. Mitchell of Westmount, Que.; E. A. Oberle, New York Central system, Toronto; S. S. Buchanan and A. T. Anderson of Worcester, Mass., and Martha Murphy, Toronto.

CARNIVAL A SUCCESS.

A distinct financial success is understood to have been scored by the Peterborough Winter Sports Committee in staging the Skating Carnival last Friday evening. The net sum realized from the presentation will be reported at a committee meeting Wednesday afternoon

CHIMNEY FIRES.

Citizens stoked their furnaces up with the arrival of colder weather during the last 24 hours, and several chimney fires resulted from dirty flues. The Fire Department answered calls to the homes of J. Schweir, 377 Queen Street; J. W. Watson, 569 Water Street, and W. Smythe, 509 Parnell Street.

SHORT COURSE OPENS.

A good enrolment was reported as the annual Department of Agriculture short courses for boys and girls were set under way at Ennismore to-day. J. E. L. Simmons of Toronto, a representative of the Forestry Branch, was scheduled to address the classes on the subject of reforestation. Father Gillogly, who has had an important share in organization of the courses, was promiinent in the opening day activities.

DEADLINE FEBRUARY 15.

Now it is the turn of commercial vehicle owners to shell out for license markers. The deadline, February 15, is approaching and only one-third of this district's allotment of commercial licenses are yet out, the Chamber of Commerce reported to-day. As there are fewer commercial vehicles than passenger vehicles, it is not expected the January 15 rush will be duplicated.

MONOPOLY PRICES RULE.

Gordon Price, lecturer to the Workers' Educational Association, applied the objective method in expanding his Monday night subject the "Theory of Competitive Prices" at the Collegiate Institute. An auction sale in which members of the class participated to illustrate prices and their relation to demand and supply was used. Mr. Price also said in his lecture that very few commodities are sold on the basis of competitive prices. Notable exceptions are wheat sold on the grain exchanges and also perishable goods such as strawberries which have to be disposed of immediately to avoid loss. In nearly all other instances monopoly prices determine their market values.

BOLSTERS THEATRE RUMOR.

A letter from George F. Schneider to the council Monday asking that a lane off Charlotte Street, west of the Canadian Department Stores building be closed, and as a substitute that an outlet be opened south to King Street, lent support to rumors that a new theatre may be built this year on the property between the C.D.S. and the White House. Mr. Schneider wrote that the Chamberlain Estate was willing to contribute a strip of land for part of the proposed new lane route. The letter went to the Board of Works.

SEEK $10,000 DAMAGES.

A writ seeking $10,000 damages for the death of Thomas DeRushie, 36, on the Lakefield road on the evening of January 16 has been issued on behalf of Mr. DeRushie's widow, Laura DeRushie, against Ralph G. Kilborn by G. N. Gordon, K.C. Mr. DeRushie was struck by a car driven by Mr. Kilborn while walking along the highway near the Nassau curve. The writ alleges the death was the result of negligence on the part of Mr. Kilborn. Mr. Kilborn is superintendent of the Canadian Negative Company at Lakefield. Considering evidence to the effect that the accident victim had been walking with the traffic and that lights of an approaching car blinded Mr. Kilborn, the coroner's jury which inquired into the accident attached no blame to the driver.

WATER COST DECLINES.

Since 1929 the cost of water for fire protection has declined from $32,127 to $20,000, the Utilities Commission's charge for this year.

SPEAKS AT LINDSAY.

Leo Copp, county school inspector gave an address on Sunday night in the Cambridge Street United Church, Lindsay, speaking on the aims and work of the Trail Ranger and Tuxis groups.

POSTAL BUSINESS UP.

January's business at the Post Office showed an increase over the first month of last year, Postmaster Lacheur told The Examiner this morning, apparently making the reports unanimous for the beginning of 1937.

SNOW IN THE NORTH.

The northern part of Haliburton County, where lumbering and woodcutting had been at a standstill through the lack of snow, is rejoicing over the fact that a foot of the beautiful fell in that district on Sunday and work has been resumed.

EARLIER ASSESSMENT.

The assessment of the city will begin on March 1 instead of April 1, one month earlier than usual, according to a bylaw which Alderman Hamilton last night moved for preparation to be presented at the next meeting of the council.

MINISTERS WILL ENTERTAIN.

Peterborough ministers will provide the whole program at the meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club next Monday. It is claimed the city's preachers have other talents besides pulpit ability, and they will demonstrate that fact for the benefit of the Rotarians.

SACRED HEART Y. P. CLUB.

A good attendance favoured the regular meeting of the Sacred Heart Young People's Club Monday evening in the new parish hall. Frank Cairns was in the chair. Rev. J. J. O'Brien spoke a few words and Rev. Father Kelly, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, supplied the principal speech in a humorous vein. Rev. J. C. Maloney, club chaplain, was present.

A ROYAL REPLY.

"Buckingham Palace, January 6, 1937," was the date line on a letter, signed Wigram, received by the council Monday night addressed to The Worshipful, the Mayor of Peterborough, Ontario, conveying "to the citizens of Peterborough the sincere thanks of His Majesty King George VI. for the message of loyal assurances contained in your telegram of December 15."

BUILDING PERMITS.

Building permits for the past month totalled $2131. Only three permits were issued. Mrs. L. M. Labrash is building a dwelling house at 45 and 46 O'Carroll street at an estimated cost of $2,000, while the two other permits are for a garage being erected by W. J. Lunday at 4 Brewer street at an estimated cost of $75 and re-roofing of a shed at the rear of The Home Furnishing Company by Harry Florence at an estimated cost of $56.

HUMANE SOCIETY GRANT.

Thomas Sargent and E. S. Martin, representing the Humane Society, petitioned the council Monday night for the usual grant of $50, and said that if the amount were increased the Society would assume the responsibility of collecting dogs and cats, a necessary service which they said would be an economy to the city.

USING PROTOMINE INSULIN

Several diabetics in Peterborough have been going through the experimental stages with protomine insulin. The difference between it and the former unmodified variety is that the new insulin is capable of remaining longer in the human system and is slower in action. There have been some users who have found it possible to get along on one injection in 32 hours. Others have found that inconvenient for purposes of reckoning and are seeking to so adjust the amount used that one injection taken on rising in the morning is sufficient for the 24-hour period. So far as the Examiner has been able to learn there have been no unfavorable reactions, and users are pleased with the change to one injection per day instead of having to use the needle several times a day as was their former custom.

UNBEATABLE BREW

Use Crockery Pot, Keep Water On Leaves Only 5 Minutes For Best Tea.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (CP).—The seven leading tea tasters of the United States paused in their sniffing and sipping today and agreed that the housewife who follows these tips will get an unbeatable brew:

Use only a crockery pot.

Use only boiling water.

Keep the water on the leaves only five minutes.

COUNCIL IS URGED TO BEAUTIFY LOT ON CHARLOTTE ST.

Another Resolution Would Open Street Between George And Aylmer

SENT TO COMMITTEES

Purchase or lease of the vacant lot beside the creek on Charlotte Street to be converted into a downtown beauty spot and as a resting place for tourists and citizens was proposed by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman Dutton, for consideration by the Parks Committee at Monday night's meeting of the Council. Alderman Gordon said the removal of the "eyesore" might be accomplished at small cost, and converted into a place of adornment of which everybody would be proud. The water in the creek was not contaminated and might be used in a scheme of beautification. Vines might be planted and the place could be transformed along the lines of reclamation projects which had made attractive spots in other cities. Alderman Gordon said the committee could consider the idea, and report to the Council. Alderman Stocker said he believed a big improvement could be carried out along the creek property if the expense was not too high.

Morris Ackerman of Cleveland advocated a similar idea last summer, and told The Examiner he hoped that when he returned this year the Charlotte Street lot and creek would be a place to attract tourists.

Would Open Street.

Another resolution by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman McIntyre, contemplating the opening of a street from Sherbrooke Street to Brock Street between George and Aylmer Streets, was passed on to the Board of Works for their deliberation.

If the idea was approved, Alderman Gordon said, a private Bill in the Legislature would give the city power to expropriate a strip of land not exceeding one hundred feet in width. The long block from George to Aylmer Streets was four times the average distance between streets, and for the most part was a conglomeration of back alleys, hotel yards and dumps. Toronto paid for the widening of Bay Street by the increased assessment of the property which had been greatly enhanced in value as business was diverted to the new thoroughfare.

"The Council might not want to go ahead with opening up a street at present, but we would have a chance to consider it, and we could get power to expropriate, which we needn't use until we wanted to," Ald. Gordon said. "I believe some of the property owners will make a gift of a street allowance. I know one man who would give us the land for a strip from one street to the next."

His motion suggested that the parks committee discuss the proposal, but Alderman Glover's amendment, seconded by Alderman Dutton, that it go to the Board of Works, carried.

Alderman Sloan said he understood that twenty-eight days' notice had been given for a private Bill. Alderman Gordon replied that special leave could be obtained "if you have friends in the right place."

OBITUARY

MRS. ERNEST CARVETH

There passed away very suddenly on Sunday, January 24, Luella Robison, beloved wife of Ernest Carveth of Cavan. Mrs. Carveth was born in Sudbury 39 years ago. Her parents were David Robison and the late Mary Lorman of Hensall, Ont.

Mrs. Carveth is survived by a sorrowing husband; four small children: Isabella, 8; Beverley, 7; Fern, 5, and Peter, 14 months, and four step-children: Langton of Cavan, Irene (Mrs. Thomas Willoughby) of Beamsville, Ont., and Roderick and Earle at home; three sisters: Mrs. J. Sangster and Mrs. Rund of Hensall, and Mrs. D. Simmes of Sudbury; one brother, Robert Robison of Huntsville, and her father, D. Robison of Hensall.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, January 26, from the family residence, Seventh Line of Cavan, to Warsaw Cemetery, with Rev. A. L. Siscoe officiating. The pall-bearers were four neighbors: Robert McKnight, H. Argue, and H. Lang of Millbrook, and Wilbert Larmer of Fraserville; Thomas Willoughby, a son-in-law, and Ernest Moore, nephew of the deceased.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mrs. J. Sangster and David Robison of Hensall. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Nicholls, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Crapp, Mrs. Edith Davis, and son Ormond, Mr. and Mrs. T. Willoughby, Beamsville, and Charles Willoughby of Hamilton.

The Rambling REPORTERS

THE INNER MAN

It was the hour for more spiritual thought in one of Peterborough's first-book classes. The teacher had been discoursing on the power of prayer and adherence to God's laws.

"What makes us strong?" she asked; the query having to do with strength of soul and character.

PREPARING BYLAW TO ACCEPT GIFT

Committee Will Assume Responsibility For Custody Of Denne Pictures

A bylaw to accept T. H. G. Denne's valuable gift of paintings of old Peterborough scenes will be drafted for the next meeting of the city council. In making this splendid present to the city, Mr. Denne has asked that the collection be insured for $3,500, this money to be used to replace the paintings from their negatives which shall be stored in the corporation's vault. A committee to assume responsibility for the custody of the pictures shall be composed of the Mayor, chairman of the Board of Education, the chairman of the Separate School Board and the chairman of the Public Library Board. Mr. Denne suggested in his letter to the council that rooms in the public library would be a suitable place in which to hang the pictures.

Alderman Gordon proposed that the council express to Mr. Denne the city's appreciation of his generosity, but Alderman Hamilton asked that this action be postponed until the pictures have been received and are placed in the Public Library.

MRS. FARRINGTON UNFIT FOR TRIAL IN RITTER MURDER

Special Jury Recommends She Be Held In Custody—Find Her Insane

FORMER EMPLOYER SLAIN

A special jury, empanelled to determine the mental condition of the accused, brought in a verdict declaring her unfit for trial.

"The judgment of the court is that the accused be kept in custody until the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Ccouncil has been known." Mr. Justice Chevrier remarked.

Immediately after the judgment, Mrs. Farrington was taken to the jail; her counsel, Joe Roebuck, speaking to her just before she stepped out of the dock.

Under the usual practice should she at any time be found in fit mental condition, she would have to stand trial on the present murder charge.

SAVES HIS BROTHER FROM ANGRY BULL

Youth Has Arm Broken And Other Injuries Before Heroic Rescue

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP).—Brock Ferris, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferris, residing near Burgessville, suffered serious injuries today when he was attacked by a bull on his father's farm.

The bull broke loose during the night and the youth was attempting to put him back into place when the animal charged. The boy was thrown backwards onto the teeth of a section of harrow and suffered back injuries. An arm was broken by the bull's attack and the youth is believed to have suffered other injuries.

His calls for help were heard by his brother Don, who kicked the animal and managed to divert its attention to him. He skipped about agilely and managed to keep out of its way until other help came.

City Council Told Voting System Is Not British–But No Change Made

"Every voter is entitled to a free ballot," declared Alderman G. N. Gordon in a blunt thrust Monday night at Peterborough's peculiar election restriction which requires citizens to vote for at least four candidates for the council.

"It is not British, and you won't find it any place where British ideals are respected and carried out," Ald. Gordon added as he moved for a return to election of candidates by a general vote at the municipal polls.

Alderman McIntyre seconded the resolution saying that when a citizen was given a vote he should have full right to use it as he saw fit.

"The plumping system is all wrong," Ald. Sloan said. "If people can't pick four good candidates the council should be abolished entirely."

"I think the system is giving satisfaction the way it is," Mayor Macdonald commented.

Alderman Juby also supported the present method which was devised some years ago to prevent plumping. One of its strongest advocates was ex-alderman John Edgar.

The motion was defeated, only Aldermen Gordon and McIntyre voting for it.

WATSON EXHIBIT ATTRACTS LOVERS OF GOOD PAINTINGS

Work Includes "Flood Gate" Which Is Being Shown At Y.W.C.A.

LECTURE ON THURSDAY

A memorial exhibition of 90 canvases by the late Homer Watson, R.C.A., LL.D., opened at the Y.W.C.A. on Monday afternoon and will continue on display for the balance of the week every afternoon and evening. The exhibition should hold particular interest for lovers of paintings, as this exhibit is by an outstanding Canadian artist, who won fame in many art galleries.

Born at Doon, over 81 years ago, Mr. Watson became famous overnight when his "Pioneer Mill," a print of which is in the Peterborough collections, was subsequently purchased by the Marquis of Lorne and presented to Queen Victoria. Outstanding among the paintings on display at the Y.W.C.A. is the "Flood Gate" with beautiful coloring. Another large canvas is the "Season of Frost and Thaw." Scenes from the Grand River, which flowed near his home, pastoral scenes, with trees predominating; forest interior and road scenes offer wide scope and are the subjects of both large and small canvases.

The canvases present a fascinating array of subjects and color tones and upon closer study one unconsciously lingers to visit the scenes this Canadian master has wrought upon canvas. Trees of every size, shape and color—they are there—they seem to possess an individuality that is hard to express—as if each one had a part in the artist's life, expressing moods and temperment. Tranquility with strength of purpose and a combination of qualities seems to grip the imagination as one gazes through the scene to the character of the artist who placed the colors on the canvases.

Hundreds have already viewed the exhibit and many go back the second and third time. It may be the story of a man's life is there, not inscribed in cold type but in living colors from the artist's own hand. It's a beautiful story, if one can catch the impulses that are reflected.

Ross Hamilton of Toronto, an old friend of the painter, will lecture to the Women's Lyceum and Art Association on the Life and Art of Homer Watson, at the Y.W.C.A., Thursday evening, at 8.30 p.m. Men are especially invited to attend.

BRITAIN WANTS HITLER IN FOLD

Eden Prepares New Series Of Questions As To Nazi Future Aims

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(CP-Havas).—British efforts to bring Germany back into the family of nations as a result of Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech were forecast last night.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons "there is nothing we should welcome more" than resumption of the world disarmament conference with Germany participating in an arms limitation accord.

The Foreign Office meanwhile prepared to query Chancellor Hitler, it was understood on topics of his Saturday speech, as follows:

1. Does Germany now demand any colonies taken from the Reich after the Great War?

2. Will Germany definitely refuse to take part in any European security system which includes Soviet Russia?

3. If the question of the German minority in Czechoslovakia is settled by a Berlin-Praha agreement, will this end tension in German-Czechoslovakian relations?

Eden reaffirmed in the House Britain's fidelity to principles of collective security and "peace by agreement among all."

Arthur Henderson, Labor M.P., and son of the late chairman of the Geneva Disarmament Conference, asked if the government would "consider inviting Germany to resume participation" in it.

"There is nothing we should welcome more," the Foreign Secretary replied.

JACKSON IN TIE WITH SCHRINER IN SCORING RACE

Aurie Of Detroit Is One Point Behind Two Leaders Of The N. H. L.

SHIELDS IS BAD MAN

MONTREAL, Feb. 2 (CP) — Toronto's Harvey Jackson found his scoring eye somewhere along the National Hockel League route of the last few weeks and the Busher has been hitting the target to such deadly effect that he's landed in a tie for top spot among the league's marksmen.

The Maple Leaf forward's twelve points of the last fortnight, official league statistics show to-day, have brought him even with Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans at thirty points apiece. At that, Busher is three up on Sweeney in goals.

Jackson has 16 goals and 14 assists, to Schriner's 13 and 17. Both moved ahead of Detroit's Larry Aurie during the week as the Red Wing failed to add to the 29-point total that had placed him at the top of the scorers. Jackson hopped up from fifth place, while Schriner slid in from the second spot.

Marmora High School Defeats Madoc, 5 To 3

MADOC, Feb. 2.—On Monday evening Madoc High School hockey team went down to defeat at the hands of Marmora High School by a score of 5 to 3. One goal was registered as the result of a combination effort by the Loveless brothers. During the first intermission Hydro trouble plunged the rink into darkness for about one hour.

The second period opened with considerable rough play and Referee Akey had his hands full controlling the game. High sticks were flying and tempers were running high. In this period several players were chased for mixing it up. Marmora added two more goals in quick succession in lone rushes by Leonard and O'Neil. Madoc came back at the close of the period, making two beautiful tallies on combination efforts by Parks, with Irvin making the plays.

The third period opened with a do-or-die effort on the part of the Madoc team, with plenty of body-checking and high sticks but in this stanza Referee Akey kept the game well in hand by handing out plenty of penalties. Madoc earned a penalty shot, when Naylor was tripped by O'Neil. O'Neil went to the cooler. Reeve took the penalty shot but didn't register. With Marmora one man short, Madoc put on their five-man power play. Munroe scored on a rebound from a shot by Parks. The final counter of the game was registered by O'Neil on a lone rush. The game ended with Marmora playing for time by shooting the puck down the ice when the final bell rang. O'Neil and Loveless were the individual stars for Marmora. For Madoc, Parks and Irvin turned in nice efforts, while Martin in goal made some sensational saves. Line-up:—

Marmora.—Hart, goal; C. O'Neil, r.d.; N. O'Neil, l.d.; G. Leonard, centre; M. Kouri, r.w.; C McKeowen, l.w. Alternates—F. Loveless, J. Loveless, E. Reynolds, T. Grey.

Referee—F. Akey, Madoc.

Murray Street Ties With Trinity Team

Trinity Juveniles of the Church Hockey League were lucky to gain a 2-2 tie with Murray St. at All Saints' rink last night. Playing six players against a full Baptist team, credit for their draw goes to Goalie McBain, the latter turning in a great game. Murray St., decked out in new uniforms, lacked cohesion to their attacks. They scored first when a shot by Cox was deflected in off Deering. Trinity tied it when R. Horton's long shot floated in. Murray St. came back to score on Foster's neat effort but Trinity tied it when R. Horton came back to score on Foster's neat effort but Trinity tied it when R. Horton scored in a scramble. CHICAGO MAKING $500,000 OFFER ON BRADDOCK BOUT

Illinois Commission Hails Plan But Madison Square Garden To Fight It

NOTHING SETTLED

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(AP).—Chicago had the welcome sign and cash out to-day for a world's heavyweight championship bout between James J. Braddock, the titleholder, and Challenger Joe Louis.

A $500,000 offer made by Sheldon Clark, wealthy sportsman, to Braddock and accepted by the champion's manager, Joe Gould, called for the 15-round match June 15 at spacious Soldier Field. The proposition had the enthusiastic backing of the Illinois Athletic Commission, Governor Henry Horner and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago.

But things were not so peaceful along the New York heavyweight fight sector.

Madison Square Garden, holding a contract for a title bout between Braddock and Max Schmeling of Germany for June 3 at the Long Island City bowl, apparently will battle to the last ditch against a Louis-Braddock bout in Chicago.

Managerial Strategy.

And while Gould was accusing Jimmy Johnston, Garden boxing director, with "fleecing" fight fans by approving Bob Pastor's strategy in the latter's bout with Louis last Friday, Johnston was terming the Chicago proposition "the bleat of a manager trying to get some publicity and restore Louis' lost prestige.

"There's nothing definitely settled," said Mike Jacobs, who holds exclusive rights to Louis' services, as he headed back to New York after conferring with Clark. "There are a lot of things to be ironed out before the bout becomes a reality.

"The fight, however, should draw more than $1,000,000. The promoters could give Braddock $500,000 and there still would be plenty left for Louis, and besides, he'll be getting a crack at the championship.

Joseph A. Triner, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission, said Otto Kerner, Illinois Attorney-General, has ruled a Louis-Braddock bout here would be strictly in accord with state laws. Triner emphasized that he was not interested in the attitude of Madison Square Garden or the New York Athletic Commission. Triner said Gould, along with Julian Black and John Roxborough, co-managers of Louis, will appear here within two weeks to sign articles. Jacobs said Louis' financial side of the bout would be worked out within a few days.

Norris Stepping In.

Jacobs said he also was considering a bid from James Norris, Sr., owner of the Chicago Stadium and a Madison Square Garden stockholder. Norris said he would support the efforts of others to bring the battle to Soldier Field if his bid were unsuccessful.

Clark said after the conference: "My offer was bona fide—we have given only our promise but are ready to sign contracts."

Triner said he was certain a Louis-Braddock bout here will "come close" to equalling the gate of the second Dempsey-Tunney fight, largest in the history of the sport.

St. Peter's, Canucks Are Held Scoreless

St. Peter's and Canuck Juveniles went to a scoreless draw in a smart Southend Hockey League contest at the Sacred Heart rink last night. Extra fine checking, strong defensive playing and good goaltending had the rival forwards baffled all through. Play was fast and fairly clean, with some neat combination attempted, but both teams lacked a scoring punch in the close checking. Irwin and Brioux were outstanding for the Canucks, repeatedly stopping the Saints' as they pressed. The teams:

St. Peter's: Goal, Shaughnessy; defence, Curtin, Murphy; centre, McCormick; wings, Corkery, Hoy; alternates: Williams, Kirby, Lynch, Thornton.

Referee, Grose.

St. George's Seniors Default To George St.

Only one Church Hockey League game was played last night, the Mark St.-All Saints' bantam tilt being called off since the ice was not cleared. It will be played next Monday at six p.m. Sickness, the O.H.A. game and bad weather conditions all combined to make St. George's drop the first senior game to George St. by default. All Saints and Murray St. both with depleted lineups, were tied at 1-1 halfway through when McNabb, goalie for Murray St., was cut by a flying puck. All Saints showed good sportsmanship in allowing the game to be called off. It will be replaced if necessary at the end of the season. Tonight, St. John's Juveniles play Mark St. at seven.

Rowden Is Injured In Exhibition Game

OSHAWA, Feb. 2.—Oshawa General Motors handed "Bingo" Christie's British Consols a 5-to-3 defeat in a closely contested exhibition game here last night, which was billed as a "grudge contest." Christie crossed up the Oshawa management by bringing down five juniors, Burkhart, McAndrews, Taylor, Shill and Powers, and while they all turned in nice efforts they lacked the finish of the regulars.

The victory was a costly one to Oshawa, for at the thirteen-minute mark Donald "Doc" Rowden crashed into the Consol net as he completed a brilliant solo effort that resulted in a goal. The defence star injured his back in the crash, and was removed in an ambulance to the Oshawa General Hospital for X-rays.

TORONTO'S ASSESSMENT.

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (CP).—Assessment of 29 other cities in Ontario totals $869,605,590, while that for Toronto is $931,771,995, Assessment Commissioner George Farley declared today in his annual report to City Council.

The assessment on which the 1937 tax rate will be based is $977,174,640, a decrease of $1,700,053 from the 1936 total of $967,874,692.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

THREE SENIOR City Hockey League games will be played tonight at the Brock St. rink commencing at seven bells or shortly after. Westclox and Outboard Marines tangle in the first fixture, followed by Lakefield and Mayfairs, with Millbrook and Bewdley winding it up. Lots of rugged and exciting action is anticipated in each tussle. The teams are getting squared around for the playoffs, both the O.H.A. intermediate "B" and the Blood and Thunder loop title. And the players are rounding into midseason shape with the usual rivalries at this time of year cropping up. Fans are turning out in goodly numbers for these tilts and they're getting their money's worth. Tonight should be no exception.

REFERRING TO the Petes' 4-2 win in Belleville last Friday, the peculiar Quinte scrivener has some odd ideas. He feels the Redmen would have won handily had the ice not been so heavy. He speaks glowingly of the great offensive put on by the homesters in the third period. And, finally, he knocks Referee Joe Smith of Kingston for allowing Gardner's goal, saying the local winger was in the crease at the time. At the same time he boosts Goalie Watt muchly but doesn't mention Clarke in the Petes' cage.

* * * * * * *

WE MIGHT point out that, on fast ice, the Petes handed Belleville a 12-4 licking and felt they could have repeated in the return tussle but for the slow footing. And if results count for anything the unproductive Redmen's offensive drive in the third could hardly equal the three-goal attack put on by the Petes. The locals didn't want Referee Joe Smith but Belleville did, yet they knock him for ruling properly that Gardner was not in the crease. It was slow clearing by Watt—who let in another easy one when Weir hoisted one from outside the blue line. Clarke starred in letting only two by him to four for Watt. Even that disputed goal would have made no difference in the game's result. Yeah, Belleville were well licked in both starts this season against the locals.

* * * * * * *

THIS ITEM was also in the Belleville paper: "There was one player on the ice who perhaps few recognized. How many fans still remember the old battering defence of Jerry Squires and Spud Murphy of Queen's some seven years back? Well, Spud Murphy was on defence for the Petes last night but he is not the battering-ram of yester year when Bouncer Holway, Bill Green and Soup Goyer used to exchange wallops with him in the good old days when hockey was something to talk about in this man's town. Murphy wore No. 6 jersey and was used occasionally, but to the veteran fans' eye he still carried that barging offensive attitude."

TRENTON FLIERS 6-4'd the Petes here last p.m. before a full house. It was a good game with the big pot of the evening going to the Airmen who filled to a tight with a pair of McNeeleys and three strong defencemen. Whereas the locals made their best bid in the third with a pair of aces—McDougall and Weir. But, if you savvy draw poker, you by now realize that a pair of aces will not rake in the coin against a full house. Besides those aces, Vitarelli and Clarke were effective, and the rest of the gang looked pretty fair, too, Ellis had more speed than any of 'em on the ice. The Fliers had an all-star cast and they all starred.

* * * * * * *

THROW OUT the second stanza and it would have been 3-2 for ye Petes—but doggone it you can't toss away that middle chukker. Four goals were rammed home by the low-flying Aviators in this heat, enough to win the game. It was a fast, exciting tussle with some good hockey shown. Quite even in the first, the Fliers having things their own way in the second, and the Petes having an edge as they ganged through a hectic third h'inning, don't you know? The big crowd saw a swelegant scrap, even if it did end wrong for the Petes. Tough luck in close plus a bruised shoulder early in the game that knocked all the hockey out of Calladine—yeah, two tough breaks. But the Fliers knew they had been in a nifty contest.

* * * * * * *

IT IS no alibi to say that the Petes had the toughest sort of luck. They were minus Creighton and practically minus Calladine—who may be out for awhile now—and McDougall, who went fine, shouldn't have been playing with the bad cold he had. Then, the team didn't dish up their best organized hockey, either—but that doesn't come under the heading of tough luck. Except as to the result. Oh, well, that's the way it goes. They tried hard enough and still have an outside chance of catching the R.C.A.F. crew before the schedule winds up. The Petes are all through with Belleville and Trenton but have several more tilts with the Fliers yet—next one being on Quinte ice this Friday.

* * * * * * *

HERE'S A baseball scoop: Trenton Fliers will have representatives at the Spring re-organization meeting of the Central Ontario Baseball League and will apply for entry this year. They plan to use some of those pucksters, who are also good ball players, along with other diamond performers located at the Airport and maybe a few imports from down Ottawa way. They have their diamond at the R.C.A.F. flying field and can seat over 300 fans. Squad Leader L. A. Lawrence seems to be the officer in command of the baseball plans. If the Fliers come in along with the five C.O.B.L. teams of last year, we'll have a nifty six-team senior ball circuit.

GRAB-BAG: Doc Rowden suffered a back injury last night as the Oshawa mercantilers defeated British Consols, 5 to 3 . . . . Junior City Puck Loop plays Thursday at the Brock in this order: Canucks vs. St. Peter's at eight and Monarchs vs. All Saints at nine . . . . Belleville Juniors took a 10-0 win over Tweed last e'en . . . . Church Loop and Southend League hockey games are reported in tonight's paper . . . . Referee Armstrong of Oshawa kept play clean here last p.m. but had the crowd peeved the way he watched the blue lines . . . . "They missed enough chances to win two games," grunted Coach Buckland when asked what he thought of the Petes' showing last night . . . . Prexy Eddie Riley expected to call a senior ball meeting here within two weeks to see what's what.

King Edward Team In Draw With Canucks

King Edward and Canuck Bantams of the Southend Hockey League battled to a 1-1 draw at the Sacred Heart rink last evening. Ainsile and Chambers did the tallying in a tidy, close-checking game that saw both defences and the rival goalies standing out with nifty performances. The ice was good, the pace hot and the opposing squads appeared well-matched as they turned in a neat bantam hockey tussle. The teams:

Canucks: Goal, Hartwick; defence, Ainslie, Keaton; centre, Cooper; wings, Short, LaPlante; alternates, Boullane, Maloney, Milburn, Willis.

Referee, C. Nicholls.

Don Bradman Scores 174 Not Out To Put Home Team On Top

BE UPHILL BATTLE

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 2 (CP Cable) — Captain Don Bradman mastered England's attack in the fourth cricket test match today, scoring 174 not out, to put Australia on top at the end of the fourth day's play. When play closed the Antipodeans had compiled 341 runs for four wickets in their second innings for a lead of 299 runs.

The home team ran up a first inning's total of 288, the tourists replying with 330. Unless a complete change comes over the game tomorrow morning, England will be forced to fight an uphill battle to win.

Bradman gave a sound display batting confidently throughout the day and hitting 10 fours. Stanley McCabe, New South Wales star, gave invaluable assistance, making 55 runs in an hour and a half. His strokes included seven fours. W. A. Brown made 32 and R. Gregory 36 not out.

The score card:
England first innings 330.
Australia first innings 288.

Australia second innings:

J. H. Fingleton, lbw b Hammond	12
W. A. Brown, c Ames, b Voce	32
D. G. Bradman, not out	174
S. J. McCabe, b Robins	55

THINKS POMPOON GOOD FOR COURSE

Trainer Says Derby Candidate Better Gaited Than His Daddy, Pompey

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP).—Despite the general failure of offspring of Pompey as distance runners, Cyril Clark, trainer of Pompoon, is convinced J. H. Louchheim's Kentucky Derby candidate has staying qualities.

"They say Pompoon can't carry his speed over the Derby route of a mile and a quarter because his sire was not a stayer," writes Clark from New Orleans, where he is campaigning a string for the Philadelphia sportsman.

"Well, you can say for me that Pompoon is the best colt sired by Pompey, that he is a better gaited horse than his daddy. I see no reason why such a big striding horse can't carry his speed over the distance and win."

Clark pointed out they said the same thing about Ladysman, another son of Pompey, after he quit in the 1933 Derby at about the same spot Pompey threw in the sponge seven years before.

"But Ladysman was a cripple as a three-year-old," declared Clark. "Pompoon is not. Furthermore, Ladysman came back, and as a four-year-old beat Equipoise. Any horse that beat Equipoise, especially at a mile and a quarter, had to be a stayer."

ST. JAMES' GET VERDICT OVER ST. ANDREW'S 4-3

St. James yanked out a 4-3 win over St. Andrew's in a classy Scouts Hockey League fixture Saturday at the Sacred Heart rink. Play was fast and close all the way through with the teams appearing quite well-matched. Hamilton tallied twice for the losers with Gamble getting the other one. For St. James Stanley, Dafoe, Anderson and Gillespie were the scorers. The teams:

St. James: Goal, Leether; defense, Leggitt, Thomas; centre, Gillespie; wings, Anderson, Stanley; alternates, Gregson, Dafoe, Welch, Campbell, Baldrie, Micks.

St. Andrew's: Goal, Ridyard; defense, Green, R. Hamilton; centre, W. Hamilton; wings, Cranford, Biggs; alternates, Harris, Wall, Gamble, Avery.

Referee: H. Castle.

P.C.I. Juveniles Win Over King Edward

P.C.I. Juveniles copped a 4-1 decision over King Edward in a lively Southend Hockey League tilt last evening at the Sacred Heart rink. The teams kept up a hot pace from start to finish, with the P.C.I. crew having a little edge on play most of the distance. R. Parnall supplied the scoring punch for the winners with three counters, while A. King got the other. Mackness notched one for the losers. The teams:

King Edward: Goal, Jobe; defence, Ridley, Grose; centre, Mackness; wings, Anderson, Post; alternates: Murduff, McDonald, Lawson.

32—COMPLETE INSTRUCTION

It is the aim of the Swiss method of instruction not only to train the novice to be at home on the smooth hard-surfaced courses, but also to equip him with all the resource essential for the mastery of deep snow. Nor is our instruction limited to stemming technique. The greatest attention is also paid to steady and sure-footed running over rough terrain.

We teach the pupil that by using the poise and momentum of the body and exploiting the contour of the ground itself, he should make all turns with a minimum of muscular effort.

The essence of our method is that the pupil should not only know what each swing and turn is, but that he should actually be able to do them himself. To our way of thinking, the stem christiana is important, but not more important than the jerked christiana in the forward position, or the telemark.

In short, this technique is uniform, complete and fundamental, and contains all the elements of complete ski-mastery for which our world-renowned champions are famous.

Sacred Heart Loses To St. Peter's Team

St. Peter's took a 6-2 triumph over Sacred Heart in their Scouts Hockey League contest on Saturday at the Sacred Heart rink. The winners had an edge most of the way, the whole team looking good. The losers battled hard with Corrin and Collins scoring for them. Creighton got two for the winners with Griffin, Plumpton, Huard and Baldwin notching one each. The teams:

Sacred Heart: Goal McCarthy; defence, Collins, R. Halihan; centre, B. Halihan; wings, Jones, Corrin; alternates, Amyotte, Marsden.

St. Peter's: Goal, Guerin; defence, Creighton, Baldwin; centre, Huard; wings, Plumpton, Thomas; alternates, Griffin, Cupoli, Lynch, McLaren.

Referee—E. Jobe.

CANUCKS WIN

Canucks took a 4-1 Southend Hockey League win over St. Peter's last night at the Sacred Heart rink, LaPlante and Short each tallying for the winners, while Huard scored for the other side. The teams:

St. Peter's.—Goal, Curtis; defence, Huard, Hynes; centre, Cupoli; wings, Grady, Murphy.

Canucks.—Goal, Hartwick; defence, Ainsley, Keaton; centre, Cooper; wings, LaPlante, Maloney; alternates, Short, Willis, Wilburn.

Referee—R. Gilbert.

Lord Tweedsmuir Greatly Perturbed Over Using Of Granite In Curling

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP)—Once he gets beyond the influence of curlers in the Ottawa and Montreal sectors, Lord Tweedsmuir has the assurance of the game's ranking authority, Thomas Rennie of Toronto, that he won't have to play with irons.

"The Governor-General's fear that he is faced with the necessity of learning all over again is delightful, but he needn't worry," smiled Mr. Rennie, famous authority on the sport, today. "He doesn't yet know that only around Ottawa and Montreal do they play with irons."

And when Lord Tweedsmuir goes up to the mining town of Flin Flon and plays Premier John Bracken of Manitoba in a challenge match, the weapons will be of granite.

"I suppose 90 per cent. of the stones used in Canada are granite," Mr. Rennie said. "It just happens that His Excellency has started his Canadian curling career in Ottawa where they are wedded to the irons which are smaller and from 20 to 25 pounds heavier. I don't wonder he is perturbed.

"But when he reaches Manitoba he will use granite and he will see some of the greatest curlers in the world there. I have hopes that the Governor-General will be able to play a match in Toronto before the season is over."

Fliers Defeat Petes For Second Straight In Classy Puck Tilt

Trenton Airmen Gain 6-4 Decision In Hard-Fought Battle Before Huge Crowd—Get Four Goals In Big Second Period

McDOUGALL AND WEIR GOOD

Trenton Fliers zoomed through the Petes for a 6-4 victory before a packed arena here last night. It was the second win in two starts for the R.C.A.F. crew over the locals and cuts down the chances of the Buckland boys advancing into O.H.A. playdowns. A big second frame when they notched four goals put the tilt on ice for the visitors.

Playing a fast, classy brand of hockey, the two outfits dished up a fine exhibition for the big crowd of fans. The torrid pace seldom let up as play swept from end to end on combination rushes. Ice became heavy the last half and play roughened up in the third. Of the nine penalties drawn, the Petes were guilty five times. The count was 1-1 in the first and 5-2 going into the third.

ONE BIG FRAME.

The visitors had an edge through the middle chapter after an even and exciting first frame. The locals ganged up throughout the third and pressed hard, while the Fliers were content to nurse their lead and play defensive hockey. An injury to Bill Calladine's shoulder early in the game was costly as the first-string centre was far below form the rest of the game. The speed, smart passing and deadly shooting of the Fliers was the best seen here this year. The Petes made up for it in fight.

McDougall, Weir, Vitarelli and Clarke looked best for the homesters, the rest also working hard and showing up well in spots. Shrimp had a bad cold but turned in his usual tricky and heady brand of hockey. Weir was effective going and coming, while Vitarelli never quit battling and proved a pest to the opposition. Clarke made some lovely saves in goal. The two McNeeleys starred for the winners with some beautiful passing plays and shooting, while LeCompte, Lowrey and the defence were also quite effective. The whole squad looked good from the goalie out.

Fast and Even.

It was fast and even during the first stanza with both goalies being tested frequently as the forwards swept in on combination drives. The fans kept yelling at the action. Calladine went off hurt and first Gardner and then Ellis came close to scoring. Clarke had to jump for a couple and then a Vitarelli-Burton-McDougall rush had the fans on their feet. The inning was over half shot when Coughlin rifled one from defence and it trickled through Gibson's pads for a goal. The McDougall - Coughlin - Gardner line pressed hotly for a space, and the light was mistakenly flashed back of the Petes' net when Cowley almost tallied. The score was tied a few minutes befors the bell when Eric McNeeley took Cowley's pass at close range and shoved it home.

Play was slower in the second for a time but soon Trenton tore in on dangerous rushes and this period saw the visitors look their best. Laing noticed a nice one early, aided by Eric McNeeley and LeCompte. A few minutes after, Ernie McNeeley took Lowrey's corner passout to bulge the twine. Laing went off for tripping and Ellis' penalty shot was blocked. Five Petes pressed and had the fans roaring. Weir banged one into the corner and McDougall got the disc and circled the net like a streak to score. Magee was gated for charging and the Fliers pressed. Clarke had to be good on several stops. LeCompte later counted another on a blazing shot after taking Ernie McNeeley's pass. The latter got through alone to make it 5-2 before the frame finished.

Hectic Third Heat.

Vitarelli almost tallied to open the third and the Petes soon began pressing with their power play. However, Trenton tallied first when LeCompte and Ernie McNeeley broke away, the former scoring at point-blank range. McDougall was robbed on a neat effort and the crowd booed the referee for repeatedly calling local plays back for alleged blue line infractions. McDougall got the finger for boarding and got back just as Lalonde went the same route for tripping. The Petes ganged up hotly but Clarke had to make a sensational save as two Fliers broke clear to go in on him alone. Weir scored a beauty, assisted by Burton and Vitarelli, and the homesters kept up the pressure. Weir and Ernie McNeeley tangled on the boards and both went off. Gibson kicked out some hot stabs and his buddies kept shooting the puck down the ice, but the locals' power play was not too well organized. Ellis and Lalonde were chased for making faces at each other and Weir scored on McDougall's assist from a close-in faceoff. Next one to go off was Gardner for boarding. Clarke made another grand save as a Flier flew in on him alone. Players were being subbed often in the hard going and the Petes kept peppering the goal till the last gong.

The teams:

Fliers: Goal, Gibson; defence, Lalonde and Beck; centre, Ernie McNeeley; wings, LeCompte and Eric McNeeley; alternates, Partridge, Carling-Kelly, Laing, Lowrey and Cowley.

Petes: Goal, Clarke; defence, Weir and Magee; centre, Calladine; wings, Vitarelli and Burton; alternates, McDougall, Gardner, Coughlin, Ellis and Williamson.

Referee, "Army" Armstrong of Oshawa.

WHITBY RED WINGS DOWN OSHAWA 5-2

Coca Colas Stage Final Canto Rally But Fall Short Three Goals

WHITBY, Feb. 2. — Whitby Red Wings maintained their lead in the O.H.A. Intermediate "B" group last night when they beat Oshawa Coca Colas, 5 to 2. Whitby had the better of the play in the first two periods, but Oshawa staged a splendid ganging attack in the last period, and Sargent came through twice to beat Hurst with Rowden getting assists. "Duck" Sleightholm slipped the puck past Peterson twice, while Mayne and Heard were the goal-getters for Whitby.

Whitby — Goal, Hurst; defense, Brown and Mayne; centre, Piper; wings, Louis Vipond and "Duck" Sleightholm; subs, Otte, Luther Vipond, Heard, Blanchard, J. Sleightholm.

Oshawa—Goal, Peterson; defense, March and Osler; centre, Hamell; wings, Sargent and Rowden; subs, Hooper, Barnes, Goodchild, Law, Muir.

Referee — Stan Crossett, Port Hope.

Warsaw Hockey Club Holds Entertainment

WARSAW, Feb. 2.—The Warsaw Maroons and Peterborough Canadians played a splendid game of hockey on Friday evening, January 29. Both teams were in good shape and played exceptionally well. There was but one penalty. Harvey Clifford did good work as goal-keeper.

In the evening the Warsaw hockey club held an at home which was well attended, in the town hall. All had a splendid time. Music was supplied by McCauley's orchestra.

A feature of the evening during the midnight supper time was drawing the lucky ticket which was drawn by George Lonsberry and the blanket won by Mr. Wood of Peterborough who was loudly cheered.

Pastor Stays Ten Rounds Against Louis

Full story of the ten round bout which saw Bob Pastor former N.Y.U. athlete spring something of an upset by staying the full route against Joe Louis is given in this action picture of the fight. The negro is off balance, swinging blows wildly and Pastor is circling as he moves backward to avoid the Bombers attack. So successful was Pastor's back-pedalling methods that Louis was unable to reach him with a solid blow. Pastor failed to show his vaunted punch. The bout rapidly became a running match with Pastor outracing Louis, who took the decision.

CHABOT IS THROUGH WITH AMERICANS, PERHAPS HOCKEY

Goalie With 11 Brilliant Years In "Big Time" Is Going To Sell Ice Cream

IN TWO TITLE VICTORIES

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (CP)—Lorne Chabot is saying goodbye to hockey—probably forever. The little sad-eyed netminder is going back to selling ice cream in Toronto. Safe at last from being kicked around the National League.

When Manager Red Dutton of New York Americans released the Montreal-born goaltender yesterday, Chabot closed a career that has no parallel among big time netminders. He has play with six N.H.L. clubs. Only Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins have failed to employ lanky Lorne in his 11-year career.

There has not been any clear explanation why he was shifted from club to club, sometimes when he was going at his best. He has often been a holdout and it may be he placed more value on his services than the club owners did. But that is not the trouble between him and Americs. He fanned on 16 goals in his last two games in American nets.

Chabot's strange career started back in 1926 when New York Rangers snatched him from a great amateur career in Port Arthur and billed him in Madison Square Garden as Chaotski, the Russian-Jewish stone wall.

In 1928 Title Game

He was in the nets when Rangers won the N.H.L. title and the Stanley Cup in 1928 but that didn't keep Lester Patrick from sending him to Toronto in 1930 for John Ross Roach. In 1932 he played for Leafs when they won the N.H.L. crown and the world championship and the next season he was on his way again, traded this time for George Hainsworth.

Chabot went from there in 1934 to Chicago where he won the Vezina Trophy as the outstanding goalie of the season. The following season he was injured in training. Mike Karakas proved a sensation when he was brought up from the American Association and Chabot never got back into the Chicago nets.

That was the beginning of the end for him. He finished out last season with Montreal Maroons but got into salary trouble this season and was out of the game until Dutton called upon him two weeks ago when Roy Worters was injured.

Now he is gone from the big league scene and New Yorkers will see in this place Alfie Moore who has played 12 years in the minors without a major league tryout. Dutton has bought Moore's contract from New Haven Eagles for Lloyd Jackson and cash and the netminder who shut out Canadiens last Saturday for Americs will be their regular blocker for the rest of the season.

Three Battles To-night

New Yorkers will see Moore first on Thursday night, when Toronto Leafs play there. In the meantime there are three contests to be decided to-night, none of which can change the placing of the teams in the standing.

Toronto play Maroons in Montreal to-night, but won't have Buzz Bell, who played a bit against Maroons in Toronto Saturday after being out of the game for two months with a broken arm. Now he has 'flu and will be out for several days.

Before Conny Smythe left Toronto with Leafs, he announced Charlie Conacher, the ace right-winger who has seen little service this season, will be back by February 18 or 20. Conacher's broken wrist has mended enough for him to start skating to-day.

The other games to-night bring together Montreal Canadiens and Bruins in Boston and Detroit and Rangers in New York.

CO-OPERATIVE RESIDENCE WORKS

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (CP). — After four months' experience in a co-operative men's residence for 19 students at the University of Toronto, plans are being made for a co-operative residence for girls, it was announced to-day. Since the beginning of September the men have been cooking meals, sweeping floors and doing other housework, averaging four hours work per week each. They claim their rates of $5.80 to $6.50 per week for board and room are about one-third below cost of other residences.

Remember When—

Representative Fiorello La Guardia, now Mayor of New York, attempted in the United States Congress in 1925, to put a 90-per-cent tax on sales of pro ball players bought for more than $5,000. La Guardia said pro ball was the only field where individuals failed to profit through improved ability and transfer of their services. The bill didn't get very far.

SENIOR BATTLE LINES STRAIGHTEN

No Team In East Remains Unbeaten—Frood Mines Strong In North

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP)— With playoff time at hand, lines were becoming clearly drawn today in Eastern Canada's hockey race that leads to Allan Cup finals. No team remains unbeaten in the East but some approach that state of perfection so closely they must be considered outstanding contenders for Dominion honors.

Last year Sudbury Falcons of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association carried the East's hopes in finals, where they lost to Kimberley's surprising Dynamiters. Sudbury replaced Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Hockey Association champions, in playdowns when the Bengals defaulted their right to continue.

Hamilton is missing from the picture altogether this year, as are other long-time campaigners like the University of Toronto. For the first time since the Ontario Hockey Association was organized Varsity has no entry to senior play, confining its activities to the newly formed International Intercollegiate league.

Intermediate In East.

The Maritimes will be represented in cup playdowns by an intermediate team. The Ontario Hockey Association's southern section has only four senior teams, all in the Toronto and York Mercantile league. Last night Toronto Goodyears gained a three-point lead over Toronto Dominions by beating that team 3-1. The two are favored to meet in playoffs.

Three teams that have been beaten only once each predominate the two divisions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, along with another that has lost but twice. Frood Mine of Sudbury tops the Nickel Belt League with 11 wins against a single loss and Tekimas and Lake Shore, both Kirkland Lake entries to the Gold Belt League, have won seven and six games respectively while losing but once.

In the Gold Belt League, where some clubs play more than others, South Porcupine is staying right with Tekimas and Lakeshore, having lost but two games and tied another in 13 starts.

McGill to Fore.

Riding in front of the Montreal group again, McGill University promises another mighty bid for Eastern laurels. McGill has been beaten only twice but is being chased by Montreal Royals and Quebec Aces. Players of all three teams are under surveillance of National League scouts and the group, operating with seven entries this year, is producing as brilliant hockey as ever.

Famous as a producer of great puck bands in other days, Cornwall is leaping to the fore again and today two of its teams are leading their respective leagues. Cornwall Flyers are ahead in the Ottawa City League and Cornwall Canadiens in the St. Lawrence League. Closest rivals of Flyers are Hull and Lasalle, while Chesterville and Prescott are making the pace hot for Canadiens.

Moncton Maroons are flying high in the Maritimes and are regarded as the most probable club to represent the Eastern seaboard in playdowns.

EDWARD SEAGRAM NOTED SPORTSMAN DIES IN TORONTO

VICTIM OF ULCER AT 63

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—(CP).—Funeral arrangements will be completed to-day for Edward Frowde Seagram, whose stables made Canada famous in racing circles on the continent and who took a leading part in the financial life of the Dominion. He died yesterday at the Toronto General Hospital after two operations failed to save him from stomach ulcer.

The millionaire sportsman and financier was 63 years of age. He was president of J. E. Seagram and Sons Limited, distillers of Waterloo, Ont., and was connected throughout his career with racing, hockey, curling, bowling and cricket. He was an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman, and was mayor of his home town, Waterloo, for two terms, holding the office when only 33 years of age.

His interest in horses was credited with giving the racing sport a real boost in Ontario. The Seagram stable, founded by his father, who died in 1919, became famous for its victories in the King's Plate, oldest turf classic in North America.

Since the Seagram stable was started it captured the King's Plate 19 times. When the father died in 1919, Mr. Seagram with his brothers operated the string of horses until the brothers dropped out of the sport two years ago.

First Win in 1923.

Flowerful won the plate for the Seagrams in 1923; Happlite, 1926; Young Kitty, 1928; King O'Connor, 1933; and Sally Fuller in 1935. One of the greatest Seagram triumphs was in 1927, when Sir Harry romped off with the Coffroth Handicap at Tia Juana, defeating a picked band of thoroughbreds for what was then the richest stake for Canadian and United States horsemen.

The Seagram black and yellow silks were famous on every leading track. Stand Pat, who made quite a name for himself across the border, is the ace handicapper of the present string which held "Ed" Seagram's interest until his death.

Stand Pat was picked by the popular "Ed," and to-day is regarded as an outstanding candidate for the $100,000 stake at Santa Anita next month.

Major Palmer Wright, secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club, declared it would be "impossible to exaggerate how much he will be missed on the Canadian turf," when informed of Mr. Seagram's death. A. M. Orpen, race track operator, Wilfred Davies of Thorncliffe Stables, and Conny Smythe, race-horse owner and manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, expressed regret and described his death as a severe blow to racing.

The Canadian division of the stables is at Waterloo, covering 225 acres with a five-eighth mile track for summer training and an enclosed one for winter. The stables have accommodation for 100 horses, although there aren't this many at the big racing farm now.

Hockey Star in Youth.

When a youth, Mr Seagram started his career in the distillery with his father, rising to the presidency before the company was sold a few years ago. He was a member of the Berlin (now Kitchener) Intermediate Ontario Hockey Association champions in 1896-7, and also the Waterloo Intermediate champions the following year. Their title was protested and awarded to Listowel.

He owned the Waterloo franchise in the old "Trolley" Pro League which had such stars as Hughie Lehman, one-time major league hockey goalie.

Son of Joseph E. and Stephanie Seagram, he was born at Waterloo, September 28, 1873. He was educated at Lakefield Preparatory School and Trinity College, Port Hope, and later McGill University. He entered his father's business in 1894, becoming president in 1920.

COBOURG DEFEATS ONTARIOS BY 9-4

Hard Checking Produces Little Lively Hockey In Port Hope Tilt

PORT HOPE, Feb. 2—In a listless O.H.A. intermediate B fixture here last night, Cobourg scored a 9-4 victory over the Port Hope Ontarios. Checking was hard throughout and only in the second period were flashes of good hockey to the fore.

The visitors went into the lead after three minutes of play and were never headed. They led at the end of the first frame 4-1 and had a 7-3 advantage in the second session.

Campbell was the individual star for the winners, netting three goals and getting two assists. Jackman with two goals played well for the Hopers and Roach worked unfailingly, finally getting a counter in the third period. Rowden was the other point-getter.

Cobourg—Goal, McCoubrey; defense, Goody and Boyce; centre, Henderson; wings, Campbell and Freeman; alternates, Pearce, Bendall, Hle, Rollings, Parker.

Port Hope—Goal, Cancilla; defense, Record and Hagerman; centre, Rowden; wings, Pilleworth and Smith; alternates, Roach, Jackman, Cameron, Hutchinson, Terbenche.

Referee—Harry Lott, Oshawa.

COBOURG JUNIORS WIN 5-2 VICTORY

O.H.A. Tilt Sees Bowmanville Outfit Unable To Head Off Opponents

COBOURG, Feb. 2 (CP) — Cobourg juniors chalked up another victory here last night by defeating Bowmanville, 5 to 2, in an O.H.A. junior hockey game. Cobourg led at the end of the first period, 2 to 0, on goals by Gallagher and Leetham.

Bowmanville—Goal, Hooper; defense, R. Ames, Sheehan; centre, Cameron; wings, Whitridge, Hallman; subs, Nicholas, Wiseman, R. Woods, J. Woods, Rice.

Cobourg—Goal, Simpson; defense, Wilkins, Bambridge; centre, Gallagher; wings, Maher, Leetham; subs, Johnson, Bell, Taylor, Beaver, Ball.

Referee—Kent Payne, Belleville.

NEW UNIVERSITY FLOURISHES ON "THE GANG" IDEA

Notre Dame Of Wilcox, Established By Father Murray For Dry Area Students

ESCHEWS ALL FRILLS

WILCOX, Sask., Feb. 2.—(CP)—Notre Dame University of Wilcox, 28 miles southwest of Regina, may be only a collection of rented old frame buildings and ancient boxcars for domitories, but in its comparatively brief career it has won renown for scholastic and athletic attainment.

Genial 46-year-old Father Athol Murray, who is fond of sports of all kinds and says life for him has just been one big round of fun, is the founder and head of the unique university. Classes are held in an abandoned bank building and an old factory; the restaurant is in a church basement; and sleeping quarters are in bunk cars, a garage, an ice-house and a cellar.

Nearby cities have offered the little rector substantial college buildings to operate, but he is not interested. "We would have more dignity and luxurious equipment, but we would become an institution," he remarked. "Our philosophy is the idea of 'the gang'."

No Bells

There are no frills. Bells do not summon students. A shout of "Come on, gang!" is all that is needed to get quick action.

After the death of Archbishop Mathieu, under whom he served as chancellor in Regina, Father Murray took over the Wilcox Catholic Church in 1927 rather than return to his Toronto diocese. He wanted to remain with his Wilcox Argos hockey team.

A few years later the drought hit southern Saskatchewan. Ambitious boys and girls in the area were unable to attend college or university because of the cost. Father Murray immediately set himself the task of finding a solution of the problem.

The energetic priest, who never wears a hat because he "would only lose it" and likes to give to the needy part of his wearing apparel, started the experiment by gathering 10 farm boys about him. They lived on corn and potatoes for weeks while Notre Dame was getting its start. Soon applications for entry were being received from all sides.

The rector induced Major L. L. Anthes, prominent Toronto business man to become president of the Board of Governors. This board includes Sir George Garneau, of Quebec; A. E. Whitmore and Cyril Malone, Regina. Other leading business men gladly lend their support and advice.

After three years operation Notre Dame was affiliated with the University of Ottawa. Examiners from that institution supervise examinations at Notre Dame, and degrees obtained are generally recognized.

Boys Sleep in Freight Cars

Dormitories for the girls are in the Convent building and on the top floor of the Wilcox Hotel. The boys sleep in old freight cars salvaged from harvest fields.

Father Murray believes plenty of freedom for his students. Lights are not turned off until 11 p.m. About the only other regulation is that the young men's hair must be kept trimmed fairly short. "I don't like a bunch of apes prowling about the place," the rector said.

Regina theatre men have co-operated to enable students to see two movie shows a week without cost. Trucks carry them in relays to the capital city.

These youngsters not only study and play hard, but take turns at tending furnaces, cooking, washing dishes and scrubbing floors, and all the odd chores about the place. And their pride in Notre Dame is just as fierce as that of the student body of the most ornate temple of learning.

There are now 150 registered students, 100 of which are "boarders." The school is free from sectarian bias. "Open mindedness—that's the spirit of the thing," says Father Murray.

"We owe our college entirely to the depression. The boys discarded the idea of swank. They rolled up their shirt-sleeves and went to work, peeled potatoes and tended furnace.

"Education today is a racket—and that may sound funny coming from me because I am a member of the Saskatchewan Education Council, a government-appointed body—but it is. There is no need for those big buildings which you can't go to if you haven't the money. The show and swank, the perpetual changing of books, those summer courses to add another initial to your name! It's just a drain on the people.

"In those $5,000,000 institutions they turn out a lot of carbon copies. "Here we turn out individuals."

Hockey is Chief Sport

Hockey is the chief sport at Notre Dame, but other games are not neglected. Father Murray says Lester Patrick and Connie Smythe have become interested in the school and Toronto Maple Leafs have agreed to take promising stars and place them in St. Michael's College, Toronto, to finish their education.

Last November when Regina Roughriders won the Western rugby title they received a challenge from Notre Dame. Riders outweighed Notre Dame 30 pounds per man, and won the game 40 to 0. Despite the one-sided score the Riders knew they had been in a game, and were generous in their praise of the driving force and strategy of the comparatively inexperienced team.

Father Murray was born near Toronto, son of James P. Murray, businessman and founder of the Empire Club, Toronto. He was educated at Laval University and the University of Toronto Law School. After graduation he entered the priesthood. His first charge was in Orillia, Ont. It was during the first bad flu' epidemic, and he set up a hospital for patients in the basement of the Methodist Church.

THE BLOODHOUNDS BAY

By WALTER S. MASTERMAN

CHAPTER 54

"WHAT MADE Hucks and Mrs. Thornton act at last on that particular night?" Hutchins asked Selden. In spite of himself he had been getting interested in the story as it unfolded itself.

"Can't you guess? It's only speculation, but I think they saw our friend Reid and recognized the likeness. Perhaps they thought he had come down to find out the truth for himself. At any rate, that forced their hands, and they acted."

"But the children?" Sylvia asked, speaking for the first time.

"Either they thought that the children would inherit the money, and determined to prevent that, or it was sheer diabolical revenge. But please finish, James."

"There is little more to tell, sir," James said sadly. "My master worried a great deal when his marriage turned out badly, and he called it punishment for what he had done.

"If he could have found the child he would have made restitution. He told me to do so, if I could find out anything after his death, for he already felt that he was a marked man, though he had no idea from whom the blow was coming. It was genuine remorse as much as fear that made him become a hermit in his own house."

"But what happened on the night of the murder, that's what we want to know?" Hutchins said briskly. He had no use for the repentant baronet.

"Nothing unusual occurred in the evening, sir. I came here as I generally did to confer with Sir Henry and sign documents. He never wrote, as he had forged Escott's signature in his own handwriting, and there was no one who knew any different, of course. I wrote some letters, and signed checks, and then went to my room, locking the dividing doors. The telephone rang, and I came here. He said he had seen a ghost."

"A ghost!" Sylvia exclaimed.

Reid's lips tightened at the words; something of the truth was dawning on him.

"I went to his room, and I found him walking up and down in his great agitation. It appeared that he had been staring out of his bedroom window before getting into bed and had looked across the lake. Bright moonlight illuminated the opposite shore, and shone full on the face of a man half hidden in the bushes. Sir Henry declared that it was the face of Henry Escott, just as he had seen him over 20 years ago.

"The face suddenly disappeared—he told me—and he was so startled that he could not go to bed. It had brought the whole of the past back to him, and the crime he had tried to live down by stern discipline and repentance.

"No," James went on almost fiercely, as Hutchins showed a sneer of contempt. "It was genuine, however much you call him a hypocrite. Night after night he went to the chapel and prayed there. If he had thought that any useful purpose would have been served by confessing his crime, he would have done it, I am certain of that. But it would have brought ruin on Grham and his own innocent children, and it is doubtful whether anyone would have believed him if Graham had stuck out, his hermit life would have told against him, and he might have been certified insane. But on the night of his murder, he was convinced that he should make the whole story public, and then perhaps his unknown enemies would come forward and claim the money. I managed to pacify him, and he sent me off to bed at last, saying that he would talk with me in the morning.

"That was the last I ever saw of him alive. When I attended at his bedroom the next morning, and found he had gone, I was afraid he had committed suicide rather than make his confession, and I went to the chapel, where I fancied he had gone. I found the silver candlestick but nothing else, and went with it to call Lady Severinge, and to show it to her. When, after knocking at her room, and entering, I found she was not in her quarters at the moment, I left the candlestick for her to find, and went out."

"Well Hutchins," Selden said at the conclusion of James' statement, "you have now heard the whole story, and I would like your opinion as an experienced man."

"I must say you have made out a very strong case, Selden," Hutchins admitted, "and as your information comes from the Yard it should be reliable. I don't think we can go on with the case against James, but of course we can do nothing until he is brought up again. But we are forgetting one person—Mrs. Thornton or Hucks. She is very ill in the hospital. We have made no charge, but the police are watching her day and night to get a statement. Of course, if she makes a confession that eliminates the matter."

"Then, James," Selden said, "I am afraid you will have to remain in custody. If you are suffering for an unjust charge, you must remember you have been guilty of a serious offence."

"I am quite content," James replied. "I tried to do what was best."

He sprang up at Hutchins' touch, and turned to the door. Selden was left with Sylvia and Reid.

"It sounds like a fairy story," the girl said. "I mean about Jack. Fancy his being the son of that poor woman, and now coming into his father's money."

Her face flushed, and Selden knew she was merely saying this to bridge any awkward silence.

"I want to talk to you two seriously," Selden said. At another time the words would have sounded laughable coming from a man of Selden's age, but both knew what was coming.

"It's no good beating about the bush; you two are thoroughly head over heels in that absurd morass called love. I've seen it coming on, and you've got it badly. Of course there is much settling up to be done, but things will come right. But there's one thing, Jack, you must do—you know what I mean."

Reid colored furiously "I have already told Sylvia the whole of my past life," he said simply "I told her I was not fit to offer her marriage."

"And I told him that was all nonsense. He never had a chance from the beginning, and what he did was only what nearly every business man does every day."

"Really, Sylvia," Selden said. "You had better take care that people don't hear you giving vent to those sentiments. But if that is so, there is, as they say in the Prayer Book, no just cause or impediment."

There is little more to relate of the strange mystery that surrounded the murder of Sir Henry Severinge.

A police officer watched night and day at the bedside of Mrs. Thornton, as she was still called, but apart from incoherent rambling she was unable to make a statement, and grew weaker both in body and mind. The shock had been too much for her, and the doctors found that she had for years been a drug addict, which may partly have accounted for her mad hatred of the Severinge twins.

She died in her sleep on the day that James was released from arrest, the police offering no evidence against him.

He returned to the Abbey, and quietly resumed his duties, but insisted on making over the whole of the money he had inherited from Sir Henry Severinge to Jack, who had been able with Selden's help to establish his identity beyond question. As Selden said, it made little difference, except for his own satisfaction, as James was entirely convinced, and it was merely a matter of transfer. Selden had been compelled to return to London, but some few weeks later arrived at Evenden for a quiet wedding at the village church, at which he acted as best man, and the twins had their wish gratified by performing the duty of bridesmaids.

While Selden was waiting with Escott for the bride to change her dress they discussed the past.

"Lady Severinge agreed to let us have the twins," Jack told him. "She is now Mrs Colindale, and wants to forget the past altogether. They are going to Kenya and I have sent enough money to start him off."

"Then that disposes of the whole business," Selden said, taking up his glass to wish his friend all the best.

A smile crossed his face for a moment. "Of course," he said musingly, "there is that scoundrel Reid, but I am afraid he is gone forever and we shall never see him again."

"He is quite dead and forgotten," Escott said sadly, "but what I can do to repair his evil deeds shall be done."

Sylvia appeared, radiant and amazingly beautiful, accompanied by the twins. They watched with Selden the car disappearing down the drive, while James stood by the gateway with tears in his eyes.

"Uncle Dick," Marian said, "why did Uncle Jack change his name?"

He turned to them with a smile the meaning of which they could not understand. "Haven't you read in your story books that when a prince comes to win a fair lady he always assumes some disguise and a funny name?"

"Is Uncle Jack a prince, then?" They opened their blue eyes.

"Ask Auntie Sylvia when she comes home."

THE END.

FIND HIS 'INSIDES' BADLY MIXED UP

Doctors Discover Youth's Appendix, Heart, Stomach All Reversed

TILSONBURG, Ont., Feb. 2.—(CP)—Right was wrong, Ernest Kelley had often suspected, but he had to go through an apendectomy to confirm his doubts. The 22-year-old farmer's son was recuperating today from the operation in which complete transposition of the viscera was discovered.

Kelley complained Saturday of pains on the left side of his abdomen and Dr. R. W. Rankin, Medical Health Officed, was called. Suspecting it was a case of appendicitis, despite the position of the pain, Dr. Rankin made an incision and discovered the appendix on the left side.

urther examination showed a big mixup inside the young man. His heart, stomach and spleen were on the right side while his liver was on the left. There was no overlapping, Dr. Rankin said, it was just as if "you were looking into a mirror."

At different times Kelley had thought his internal organs were reversed because he felt his heart beating on the right side. When he told his three brothers about it they only laughed at him. He is recovering from the operation with only the usual effects, Dr. Rankin said.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND FROSTY JACK

Uncle Wiggily stood looking at his shadow. Beside him stood Mr. Chuck, the groundhog gentleman, looking at his shadow. But Mr. Chuck also was looking at Uncle Wiggily's shadow. And that puzzled the rabbit gentleman.

A moment before Mr. Chuck had begged to borrow Uncle Wiggily's shadow, though the rabbit gentleman didn't know why. Then, all of a sudden, Mr. Chuck said: "Here he comes!" and began to whistle.

Then Uncle Wiggily looked away from his own shadow and from that of the groundhog and saw, hopping up the hill over the snow, a jolly little fellow.

"Why, it's Jack Frost!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, with a laugh, for he knew the little chap who wasn't at all a bad one.

"Call me Frosty Jack, if you please," said the little chap.

"Why, are you a cowboy or something like that?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"No, but I like my name changed around a bit," laughed Fristy Jack. "How are you, Mr. Longears? How are you standing the Winter?"

"Oh, about as usual," answered Mr. Longears. "How about you?"

"I'm fine," said Jack. "Winter agrees with me, you know. In fact, I don't like Summer at all."

"No, I don't believe you do," chuckled Mr. Longears. "You'd melt away to nothing—there wouldn't be even a shadow of you left, Chuck, here, was talking of borrowing mine as you came along. He didn't tell me why."

Chuck Doesn't Speak

All this time Mr. Chuck hadn't spoken a word to Frosty Jack. And Uncle Wiggily thought that strange.

All of a sudden, however, the cold chap turned to the groundhog gentleman and said:

"What's all this about, Chuckie? Borrowing Uncle Wiggily's shadow! As if your own wasn't good enough! And I see you have it with you," went on Frosty Jack as he glanced at the snow and noted the black shadow cast not only by the groundhog gentleman but by Uncle Wiggily. "You've seen your shadow, you know, Chuckie, so there will be six weeks more for me. Tra, la, la! I'll be seeing you!"

Away ran Frosty Jack, kicking his heels in the air and whistling a North Wind tune which made icicles drop out of his mouth.

"Yes, I've seen my shadow," grunted Mr. Chuck. "I was hoping to fool Frosty Jack. That's why I wanted to borrow your shadow, Wiggy. But it's too late now. Winter will last six weeks longer instead of only four, as it might have if I hadn't seen my shadow."

Then Uncle Wiggily remembered and understood. He laughed loud and long and then he began to dance with Mr. Chuck, saying:

"Never mind the Winter. It's always good weather when we two get together. Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Wanted Short Winter

"Well, what I was going to do," said Mr. Chuck, "was to use your shadow for mine this Candlemas Day. Then when Frosty Jack came along and asked me if I had seen my shadow I could have told him no, I didn't, but that I had seen yours, and that would make a short Winter. But you got up so late——"

"Dear me! If I had only known!" said Uncle Wiggily. "But I don't believe," he went on, "in spite of the old saying that seeing or not seeing your shadow makes any difference about Winter. Anyhow, I couldn't have let you take my shadow. See, I can't get away from it long enough, when the sun shines, to have it fitted with a new fur suit. And you can't lose your shadow, either, in sunshine."

The two animals ran as fast as they could, but their shadows closely followed. So Mr. Longears was right. But the old saying is a jolly one and perhaps Winter will soon be over.

And if the ice man will stop trying to put the loaf of bread in the milk bottle I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Johnnie's secret.

DONEGAL

CROKINOLE PARTY IS MUCH ENJOYED

Successful Event Held Under Auspices Of Donegal Sunday School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DONEGAL, Feb. 2.—The crokinole party held recently in Donegal Sunday School was a success. About fifty were in attendance and everyone enjoyed playing crokinole for about two hours. The following program was given:

Community singing; instrumental, Marion Starks; recitation, Orland Brown; solo, Miss Hazel Elliott; instrumental, Kenneth and John Barrie; solo, Learl Humphries; instrumental, Wesley Wildman; short address, Mr. Cleland. Community singing was enjoyed by all after which the ladies served lunch.

Sunday School Service

The Sunday School services opened on Sunday afternoon by community singing. William G. Barrie gave a splendid talk on the financial cost of alcoholic beverages. A guitar selection, "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling," was given by Charles McNeely with Velma McNeely playing the piano accompaniment.

Mr. John Starks, who has been confined to bed through illness, is improving.

Mr. William G. Barrie had the misfortune to injure his knee-cap while working on a wood lot north of Havelock. He is now confined to his home for a few days and is making a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Thomas Thompson visited with her niece, Miss Lila English, of Norwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan visited Sunday afternoon with the latter's father, Mr. Wellington Burgess and family of Norwood.

Mr. Philip Fitzpatrick is confined to bed through illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan visited one evening recently with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dunham of Seymour.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan visited Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. George McNeely.

Mrs. Jacob Gardner is confined to the house with a bad cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Morton and Marina visited Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ward Glenn.

Mrs. Harry Morgan taught the pupils of Old Havelock school Friday forenoon in the absence of the teacher, Miss Gena McNeely, who is confined to the house with a severe cold. School was closed in the afternoon owing to the funeral of the late James Griffith.

The Donegal and Elgin hockey teams played a lively game in the Norwood Arena on Thursday night. The score being 3-1 in favor of Donegal.

Miss Lila English visited over the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. William Morton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Knox of Picton and Ronald of Peterborough visited recently with Mr. and Mrs. George McNeely and family and attended the funeral of the late James Griffith.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson visited Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. William Waters.

CAMPBELLFORD

GRANT IS VOTED FOR FAIR BOARD

Opposition However Is Voiced In Campbellford Council To This Action

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2. — Despite much opposition on the part of Councillor Kelly, the town council last night approved a motion to make a grant of $100 to the Seymour Agricultural Society, when a delegation from that body including President A. D. Bennett, T. J. Horkins, and John Locke attended the council.

"Are we well enough off to give grants?" asked Councillor Dorie, addressing his question to the mayor, following the request of Mr Horkins, who first of all addressed the council. The mayor referred the question of Councillor MacColl, chairman of the Finance committee, who did not seem to be very certain as to just what the proper qualifications to enable the making of grants were.

At this juncture Council Kelly asked the delegation why it was that the Fair was not called the "Campbellford Fair" rather than the Seymour Agricultural Society Fair, in deference to the town from which they were asking a grant.

"I don't see how this should make any difference, so long as it is the people of Campbellford derive the benefit from the Fair," explained A. D. Bennett; "the Fair has always been under the auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society, but there is no reason why the name couldn't be changed if it makes any difference to the town."

The explanation did not seem satisfactory to Councillor Kelly, who did not support the motion, which was carried by a vote of 6 to 3.

Following a brief outline of the town's financial condition for the month by Councillor MacColl, in which he brought out the fact that the town had just received a grant of $5,000 from the Water and Light Commission. The mayor then called on Mr. J. L. Hay, relief officer, who gave the figures on relief for the month of January, stating there were 45 families on relief during the month with the prospects of two or three going off for the month of February. One year ago there were 76 families on relief during the same month.

The council adjourned after passing a resolution to amend the system of collecting the dog tax whereby the assessor would be authorized to collect the fee and distribute the tags with a commission of 25c per tag.

LAKEFIELD HAS NEW POLICEMAN

W. J. Hendren Combines Duties Along With All His Other Posts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—The village of Lakefield has a new policeman. On Monday, February 1st, Wallace J. Hendren took over the offices of Village Constable, Works Commissioner, Sanitary and Weed Inspector and Pound-keeper, along with his present duties as assessor and collector of taxes. This action was decided upon at a special meeting of the council held last week. The council were of the opinion that as an economic measure, these offices should be combined.

WEDDINGS

SAYERS—SCOTT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 2.— The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott was the setting for a picturesque wedding, Monday morning at eleven o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Patricia Fern Scott, was united in marriage to Robert B Sayers, second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sayers, of Tweed. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. K. Perrie, the bridal couple standing under an evergreen arch, in the midst of a living room attractively decorated for the occasion in pink and white.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and looked very lovely in a frock of pink suede taffeta, with accesories to match, and carrying a bouquet of Briarcliff roses, sweet peas, and buddlea. Her sister, Miss Lois Scott, as bridesmaid, wore a gown of pale green suede taffeta and carried a bouquet of Premier roses, sweet peas and white sterica. Little Miss Shirley Wratten, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, looked very pretty as flower girl, wearing a dress of yellow suede taffeta and carrying a bouquet of yellow roses and violets. Mr. Jesse Anderson acted as best man.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. H. L. Scott, the bride's aunt, who also accompanied the signing of the register, playing "Chapel in the Moonlight."

The groom's gift to the bride was a magnificent fitted travelling "Air-Pak," of genuine leather, to the bridesmaid a yellow and white gold compact, and to the best man a dress shirt set of white gold and pearl.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, Mrs. Scott, in a gown of triple sheer crepe of coronation blue, assisted by Mrs. Sayers, mother of the groom, dressed in navy flowered foulard. Following the ceremony a lovely wedding dinner was served at the home of Mrs. James, the bride's grandmother.

The bridal couple left later for Texas, the bride travelling in a brown and green ensemble. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Sayers will take up residence in Havelock.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. T. Wratten and daughter Shirley of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. MacDonald and daughter Margaret of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. M. Sayers of Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. H. Sayers and son Ronald of Tweed; Miss S. M. Scott, of Deloro; Mr. J. Callery of Deloro.

ROTARY DECIDES TO GIVE SHIELD

Campbellford Service Club Will Assist County Musical Festival This Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2. — In the absence of a speaker the Rotary Club devoted its meeting today to the discussion of general business. A communication was read from the secretary of the County Musical Festival requesting that the club donate a shield as one of the prizes for the festival to be held in the spring to which the club gave their assent. Following some discussion the club decided to make their usual contribution towards the fund for the crippled children of fifty cents per member.

FALLS ON ICE HELP CROWD HOSPITAL

Fourteen Patients In Lindsay Institution Suffering From Broken Bones

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 2.—As the result of accidents on the icy streets of Lindsay, Ross Hospital is filled with citizens who have sustained broken bones and leg fractures. There are fourteen such patients in the hospital at present. This is not the total number of those who have suffered injuries from falls, as a number were treated at the local institution and discharged. Besides a number of the injured are being treated at their homes.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRED EASTER.

Adam Frick, 47 Jackson avenue, received word to-day of the death of his eldest sister, Mrs. Fred Easter, in Barking, England, in her 68th year. The death occurred on January 18. She had been ill since Christmas

She leaves three daughters, Rose, May and Lulu in London, England. Besides Mr. Frick, one brother, Jack, and one sister, Mrs. Charles Coote, remain in Barking, England.

The funeral was held on January 23 from the Barking Methodist church.

JOHN HENRY WHITE.

The death of John Henry White occurred at his home in Bailieboro Monday following a short illness. A life-long resident of the district, he was 83 years of age.

He was born in Cavan, son of the late James White and Fanny Thompson, and farmed the greater part of his life. He had been living in retirement at Bailieboro during recent years.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. D. Millen, Mrs. William Stirling and Mrs. Lough, all of Toronto, Mrs. William Armstrong of Bethany and Mrs. J. Roddy of Bailieboro; and one son, David White of Cavan. His wife, formerly Mary Jane Johnston, predeceased him.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the homeof Mrs. Roddy, Bailieboro, to the F[illegible]is Cemetery in Cavan, Rev. W[illegible]ns will officiate.

MRS. BARNEY McGUIRE.

Elizabeth S. McGuire, relic of the late Barney McGuire, died on January 22, at the home of her niece, Mrs. James Noonan, Burnley, Ont. where she had resided for the past four and one half years, having previously resided in Colborne, Ont. for over 42 years. She was a daughter of the late David Wilson of Castleton, Ont. and was 86 years of age, being predeceased by her husband in 1898.

She leaves to mourn her loss, one son Andrew, of Bakersfield, Cal. three brothers, John F., of Burnley, Ont., Edward H. of Chilliwack, B. C. and Chas. A. Wilson, and two sisters, Francis Squier of Oregon, and Rebecca Wait of Birch Hills, Sask., besides nieces and nephews. The funeral services were held on Monday, January 25 at the home of Mr. James Noonan, thence to Union Cemetery, Colborne, for interment.

Services were conducted by the Rev. C. G. Graham, B.A., pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Colborne, of which she was a faithful member for over 40 years. The pall bearers were her nephews Jay, Bert and James Wilson and James, John and Edward Noonan.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK by R. J. SCOTT

the constitution for political expediency in bringing down the social legislation. The Privy Council judgments had reversed the trend toward greater jurisdiction for the Dominion and put the provinces on the defensive, he said.

Mr. Bennett declared his action had been based on the Privy Council decisions in the radio and aeronautical references in 1932. He would not discuss the decisions until he had seen the texts. He hoped the newspaper reports were not correct, because if they were it would seem the Dominion Parliament was a rather "useless" body. He approved the Cahan suggestion.

Sees No Alternative.

Supporting Mr. Coldwell's resolution, James S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. Leader, expressed regret that in declining it Justice Minister Lapointe, speaking for the Government, had not offered some alternative method of procedure. It was past the time, he declared, when any minority group in Canada should be permitted to retard progress because of provisions in the 70-year-old B.N.A. Act. He feared secession movements unless some action were taken at once.

Mr. Lapointe told the House that much work had been done to prepare the way for constitutional reform, but this work would not be advanced by creation of the proposed committee. The provinces had refused to appear before the House Constitutional Committee in 1935 and would probably do so again. A movement to make the Federal Parliament supreme was the surest way to get in a quarrel with the provinces, he held.

COUNCIL HALTS NEW MILK BY-LAW

premises of these vendors are inspected monthly by a city health officer, and their milk is tested as taken from the delivery wagons. They have complied with the government tests to ensure that their herds are free from tuberculosis and Bang's disease.

Seel To 12 Doctors

It has been stated that medical opinion is altogether in favor of pasteurization. I doubt that. These vendors of raw milk have the privilege of selling milk to twelve doctors in Peterborough. No one is compelled to purchase raw milk, and there is no inducement held out as to price. It is the same as for pasteurized milk."

Alderman Gordon asked whether "there is a greater profit from the artificial than the raw milk. I understand they put water in pasteurized milk at certain times of the year."

"I understand they don't," Mr. Carley replied. "The pump handle doesn't play any part in milk selling."

Quoting from a booklet Mr. Carley said that the best type of milk was certified milk, produced by cows that were thoroughly tested and on farms of high standard. This milk was unpasteurized, and in its market commanded the highest price.

Concluding his statement, Mr. Carley said: "These men have put in bottling equipment which they would have to scrap at a loss or be put to the expense of a pasteurizing plant if the bylaw were passed."

Mayor Macdonald remarked that the bottling regulation was required by the government.

Obeyed Local Board

"These men have done all that the local Board of Health has told them to do," Mr. Carley said. "In view of the fact that a great deal of educative literature has been published by the pasteurized milk dealers the people have ample opportunity for determining whether they are running any risks. If the bylaw is passed I would ask that you suspend the operations of its regulations for a reasonable time, say one year, to give these dealers a chance to put in pasteurizing equipment."

Mr. Butler amplified Mr. Carley's review of the case of the raw milk vendors.

"We say that we have done our best to comply with the regulations and to guarantee a supply of good milk from healthy herds. We don't see any justice in being crowded out at the present time. Some of us have been in the business previous to the advent of pasteurizing plants, and people would have starved years ago if they had to wait for pasteurization."

Mr. Butler spoke of the expense of bottling equipment, and heavy losses resulting from the testing of herds for tuberculosis and Bang's disease.

Tests Impose Loss

"Some of us through no fault of our own have lost nearly our entire herds. One man has a loss of nearly $1,000 from these two diseases. He has replaced that herd, and he feels that he should be let sell milk which he believes is absolutely fit for human consumption."

Mr. Butler said that the bacteria tests of raw milk showed many times that its samples had a lower count of bacteria than the milk from pasteurized plants. He would not contend that this was a general result, but the records in the provincial laboratory "have shown wonderfully low bacteria count in raw milk sold in Peterborough." Besides, he said there was no trace of any epidemic from the consumption of milk.

No Price Appeal

"There has been no inducement on our part to get the public to buy from us because of a cheaper price. When our industry had nearly collapsed on account of general conditions we agreed on a unit price so there would be no competitive selling until the business gets back on its feet. The price has been the same, and at that time we felt we were sacrificing ourselves to the pasteurizing plants. If the public feels that it is safe to buy milk from us, if they are satisfied with the quality of milk we have given them in the past, we think the council be well advised to leave that question in the hands of the people."

Mr. Butler said the members of the association would welcome an opportunity to discuss the bylaw with the council.

Unexpected Reinforcement

Reeve W. A. Anderson declared that 99 per cent of the "germs" in milk were helpful, "so don't be stampeded when you hear anything about bacteria counts." The purity of milk depended on the honesty of the producer. The raw milk sold by the vendors would be graded B, but pasteurizing plants could buy grade C milk, heat it and kill germs, "but it would not be as good as the grade B milk sold by these gentlemen. On account of the size of the city it would be difficult for Toronto to get a sufficient supply of milk and deliver it in good condition, but Peterborough is still in the class where raw milk can be produced and sold. I think it would be drastic to have the proposed bylaw put into effect now."

T. J. McMurray said he spoke as a consumer of milk and from the experience of having brought up a family. When his children was ill no doctor advised him to puy pasteurized milk. Mr. McMurray also regarded the bylaw as in restraint of trade. The people had heard all there was to know about pasteurized milk ,and the pasteurized milk plants had every chance to get a monopoly if they could in the conditions of a free market without compulsion.

Bylaw For Protection

Dr. Fraser ,arriving after the deputation had been heard, said he believed that pasteurized milk would protect Peterborough from the possibility of milk borne disease. He mentioned several cases of scarlet fever which had been traced in 1935 to milk supplied at Stoney Lake. There were also a number of cases of septic sore throat from the same herd. He also said that a raw milk dealer had contracted undulant fever from one of his cows in 1935.

"For such reasons I believe that raw milk is dangerous to public health. I believe that the use of pasteurized milk would do away with the possibility of disease occurring."

Mr. McMurray—What milk do they use in the hospitals?

Dr. Fraser—They use pasteurized at Nicholls.

Mr. McMurray—They don't use it in St. Joseph's.

OVERHEATED PIPES CAUSE TWO FIRES

Damage Amounting To $100 Done To Home Of Arthur Donald

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2.—Firemen answered a call at 12 o'clock Sunday night when the pipes in the apartment occupied by Raymond Dunk caught fire. Mr and Mrs. Dunk who had been away for the day just returned and when a hot fire was kindled the pipes caught fire with little damage other than that occasioned by the smoke.

Kitchen Damaged.

Fire which did damage estimated at 100.00 broke out in the kitchen of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Donald at 8.15 Monday morning. Overheated pipes were the cause of the fire which was confined to the kitchen due to the efforts of the firemen and the fact that a brick wall separates the kitchen from the main part of the house thus preventing the spread of the flames.

ALLEN PLEADS GUILTY ON MANSLAUGHTER COUNT

SCHOOL BOARD WILL REQUIRE EXTRA $18,900

Estimated Needs For The Year As Passed By Board Total $246,350

PROPERTY REPAIRS UP

Partial Restoration Of Salary Cut Accounts For Large Portion Of Increase

The Board of Education will ask the City Council and the taxpayers of Peterborough for $18,900 more for 1937 than in 1936 according to estimates passed by the Board at its meeting last evening. More than three-fourths of a mill is represented by the increase.

Estimated needs for the year totalled $246,350 as compared with $227,450 in 1936. The greater portion of the increased demand is the result of the action of the Board at its last meeting in restoring to city teachers the 5 per cent. salary cuts effected early in the depression. Through this restoration and through normal scheduled salary advances, $7,400 more will be paid the teachers of the public school staff during the year and $8,000 more the teachers of the Collegiate staff.

Property Repairs

The remaining portion of the increased demand results from an increased estimate for the Property Committee, $13,950, to allow for a program of reconstruction and repairs. H. G. Walker, committee chairman, explained to the Board that maintenance in both the public schools and the Collegiate has been neglected in the interests of extreme economy during the past several years and that an extensive program is now necessary if the property investment is to be saved.

The estimates were passed by the Board with little comment beyond

NOVA SCOTIA HITS AT OIL COMPANIES

Threatens To Cancel Wholesale Licenses Unless Gasoline Price Increase Is Rescinded

HALIFAX, Feb. 3.—(CP).—Seven oil companies operating in Nova Scotia were advised to-day by the Nova Scotia Board of Public Utilities their wholesalers' licenses would be suspended unless they rescinded by Friday a half cent increase in gasoline prices.

Price level at the beginning of this week was 29 cents a gallon in Nova Scotia. Higher rates for crude oil were given as the reason for the increase. The price advanced one half cent also in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

The Board's communication was sent to Maritime headquarters of the British American Oil Company, Saint John, Sydney, N.S., Provincial Oils, Halifax; Canadian Oil Company, Moncton, N.B.; McColl Frontenac Company, Moncton; and Imperial Oil Company, Halifax.

Peterboro' Man Is Nominated For President But Withdraws In Favor Rev. F. C. Elliott

TORONTO, Feb. 3—(C.P.).—Rev. F. C. Elliott, retired Baptist minister of Ingersoll, was unanimously re-elected president of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association at to-day's convention session here.

Other officers were re-elected as follows: Honorary President, T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission; Honorary Vice-Presidents, A. R. Lang, Kitchener; James Simpson, Toronto; C. A. Maguire, Toronto; T. W. McFarland, London; Vice-Presidents, F. Biette, Chatham; J. Albert Smith, Kitchener; G. S. Matthews, Peterborough, and Dr. W. J. Chapman, St. Catharines.

Mr. Matthews had also been nominated for the presidency, but withdrew, urging support for Mr. Elliott.

President Elliott said he had not always agreed with the Hydro Electric Commission, and would not agree with them in the year, "but I believe they are men who are trying their very best for the interests of Hydro."

He said he would continue a campaign of co-operation "in the very highest fashion," with the commission.

Board Urges Gradual Rail Wage Restoration

Majority Vote Advises Starting At One Tenth Revenue To Be Guide

Bancroft Holds In Cases Affecting Wages Company Earnings Should Not Be Considered

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Sharply divided on fundamental principles governing wage rates, two reports emerging from the MacLean conciliation board that mediated in the dispute between Canadian railroads and 117,000 of their employees on 10-per-cent pay cuts were before the contending parties today for acceptance or rejection.

The majority report, containing the views of Justice A. K. MacLean of the exchequer court, chairman, and W. Sanford Evans, railways' nominee, was made public by Labor Minister Rogers last night together with the minority report of Fred Bancroft, Oakville, Ont., men's selection for the board.

The majority report recommended the deduction be lowered at nine per cent February 1, eight per cent not later than August 1 and seven per cent not later than November 1. These reductions in the wage cut were to be enlarged in favor of the employees if railway revenues exceeded certain figures.

Mr. Bancroft urged the entire cut be restored not later than November 1, four per cent being returned February 1 and remaining six per cent in three equal instalments at the beginning of May, August and November.

Because the board split, the majority members indicated their proposals envisaged this year only, leaving the future for later negotiations.

Most distinct line of cleavage between the two reports was on the question of using gross operating revenues in reaching conclusions. Judge MacLean and Mr. Evans held "ability to pay" was important to the issue.

Depend On Ability.

"In the broad sense," they said, "there can be no performance unless there is the ability to perform. An obligation may be imposed and penalties attached, but the practical result can follow only where ability exists."

The majority members pointed to sharply reduced revenues from the 1926-29 period and when basic wage agreements were signed and to the estimate that it would cost the railways $18,000,000 a year to carry out the employees' request.

In questions affecting wages, Mr. Bancroft held, company earnings should never enter consideration.

"The employees declared definitely that they could not accept gross operating revenues as a measure for their wages," the employees' representative wrote in his report, "and also that the employees would not make any agreement with the railway companies which is based wholly or in part on a formula based upon operating revenues."

Police To Act If Poll Tax Not Paid At Once

THE tax collector's department is making another round up of those who have not paid their poll tax. The last warning issued by A. S. The department is acting on the authority of the council who feel that delinquencies of poll tax payments have gone far enough.

COUNTRY DOCTOR KIDNAPPED WEEK IS FOUND SLAIN

Police Claim Youth 20, Revealed Body After Day Of Grilling

CONFESSED TO DEED

WILLOW SPRINGS, Mo., Feb. 3—(A.P.).—The bullet-pierced body of Dr. J. C. B. Davis, 65, country doctor kidnapped a week ago, was found in an Ozark thicket by officers early to-day, and a Department of Justice agent said a 20-year-old youth had confessed the slaying.

Earl J. Connelly of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said the youth identified as Robert Kenyon, Grimmett, Mo., grilled since yesterday in the $5,000 ransom abduction, led officers to the body near a roadside, 14 miles southeast of here.

Dr. Davis disappeared from his office a week ago after being summoned, his secretary said, on a medical call by a "Mr. James."

"The man responsible for the crime led us to the spot," Connelly announced to reporters.

Connelly said Kenyon was taken to "another prison" to avoid possible mob violence.

Body Left Untouched

Connelly said the doctor's body had been left where it was found and would not be moved immediately. He would not disclose the nature or number of bullet wounds in the body nor its condition.

However, he said the doctor apparently had been killed only a short while after he wrote a ransom note demanding $5,000, received by relatives last Thursday. That note was in the doctor's handwriting.

The federal officers refused to

STRIKERS GIVE NO SIGN OF INTENTION TO LEAVE PLANTS

Judge Says Proof Men Have Defied Order Must Be Shown Before Eviction Tried

DEADLINE IS 3 O'CLOCK

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 3.—(AP).—Delay in voluntary or forcible evacuation of two striker-held General Motors body plants here beyond the deadline set by a court injunction appeared assured to-day following a statement by Circuit Judge Paul G. Gadola that the order need not be enforced promptly at 3 p.m. (E.S.T.).

At expiration of the 24-hour period given for the strikers to leave, Judge Gadola said, representatives of the big automobile concern must present evidence that the strikers have failed to comply with the order, before a contempt citation is issued.

Less than three hours before the deadline set by the injunction, several hundred "stay-in" strikers who have held two Fisher Body Company plants since December 30 showed no indication of retreating form their announced intention to resist ejection.

Three Alternatives

Until proper showing that the injunction has been violated, the case "is out of this court's hands," Judge Gadola said adding that three alternatives to a contempt citation exist:

Proclamation of martial law might supersede the civil courts in the strike area; the strikers might comply with the injunction terms, or the Supreme Court of Michigan might, upon application of union attorneys, step in with a special order.

The judge said it would not be in order for the sheriff or any other officer of the court to present proof that a violation had occurred.

Judge Gadola had conferred in his chamber with Sheriff Thomas Wolcott.

In Lansing, a member of the State Attorney General's staff and Governor Murphy retains direct control of the National Guard and may use his discretion regarding use of troops to enforce the injunction.

Mary Minter Demands She Be Cleared Or Prosecuted In Taylor Mystery

NO NIGHTGOWN HELD

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Revived by Mary Miles Minter's tearful ultimatum—"Prosecute me or exonerate me completely"—the William Desmond Taylor murder case rose to a new climax today.

Taylor, film director, was mysteriously shot to death 15 years ago when Miss Minter was a golden-haired star of the screen.

Yesterday, on the anniversary of his slaying, the Macabre mystery broke into the headlines again. Indignant over what she said was "filthy innuendo" that has gone unchallenged for years, Miss Miniter called upon District Attorney Buron Fitts to clear her publicly of all connection with the case.

Through her attorney, Eugene H. Marcus, the comely ex-actress declared:

"Shadows have been cast upon my reputation in reports of reopening of the case. Now I demand that I either be prosecuted or exonerated. If the district attorney has any evidence, he should prosecute. If not, then I should be exonerated."

May Issue Statement.

Fitts, after her visit, announced his office has no evidence warranting a reopened investigation, nor is it prepared to accuse and prosecute "anyone." He said he would decide today whether to issue a special statement in Miss Minter's behalf.

The former movie star also demanded that police explain published reports that they possessed a nightgown bearing the initials "M. M.M." assertedly found in Taylor's apartment after his death.

A search of Taylor case exhibits in the police property room failed to uncover even a shred of feminine lingerie.

"I never owned such a nightgown and if I had it would not have been in Mr. Taylor's apartment," exclaimed Miss Minter. "This malicious rumor has followed me through the years and I'm glad it is disproved."

HITLER'S COLONY DEMANDS ON WAY TO GREAT BRITAIN

Ambassador Von Ribbentrop Believed Ordered To Open Negotiations

LONDON CALLS CABINET

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—(CP-Havas).—Germany's colonial demands have been embodied in a diplomatic memorandum addressed to the British Government, it was reported here to-day.

Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the German Ambassador, was believed to have the document with him when he left for London last night.

Although unconfirmed, reports persisted that Von Ribbentrop had instructions to open negotiations with the British Government at once.

Nazi sources described Germany's colonial stand as having been fixed by Hitler's Reichstag speech of Saturday and previously by his speech at the Nurenberg party congress.

Germany wants the return of the colonies awarded by the Versailles Treaty to Great Britain, the De-

New York Lass Starts Movement To End Familiarity—While On Duty

THINKS IDEA WILL SPREAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (C.P.). — In a spirit of self-protection New York's torch singers—some of them at any rate—are going collegiate under the leadership of Harriet Brent, 1936 Hunter College graduate who puts hi-de-ho in the music of the show bar in Forest Hills.

Miss Brent said to-day she had been elected president of a sorority formed under the name of Gamma Nu, the membership of which is restricted exclusively to night club entertainers who are college graduates.

So far it has a membership of seven. But, added President Brent, less academic songsters will be admitted as organization work progresses, and she expects the movement to spread to other night club centres such as Montreal, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, and Miami.

It seems that in many night clubs the entertainers are supposed to mix with the patrons. As a result, Miss Brent said, they are subjected to considerable objectionable familiarity, something the Gamma Nu Sorority seeks to eliminate.

"Sometimes the men even put their arms around us," Miss Brent declared. "Well, we're going to put a stop to all that."

One band of 162 university students of South Africa has been touring Great Britain.

Snow Tames Prairies' Wild Antelope Herds

Lethbridge, Alta., Feb. 3 (CP)

ANTELOPE herds are becoming a menace to ranchers in Southern Alberta.

Gaunt and hungry, their feeding grounds piled under deep snowdrifts, the animals are wandering from their natural haunts, destroying ranch and farm property and devouring haystacks.

A herd of thirty was reported within a few miles of Lethbridge today, the first time in years the animals have come so close to the city limits.

LABOR HEAD DISAPPOINTED

Little Consideration Given Workers Says Mosher.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP).—Regret the majority report of the MacLean Conciliation Board is not more favorable to the railways workers was expressed to-day by A. R. Mosher, president of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor.

"I am very disappointed, naturally," said Mr. Mosher. "Apparently the majority report has not given very much consideration to the requirements of the workers but has given consideration only to the requirements of the railways.

"The most important element in industry is the workers. The workers should be the first consideration of conciliation boards of the government and of the people as a whole."

Peterborough Kiwanis Has Consul Appeal Direct To President

QUICK ACTION IS TAKEN

When members of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club were completing the packing of the car load of goods and supplies to be forwarded to sufferers in the flood areas of Cincinnati the question of getting the car across the international boundary came up for discussion. There had been an unconfirmed report that other consignments sent from Toronto a few days previously had been held at the border for customs inspection and appraisal and also that when the cars reached their destination it had been necessary to pay out a large amount in customs duty.

The Kiwanis Committee did not like that. They were not seeking to sell anything in United States; no firm or individual here was making any money out of it because everything had been donated. Firms from which goods were purchased with subscribed funds donated almost as much as was ordered from them. It was a gift all through, and the prospect of recipients being handed a bill for duty was a sticking point.

The Line of Action.

The Public Affairs Committee of the Kiwanis Club believed the chairman, Perry J. Giffen, should get in touch with the United States Consul in Toronto to see what could be done about it. Mr. Giffen telephon-

Newsboy Nabs Woman Out On Sleep Walk

Toronto, Feb. 3.

DAVE Salsberg, newsboy for the Globe and Mail, had a new experience early today when he came across a woman walking in her sleep.

Clad only in light pyjamas, the woman was walking on Carlton Street. Sensing something wrong, Salsberg approached her, saw what had happened and carried the shivering, exhausted sleep-walker into her apartment.

"I believe there was one winter with only one zero temperature being registered. Will you check up on it?" No such winter is on the records; the winter of 1920-1921 had less zero marks than any other, with six; five of which were in January, the odd one being in February. The current winter has had two in November, three in December, and one this morning, thus equalling season mentioned above.—A.O.P.

Lower Lake Region and Georgian Bay — Northerly winds, fair and cold. Thursday—East to south-east winds; partly cloudy and becoming somewhat milder, probably light snow at night.

Northern Ontario — Fair and cold. Thursday—Cloudy and milder; probably some light snow.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley — Fair and cold to-day and part of Thursday, then moderating somewhat.

Lake Superior — Easterly to southerly winds; partly cloudy and becoming somewhat milder; probably some light snow in west portion. Thursday—Winds shifting to north-westward; partly cloudy, with local snowflurries; colder again over west portion.

London, 8 a.m.—Temperature, 30; rain, south-west strong winds.

CAIRO FEARFUL AS OHIO WATERS START NEW RISE

Reinforcements Rushed To 60-Foot Bulwarks Stretching 7 Miles Around City

SOUTH IS OPTIMISTIC

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (AP)—Flood-seiged Cairo at the crisis of its historic battle against the river, stood a grim "crest watch" today. The muddy Ohio was rising again.

After a 15-hour standstill, as though gathering strength for the final assault before spilling its crest into the Mississippi, the big stream brimmed to a new record-breaking height against Cairo's 60-foot seawall.

The gauge showed 59.6 feet—less than six inches from the top of the huge concrete barrier. The big test, United States army engineers said, will come when the waters begin pounding against the three-foot emergency bulwark of earth and wood.

Forty-one railroad flatcars, loaded with drift-filled sacks, were stationed at strategic points around the inside of the seven-mile levee system that borders the city—ready to plug breaks in the dike.

South Waits Uncertain

But the wide valley, accustomed to the vagaries of the capricious stream, figuratively crossed its fingers and awaited developments. The beleaguered seawall city of Cairo, at the confluence of the Ohio and the Mississippi, was doubly alert after being warned by Mayor August Bode against "premature rejoicing."

Some thought the crest had passed last night, after the river had remained stationary for 15 hours; when it again began to creep higher, the United States Coastguard ordered its first all-night patrol along the levee front.

Major R. D. Burdick of the United States Army Engineers, predicted the Cairo gauge might rise slightly during the next two days, but was not worried.

"The crest is in sight and the magnitude of the stage has been pretty definitely indicated," he said.

New Madrid, O., below Cairo, was saddened by word that the bodies of 15 victims of Saturday night's barge sinking had been recovered, and 14 were missing. Army engineers said dredging operations in the spillway where the barge sank would continue until all bodies had been recovered.

Weather Brightens

Jury Returns No Bill In Cases Of Harrington And Cockerill

AUTO FATALITIES

James Allen Will Appear For Sentence On Thursday Morning

Edward Harrington, 35-year-old Ennismore Township bachelor-farmer and Allen Cockerill of 285 King George street this city were both discharged by Mr. Justice Hogg when the Grand Jury at noon today returned a "no bill" on each of two manslaughter charges against the accused at the assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario here.

James Allen, 24-year-old local vacuum cleaner salesman against whom the Grand Jury returned a "true bill" was arraigned on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of Fred Gandy, 14-year-old cyclist who was fatally injured in an accident at the east end of Hunter street bridge late in September last.

The accused pleaded guilty to the charge, after which the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who apeared as counsel in each of the three criminal cases on the docket, moved for sentence of Allen.

Sentence Deferred

Accepting the suggestion of C. L. Snyder, K.C., special crown prosecutor, His Lordship deferred sentence until Thursday morning intimating that he would read over a transcript of the evidence taken at the coroner's inquest into the death of the lad, and would visit the location where he was allegedly struck from his bicycle by the accused's car.

The grand jury retired shortly after the opening of the assizes Tuesday afternoon to consider the three charges of manslaughter presented to them, which all arose as the result of automobile fatalities.

On their return at 12.20 p.m. today they were asked by Sheriff F. J. A. Harstone, clerk of the court:

"Gentlemen of the Grand Jury have you anything to present to My Lord the King's Justice?"

William L. Ferguson, as foreman of the jury presented the three indictments, after which His Lordship discharged Harrington and Cockerill, and then arraigned Allen, before adjourning court until 3.30 p.m.

HAD TWO MOLARS PULLED FOR FUN

Kitchener Man Recalls Travelling Dentist Who Was Actually Painless

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP).—Dr. J. E. Hett today recalled that 55 years ago when he was a boy of 12 he had a tooth pulled just to see whether it hurt, and when he found it didn't he was still not convinced but had a second one pulled.

Dr. Hett was commenting on the visit to Kitchener in its early days of a travelling dentist who brought with him a large negro orchestra which played music while the teeth were pulled.

"A tall, well-set man with a powerful right arm, the so-called dentist confined himself entirely to extraction and he was an expert," said Dr. Hett. "The patients stood in line and there were perhaps 30 or 40 of them.

"Each patient was requested to put a finger on the tooth to be pulled. The dentist grabbed suitable forceps, threw it about four feet in the air, caught it correctly as it came down, and in another moment the extracted tooth would be thrown into the audience.

"No patient would say the operation hurt, so to prove it to myself, I went up. I was 12 years old at the time. I put my finger on a large molar, and it was snapped out in a jiffy. I felt nothing. Still not convinced, I placed my finger on another molar and this was jerked out. There was absolutely no pain. This was long before anaesthetics were discovered," he said, remarking "we certainly had some good shows in those days."

SIGNS BRIGHT FOR FRESH DEAL OTTAWA POWER

Supply Of 96,000 Horsepower For Hydro Suspected Key Of Negotiations

SESSIONS CONTINUE

No Expectations Of Immediate Settlement Is All Roebuck Has To Say

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (C.P.)—Prospects of a revised agreement with the Ottawa Valley Power Company for a supply of 96,000 horse-power to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission were canvassed to-day as negotiations between the Commission and the company went into their second day.

Those handling the negotiations for the Government are Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, and T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Power Commission. Mr. Roebuck and Mr. McQuesten are the Government representatives on the Commission. Ottawa Valley Company negotiators are H. J. Symington, director; G. A. Gaherty, vice-president, and a company engineer.

Following yesterdays conference, Mr. Lyon said he could not say what steps were to be taken. He added: "We have not yet come to grips with discussion of the conditions under which the contracts should be renewed."

"There is no expectation of any immediate settlement of the contract situation arising out of our conversations to-day," commented Attorney-General Roebuck after yesterday's meeting.

Co-owner at Chats Falls.

Ottawa Valley Power Company is co-owner with the Power Commission of the Chats Falls development on the Upper Ottawa River. It formerly had a contract to supply the Commission with 96,000 horse-power, but the Legislature enabled the Government to declare the contract null.

The legislation enabling the declaration of nullity was ruled ultra vires. The Ottawa Valley Company obtained judgment in the courts for more than $1,500,000. Ontario has instituted an appeal to the Privy Council.

Last Friday the Legislature gave third reading to three Bills to protect the Commission from effect of judgment and to protect it against further actions in law.

Four companies were affected by the 1935 legislation. With two of them, Gatineau Power Company and MacLaren Quebec Power Company, revised contracts have been made. Ottawa Valley and the Beauharnois Power, Light and Heat Company took their case to the courts and both have obtained judgments against the Commission.

NEW FACTORIES BILL

LONDON, Feb. 3 (C.P. Cable). — The government's new factories bill was issued today. It provides:

(1) A maximum working week of 48 hours for women and young persons, instead of the existing 60-hour week in non-textile and 55½ in textile factories;

(2) That overtime be limited to 100 hours in the year and six in a week for young persons under 16.

The proposed bill would come into force July 1, 1938.

HIGH TIDES

OVERTON, N.S.—(C.P.). — Tides rose to a tremendous height along this coast, and shingles from Howard Watkins home were carried off by the waves. Windows were smashed also and several inches of water swirled into the house.

For 10 years there has not been a single fatal accident on the State railways of New South Wales, Australia, an official report states.

Anchor Ice Cripples Campbellford Pumps

Campbellford, Feb. 3.

THE whole town was without water for a brief period after 8.30 Tuesday evening when the anchor ice which was forming in the water crippled both pumps at the pumping station in the fire hall. Reports from there indicated that there was very little chance of getting the pumps back in operation again before morning. However the town was not without fire protection because the woolen mill in the case of an emergency could supply sufficient force to give adequate protection. It was only a matter of fifteen minutes before the proper adjustments were made and the pressure was on.

George E. Thompson Gives Interesting Address To Springbrook Institute

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGBROOK, Feb. 3. — The regular meeting of the Springbrook Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon of last week at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) H. W. Foley, Springbrook, with a splendid attendance. President, Mrs. George A. Bailey, was in the chair.

The roll call "Uses for stale bread," was well responded to, everyone having valuable uses for same.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. W. J. Barlow.

The chairman of the relief program, Mrs. T. H. Webb, then took charge. The motto, "How to get the best out of life," was given by Mrs. Jason Baker, who brought out some very good ideas. Mrs. Geo. Bailey gave a splendid paper on "A well-balanced W.I." She said, "Be an active member, not just belong." She also gave ten rules for a successful W. I.

Mr. Geo. E. Thompson, Reeve of Rawdon Township, gave a very instructive and interesting talk on relief which was greatly appreciated by all.

A splendid exhibit, "Using odds to make ends" was put on by Mesdames E. Spry and A. McComb and Miss E. Bailey. Various articles were displayed showing how to use them to advantage, making something worthwhile out of odd pieces of material.

After a discussion on relief a small sum was voted to the fund for flood sufferers in U.S.A. and it was decided to pay the rent for three months for a needy lady in the community.

A cake contest was put on by Mrs. Walter Heath and a reading entitled "The Millionaire," was given by Mrs. T. H. Webb, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a social half hour spent.

SENATE DEBATES TRANSPORT BODY'S CONTROL POWERS

Bill May Even Demand Vehicles On Federal Roads Carry Dominion Licenses

RULE AIR, WATER TRAFFIC

OTTAWA, Feb. 3 (CP)—The Senate today will continue debate on the long-expected government bill to change the Board of Railway Commissioners into a board of transport commissioners having wide authority over every branch of commercial transportation in the country.

The bill would provide the transport minister with power to license shipping between Canadian ports, air transport and interprovincial highway transport and would place in the hands of the board authority to regulate tolls charged by companies engaged in such traffic much as the railway board now regulates rail rates.

It would give the minister and the commission authority over all traffic using federal highways, perhaps demanding even that motorized vehicles using such roads carry Dominion license plates.

The only federal highway in this country now is the trans-Canada highway launched under the Bennett administration as an unemployment relief measure.)

The bill would transfer to the new board all the powers now possessed by the Board of Railway Commissioners, including control over passenger and freight rates, time tables, extension of branch lines, discontinuance of services and the like.

Require Filing Tariffs

Its object is to provide co-ordinated regulation of all forms of transportation under the Dominion's jurisdiction, so that no branch shall be free of restrictions and regulations affecting others. It would require water and air transport companies for the first time to file their tariffs for review.

The minister would have power to license ships to carry goods and passengers "from a port or place in Canada to another port or place in Canada," issuing the license in the name of the owner in such form that it might be applicable to more than one ship.

In the licenses the minister would have authority to specify the ports between which the ships might operate and the time-table of services they must maintain. The bill said he would issue such licenses only if he was satisfied the proposed services were or would be required.

The bill stipulates no ship will be licensed which was imported into Canada more than 10 years after being built.

None of these restrictions are applicable under the bill itself to international water-borne traffic, such as sailings between Canadian and United States lake ports, but the bill discloses they may be made applicable to such services by proc-

PEARL RETRIEVED FROM GUNNYSACK

Danish Paper Makes Much Of Ear-ring Found In Migrating Rock Wool

NEW YORK, Feb 3 (CP) — A shiny, round, large, self-satisfied pearl ear-ring, nestled in a bed of rock wool—threads of stone—is on the last lap of a journey back to the ear of its owner after a trip to Copenhagen, Denmark.

The ear-ring, a cheap product which makes a good pretense to class, was apparently lost in a sack of rock wool being inspected by one of the 100 women employed by the producing company in Indiana.

Oct. 14. William C. Hyatt, general manager of the export division of the company, had 660 sacks of the wool which is actually made of threads of stone melted at a temperature of 3,000 degrees, dispatched to a Copenhagen firm. The ear-ring, apparently, was in one of these sacks.

The shipment reached Copenhagen in two weeks and was taken to the factory to be pressed in large plates. During this process a workman discovered the ear-ring and excitedly reported it to the manager. The two-column newspaper account, as translated in Copenhagen and sent to Mr. Hyatt, said, in part:

"The only one in America who does not think of Roosevelt today is a dark-haired girl in one of the factory cities in one of the central states. She grieves and groans by a pairing loss—she has lost a pearl, a glorious, big, beaming pearl which her friend had given her and which she has lost. And now the sunbeam story comes about a negro girl's ear-ring that made the travel over the half-globe in a bag containing uncommon wadding; and afterwards it was on the very point of being bricked into a wall of the new building in Holmens Kanal belonging to the office for the management of the estates of minors . . .

"Without throwing a groundless suspicion upon any other nation, we dare assert that what now happened with this pearl would never happen on any other place in the world. And it should be noticed with joy as a characteristic evidence about the solid honesty and respect for possession of the Danish laborers. . ."

Mr. Hyatt says the company employs no negroes. He is sending a reward to the Danish workman who returned the ear-ring.

Continue To Press For Federal Assistance

DEBT-LADEN LINE SHOWING PROFIT BUT AID WANTED

Pacific Great Eastern Railway Was Begun But Never Finished

HAS NO TERMINALS

By JOHN B. TOMPKINS
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

VANCOUVER, Feb. 3. — "The P.G.E.'s making money," you'll hear from the 70,000 odd taxpayer-owners of a 350-mile single-tracked railway in British Columbia. And they may add, "It's about time, too," for the Pacific Great Eastern Railway has thus far cost the people of British Columbia some $80,000,000, according to government figures. Interest charges on the railroad's debt are estimated to be $8,000 a day.

During the pre-war railway expansion era in Western Canada, a firm of American and Canadian contractors dreamed of connecting the seaport of Vancouver with the rich Peace River block. They had an agreement with the new Grand Trunk Pacific line to Prince Rupert, whereby that road was to route all its passengers, freight and mail destined for Vancouver over the P.G.E. from Prince George. Bonds for construction at $42,000 were issued. The British Columbia government, glad to have a railway traverse the central section of the province, guaranteed the bonds with interest at 4½ per cent. The bond sale made the mark of $20,160,000.

No Terminals

All went well until the winter of 1917-18. Then the contractors defaulted. British Columbia automatically entered the transportation business with a line stretching 120 miles over some of the most rugged country in Canada from Squamish to Lillooet. Finally it was pushed forward to Quesnel, a distance of 350 miles from Squamish. But still the road lacked 30 miles on its southern end to connect with Vancouver. From Quesnel to Prince George lay 85 miles of uncompleted railway to the junction with the Grand Trunk Pacific. Thus it has been since 1921—a railway without terminals; a middle but no ends.

Although the country was largely undeveloped, the service offered by the Pacific Great Eastern proved no particular encouragement to those who might settle. Business amounted to only a little lumber, some cattle and what equipment and supplies a mine perhaps needed. People of the district themselves looked upon the railway as a joke. To them it was a "white elephant." Each election campaign found him capering across the pages of coast newspapers. Its ancient equipment was cursed and cussed on all sides. Those who normally might use its transportation facilities laughed and said they could reach the coast quicker by "walking" to Ashcroft and the Canadian Pacific or Canadian National Railways.

In 1926, the government gave the line some 16,000,000 acres of top-notch land valued at $80,000,000. It was intended to lure a sale — but who wanted to buy? At times, it was said, the Canadian Pacific was interested. Then perhaps headlines would tell of New York or London interests looking the ground over. Other rumors said it would become a part of the Canadian National system. None materialized.

Business Reviving

British Columbia still operates the railway. But to-day conditions are much different. Someone discovered gold in the Bridge River district. The old Cariboo goldfields of the 1860's have been revived. Surveys estimate that new ore deposits will last for years. New towns — permanent towns! — are springing up. Lumber prices are climbing and the empire markets are wide open for British Columbia Douglas fir. Farmers are getting better prices for their products and ranchers are making money on their beef. The Pacific Great Eastern is starting to buy its own coal. Equipment is being renewed; tracks are being relaid.

Profits are being turned back into construction. The era of prosperity on the P.G.E. has been a long time coming, but now that it is here, conditions seem to indicate it will stay. Since 1928 two Bridge River mines alone have produced well over $20,000,000 worth of gold. To the much abused Pacific Great Eastern it is manna from heaven.

Operating at a Profit

The line is now more or less respected by its owners, but they nevertheless would toss less in their sleep were they rid of it. Various political parties, both provincial and Dominion, have promised completion to the Peace River block, but the vast open stretches between Prince George and the Peace River have yet to be awakened by a locomotive whistle at a cost of $28,000,000.

British Columbia's Premier Pattullo is at present visiting the federal government. The prime reason for his visit is to obtain a separate royal commission to investigate affairs in British Columbia. It is expected, however, that he will again bring forward the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, uncompleted since 1921.

"Since we have taken office, the Pacific Great Eastern Railway has shown an operating profit, but that does not mean to say we will not continue to press the Dominion government to take it over," he recently declared.

State Offers Bait To Marriage-Minded

Vaduz, Liechtenstein, Feb. 3 (AP)

DR. Joseph Hoop set out today to bandage the economic wounds of 65-mile-square Liechtenstein.

The Administrator of this tiny principality nestling between Austria and Switzerland decided upon:

1. Subsidization of those couples who want to be married, if they are willing to buy household goods in Liechtenstein.
2. A decree ordering all school children to buy and wear school uniforms—also at home—in the next twelve months.
3. Public works, mostly the building of dams.

Urges Moratorium

JOHN HARGRAVE

Returning to England after two months' study of finances in the province of Alberta, which he terminated by declaring that the government of Premier Wm. Aberhart was vacillating in its proposed Social Credit policy, John Hargrave, Social Credit leader in the United Kingdom, declared in Ottawa that Alberta could not hope to pay its debts, public and private, plus interest charges. He declared that a debt moratorium was the only immediate solution to Alberta's tangled financial problem.

SPEEDS SERVICE FOR ELOPEMENTS

Arizona's New Marrying Justice Looks For Big Business In Yuma

YUMA, Ariz., Feb. 3 (CP)—This western Gretna Green is starting the new year with "right now" service for altar-bound Hollywood couples and others.

Constable Ed. Winn, who exchanges his gun for a Bible to succeed Earl A. Freeman as "marrying justice" of the peace, has a head full of plans for speeding up things. His program calls for moving his residence from the outskirts into the middle of Yuma, and burning the lights all night as a guide to elopers.

"These folks who want to get married in a hurry and go to the expense of chartering an airplane to bring them to Arizona aren't going to hunt all over a strange town for a justice of the peace," Winn says.

The easy-going, horse-trading former Texan plans to be ready at all hours. Through years of experience as a peace officer, he has learned to awaken easily and clothe himself quickly—there'll be no long waits on his front porch, he promises.

Freeman, who is retiring after "splicing an estimated 25,000 couples," says a decade of this sort of life has made his hair gray and broken his health. Recently, those night-time visitors included John Barrymore and Elaine Barrie, who arrived at midnight in a chartered plane. Justice Freeman "had the knot tied in the blink of an eye."

Winn says marriages will be conducted "on the same high level." The fee will remain the same, "customarily" $5. Movie stars usually pay more, but seldom above $25. On this basis, it is estimated the office has paid Freeman about $150,000 in marriage fees alone.

Plans Lasting Memorial Of Esteem For Britain And Her Rulers.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 3 (C.P.-Reuters) —Belgium is understood to be planning a lasting memorial of the sympathy and esteem of her people for Great Britain and her sovereigns in connection with the forthcoming coronation of King George VI.

A committee is said to be in course of formation to offer such a token to King George and Queen Elizabeth. One unofficial suggestion is that it should take the form of a seaside preventorium for British and Belgian children needing fresh air.

STAMPS TO BE RUSH JOB.

LONDON, Feb. 3 — (C.P.)—The question of stamps still troubles some M.P.'s.

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, asked if the advice of the Royal Fine Art Commission would be taken before the next design was decided.

Sir W. Womersley, Assistant Postmaster-General, replied he would bear the suggestion in mind, but if the stamps of the new reign were wanted for the Coronation there would not be much time for consideration.

HOME LOAN PLAN IS ADVANCED STEP UNDER HEAVY FIRE

Move To Curb Canadian Performing Rights Society Ousted On Rinfret's Advice

LETHAL GAS TO BE STUDIED

OTTAWA, Feb. 3—(C.P.)—Popularity of the Home Rehabilitation Loan scheme has been admitted by many House speakers, but the bill to give it parliamentary sanction has come under heavy fire. Finance Minister Dunning got second reading for the measure yesterday without opposition, but in committee so much criticism was offered that only one section passed.

During the hour devoted to private bills the measure introduced by W. K. Esling (Cons., Kootenay West), designed to curb further the powers of the Canadian Performing Rights Society, was defeated in the first division of the session.

Eight Liberals and all the Opposition groups voted for the bill. The remaining Liberals acted on the recommendation of State Secretary Rinfret, that the bill should be rejected. The vote was 71 to 58.

It was Government Day, and the House had a varied menu. Group leaders joined with Prime Minister King in expressions of regret at the sudden death, Monday, of Herbert Wilton, Conservative member for Hamilton West.

Justice Minister Lapointe named a special committee to study possible changes in the Criminal Code to substitute lethal gas chambers for the gallows in legal executions.

Redistribution Move

Mr. Lapointe also gave notice of a resolution referring to the committee on elections the study of redistribution methods as carried on in Canada and other countries. This was an assurance given H. A. Brunelle (Lib., Champlain), who previously sought appointment of a parliamentary committee to draft amendments to the Redistribution Act of 1933 so that alleged injustices could be corrected.

The last part of the sitting was occupied with estimates of the Department of National Revenue and the Postmaster General. The committee of Ways and Means voted $1,026,375 for salaries and contingencies in the Revenue Department.

T. L. Church (Cons., Toronto-Broadview), criticized the home loans measure, on the ground it would not benefit the great mass of industrial workers who had no homes. That class was being neglected, he charged, and he was supported in this argument by James S. Woodsworth (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre).

The bill sanctions the scheme initiated last fall whereby the Dominion guarantees the bank against 15 per cent. of the possible loss of an aggregate of $50,000,000 which may be loaned without security to home owners for repairs and improvements.

Social Aspect For Planned Meeting.

The special Memorial service planned by the members of the Confederation Home and School Association, to honor the memory of the founder of the movement, the late Mrs. A. C. Courtice of Toronto, in the twenty-first year since its inauguration, resolved itself on Monday night, owing to a great deal of illness among the members, to a small informal meeting of a social type.

Four of the ladies repeated the little playlet, "How the Home and School Association was Founded", with Mesdames E. L. Ainslie, D. McPhail, B. Millard, and P. Wight taking part; the Rev. F. W. Craik gave a brief talk; Art Pitchford sang, and June Wight recited an interesting piece composed by Mrs. E. Wand, in which each line, in the fashion of an acrostic, starts with a letter of the screed: "Home and School". Later, refreshments were served.

The Specialist

Whether in the commercial, financial or professional line, the "specialist" is the one who is mostly in demand.

WHY?

Because he has mastered his particular line in every detail. Naturally those whose vision is defective consult an eye sight specialist.

Canada and Its Literature

Fourth Of Lecture Series Is Concerned With Writers Of Dominion

The fourth of the series of lectures under the Education Department of the Y.W.C.A. was held on Tuesday evening. Miss Olive Ziegler's subject was "Canada, Through its Literature". After a brief survey of the present European situation, with special reference to Hitler's and Blum's recent speeches, she traced the growth of Canadian life by reading excerpts from Canadian Authors. Indian life was portrayed through Pauline Johnson's "The Corn Huskers". Willa Cather's "Shadow on the Rock" gave a vivid picture of the French regime in Quebec. Laura Salverson's "The Viking Heart" tells the tragic but finally triumphant struggle of a family of western immigrants of fifty years ago.

References to Marjorie Pickthall's exquisite poem of the Jesuit mission near Midland, Archibald Lampman's, "The Largest Life" and for humour, Wilson Macdonald's "Maggie Schwartz" and Judge Haliburton's "Sam Slick," brought the lecture to a close.

An informal discussion period followed and Miss Ziegler announced her closing lecture, "The Co-operative Movement," suggesting for reading, "Sweden, the Middle Way" by Child.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

I TRUST in nature for the stable laws
Of beauty and utility. Spring shall plant
And Autumn garner to the end of time.
I trust in God—the right shall be the right
And other than the wrong, while He endures.
I trust in my own soul, that can perceive
The outward and the inward—Nature's good
And God's.

—Robert Browning.

Dear Friends:

Just the other day a group of women were discussing the right and the wrong of things. Some of them claimed that women had the same rights as men, and others said "Try and get it."

But no matter how we blink the fact, no matter how it has come about, men have, and always will have, more privileges than women. A man can go out and drink, and unless for saying what a fool he is or he might better do something else with his money, no one thinks much the worse of him for doing it.

Yet if a woman went out and did the very same thing, people would raise their hands in horror. Oh, I know women drink these days, but not nearly so many women as men even now, and still they have to hide it more or less.

A man can be immoral, and unless for a few comments against him (if he is found out) he is not turned down by other men, or women either, as a matter of fact.

But if a woman lets herself go, none of her friends want to have anything to do with her. She is just exercising the same rights as a man does, but she is considered much lower in the doing of it.

And why do you think it is like that? Partly because men have caused it to be like that, no doubt about it. They wanted their women pure and up on a pedestal, but wanted freedom for themselves.

But there is much more to it than that. Women are the mothers of the world, whether they bear children or not, and they cannot let themselves down without letting down all humanity.

Do not think I am claiming that women are better than men, but they are more near to God because they are the ones who bring new lives into the world, and due to that they MUST keep themselves from the follies that men feel free to pursue.

A child depends on the mother more than the father in the majority of cases. He looks up to her as the pattern of all the virtues, and how can she ever train him right, if she is not doing right herself?

How can she teach him to be moral if she herself is immoral? How can she teach him to be temperate, if she is intemperate? How can she tell him to be good if she is not good?

You may say that it took two to bring this new life about, but it is the woman who has more time with her children than the man. He is out earning the money to live, and cannot be there and home also training his children.

So it is to the mother that the child looks for guidance, and when she lets that child down she is doing a terrible thing. When she lets herself go, she is pulling down something fine that I am sure our Maker intended her to be.

You have as much RIGHT as a man to lower yourself, to live as you like, to plaster yourself all over with the mud of loose living, but you have no RIGHT to lower the fine thing that God meant you to be.

And so, struggle as you may, you might as well learn sooner as later, that you cannot, nor ever will be able to, do the things a man does and get away with it. You might as well realize that you are made of finer clay, not better than men, but meant to keep the spiritual things alive in humanity.

Here is what Lord Tennyson says of women:

"Man for the field, the Woman for the hearth:
Man for the sword, and for the needle she:
Man with the head, and woman with the heart:
Man to command, and woman to obey;
All else confusion."

So, if you are a woman BE a woman, and realize that if men have their rights, women also have theirs, which men can never encroach on. More later about the rights which women have.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Colored Views Of Holy Land

Rev. Galvin Shows C. W. L. Members Pictures Of Palestine

Views of his recent trip to Palestine, which he showed some weeks ago to a large audience in East City, were repeated by the Rev. P. J. Galvin of Grafton, at a meeting of the Catholic Women's League of St. Peter's Cathedral, held on Monday evening at St. Alphonsus Lyceum and presided over by Miss Lillian Hurley. There was a good attendance and the program of the meeting proved very entertaining, with an additional interest in a talk on Dental Hygiene given by Dr. H. Thompson of Toronto.

Dr. Thompson stressed the fact that the nourishment and building-up of the teeth should receive as much attention as any other organ of the body. He declared that the general health is governed by the condition of the teeth and mentioned the importance attached by the British Government to the preservation of the teeth.

Rev. Father Galvin's views, which were reported on fully at the first showing, were colored and were most enlightening giving a splendid idea of the customs of the people of Palestine and their methods of harvesting and of transportation. They included also many pictures of the Holy Places of Palestine; the Basilica of the Nativity, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Tomb of Lazarus and the Garden of Gethsemane.

The music of the evening was comprised of a piano solo by Miss Alma Duffy, A.T.C.M., and songs by Clifford Hall, accompanied by Miss Margaret Hurley.

A vote of thanks to the speakers and musicians was voiced by Mrs. J. F. O'Brien and seconded by Mrs. T. J. Ryan.

Miss Heideman Heads Chapter

Local Branch Of I.O.D.E. Holds Meeting—Plans Made For Doughnut Day

Miss Anne Heideman was elected as Regent of the Jeanette Scott Chapter of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, at the second annual meeting of the Chapter, held on Monday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Killaly, Weller Street, with Mrs. Robert Allin, Regent for the past two years, presiding.

The list of officers for the coming year is as follows: Mrs. R. E. Birdsall and Mrs. F. E. Hooper, honorary Regents; Miss Anne Heideman, Regent; Miss Grace Comstock, first vice-regent; Miss Mary Mulholland, second vice-regent; Mrs. Ross Thompson, secretary; Miss Dorothy Gavine, treasurer; Miss K. Kingston, Educational secretary; Mrs. Robert McWilliams, "Echoes" secretary; Miss Isabella Reid, press secretary; Miss Elizabeth Mulholland, Standard-bearer. Councillors include Mrs. J. B. Bailey, Miss Marcelle McNulty, Miss Mildred Morphet, Miss Elizabeth Killaly, and Miss Betsy Scott.

An interesting report of the Chapter's activities during the past year was presented by Miss Lahring Parsons, with especial mention of provision of shoes for children at the Shelter. Miss Marion Hall gave the financial statement.

Mrs. Birdsall was elected to carry the Chapter's vote to the National convention of the Order, while Mrs. F. Hooper will perform a similar office at the Provincial convention.

Mrs. Allin, retiring Regent, gave a resume of the Chapter's work, and welcomed the new officers, speaking in encouragement of the I.O.D.E. endeavors.

Under the new Regent, Miss Heideman, plans were made to celebrate the second anniversary of the granting of the charter to the Chapter, by having a Doughnut Day on February 27. A special committee in charge of arrangements will be headed by Mrs. Ralph Honey. Miss Mildred Morphet, and Miss Vi Davidson.

WEDDINGS

WAGAR—FAULKNER

The wedding took place in Oshawa at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon of Dorland Floyd Wagar, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Wagar of Park street north, and Adella Aileen Faulkner, daughter of Mrs. A. J. Faulkner and the late Mr. Faulkner. The ceremony, which took place at the home of the bride's mother, was solemnized by the Rev. R. Robb.

The bride, who was attired in white taffeta with tulle veil and bouquet of pink and yellow roses and white carnations, was attended by the bridegroom's sister, Miss Elsa Wagar, wearing blue taffeta with pink carnations.

Russell Faulkner, brother of the bride, was best man.

After a brief motor trip to Toronto, when the bride travelled in a grey tweed suit with matching accessories, Mr. and Mrs. Wagar arrived in Peterborough, where they will live.

Putting It Up to the President

The committee of the Kiwanis Club in Peterborough in charge of packing and despatching a car loaded with goods for those in the flooded district near Cincinnati found the President of United States is not a difficult person to reach. It was not even necessary to leave Peterborough to have him do something which needed doing.

It happened this way: The committee had heard that cars sent from other points had been held at the border for inspection, and that the recipients of relief supplies were called upon to pay duty on the goods, nor could such duty be prepaid at the point of shipment.

The American Consul in Toronto was made aware of the situation, and he was willing to do what he could, but admitted his scope was limited. It was suggested that he place the matter directly before President Roosevelt because the Peterborough people wanted the goods to go through quickly with no interruption and they did not want the recipients to have to pay duty on them.

Inside of eight hours the answer came from the American Consul in Toronto saying that he had been advised as a result of his communication with Washington that the President had issued a proclamation providing for the free entry of certain kinds of donations intended for flood sufferers, and that collectors of customs at the Canadian border were being immediately notified by telegraph.

And that of course makes the situation just as it ought to be. There was no trouble whatever securing goods for shipment because the people here wanted to contribute, and when people want to do a thing you have the finest and highest motive in the world on which to operate. The speed with which the President acted when the matter was placed fairly before him is indicative of a rather delightful absence of the red tape with which border transactions are generally believed to be involved. If any red tape existed then Mr. Roosevelt cut through it rapidly and effectively. It is entirely in conformity with the desires of human nature that if the folk in Canada desire to send assistance to those in United States they should be able to do it directly and with no interference from customs officials.

He'd Be a Santa Claus

Dr. W. D. Smith, M.L.A. for East Simcoe, speaking at the Liberal Club meeting in Toronto, discussed the price charged for car markers. The speaker claimed it was not fair to charge a farmer who drove about 600 miles a year the same price as the man with the larger car. His argument as reported in a Toronto paper was this:

> The farmer who drives an inexpensive car perhaps not more than 600 miles per year, and is embarrassed in gathering the necessary $7, should not be expected to pay as much as the man driving a twelve-cylinder expensive car 50,000 miles per annum, and who now pays the same price for his marker.

There is something decidedly and entirely wrong with that. If Mr. Smith made that statement he ought to visit the Highways Department and look over the scale of prices for various cars. It runs this way:

Four cylinder car, $7.

Six cylinder, up to 28 H.P. $12; over that amount of power $15.

Eight cylinder, up to 35 H.P., $15; over that amount of power $20.

Twelve cylinder, $30, and sixteen cylinder, $40. The man with the small car of few cylinders does not pay as much as the man who owns the more powerful car with many cylinders.

If the member for East Simcoe advocates that the man who, through road conditions, makes use of his car only a short time in the year, should pay less than the owner who can use roads every day in the year, he has a good argument.

Actually, though, the man driving his "Twelve-cylinder expensive car 50,000 miles per annum" would be a regular old Santa Claus for the government compared with the man who drove only 600 miles in a year. We will allow the man with the smaller car 20 miles to a gallon of gas and when driving 600 miles he would pay the government but $1.80 in revenue at the rate of six cents per gallon. The man with the big 12-cylinder car would think he was doing fairly well if he were to get 15 miles out of a gallon; he might get much less. But put the figure at 15 miles for his 50,000 miles of driving, and he would hand over in gas tax $199.98.

The "War Guilt" Clause

Hitler has "withdrawn" the clause of the Treaty of Versailles declaration which stated Germany was guilty of having started the War of 1914-18. The Woodstock Sentinel-Review suggests that our school histories might be withdrawn until some person figures out who did start that war.

In making that gesture Hitler did exactly what the people of Germany wanted done. He would be conforming to the sentiment of not merely a few of his people but all of them, and it is not often a national leader can count on doing something which pleases all the people in the country.

There are a number of Canadian newspaper editors who can recall having arrived at Cologne on the 28th day of June, 1929. The central part of the city was so crowded that it was difficult to reach the Hotel Eden. It was the annual day of protest against the war guilt clause. Even the peasant class, often enough unaffected by what goes on in the larger centres, were in attendance by thousands. There were few speeches, but the people stood for hours silent, and they were either sad or sullen. It was their annual day of protest against the "war guilt" clause. All the usual gaiety and exuberance of the day's outing was missing. An interpreter furnished the information that the people of Germany felt they had been dealt with unjustly when the stigma of guilt or blame had been openly attached to them as being the people who started the war. It was also explained that if some of those in authority had been anticipating war these people knew nothing about it. When the day was over the great throngs simply picked up and went back home and they had come from considerable distance, chiefly from points along the valley of the Rhine. No person who witnessed that strange gathering could fail to have been impressed with the fact that there were no two opinions on the "war guilt" declaration of the Treaty of Versailles. It was a sore point with the German people, and with all of them.

When Hitler "withdrew" that guilt clause it did not remove it, but it did something of which all the people in Germany approved. He is smart enough to make such a stroke and that is one reason why he is able to so thoroughly dominate the situation in his country today.

Pasteurization of Milk

Peterborough City Council decided to do nothing about making the pasteurization of milk compulsory—for the present. The movement toward pasteurization can hardly be ignored, nor should it be. It is already compulsory to pasteurize milk offered for sale in the following Ontario municipalities:

Aurora	Iroquois Falls	Oshawa
Barrie	Kapuskasing	Port Colborne
Carleton Place	Kingston	Richmond Hill
Cochrane	Kirkland Lake	St. Catharines
Dundas	Leamington	Simcoe
Dunnville	Leaside	Sudbury
Forest	Meaford	Timmins
Fort Erie	Newmarket	Toronto
Forest Hill	Niagara Falls	Welland
Galt	North Bay	Whitby
Hamilton	Orillia	Windsor

Records show there is not a county in southern Ontario which has not had a case of undulant fever, and undulant fever is a disease in man due to the same organism which causes contagious abortion in cattle. The disease has not been known in children of four years of age, but it has occurred in the group of from five to nine years, although major occurrence is found after 25 years of age. The fever is accompanied by drenching sweats, aching, lassitude and complete disability, and doctors have not yet found a treatment to which the patient responds. The sickness is of the recurring variety. The disease attacks humans not only through drinking milk from infected animals, but from working in barns where the cattle are housed or in abattoirs where meat from such animals comes for inspection or usage. The Public Health Association claim that pasteurization is the only guard against undular fever.

The question of pasteurization is one which always stirs up a lot of feeling. There is the case of the small producer to be considered, and it should be considered fairly, but not out of proportion to the health interests of any community. In such matters we believe it is right to ask the opinion of men who make it a business to know. If a man feels sick he goes and asks the doctor what to do; if the furnace is not working the man of the house asks an expert to come and see what the trouble is. If the car refuses to go the man at the garage is sent for, and if a man's eyes bother him he goes and consults a specialist. All these things we do, and each is evidence of the same thing—we desire the advice and aid of some one who knows more than we do about some particular subject. For that reason the Examiner feels pasteurization is something which will come eventually, and we believe it is sound and kindly advice that those interested in the production and distribution of milk should anticipate the coming change. Truth is most of the people in the city are using pasteurized milk now, and figures submitted to us from authorities show that over 75 per cent. of the milk and cream sold in the city has been so treated.

The Meaning Is Plain

A good many statistics when revealed through charts are hard to understand. The average man regards them as a collection of wiggling lines, some up, some down, and some just plain straight ahead.

The Canadian General Electric has issued one which is different. It is almost so plain that he who runs may read and at the same time understand what it is all about. Taken from Dominion Government statistics its shows the Canadian central stations output of electric energy in millions of killowatt-hours, and the comparison takes in the years from 1925 until the end of 1936. To be sure there is one black line which goes up and down, but there is also a red line showing the average and general trend for the year and it is so easy to follow.

There was a gradual climb from 1925 until the end of 1929, and then a gradual dropping off until September 1932. From there the rise has been gradual but continued. We often speak of 1929 as the height of all things, prosperity, foolishness and all else, but the power consumption figure of 1929 just touched in the 1560 mark (that is, 1560 million killowatt-hours) while the line for December of 1936 reached 2360, and we are informed that the same upward trend is being continued in 1937.

We consider this a reliable indication of business in general. People are not in the habit of using electrical energy for fun. Nor do they use more of it than required. When a machine operated by a motor is not working then the motor is closed off to save power. So in the district served by Canadian central stations the industrial activity at the end of 1936 stood at 2360 compared with a peak of 1560 in the best days of 1929. That indicates plainly that the depression as such is over. What we are dealing with now is the effect of it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

According to Major W. E. G. Murray, head of the Canadian Broadcasting Association, westerners have better speaking voices than their fellow Canadians in the East. In the case of married men however they do not get any better chance to use them.

Business firms are to be forbidden to use the name quints, quins, or quintuplets in unauthorized exploitation. We assume there will be no objection to them paying for the rights, however.

Toronto paper is quoting a lot of figures to prove how much busier and bigger Toronto is than Montreal. We hardly expect the statistics for the two harbors will appear in the list.

Lloyd George announces that his latest book is well-advanced. In view of the trouble some of his earlier efforts occasioned, it is difficult to say whether this is good news or not.

New Brunswick has reduced its salmon fishing fees and that sems about as effective a bit of tourist propaganda as any province has succeeded in producing.

It has been discovered that the roof of the White House leaks and that $400 will be required to repair it. It is to be hoped that Uncle Sam will be able to spare that much from his social service and armament programs.

William Muir, Ontario man, has already arrived in London for the Coronation. He probably believes there is really something in the old adage about the early bird and the worm.

Some Toronto High School janitors receive more net wages than the principals of the schools. Apparently the place to start in the educational field is in the boiler-room rather than in the Normal school or the University.

Premier King has voiced an objection that too many questions are being asked by the members. The rebuke probably went right over the head of Jean Francois Pouliot who holds all records in the question department.

Sun spots are said to be interfering with radio everywhere. We do not expect the new Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to do much about that but they might try their hand at clearing up the interference caused by Mexican stations.

Toronto is already buying ball players for its 1937 team. The season may not be just round the corner but it is not more than a couple of blocks away. The seed catalogues ought to be along any time now.

PRETTY NEAR

(By A. R. K.)

¶ A salesman came in here today, as breezy as the first of May, his raiment too was fine; his little card informed me too, just what he had in mind to do, he owned a little mine.

¶ Some friends of mine had told him too, to see me when he's passing through, that was a kindly thought; he liked to meet a man like me, worth coming twenty miles to see, no matter if I bought.

¶ This mine of his was young, not old, and it was dripping with pure gold, more than he'd ever need; and then he fingered with his chin, and said how if he let me in, 'twould be a noble deed.

¶ He really needed not a dime, but for the sake of friends of mine, he'd open up the book; 'twas just a favor he might do, a kindly thing when passing through, no matter what I took.

¶ He didn't talk in mining terms, of how a tunnel twists and turns, or goodly days or thin; 'twas just a kind thing he might do, when he was here and passing through, and he would let me in.

¶ I might have signed the dotted line, and took a section of his mine, such move I knew was rash; the only thing that saved my stew, was just one little thing I knew—I hadn't any cash.

PAYING MR. FULLERTON

Mr. LEADER:

1. When was C. P. Fullerton appointed to the bench: (a) how long did he serve, and (b) what was the amount of salary received?

2. When was C. P. Fullerton appointed as chief commissioner of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada: (a) how long did he serve, and (b) what was the total amount of his remuneration?

3. When was C. P. Fullerton appointed chairman of the board of trustees of the Canadian National Railways, and what was the amount of his salary?

4. Did C. P. Fullerton receive a gratuity in addition to his salary as chairman of the above board; if so, what was the amount of this gratuity?

5. Is provision being made for granting a pension to C. P. Fullerton; if so, what is the amount of his pension?

6. Will the receipt of this pension preclude Mr. Fullerton from practising his profession in Canada?

Mr. HOWE:

1. July 20, 1917; (a) until August 12, 1931; (b) $7,000 per year from date of appointment until July 1, 1921, when salary was increased to $9,000.

2. August 12, 1931; (a) until December 31, 1933; (b) salary as chief commissioner was $12,500 per annum; total remuneration received was $27,617.60.

3. January 1, 1934, at $30,000 per annum.

4. Following his retirement as chairman of the board of trustees, he received a remunerative payment of $30,000 from Canadian National Railways.

5. He is entitled to a pension of $6,000 per annum as a former judge.

6. No.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Mr. DUNNING: In fairness to the provinces and municipalities I should say that since the scheme has been mooted province after province and municipality after municipality have come forward voluntary and said that so great is the need for stimulating employment that the necessary arrangements will be made so that improvements of this kind will not be made a penalty upon the improvers, within the terms of their assessment acts. I cannot pretend to know personally how they work it out in detail, but I know that the employment commission has succeeded in getting quite a strong body of public opionion behind this thing in order to make it go.

Mr. BENNETT: They should; they are paying a man $4,500 a year for publicity.

Mr. DUNNING: Part of that body of public opinion is shown by the fact that many municipal authorities are willing to cooperate with a view to removing the disadvantage to which my hon. friend refers. I did not catch the remark of the leader of the opposition.

Mr. BENNETT: I said they were paying a man $4,500 a year for publicity.

Mr. DUNNING: I suppose he is earning it; I do not know.

Sir GEORGE PERLEY: Will the fifteen per cent guarantee apply to each individual loan? That is to say, if a bank lends a million dollars altogether, naturally some of those loans will not be repaid. Does the guarantee of fifteen per cent mean that the government is behind the bank to the extent of $150,000 of losses?

Mr. DUNNING: It is an aggregate, not an individual guarantee.

Mr. BENNETT: It applies not to the branches of the bank but to the bank as a whole?

Mr. DUNNING: Yes.

Mr. CLARKE (Rosedale): In regard to these loans, is there any provision which will ensure that one hundred per cent of the amount borrowed will be used in the improvement of the property? Is there any provision in the bill to that effect?

Mr. DUNNING: Yes. If my hon. friend will wait until the bill is introduced I shall be glad to go into that with him, although he will understand that it rests very considerably upon the good faith of the bank in making the loan and following it up.

Mr. GRAYDON: During this discussion we have heard a good deal with reference to home owners in urban places. I should like to have the position of the farmer made clear. Does this scheme apply only to the house on the farm or does it apply to any other buildings which the farmer may desire to repair under this arrangement?

Mr. DUNNING: I can assure my hon. friend that it is not confined to the farmhouse, but if my hon friend will be good enough to wait until the bill is brought down I think all these details will be made clear

CROWN COLORS.

(W. L. Clark in Windsor Star)

IF YOU are planning to go to England for the coronation in May, it is best to know there are four official coronation colors. These have been passed officially by the British Color Council.

They are red, green, blue and gold.

Coronation red is the official crimson of the British Army. It is dark and has quite a bit in common with the Tyrian purple of the Bible.

Coronation blue is the official blue of the Union Jack, which is the same as the Admiralty Royal blue.

Coronation green is described as the green of the forest in spring.

Coronation gold is almost a pastel shade. It is not a green gold nor is it a deep gold—rather it is in between.

These are the official colors and gowns and dresses of materials of the four shades will be featured during the festivities.

A Straight Frontal Attack

(Says Present Act Promotes Dishonesty.)

EDITOR Examiner:

Sir: A farmer paid $10,000.00 cash for a farm. Wishing to retire, he sold it for $3,000.00 cash and a mortgage for $6,000.00 at 5 per cent. Dying, his estate left to his widow and invalid daughter, was their only support. Until 1934 the purchaser kept up payments on principal and interest. Then he, via deliberate intent, neglected to pay either so as to qualify for relief via the F.C.A. Act, asking for a reduction of both. His unsworn and unsupported statement of inability to meet his obligations was favorably considered and acted upon by the authorities appointed to deal with such cases. He was not asked, nor did he submit any evidence of material value upon his business affairs, bank deposits, etc., in support of his plea of poverty or inability to pay. He was granted a reduction on principal of nearly 17 per cent. and a 20 per cent. reduction of interest. In addition, all arrears of interest were cancelled.

Another farmer, owing nearly sixteen hundred dollars, six hundred of which was cash loaned to buy cattle, played the same game in the same way under the sanction of this same Act. The unfortunate creditor was compelled to accept a cheque for five hundred dollars in full of his whole account.

The above instances of the confiscatory nature of the F.C.A. Act are the rule, not the exception. The creditor is placed by law at the mercy of a dishonest and unscrupulous debtor. Ostensibly framed to help the farmer, it is doing him serious injury; no farmer, no matter how honest, can get a loan on his farm. To a layman this Act, depriving a limited class of their just rights with no appeal nor redress, appears to be "ultra vires" of any constitutional government to enact. It is stark repudiation of contracts freely entered into by both parties, fully aware of their mutual obligations. It is as vicious and mischevious a piece of class legislation as any one would expect to find under a Dictator. Such Acts destroy confidence in our governments, and promote Communism more effectually than any number of ranting "soap-box" orators.

The Housing Program.

(From the Windsor Star.)

OF INTEREST to the whole Province, and especially to our own community, is Mr. Croll's announcement, in the Legislature yesterday, of a Provincial Government housing program involving the expenditure of approximately $1,375,000 in the erection of about 550 low priced homes in supervised municipalities.

Of this total, some 100 to 125 are to be put up in Windsor, seven in Riverside, seven in Sandwich East, five in Sandwich West and three in Tecumseh.

Half of the total expenditure, the Minister of Welfare announces, will go directly or indirectly for wages. And there will be no addition to the tax rate in any of the municipalities to carry out the program, the necessary money being available for this purpose because of the drop in relief costs. The Province itself will contribute the amount going into direct wages for construction.

The scheme Mr. Croll has in mind has been under consideration for quite some time and the Minister has the assurance of representatives of the supervised municipalities that they will give whole-hearted co-operation. It is also important to note that Mr. Croll has invited the representatives of such unsupervised municipalities as may be interested to consult with him as to similar projects for their areas.

The program is a double-purpose affair. First of all, it is obviously desirable to take as many skilled artisans as possible off relief rolls and give them work. Secondly, there is a shortage of proper housing here and elsewhere and this scheme will, in a measure, help to meet it.

The Government has already experimented, successfully, with the erection of 17 modest homes in the Toronto suburban area. Attractive structures costing from $2,500 to $3,000 can be financed in an easy manner. These houses, of course, are for wage-earners and in most cases for deserving persons who might not be able to acquire them in any other way.

Giving small wage-earners, through provincial and municipal financing assistance, a chance to secure modest homes of their own, on easy terms, is certainly an idea that deserves commendation. Mr. Croll is to be congratulated on his plan, if but for this reason alone. But when it is remembered that, under existing circumstances, such a widespreading building program as the erection of 550 new homes—just a starter, we feel, on what the project will eventually amount to—will give employment to a veritable army of men, then the real value of the idea becomes apparent.

Home building has been almost at a standstill in Canada for the last five or six years. The result is that we have an acute shortage of modern, comfortable dwelling places. And at the same time we have thousands of skilled workmen with little or nothing to do. The object, then, should be to bring our housing needs and the work needs of these idle craftsmen together in one great project.

Mr. Croll has launched such a project in our own Province. He is doing it on a fairly small scale to start with, but we feel, as we have said, that this idea is going to be very popular with the public and that municipalities all over the Province will be glad to avail themselves of the Government's willingness to help and direct this thoroughly laudable undertaking.

A Lot of Things Happen.

(From the Lindsay Post.)

AFTER fourteen years as Minister of the Lindsay Baptist Church, Reverend Gordon M. Holmes is leaving this week to accept the pastorate of Wentworth Church, Hamilton.

A lot of things occur during a ministerial charge extending over a period of fourteen years. A lot of things that the ordinary man on the street, or the person not intimately connected with the work of the church might not realize. A minister, any minister, worthy of his high calling, makes a lot of friends in various ways over such a period.

To some, the minister is the man who preaches from the pulpit twice on Sunday and leads the handful of "faithfuls" at the mid-week prayer meeting. He is considered a sort of super-human by some girded with a divine armour that keeps him from stooping to the level of meanness and smallness displayed by most humans. He is also supposed to be possessed of a sort of uncanny ability to ferret out "pink teas" and rumor has had some ministers making the rounds of six "teas" in an afternoon and partaking heartily at each.

Those who are better acquainted with the duties of the average minister know that far from a life of ease he is called upon to perform such a variety of tasks that his profession, rather than being one of ease is in reality a very trying one.

The Sunday sermons form a small part of the work of the average minister who is really tending to his job. There is the practical side of Christianity to be lived out during each moment of every day. There is the calls to sick beds, the comforting of the oppressed, the advising of the young, the helping of the poor. The minister is among the first to greet the new born babes. He is the one called upon to perform the last rites at the grave side. He is seldom highly paid for his services and is expected to do more gratis than any other person, including politicians. He is supposed to keep his chin up and look cheerful when addressing row upon row of empty seats that should be filled with those to whom he has rendered some priceless service through the week or in days past. A minister has much in common with the Lord in one respect. He is the first to be called in time of trouble and often the last to be thought of when things are going smoothly.

Despite the abuses that the average minister is subjected to by an unthinking congregation, he carries on with a fortitude that is amazing and wins the admiration of his church members and his fellow men. The world would be a dreary and unthinkable place without these stalwarts known as ministers.

To The Editor

PASTEURIZED MILK

Editor Examiner:

Sir: With reference to the large display advertisement appearing in your Saturday edition entitled "Pasteurized milk is safe milk" I would like to ask the following questions:

1. Why is it that in the rural districts where raw milk is used exclusively, and where the people have not the medical safeguards (toxoiding, vaccination, etc.) thrown about them, that city people have, that epidemics of typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diptheria, septic sore throat are practically unknown; that there is less tuberculosis in the country than in the city, and that on the average the country people are stronger and healthier?

2. Why is it that pasteurization of milk is prohibited in Germany? Whatever we may think of the Germans politically, we cannot accuse them of lack of scientific knowledge and investigation.

3. What is the sense of pasteurizing the contents of the bottle and then allowing the bottle itself to become contaminated? The writer has had milk delivered with the top covered with a film of road dust. I have seen milk drivers handling their horses and adjusting harness wearing the same gloves with which they handle milk bottles. I have seen a milk driver blow his nose on his mitt, wipe it on his trousers, then pick up a bottle of milk by the top, and deliver it to a customer, and I have seen a dog licking the tops of bottles of milk left on doorsteps, attracted no doubt by cream that has oozed up from under the cap.

4. What proof is there that pasteurization doesn't injure milk? We are told that excessive heating destroys the vitamin content of other foods.

5. Will the Ontario Committee for safe milk publish the names of its personnel?

According to the advertisement the entire blame for contaminated milk is placed at the source of production. The public will do well to ask itself if this move is to benefit the consumer or a small clique of distributors, and to further exploit the farmer for the benefit of the said distributors who are already getting the long end of the price paid by the consumer. The whole case for pasteurization falls down when the herds producing milk are tested and sanitary regulations regarding stables and dairies enforced.

Sincerely Yours
SKEPTIC

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Remedy at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid medicine for bad winter coughs. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is a very effective, dependable, quick-acting cough remedy for the whole family. Quickly, you feel its penetrating effect in the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You'll be more than delighted with its quick effect in clearing up bad coughs.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, a well known and reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

minions. France and Japan, on grounds that their annexation was unjust, these sources said.

British Cabinet Meets

LONDON, Feb. 3—(A.P.).—The cabinet met to-day to consider Chancellor Hitler's Saturday address to the Reichstag while one source reported Germany may demand that Britain return the colonies she gained from the Reich at the end of the Great War.

Hitler's speech, it was learned, has been under almost constant study by Foreign Office experts since Saturday.

The government, it was understood, is considering asking explanation of certain points.

The German representation for return of its colonies, it was said, likely would point out such a step would solve the Reich's closely-knit colonial and economic problems.

The blunt meaning of Chancellor Hitler's speech before the Reichstag last Saturday was expected to be conveyed to Foreign Minister Eden to-day by Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's Ambassador to London.

Any discussion of colonies, however, informed quarters declared, could not be carried on with Great Britain alone.

Since holders of former German territories include France, Japan, New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and Belgium, they pointed out all would have to be consulted on the framework of any settlement of German demands for return of her colonies.

PRESIDENT ORDERS GOODS ADMITTED

ed the Consul at 9.15 on Monday morning and explained the situation as the committee in Peterborough saw it.

The Consul was sympathetic; he would do anything he could, but there was nothing in the regulations which made provision for donations crossing the border without being subjected to inspection and appraisal for customs duties. So there the matter seemed to come to a dead end.

Which was not so good.

Looked as though the car from Peterborough would receive the same official treatment at the border. It would be held up and inspected and duty would have to be paid by the recipients.

Ask the President.

The next suggestion reached out into the field of international negotiations. The Peterborough suggestion was that the United States Consul in Toronto being ready to do all he could, should appeal directly to President Roosevelt at Washington. The situation should be placed before him to find if he were willing to make it possible for Canadian donations being sent to flood sufferers to go right through and be relieved of the need for paying customs levies. The U.S. Consul agreed to the suggestion, and said he would forward a despatch at once to President Roosevelt at Washington.

By Monday evening there was official word from Washington to the effect that President Roosevelt had issued a proclamation providing for the free entry of certain kinds of donations intended for flood sufferers, and it was also announced that all ports of entry were being notified by telegraph to that effect. That action was taken within eight hours of the telephone communication from Peterborough to the United States Consul in Toronto.

Toronto, Feb. 2.

P. J. Giffen,
Examiner, Peterborough.

Department of State advises that yesterday afternoon the President issued a proclamation providing for the free entry of certain kinds of donations intended for flood sufferers. Collectors of customs at the Canadian border being advised by telegraph to-day.

Woods, American Consul.

Members of the Kiwanis Club and all those who made possible the filling and loading of the car are delighted with the outcome of the negotiations.

Young People's League Meets —Knox Women's Auxiliary Holds Skating Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 3.—The February meeting of the Havelock Branch Women's Institute was held on Monday afternoon in the basement of the Town Hall. There was a very good attendance, with the president, Mrs. John Armstrong, in the chair.

The roll-call was responded to by many "helpful hints." During the general business a splendid report was received from Mrs. A. Anderson, relief convenor, the report being read by Mrs. C. Taylor.

A very interesting program was presented, including: Duet, entitled "Sweet and Low," by the Misses Barbara Fennell and Winnifred Chiles; a paper on "Home Economics," by Miss Edith Roberts; a paper on "Canadianization," by Mrs. A. S. Thompson; and a talk on "Peace Education," by Miss M. Seeney.

In her paper on "Canadianization," Mrs. Thompson described the Dominion's flag and what it stood for, the different types of nationalities in Canada, and stressed the fact that we should assist the new Canadians in becoming adjusted to Canadian life.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting by the group in charge.

The Young People's League of the United Church held their regular meeting on Monday evening, with over sixty in attendance. The program was conducted by Miss Helen Buchanan, leader of the Christian fellowship group.

The meeting opened with a hymn, after which Mr. Herb Hoard led in prayer and Miss Edna Haig read the Bible lesson. Included on the program were: a reading by Mrs. James Young; topic by Mrs. Gordon Denike; Hawaiian guitar duet, Aileen Isles and Lois Kennedy; vocal solo entitled "In the Chapel in the Moonlight," by Allan McMullen.

The Young Women's Auxiliary of Knox Presbyterian Church sponsored the first skating party of the season Monday evening at the Havelock rink. Over seventy-five young people participated in the party, which was followed by a hot supper served in the church basement. The receipts amounted to fifteen dollars.

His mother, the well-known singer Clara Novello, was English. His mother's father was prominent in musical circles and such distinguished persons as Charles and Mary Lamb, Keats, Shelley and Hazlitt often visited his house.

U.F.O. Dance To Aid Flood Relief Fund

The Peterborough U.F.O. Club has decided to give the total proceeds of their dance this (Wednesday) evening to the Flood Relief Fund.

The dance, which will be one of the popular affairs arranged by the local branch of the United Farmers' Association, will be held in the hall of the Canadian Legion, with Red Moncrief's orchestra playing.

This is a generous gesture on the part of the U.F.O. Club and its president, E. A. Tully, and the members of the executive. They hope that all their friends will attend the dance and thus swell what promises to be a very worthwhile donation.

HOME LOAN PLAN IS ADVANCED STEP

scheme was a real national community effort initiated on the recommendation of the National Employment Commission. There was no party politics in it, the Minister said, and the plan was equally popular in rural and urban centres.

Mr. Woodsworth declared the scheme only touched the fringe of the unemployment problem, and if it was all the commission had to offer after nearly a year in office the problem should be put back on the shoulders of the Minister of Labor.

D. A. McNiven (Lib., Regina), favored putting a fair-wage condition in contracts under which loans were granted. Labor Minister Rogers said that unless an elaborate inspection system were established it would be impossible to enforce such a clause when the loans were so numerous. Already more than 3,000 loans had been made in two months of operation and the average loan was less than $400, he said.

disclose details of the young farmer's statement. Further information would be disclosed later, he said.

Kenyon was arrested Tuesday morning, Connelly said, on a farm near Grimmett, by state troopers acting on a "tip" from a source held secret.

Connelly also revealed a second ransom note had been received yesterday after Kenyon was in custody. Connelly said it could have been mailed by Kenyon before his arrest.

The federal agent said a futile attempt had been made Friday to contact the kidnapper. Connelly said an unnamed contact-man had driven southeast of Willow Springs, looking for a white flag which the ransom note said would be stuck in the roadside. The would-be negotiator failed to find the flag, giving rise to the first grave fears for Dr. Davis' life.

CHOIR OF FENELLA PRESENTS CANTATA

Concert Is Given In Roseneath —Rev. Stokes Is Named Rector

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 3.—The choir of Fenella United church presented their cantata, "The Lost Star," at Roseneath Friday evening. While the attendance was rather small, those present enjoyed the fine performance, and admired the costumes, which were particularly effective. Rev. and Mrs. Scott entertained the cast afterward at the parsonage at Roseneath.

The Women's Association and the Women's Missionary Society united in a joint quilting at the town hall Tuesday afternoon. There was a large attendance of ladies present, and they succeeded in completing three quilts by evening.

The regular meeting of the Y.P.S. was held in the church on Monday evening. The meeting was in charge of Miss Ruby Blodgett, convenor of the Christian Fellowship Group. She also presented the topic of the evening, "The Christian Family at Worship."

Named Rector.

Rev. Stokes, former assistant curate of St. Anne's Anglican church, Toronto, has been appointed rector of St. James' Anglican church, Roseneath, and St. George's Anglican church, Hastings.

Miss Blanche Baker of Norwood, who has been convalescing from a long illness, spent last week with her cousin, Mrs Ednel Blodgett.

Mrs. Ella Brown is visiting her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. S. Ash in Toronto.

Miss Florence Macklin and Mr. Melville Macklin visited relatives in Port Hope and vicinity during the past week.

Mrs. E Sandercock is making an extended visit with relatives in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Ednel Blodgett and son Maurice spent Sunday with Mrs. Blodgett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baker, of Norwood. Maurice is remaining in Norwood with his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Macklin were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. George, Cobourg.

JAIL OVERCROWDED

TORONTO, Feb. 3 — (C.P.). — Toronto jail was so crowded last night 14 prisoners had to sleep in corridors. Total jail population was 258. To-day 34 men were moved to the municipal farm at Langstaffe, north of the city ,to eliminate the overcrowding.

CAMPBELLFORD

CHURCH MEETING REVEALS PROGRESS

Annual Meeting Of St. John's Church Discloses All Departments Had Good Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3.— The annual meeting of St. John's United Church disclosed that all departments had a successful year. The Rev. Harold B. Neale occupied the chair and on motion of C. W. Palliser he was complimented on his work in the church. S. A. Maguire was re-appointed secretary and Mr. D. J. Mills will again be treasurer.

The six stewards who were elected were as follows: Messrs. Geo. Lucy, Hilliard Jones, A. J. Armour, E. H. Greieg, T. E. Hall and Walter Henson. The following were also elected to the Board of Elders for the year 1937: W. H. Ashton, W. J. Armstrong, Geo. W. Anderson, A. D. Bennett, A. J. Bonney, S. S. Chappel, E. A Bell, H. M. Donald, J. A. Frederick, A. S. Free, J. H. Hoover, A. E. Southworth, G. A. Ironside, A. H. McKelvie, D. B. Nelson, Wm. Runnells, T. H. Rowe, N. H. Thompson, Wm. Ranney.

W.M.S. Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. John's United Chudch was held on Tuesday afternoon in the ladies' parlour of the church. Mrs. W. H. Ashton, 1st Vice-Pres. took the chair in the absence of the President, Mrs. E. C. Roberts. There were about thirty members present and after the regular order of business the study book was read by Mrs. Wragg and Mrs. Bonney. Mrs. D. J. Mills had charge of this portion of the program.

Y. P. U. Meeting.

The programme of the St. John's Young People's Union which met on Monday evening, was in charge of Jack Carr, Citizenship Convenor. Being boys' week, Mr. Carr formulated his programme with this in mind and called on the boys in the Explorer group who contributed the programme.

Parish Guild.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Parish Guild held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening it was announced that enough money had been raised by the Guild during the past two months to pay for the installation of the new furnace in the hall. The president, Mrs. R. Belshaw, conducted the meeting, which was opened with prayer by the Rev. T. H. Floyd, after which the president reported that $18.00 had been raised on the patches for the smock which the Guild had made. Mrs. M. Reid received a cup and saucer which was the prize donated by Mrs. W. D. Wood for the best patch on the smock. At the conclusion of the meeting the ladies invited the members of the A.Y.P.A. to spend a social hour with them.

SENATE DEBATES

lamation on recommendation of the board.

Heavy Penalties Provided

Aircraft section of the bill gives the minister similar authority to the water-carriage section, with the addition of authority over international as well as domestic traffic. The bill provides heavy penalties for infraction of air regulations and permits customs authorities to hold aircraft in international traffic pending investigation of complains under the regulations.

Regarding highway traffic ,the bill says the minister may license "public or private commercial vehicles to transport goods or passengers in interprovincial or foreign trade or upon a Dominion highway." It adds he may prescribe the routes such traffic must follow and that he will issue licenses only on recommendation of the board.

Further, it says, the board will be empowered to prescribe standards of design and operating efficiency for busses and trucks and will be authorized to regulate working hours and duties of employees, determine their qualifications and decide on the types of license plates vehicles in commercial highway traffic must carry.

The board, another section of the bill says, will have power to investigate harbor tolls at the minister's request and determine if they are reasonable.

NICER VALENTINES

Few Insulting Decorations Found In 1937 List.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Lace paper is as popular as ever on the 1937 Valentines on display in Manhattan—the world's greatest Valentine mart—but fat cupids, old maids and insults are hard to find.

"Comic Valentines are still good, but they are no longer designed to wound feelings," said an executive of a large Valentine publishing house today.

Scottie dogs seem to have replaced cupids and spinsters as valentine decoration.

MAJORITY VOTE ADVISES STARTING

visory bodies and speculation had already been aroused tonight about what would happen if the men adhered to their attitude against the gross revenue factor. Members of the board offered no comment on the possibility of rejection by the employees, but it was believed a refusal to accept the majority finding would lead to further direct negotions between the disputants.

The method by which the majority members sugested the reductions from the 10 per cent might be increased was also a controversial issue.

The formula recommended by Judge MacLean and Mr. Evans was developed from consideration of the $150,000,000 deficiency of railway earnings in 1936 as compared with the basic years when combined earnings of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways averaged about $442,000,000. Last year they were $292,000,000. For each one-twentieth of $150,000,000 revenues increased, they proposed one-twentieth of the 10 per cent cut be restored.

Check At Each Quarter.

Calculations were to be made at the end of each quarter of 1937, and for every $7,500,000 improvement in revenues in the 12 months preceding that date a corresponding one-half per cent. of the cut would be considered to have accrued to the employees. These conditional increases were to come into effect one month after the end of the quarter.

They were not to be additional to the fixed reductions in the pay cut, however, but operative in place of the fixed reductions if they were greater.

Not only was the scheme challenged by Mr. Bancroft as being directly based on gross earnings, but he predicted it would be of little or no effect in 1937, having regard to the railways' own estimate of an increase of eight or 10 per cent. this year in operations.

Mr. Bancroft expressed regret so much of the evidence dealt with 1935 and 1936. There were definite signs of improvement, he said, and 1937 conditions should be applied to consideration of 1937 wages.

Another point at which the reports are at variance is regarding cost of living and buying power of money. Taking the Dominion Bureau of Statistics cost of living index, Judge MacLean and Mr. Evans found $90 of railway wages in 1936 bought 10.4 per cent. more goods than $100 bought in 1926.

Mr. Bancroft refused to accept this proposition, maintaining the index was developed from "outmoded" studies.

HOLD TEMPERANCE RALLY

Dry Forces Been Successful In Seventy Per Cent. In Election Contests.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3 — A smaller if not less enthusiastic audience attended the temperance meeting in the High School auditorium here Tuesday night, when two leaders from Toronto addressed the gathering. A. D. Bennett presided and introduced the speaker, Hugh Dobson. Following Mr. Dobson's address, F. Lewis said that out of 75 contests since the new Act, the temperance people had won over 70 per cent. of them.

rounded by water, but the situation had brightened considerably since flood waters broke through two sections of the Slought Landing Neck near Bessie, Tenn.

Cold added to the hardship of thousands of refugees in Arkansas, and they huddled around stoves in hilltop camps. The Red Cross said 200,000 lowlanders in the Mississippi Valley had been driven from their homes.

Arkansas' Governor, Carl E. Bailey, gave the Red Cross complete charge of relief activities in the state, where he said it would be necessary, for a time, to feed, clothe and shelter 50,000 citizens.

The Red Cross relief fund neared the $11,500,000 mark and the Senate pushed plans to send the $790,000,000 Relief Appropriation Bill to President Roosevelt before Works Progress Administration funds, now being used, are exhausted.

Over seventy-five young people participated in the party, which was followed by a hot supper served in the church basement. The receipts amounted to fifteen dollars.

GARIBALDI COHORT DIES.

FLORENCE, Italy, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Count Mario Gigliucci, who fought at the age of 16 in Garibaldi's last campaign for the unification of Italy, is dead here at the age of 89.

His mother, the well-known singer Clara Novello, was English. His mother's father was prominent in musical circles and such distinguished persons as Charles and Mary Lamb, Keats, Shelley and Hazlitt often visited his house.

U.F.O. Dance To Aid Flood Relief Fund

The Peterborough U.F.O. Club has decided to give the total proceeds of their dance this (Wednesday) evening to the Flood Relief Fund.

The dance, which will be one of the popular affairs arranged by the local branch of the United Farmers' Association, will be held in the hall of the Canadian Legion, with Red Moncrief's orchestra playing.

This is a generous gesture on the part of the U.F.O. Club and its president, E. A. Tully, and the members of the executive. They hope that all their friends will attend the dance and thus swell what promises to be a very worthwhile donation.

HOME LOAN PLAN IS ADVANCED STEP

scheme was a real national community effort initiated on the recommendation of the National Employment Commission. There was no party politics in it, the Minister said, and the plan was equally popular in rural and urban centres.

Mr. Woodsworth declared the scheme only touched the fringe of the unemployment problem, and if it was all the commission had to offer after nearly a year in office the problem should be put back on the shoulders of the Minister of Labor.

D. A. McNiven (Lib., Regina), favored putting a fair-wage condition in contracts under which loans were granted. Labor Minister Rogers said that unless an elaborate inspection system were established it would be impossible to enforce such a clause when the loans were so numerous. Already more than 3,000 loans had been made in two months of operation and the average loan was less than $400, he said.

disclose details of the young farmer's statement. Further information would be disclosed later, he said.

Kenyon was arrested Tuesday morning, Connelly said, on a farm near Grimmett, by state troopers acting on a "tip" from a source held secret.

Connelly also revealed a second ransom note had been received yesterday after Kenyon was in custody. Connelly said it could have been mailed by Kenyon before his arrest.

The federal agent said a futile attempt had been made Friday to contact the kidnapper. Connelly said an unnamed contact-man had driven southeast of Willow Springs, looking for a white flag which the ransom note said would be stuck in the roadside. The would-be negotiator failed to find the flag, giving rise to the first grave fears for Dr. Davis' life.

CHOIR OF FENELLA PRESENTS CANTATA

Concert Is Given In Roseneath —Rev. Stokes Is Named Rector

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 3.—The choir of Fenella United church presented their cantata, "The Lost Star," at Roseneath Friday evening. While the attendance was rather small, those present enjoyed the fine performance, and admired the costumes, which were particularly effective. Rev. and Mrs. Scott entertained the cast afterward at the parsonage at Roseneath.

The Women's Association and the Women's Missionary Society united in a joint quilting at the town hall Tuesday afternoon. There was a large attendance of ladies present, and they succeeded in completing three quilts by evening.

The regular meeting of the Y.P.S. was held in the church on Monday evening. The meeting was in charge of Miss Ruby Blodgett, convenor of the Christian Fellowship Group. She also presented the topic of the evening, "The Christian Family at Worship."

Named Rector.

Rev. Stokes, former assistant curate of St. Anne's Anglican church, Toronto, has been appointed rector of St. James' Anglican church, Roseneath, and St. George's Anglican church, Hastings.

Miss Blanche Baker of Norwood, who has been convalescing from a long illness, spent last week with her cousin, Mrs Ednel Blodgett.

Mrs. Ella Brown is visiting her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. S. Ash in Toronto.

Miss Florence Macklin and Mr. Melville Macklin visited relatives in Port Hope and vicinity during the past week.

Mrs. E Sandercook is making an extended visit with relatives in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Ednel Blodgett and son Maurice spent Sunday with Mrs. Blodgett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baker, of Norwood. Maurice is remaining in Norwood with his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Macklin were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. George, Cobourg.

JAIL OVERCROWDED

TORONTO, Feb. 3 — (C.P.): — Toronto jail was so crowded last night 14 prisoners had to sleep in corridors. Total jail population was 258. To-day 34 men were moved to the municipal farm at Langstaffe, north of the city ,to eliminate the overcrowding.

Not For Sale

When Conny Smythe, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, starts offering Lester Patrick, of New York Rangers, large sums of money for one of his sons it just don't seem to work. CAMPBELLFORD

CHURCH MEETING REVEALS PROGRESS

Annual Meeting Of St. John's Church Discloses All Departments Had Good Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3.— The annual meeting of St. John's United Church disclosed that all departments had a successful year. The Rev. Harold B. Neale occupied the chair and on motion of C. W. Palliser he was complimented on his work in the church. S. A. Maguire was re-appointed secretary and Mr. D. J. Mills will again be treasurer.

The six stewards who were elected were as follows: Messrs. Geo. Lucy, Hilliard Jones, A. J. Armour, E. H. Greieg, T. E. Hall and Walter Henson. The following were also elected to the Board of Elders for the year 1937: W. H. Ashton, W. J. Armstrong, Geo. W. Anderson, A. D. Bennett, A. J. Bonney, S. S. Chappel, E. A Bell, H. M. Donald, J. A. Frederick, A. S. Free, J. H. Hoover, A. E. Southworth, G. A. Ironside, A. H. McKelvie, D. B. Nelson, Wm. Runnells, T. H. Rowe, N. H. Thompson, Wm. Ranney.

W.M.S. Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. John's United Chudch was held on Tuesday afternoon in the ladies' parlour of the church. Mrs. W. H. Ashton, 1st Vice-Pres. took the chair in the absence of the President, Mrs. E. C. Roberts. There were about thirty members present and after the regular order of business the study book was read by Mrs. Wragg and Mrs. Bonney. Mrs. D. J. Mills had charge of this portion of the program.

Y. P. U. Meeting.

The programme of the St. John's Young People's Union which met on Monday evening, was in charge of Jack Carr, Citizenship Convenor. Being boys' week, Mr. Carr formulated his programme with this in mind and called on the boys in the Explorer group who contributed the programme.

Parish Guild.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Parish Guild held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening it was announced that enough money had been raised by the Guild during the past two months to pay for the installation of the new furnace in the hall. The president, Mrs. R. Belshaw, conducted the meeting, which was opened with prayer by the Rev. T. H. Floyd, after which the president reported that $18.00 had been raised on the patches for the smock which the Guild had made. Mrs. M. Reid received a cup and saucer which was the prize donated by Mrs. W. D. Wood for the best patch on the smock. At the conclusion of the meeting the ladies invited the members of the A.Y.P.A. to spend a social hour with them.

lamation on recommendation of the board.

Heavy Penalties Provided

Aircraft section of the bill gives the minister similar authority to the water-carriage section, with the addition of authority over international as well as domestic traffic. The bill provides heavy penalties for infraction of air regulations and permits customs authorities to hold aircraft in international traffic pending investigation of complains under the regulations.

Regarding highway traffic ,the bill says the minister may license "public or private commercial vehicles to transport goods or passengers in interprovincial or foreign trade or upon a Dominion highway." It adds he may prescribe the routes such traffic must follow and that he will issue licenses only on recommendation of the board.

Further, it says, the board will be empowered to prescribe standards of design and operating efficiency for busses and trucks and will be authorized to regulate working hours and duties of employees, determine their qualifications and decide on the types of license plates vehicles in commercial highway traffic must carry.

The board, another section of the bill says, will have power to investigate harbor tolls at the minister's request and determine if they are reasonable.

NICER VALENTINES

Few Insulting Decorations Found In 1937 List.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Lace paper is as popular as ever on the 1937 Valentines on display in Manhattan—the world's greatest Valentine mart—but fat cupids, old maids and insults are hard to find.

"Comic Valentines are still good, but they are no longer designed to wound feelings," said an executive of a large Valentine publishing house today.

Scottie dogs seem to have replaced cupids and spinsters as valentine decoration.

visory bodies and speculation had already been aroused tonight about what would happen if the men adhered to their attitude against the gross revenue factor. Members of the board offered no comment on the possibility of rejection by the employees, but it was believed a refusal to accept the majority finding would lead to further direct negotions between the disputants.

The method by which the majority members sugested the reductions from the 10 per cent might be increased was also a controversial issue.

The formula recommended by Judge MacLean and Mr. Evans was developed from consideration of the $150,000,000 deficiency of railway earnings in 1936 as compared with the basic years when combined earnings of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways averaged about $442,000,000. Last year they were $292,000,000. For each one-twentieth of $150,000,000 revenues increased, they proposed one-twentieth of the 10 per cent cut be restored.

Check At Each Quarter.

Calculations were to be made at the end of each quarter of 1937, and for every $7,500,000 improvement in revenues in the 12 months preceding that date a corresponding one-half per cent. of the cut would be considered to have accrued to the employees These conditional increases were to come into effect one month after the end of the quarter.

They were not to be additional to the fixed reductions in the pay cut, however, but operative in place of the fixed reductions if they were greater.

Not only was the scheme challenged by Mr. Bancroft as being directly based on gross earnings, but he predicted it would be of little or no effect in 1937, having regard to the railways' own estimate of an increase of eight or 10 per cent. this year in operations.

Mr. Bancroft expressed regret so much of the evidence dealt with 1935 and 1936. There were definite signs of improvement, he said, and 1937 conditions should be applied to consideration of 1937 wages.

Another poitn at which the reports are at variance is regarding cost of living and buying power of money. Taking the Dominion Bureau of Statistics cost of living index, Judge MacLean and Mr. Evans found $90 of railway wages in 1936 bought 10.4 per cent. more goods than $100 bought in 1926.

Mr. Bancroft refused to accept this proposition, maintaining the index was developed from "outmoded" studies.

HOLD TEMPERANCE RALLY

Dry Forces Been Successful In Seventy Per Cent. In Election Contests.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3. — A smaller if not less enthusiastic audience attended the temperance meeting in the High School auditorium here Tuesday night, when two leaders from Toronto addressed the gathering. A. D Bennett presided and introduced the speaker, Hugh Dobson. Following Mr. Dobson's address, F. Lewis said that out of 75 contests since the new Act, the temperance people had won over 70 per cent. of them.

rounded by water, but the situation had brightened considerably since flood waters broke through two sections of the Slought Landing Neck near Bessie, Tenn.

Cold added to the hardship of thousands of refugees in Arkansas, and they huddled around stoves in hilltop camps. The Red Cross said 200,000 lowlanders in the Mississippi Valley had been driven from their homes.

Arkansas' Governor, Carl E. Bailey, gave the Red Cross complete charge of relief activities in the state, where he said it would be necessary, for a time, to feed, clothe and shelter 50,000 citizens.

The Red Cross relief fund neared the $11,500,000 mark and the Senate pushed plans to send the $790,000,000 Relief Appropriation Bill to President Roosevelt before Works Progress Administration funds, now being used, are exhausted.

COMPARISON MADE YOUTHS' PROBLEMS PAST AND PRESENT

T. K. CARLEY, K.C., Addresses Father And Son Banquet At St. Paul's

MUST START AT BOTTOM

In an address to fathers and sons of St. Paul's church Tuesday night T. J. Carley compared the problems of youth in the past and present, and outlined some of the advantages to which the younger generation of today has fallen heir. Advances in education have extended in many directions throughout the primary and secondary school courses, and the automobile has broadened the experience and outlook of young people today far beyond the horizons of their fathers who more generally lacked the influences of travel which has become so easy and accessible today.

If new problems confront youth, Mr. Carley pointed out difficulties have always been a spur and stimulus, sharpening the abilities of young people to overcome them. Scotland was a comparatively poor country, but it had produced a great many outstanding men in all ranks of life. Some fathers, Mr. Carley said, seem to believe that their sons should start in life from the place which they themselves have reached, and by other attitudes they create a feeling in their sons of scorn for what has always been called honest toil. Such fathers and sons were too much attached to white collar jobs, to the easier ways of life, instead of looking for opportunity in paths which demanded the old spirit of the pioneers.

Rev. Dr. Barr was chairman of the dinner, and the program included an impromptu minstrel show by some of the young men, and songs by Bob Hendry, accompanied by John A. Smith.

1935 INDEBTEDNESS WIPED OUT BY CITY

Balance Of Demand Loan Is Ordered Paid By City Council

Accounts passed by the council Monday night included an item of $78,300 to the Bank of Montreal, the balance of the demand loan of 1936.

M. E. Shaver, city treasurer, told The Examiner that the prepayment of 1937 taxes during January amounted to $185,800. For the initial period of the first two weeks the receipts were $150,000 and for the rest of the month $5,800. With those early funds in their hands, the treasury department decided to wipe out its 1935 indebtedness to the bank, paying $78,300, leaving only last year's borrowing outstanding as there has been no necessity of using the city's authorized credit so far this year.

Insurgent Air Bombs Kill Woman And Child, Wound Several Others

VALENCIA, Feb. 3.—(AP).—Part of the industrial section of Malaga was destroyed, it was learned to-day, by an insurgent air raid.

A woman and child were killed, several persons were wounded and several buildings in the factory district were destroyed in the bombardments yesterday.

Government bombers had ushered in the first fine day in more than a week with an attack on the insurgent cruiser Canarias off Malaga. Pilots said they believed the ship was not damaged as it fled to sea under the attack.

The Rambling REPORTERS

THE CASUAL TOUCH.

Those post-war young women who were called 'flappers' had the reputation of doing unconventional things in public. We don't know whether this well-dressed youth was a he 'flapper' or not. We couldn't see much of him except his legs. It was a skinny limb, but he exposed several inches of bare shinbone as he paused on George street yesterday afternoon to stoop down and adjust a lagging garter.—C.L.M.

HORSELESS RUNAWAY

The horseless carriage which has supplanted the horse in most other regards can provide the occasional thrilling runaway so common in the old days, it appeared Tuesday afternoon.

It was parked on Aylmer street just north of Simcoe and its owner perspired mightily, trying to start the motor with the hand crank. And suddenly it did start. Backwards across the street the car roared before the owner could climb into the driver's seat. With the embarrassed gentleman in full chase, the car headed directly for a passing milk rig.

A crisis was averted when the driver managed to get close enough to reach in and push the gear-shift lever to neutral, where he thought he had left it before he started to crank.—C.P.K.

WANT NO ARTILLERY

Members of the Board of Education are sufficient militarists to buy uniforms for a cadet corps but they draw the line at providing artillery, it seems.

A recommendation by Dr. H. R. H. Kenner that $100 be provided toward purchase of uniforms for the P.C.V.S. cadet corps was being considered by the Board Tuesday evening. It was explained that a Federal grant for cadet purposes is no longer received and that, if the corps is to be continued, a program of uniform replacement must be begun.

"I think the creditable showing the cadets have made in recent years justifies our support," John R. Marshall said.

Charles Shaw commented: "If we are going to have a cadet corps we should have one of presentable appearance. We can not have a half-baked cadet corps on the streets."

"Will the money go entirely to new uniforms?" asked W. A. Richardson.

"Just uniforms," one of the members assured him.

"Uniforms, but not artillery," urged Mr. Richardson.—C.P.K.

With the Girl Guides

1st PETERBOROUGH.

The First Peterborough Girl Guides gathered together for weekly meeting to further their training in Guide work

The patrol leaders fell in, marked paces and were followed by their patrols. Inspection and roll call were recorded. Dismissal to respective patrol corners brought 15 minutes of study.

Mr. Tomkins of the St. John's Ambulance Corps gave instruction in artificial respiration and general first aid.

Camp fire followed, at which preparations necessary for the cooking sale and the visit of Miss McMann were discussed.

3RD PETERBOROUGH.

Conducts Column In Examiner In Aid Of U.S. Flood Sufferers

Contributions to the Kiwanis Flood Relief Fund through the mystic Kirma's question and answer column in The Examiner had reached a total of $44.25 at noon to-day. Each mail continued to bring its flood of queries.

A 25-cent contribution to the worthy fund is asked for each question answered and scores of those who have witnessed Kirma's demonstrations in the public streets and at the Capitol Theatre have judged the fee a small price for the answers they seek. Many envelopes have contained 50 and 75 cents with two or three questions.

The donations and questions will be received to the end of the week.

Kirma's Answers

Following are the answers to questions submitted to Kirma on Monday. See Coupon on this page for particulars:

JANE—The crystal shows a decided improvement in the condition mentioned in your question, within this year. There is no reason for further worry regarding financial matters.

L.W.E.O.—By all means take up the engineering course in mind. You have remarkable opportunities in that field providing you have the necessary fundamental education.

J.M.—I see a move for you to the vicinity of Toronto within the very near future. It will be made for the better from the standpoint of your personal satisfaction.

L.F.D.—A purchase of the business would prove a good investment for your father. Therefor it is my advice that he continue his plans.

H.J.—Keep your eyes open Helen and you will see the vanity case in the possession of a very good lady friend of yours.

A.J.—It will be necessary for you to take the matter to court in order that you obtain that which is rightfully yours.

L.S.—You will have much difficulty in obtaining compensation from the government. However, with the proper counsel you will succeed.

G.B.—Yes, the crystal shows marriage for you to the young lady in mind within two years. Incidentally your marriage will prove successful.

E.M.F.—Have faith. You will not be disappointed. Understand?

M.W.F.—The crystal shows a marriage within eighteen months. However it also shows a dissapointment in a love affair for you prior to that time and that you have not as yet met the man to whom you will be married.

E.M.G.—You will remain in Peterborough indefinitely. With self confidence you will eventually attain the degree of success you desire in your present position.

C.H.—The happiest part of your life is yet ahead of you. There is another marriage for you within two years and that happiness will come through this marriage.

D.M.R.—The friend will return but it does not appear soon. There will arise other obstacles to detain him.

L.H.—An operation or a course of the proper treatment only will enable you to bear another child. It is therefor my suggestion that you place yourself in the hands of some specialist in that field, and abide by his directions.

G.B.C.—The coat was taken by a party living away from this locality. It will never be recovered.

M.E.H.—You will marry but not for four or five years. Incidently you have not met him, so don't labor under delusions regarding anything now in mind.

T.E.F.—The separation is for the better and will terminate just as you have planned.

T.J.—Following your husband about nightly will get you nothing. His night owl activities are confined principally to drinking beer and playing cards and there is no other woman in the case. Just let him alone and he will get tired of it.

C.A.R.L.—You will work indefinitely with the present company.

C.S.M.—The matter will be settled out side of court and to your satisfaction.

A.W.W.—The dog strayed and was taken into a passing car by two men. It is not in this locality.

F.K.B.—You will secure a position within three weeks. The position will be permanent and in this locality.

G.S.W.—Your sister is not going to recover from her present illness. There is no suggestion I could offer that would be of any benefit.

E.S.—You will obtain the money in question.

A.C.T.—Conditions will improve for you during the summer of this year.

R.S.—Your wife will be enabled to return home in the near future. There is no reason for worry regarding the outcome.

F.D.C. — Prospects for this year will be much brighter than the past. Bear in mind that I have said prospects, for all of them will not fully materialize within this year.

A.E.T.—Continue your efforts in the business venture. It will succeed.

G.W.—You will enter into the course of training mentioned in your letter.

W.G.H.—You will secure a steady position the first of March.

W.J.S.F.—The money will be repaid you in the near future.

Want Market Square For Parking Of Cars

In a comment yesterday on current proposal to improve the city's market, Allan B. Mann of Bridgenorth said to The Examiner: "Whatever the city does I hope they leave the market square for parking automobiles. That space is a great convenience to all the farmers of the county when they come into the city to do business. I think the merchants realise that, and it is not likely the market square will ever be used for any other purpose."

In regard to Bruce Johnston's suggestion that the county should form a market partnership with the city, Mr. Mann said that question as for the county council to consider if it ever came before them. For the present it seemed rather a concern of anybody, Mr. Mann remarked.

Guest Of Honor At Convention

When the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club held its annual dinner at the Royal York hotel in Toronto recently this cow, "Brampton Basilua," shared the guest of honor chair (or should it be banquet stall) with the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario minister of agriculture. The champion Jersey, milked many times under normal conditions, received a surprise when the minister rose from his seat and, perched gingerly upon a milking stool, proceeded to show the gathered cattle men he knew the ropes.

The idea of asking the government for permission to use George Street wharf as a parking space is definitely out. Alderman Sloan told the council Monday night that area looked too dangerous for the parking of cars.

317 PUPILS EXAMINED

Dr. A. W. MacPherson, public school health officer, examined 317 pupils in January and found it necessary to issue 51 defect slips. Twenty cases were of a nature requiring immediate attention. Decayed teeth constituted the most frequent defects.

IS WOODCUTTER.

The man referred to as a hobo-transient in a recent story relative to a tooth-pulling incident, is a woodcutter working under contract in the northern section of the county. While his name was not mentioned in connection with the article, the man objected to the inference that he is not of industrious habits.

DIES IN WINDSOR.

Well-known in Windsor fraternal circles, Ernest Wells, 56, is dead at his home in Windsor, following a short illness. Born in England, Mr. Wells resided at Goderich and Peterborough prior to coming to Windsor 25 years ago. Surviving are one son and two grandchildren.

NEW SEED CATALOGUE.

Hard on the heels of the groundhog's retreat from Tuesday's sunshine for another nap of six weeks came this morning a gay catalog of 1937 seeds, bulbs and plants, its pages resplendent in color reproductions of marigolds, roses, snapdragons, poppies, and other beauty of bloom. So, another Spring can't be far behind the rigors of February.

DOUBLE PARKERS FINED

The Police Department is renewing its drive against motorists in the habit of double-parking on Peterborough streets and parking on bus stops. Two of the first car owners to fall into the toils of the law as a result of the renewed check-up were dealt with in Police Court this morning. They were George Fairburn and Bill Robson and were each assessed $2 and 75 cents costs. Police promise that more prosecutions will follow unless motorists take immediate heed.

TOPIC: FAMILY WORSHIP.

The meeting of George Street Young Peoples' Union on Tuesday evening was in charge of Miss Ruth Parnall, Christian Culture convenor, and opened with a sing-song led by Kenneth Brenton. Ronald Akers and Mildred Miles assisted in the worship period, and the topic, "Family Worship," was taken by School Inspector L. W. Copp. The recreation period was in charge of Miss Esther Thornton.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCES

Evidence of the fact the influenza epidemic made no serious inroads in Peterborough during recent weeks is indicated in school attendance figures submitted the Board of Education last evening. Attendance officer D. A. Loomis reported 15 were absent from public schools by reason of illness in January. Nine truant cases were given attention and five cases of children unable to attend for lack of boots and clothing were remedied. Percentages of average daily attendances at each of the public schools were: Prince of Wales, 93; King Edward, 91; Central, 91; Queen Mary, 93; Queen Alexandra, 93; and King George, 93. Attendance at the Collegiate averaged 95 per cent.

SEEKING SAND PITS

City Engineer Parsons has been instructed to obtain samples of sand from pits in the vicinity of the city with prices of any such available properties.

LITTLE LAKE FREEZING.

The ice fringe in the Little Lake has been steadily widening since January departed, and nightly gains trace the freezing effects of February.

MORE STREET SIGNS.

Another of the new years heavy grist of projects which are to be discussed as an approach to action is the renumbering and renaming of city streets and the erecting of more street signs. City Engineer Parsons has been asked to give this idea a preliminary survey and report to the council.

TO ENTER CONTEST.

A small choir of Prince of Wales School pupils is being trained by Norman Noftall as the contribution of Peterborough's public schools to the choral festival of Ontario public school songsters in Massey Hall, Toronto, during Easter week. For the expenses of the trip, the Board of Education has provided $25.

ADDRESSED KNOX Y.P.S.

Rev. R. G. Wright addressed the Knox Young People's Union on the subject "Going to Church" at the Union's weekly meeting Tuesday evening. The program was arranged by Gladys Gerard and Gordon Morrison occupied the chair. The chairman led an interesting discussion on current events and Helen Pratt spoke on common errors in etiquette.

TAXES REFUNDED.

Refund of taxes as directed by the Court of Revision was approved by the council Monday night: Mrs. W. M. Rogers, $19.40; Miss Olive Johnston (weed cutting), $1.60; Mrs. Henry Nokes (weed cutting), $1; George A. Macdonald, $280.50; James Guiry, $14.42; Bradburns, Limited, $238.66; C. A. J. Duranceau, $36.02; Fitzgerald Estate, $16.45; Frances White Estate, $40.36; W. W. Theobald, $65.62; Mrs. L. Lucano, $3.74.

TWO AUTOS DAMAGED

Drivers escaped injury but the two automobiles were damaged in a collision at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets this morning. Police reported Wilson F. Stoddard of Toronto was driving east on Hunter street and Harvey Staunton of 254 George street was proceeding south on Aylmer street when the crack-up occurred. The machines were damaged around the radiators and front fenders.

DEFEATED PLUMPING MOTION.

Toronto Council has defeated a motion to permit ratepayers to mark their ballots as they like in municipal elections. Their objection was the same as that expressed at Peterborough's Council meeting Monday night when Ald. Gordon's motion was defeated: namely that ratepayers should not have the liberty of "plumping." A Toronto comment said of plumping: "Its danger lies in the possibility that organized plumpers may elect to council members regarded by the majority of citizens as undesirable."

SETTLEMENT REACHED.

Mr. Justice Hogg, presiding at the opening of the assizes of the Supreme Court here on Tuesday afternoon, signed the terms of settlement in an action, Daniels vs. Brooks, which was partially heard before His Lordship at a previous sitting. Terms of settlement as agreed upon between E. F. Sheehy, counsel for plaintiff, and the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., counsel for the defendant, required that the defendant, Herbert Brooks, should pay forthwith to the plaintiff, Bernard Daniels, the sum of twenty-five dollars, and that the action should be dismissed without costs to either party. The suit originally entered for $3,500 damages and costs arose out of an accident in September last in which it was claimed the plaintiff was knocked from his bicycle by an auto driven by the defendant on Brock Street between Aylmer and George Streets.

SEATING CAPACITY IN CITY SCHOOLS HAS BEEN REACHED

Public School Capacities Soon Require Attention Of School Board

INSPECTOR'S REPORT

Despite a slight general enrolment decrease in Peterborough's public schools, the matter of public school capacities will soon again require the attention of the Board of Education, Inspector A. Mowat indicated in a report on the schools for 1936 to the Board Tuesday evening. Seating capacity has been reached in King Edward and Queen Alexandra Schools, his report stated.

The report, in part, follows:

"The attendance of pupils for 1936 shows a slight increase over 1935. The enrolled attendance was 3087 and the average, 2527. The regularity of attendance was fair averaging 92 per cent. for the year. Illness is given as chief excuse for absence from school. The average loss per pupil through illess was nearly 15 days out of 200 teaching days. The aggregate number of days lost in the year through illness was 46,870 while only 193 days were lost through truancy. Alleged illness is too often made an excuse for absence from school.

Accommodation

"No additional class rooms were opened during the year but the attendance at the King Edward and the Queen Alexandra schools has about reached the seating capacity of these schools. This matter will have to receive attention.

"The location of so many of the Public School buildings on the outskirts of the city is an advantage so far as playgrounds and recreation are concerned but a disadvantage when it becomes necessary to transfer pupils from one school to another. This difficulty has already arisen in extending the Prince of Wales' district farther south but it is the only solution of the problem of overcrowding in the King Edward school.

Teaching Staff

"The staff now consists of 75 regular teachers and 5 special teachers and supervisors. These do not include the medical and dental staffs nor the attendance officer. In 1925 only 11 of the teaching staff held first class certificates while the present number is 40. The rest are all duly qualified and many of them are well-advanced with their first class work. Of the 6 principals, 4 hold university degrees.

"The progress of the pupils throughout the year was satisfactory and only a small percentage failed of promotion. Of the 330 entrance candidates who were prepared for the examination 90 per cent. were successful.

"It has been the aim of the teachers to develop in the pupils a fondness for school and study. I believe this aim is being attained and that a good spirit pervades the schools.

"There is a tendency on the part of educators to do away with examinations. It is doubtful whether this would be in the best interests of scholarship, although it might meet all practical demands.

P. T. and Health

"The health and Physical Training of the pupils are receiving careful attention. The work of the school doctor and nurses together with the work of the dentist is being supplemented by the grade of teachers who inculcate health habits through the Jr. Red Cross programme or by direct teaching. Very few can realize the amount and nature of the work being done by the school nurses. The generosity of friends made it possible to have a good supply of Cod Liver Oil and milk for underprivileged children. The Cadet Corps, supervised games, and physical exercises also deserve recognition.

DUKE KENT TOURS EAST OF LONDON

Sees Jobless Learning New Work—Talks With Former Albertan

LONDON, Feb. 3 (CP Cable) — The Duke of Kent received repeated ovations as he toured east London social service centres today to inspect work being done to rehabilitate the unemployed.

The Duke walked among the men learning new trades and observed them enjoying games. He engaged in conversation and said he was impressed by the friendly spirit among the men and hoped all would soon be fruitfully employed.

The Duke paused for some time talking to Robert Alexander Douglas, who said he was born and brought up in Alberta. He told the Duke he had been unemployed for about two years and had served as a pilot in the air force during the Great War. Asked by the Duke if he would like to return to Canada, Douglas replied he would but could not afford the fare.

Another man told the royal visitor he had built all the furniture for his home from odds and ends collected by the social service council and added: "Now I am building homes for other people placed in the same position as I was."

CROLL TO CONSIDER POINT

Head of Family Must Pay No Matter Where He Is Located.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3 (C.P.) — Welfare Minister Croll wrote the Board of Control yesterday he intended giving "very thorough consideration" to its suggestion that legislation be introduced to give power to enforce payment of maintenance to dependents by the head of a family, regardless where he may be working in the province.

HOUSE OF MAGIC COMING TO CITY

"Casey Jones" Is Train That Obeys Human Voice Without Engineer

"Casey Jones" is a train which will go, stop or back up by request without an engineer having to open the throttle or apply brakes. In fact "Casey" sweeps over the tracks without an engineer's hand at the throttle or brake, and pulls up on the word "stop."

This amazing electric train which obeys the voice of its operator is one of the many uncanny and entertaining features of the General Electric "House of Magic" where light can be heard and sound can be seen.

Under the direction of William A. Gluesing of the G-E Research laboratory at Schenectady, N.Y., the "House of Magic" will be in Peterborough on February 16 and 17. The demonstrations by Mr. Gluesing will be given at Collegiate auditorium.

Mystifying to Watch

While the complete obedience of the train to oral commands is mystifying to watch, it can be easily explained. The operator's "Stop", "Go" and "Back Up" are vocal impulses which a microphone changes into electrical impulses and the latter control the switches which, in turn, control the train. The commands may be given in any sequence.

Among the many other interesting demonstrations which Mr. Gluesing will offer in the "House of Magic", while it is in the city, are the cathode ray oscillograph, ultra-violet light, the fever machine, the stereoscope, and the photoelectric cell which will be used also in the presentation.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM IRWIN.

Succumbing unexpectedly after an illness of three weeks, William Irwin, 185 Bethune Street, passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday. He was 54 years of age.

He was born in Emily, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Irwin, and spent the greater part of his life in Omemee. For the past eight years he had lived in this city. He was a mechanic by trade.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, John and Reginald, and three daughters: Lorraine, Joyce and Willahmene, all at home. A brother, Norman, resides in Toronto.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. from the residence to the Omemee Cemetery. Rev. Rowland will officiate.

ITALY CONTINUES POURING TROOPS INTO REBEL LINES

Volunteer Shipments Never Halt While Nations Ponder On Solution

SUGGEST CONTROL PORTS

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 3—While the non-intervention committee still ponders systems of control, Italy continues to ship "volunteers" to Spain.

Authentic information reached the British Government this morning that a further large body of Italians had landed at Cadiz during the week-end. The dispatch did not indicate the number of Italians landed at Cadiz, nor did it state whether the Italian volunteers carried arms. On these points further information will be sought.

Experts appointed by the international non-intervention committee prepared a draft agreement to tighten the ban on war supplies for Spain. All ships proceeding to Spain would have to call at a control port to pick up a control agent, who would have the power to examine cargo and supervise its discharge when the ship reaches Spain. Control ports suggested are Cherbourg, Brest, Marseille, Gibraltar, Madeira, Oran and Cagliari in Sardinia, with anchorage between the North and South Forelands in England.

Proposed Bans

It is understood the experts also suggest that the 27 countries represented in the non-intervention committee should ban:

1.—The supply of raw materials required to manufacture arms, as well as arms, to either party in Spain;

2.—Employment of their nationals as financial experts or advisers in Spain; and

3.—All loans and credits to banks or other corporations in Spain or individuals, except for humanitarian purposes.

Germany, Italy and Portugal are pressing action to prevent Bank of Spain gold, placed abroad by the Valencia government, being used in the conflict.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, February 4

A series of notable events with a sudden breaking up of stagnant and crystallized conditions, is presaged for this day. This sudden visitation may prove exciting and it should have a very powerful tendency to stabilize the fortunes and increase the real possessions. It would be wise not to be carried away by such overtures of good fortune to the extent of rash and ill-considered moves or investments.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a momentous year, with the sudden and radical breaking away from long cogested and crystallized conditions. This precipitate shattering of stubborn obstacles should result in a stabilization of the fortunes and an increase of property or sound investments. But refrain from hasty and impulsive judgments and confer with friendly elders or old institutions before making decisions.

A child born on this day may be studious, serious and steadfast, although it may be enterprising, practical and constructive, winning the support of elders. It will have a fine and sensitive nature.

ENGLAND NEEDS 244 FOR A WIN IN FOURTH TEST

In Last Stage Tourists Have Scored 148 Runs For Three Wickets

BRADMAN SETS RECORD

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 3—(C.P. Cable).—Making a great last innings' stand, England, with seven wickets to fall, needs 244 runs for victory in the fourth cricket test match against Australia. In the last stage of the long match the tourists have scored 148 runs for three wickets, following up a first innings' score of 330. Australia's totals were 288 and 433.

Don Bradman, Aussie captain, scored his second century of the test series yesterday. If the Aussies are victorious, thereby evening the series at two wins each, the South Australian batting wizard will be chiefly responsible. While his colleagues found England's bowling none too easy, Bradman played patiently for 212, the innings lasting seven hours. He hit 14 fours. Critics regarded his performance as the best of his career.

Twenty-three thousand spectators saw the Englishmen start their uphill fight soon after lunch. Hedley Verity, Yorkshire, and Charles Barnett, Gloucestershire, opened the innings for the second time. They defended stubbornly for 47 minutes, when Verity was bowled by L. O'B. Fleetwood-Smith, after scoring 17 out of a total of 45. Score card:

King Edward Wins Over Beavers 3-2

King Edward copped a 3-2 decision over Beavers in a smart South-end Hockey League midget match last night at the Sacred Heart rink. Play was close from start to finish, the well-matched teams battling hard and showing some good hockey. Heath and Cournyea accounted for the Beavers' goals, while Henwood, Self and Campbell scored for the winners. The losers were without alternates and found it tough in the third. The teams:

Beavers— Goal, Mattucci; defence, J. Jones, Brioux; centre, B. Jones; wings, Heath, Cournyea; no alternates.

King Edward— Goal, Shea; defence, Campbell, Roberts; centre, Jamieson; wings, Henwood, Self; alternates, Gillespie, Henthorne, Post.

CURLING
By HERB MARTIN

Playing under conditions that were ideal for curling, Wallace Harvey of our club successfully skipped his rink to win the Neill Trophy for the 1937 season. Norman Hawley, also of our club, was a bang-up second.

With an entry that was smaller than we have had in several years, play began on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, and continued until midnight.

The ice was keen and in the very best of condition—and the added consolation event kept the interest up until the final was finished about 12 o'clock.

R. J. Kidd, for many years connected with the Robert Neill Co., was an interested spectator.

And oddly enough Godfrey Matthews, curling for his second year, and identified with the Robert Neill Company, should be on the winning rink.

That semi-finals between Hamley and Hamley was just a family affair—but youth must be served.

This chap Kirma appearing at the Capitol may be all right, but we are wondering how far he would get on No. 8.

Some of us were in the competition just long enough to pay our entrance fee, turn right around and walk out again.

The father and son combination of Clarks worked pretty good.

And if you don't think we lads on No. 8 had a good time—well, just drop around next Tuesday, when we have our open bonspiel for the Canada Packers Trophy.

PHOOEY, BUT this is blue weather! There's a war in Spain; there's the Petes' puck team grounded by the Fliers; and there's a cold in our head. The groundhog saw his shadow yesterday but he's a piker—we see shadows everywhere today. There is no balm in Gilead—but there is a vacuum in our ex-money pocket. It would take a Philadelphia lawyer and the death of a rich uncle to get us straightened out. Dunno how we'll meet some of those bills. Maybe Kirma can answer that one! If our spirits ever skyrocket up to the level of an earth worm again we'll treat him as an equal. If the worm doesn't turn around and snub us. Man was made to mourn.

* * * * * * *

SO THE O.B.A.A. gives permission to Art Upper, Frank Coleman and Tony Bonk to try out for pro ball, eh? Let the big shots just try to stop guys from trying to make some honest dough. And Harold Buck wants a transfer from Sudbury to play ball in Kingston, huh? Looks like the Ponies will join the build-up ball program of Napanee and Oshawa in the C.O.B.I. With the Fliers also tough. Just Belleville and the Petes hanging onto the ropes. Might as well tie the ropes around their necks and hop off. And it sure is galling to be bracketed with Belleville even in a suicide pact!

* * * * * * *

SOME LOCAL business men at the Brock recently discussed an artificial rink for Peterborough. A mere matter of 50 G's or so. Couldn't have been the heat—maybe the nurse let 'em fall when they were babies. Only $50,000 or so, eh? There isn't that much money in town. Oh, maybe on paper or in idle property, but just who can fish out 50 G's from his pocket and say: "Sure, put it in an artificial rink and, as you'll need plenty more for upkeep, keep in touch with me as the bills come in." At that it would be nice not to be grouped with "B" teams and calling a couple of mouths' play a hockey season. Achooooooo! There you are—every time we get a halfway pleasant thought, a sneeze blasts it out of our noggin!

* * * * * * *

NOPE, DOESN'T seem to be a pleasant thought in the world today. Sport setup here seems okay, barring that screwy intermediate grouping. But life is not all sports. There are also floods in the middle west, emptiness in the pants pockets and stuffiness in the nose. Who cares? Well, we do and since no one will listen to our troubles, we'll darn well write 'em here; it's our column. Maybe we'll get talking to some of the Petes and give 'em our cold. That would make 'em so mad they'd lick the Fliers on Friday! Look at the way Shrimp McDougall played the other night with a cold. Ha, that is the first pleasant thought we had today!

* * * * * * *

JUNIOR COLTS have had a lengthy layoff but have kept in trim with [illegible] workouts. And they get into action again this Friday night when Belleville comes here. Given a good sheet of ice—and the weather promises to be plenty chilly for a few days yet—and these smart young squads will dish up a dandy puck match. Each has pulled out a close win over the other, and Belleville's recent 10-0 nod over Tweed isn't cheering the local lads any, either. After Friday's tilt here, the Colts have one more contest on Quinte ice before the group playoffs commence. Yeah, within two weeks. Likely there'll be no ice by then, though.

* * * * * * *

MAYFAIRS CLIMBED into a first-place Senior City Puck Loop tie at the Brock last night by copping a 3-2 nod over Lakefield. It was a serious setback for the latter gang. Westclox suffered their first reverse of the season when the Outboard Marines bounced over the breakers for a 4-1 chuckle. And Bewdley broke into the victory column with a 2-1 nudge over the men of Millbrook. Three lively Blood and Thunder Loop tussles before a crowd nearly big enough to pay for the lights used. Yeah, a few dozen frost-bitten fans braved the breezes to see these lads go.

* * * * * * *

SIGNED AND eligible players now in the Senior City Hockey League are: Westclox—W. Thirnbeck, F. Parsons, H. White, A. Padgett, C. Whatley, T. Parsons, A. Stante, E. Williams, A. Field, P. TWO JUNIOR City Hockey League games are billed for tomorrow night at the Brock St. rink. Canucks meet St. Peter's at eight bells, with Monarchs tangling with All Saints at nine o'clock. These games produce lots of action. Too much last time, as the boys began roughing it up like sailors on shore leave—and the loop officers have warned 'em to cut out that kind of play before someone is hurt. It's a short schedule for these four squads and every game is plenty important. If you like to see the kids battle it out, just sashay around to the rink Thursday twilight.

PICKING 'EM off the grapevine: Local Kadunks—who won the Felt Cup at Lindsay last year—are trying to have that tourney postponed till late in February so as to have a chance to defend the cup .... Jack Gardner should have been credited with an assist on the Petes' last goal here Monday eve .... Final date for registering O.H.A. players has been extended to February 8th for natural ice centres .... Canuck Midgets beat Lindsay here 2-1 last night to even their three-game exhibition serial; next one is in Lindsay a week from this Friday .... Annual meeting of the O.B.A.A. this Spring will be in Oshawa .... St. John's Bantams play George St. at six in Church Hockey Loop games tonight with Murray St. meeting St Paul's at seven .... Tomorrow sees Park St. playing Mark St. Bantams at six, Trinity vs. All Saints Juveniles at seven, Knox against St. John's Juveniles at eight, and Murray St. Seniors meeting George St. at nine .... Pancake Social Held By Lakefield A.Y.P.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 3.—The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Anglican Church, Lakefield, held an enjoyable pancake social after the regular business meeting on Monday, Feb. 1 in the parish hall.

An important item of business was the making of final arrangements for a sleighing party to be held on Friday night, when the A.Y.P.A. members will drive out by bob-sleigh to the home of Mrs. Warren Nichols, near Bridgenorth, where a social evening will be spent.

After the business session the evening was spent in games, and pancakes and syrup were served to those present instead of the usual cake and tea. The pancake social is a regular annual event of the A.Y.P.A. and is held at the last regular meeting before Lent.

Lakefield Y.P.S. Holds Skating Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 3.—On Monday evening the Young People's Society of Lakefield United Church held a most successful skating party in the Lakefield Rink. Members met at the rink where skating was indulged in from eight o'clock until ten-thirty. Then the members went over to the Sunday School where a social hour was spent. Delicious refreshments were served by the committee in charge of arrangements, composed of Mesdames William Millage and G. T. Kelly and Mr. Clifford Hurl.

Everyone present seemed to enjoy themselves. Some of the members had not skated for years and thoroughly enjoyed getting back on the ice again.

Remember When—

New York decided 10 years ago today hockey was a great game and it should have more of it. The Americans were drawing such crowds a second team was planned. Conny Smythe of Toronto gathered players for the Rangers team that won the National League championship and the Stanley Cup in 1928. Lester Patrick replaced Smythe as manager after organization.

Yale Bulldogs Are Beaten By Toronto

TORONTO, Feb. 3—(C.P.).—The "up again, down again" University of Toronto Blues once more were back on even terms with McGill University to-day, and it seemed the coming home-and-home series between the teams would go a long way in deciding the International - Intercollegiate Hockey League championship.

Making a surprisingly strong stand, Yale Bulldogs dropped a 5-1 decision to U. of T. last night—their second defeat in as many nights.

BOBCAYGEON WINS LAWLESS TROPHY

Defeats Lakefield Curlers By Ten Points In Games Played

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 3.—On Monday a contest was arranged between the Lakefield Curling Club and the Bobcaygeon Curling Club for the Lawless Cup. Two rinks went from Lakefield to Bobcaygeon and two rinks came from Bobcaygeon to Lakefield; resulting in the cup taking a trip to Bobcaygeon to reside there for a year. The following rinks played at Lakefield:

Lakefield:		Bobcaygeon:
F. Wannamaker		Wm. Martin
J. H. Payne		Wm. Cosh
Reg. Murduff		L. Kennedy
Percy Spence		W. V. Mark
Skip	9	Skip	9
Rev. J. Malane		L. Cunningham
C. J. Lake		M. Levis
B. Q. Dench		O. Thurston
C. S. Tanner		L. B Shorey
Skip	13	Skip	7
	22		16

The score, as reported from Bobcaygeon, was: Bobcaygeon 27, Lakefield 11, giving a majority of ten in favor of Bobcaygeon.

After the game the visitors were entertained at the Commercial House, after which the cup was presented by Skip Tanner, president of the Lakefield club, to Skip Storey, president of the Bobcaygeon club, who, on behalf of his club, expressed their pleasure at visiting Lakefield and playing with such a fine bunch of sports.

Keene Breaks Even In Two Puck Games

KEENE, Feb. 3.—Two Peterborough puck teams broke even in games in Keene last week. All Saints of the West-end League lost to Keene, 9-0, on Friday, while a visiting junior squad Thursday took a 7-4 win over Keene juniors in a lively exhibition game.

Ivan Fletcher led the attack against All Saints with three goals, while A. Shearer and O. McCarthy got two each and D. McCarthy and A. Nelson one apiece. Renwick in goal shone while earning his second shutout in four games. Seabrooke, Maudsley, Quirt and McDougall looked best for the Saints. The teams:

All Saints: Goal, Pearson; defence, Rusaw, Seabrooke; centre, Maudsley; wings, Frost, Quirt; alternates, McDougall, Legon, Charlton.

Keene: Goal, Renwick; defence, Gall, Nelson; centre, D. McCarthy; wings, Campbell, Shearer; alternates, McCarthy, Nelson, Fletcher, McIntyre.

Referee—H. McFadden.

The junior contest saw lots of action with the Peterborough crew taking a commanding lead early to outscore Keene 4-1 in the first frame. The other periods were even with Heath clever in goal when Keene pressed. Cournyea, Hoy, Barnes, Leggitt and Heath all looked good for the winners; while Joyce, McCarthy and Campbell stood out for Keene.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS
Ski-ing

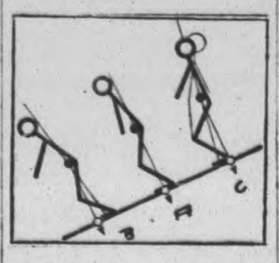
33—STRAIGHT DOWNHILL RUNNING. PART 1

Great importance is attached to the mastery of a good straight running position. The two basic requirements for successful downhill running are proper positions of the body and of the skis. As mentioned in previous articles there are three correct body positions: erect, half-crouch and low-crouch. The factors which determine the positions to be used will be discussed in one of our next articles.



Irrespective of the position taken, the general line of the body through the centre of gravity and the centre of the area of support should be, normally, at about right angles to the slope, as shown in figure A. If the slope suddenly steepens the body is leaned forward from the ankles, the knees slightly more bent so that the line of the body makes less than a right angle with the downhill direction of the slope. This throws the line through the centre of gravity at right angles to the slope ahead of the area of support and prevents falling backwards, figure B, while the speed is increasing. When the speed has become constant on the new gradient, normal positions can again be assumed. If the slope suddenly becomes less steep the angle of bend of the knees is decreased by thrusting the hips forward and the shoulders back, not by straightening the ankles, as the knees must be kept thrust forward. A little more if anything to lower the centre of gravity. The general line of the body is now at a greater angle than 90 degrees, with the downhill direction of the slope and the line through the centre of gravity at right angles to the slope is behind the area of support and prevents falling forward, figure C. The normal position is assumed when the speed becomes constant on the new gradient.

FATE IS SLAPPING HOCKEY VETERANS HARD THIS YEAR

Shore and Morenz Both Pushed From Scenes By Injuries

BLOW TO TEAMS

TORONTO, Feb 3—The death knell is slowly tolling over the careers of many prominent N.H.L. stars. The latest supermen to leave temporarily are the great Howie Morenz who suffered a broken leg, and hard-hitting defenceman, Eddie Shore, who is again on the shelf with a back injury.

Injury to the spectacular Morenz was a severe blow not only to himself but to his team. Les Canadiens were flying high when the accident happened and it has the hockey critics guessing as to whether they can continue their great form without the centre wizard. Morenz has been known to take the loss of a single game seriously. His reactions to this misfortune which struck just as he was reaching the height of a great comeback can be guessed. The injury will put him on the bench for the remainder of the season.

Shore Also Out

The great defenceman, Eddie Shore, will also be missed almost as much by Boston Bruins. The clever defensive work and dangerous attacking ability which he possessed has carried the Bruising Bruins far on their hockey trails during many seasons. Shore has been one of the outstanding, if not the greatest, showman in the league, and one of its real iron men.

These two old-timers of the hockey wars have seen considerable service with their respective clubs. This was Morenz' twelfth season with Canadiens, while Eddie Shore was well on his way to completing his eleventh straight season with the Bruins. Although Morenz broke into hockey several years before Shore, he has not played with the same team for as long a period.

Faces Tough Break.

Morenz may not be through but the cards are certainly laying bad for Shore. He has been bothered with a back injury since the start of the current season. This injury so doctors claim, is "very bad" and he may never fully recover from it. Shore came to big time hockey from Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canadian Hockey League in the season of 1926-27. Before turning professional he saw service with several teams in the prairie league. He was born in Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., 32 years ago.

With the passing of such stars as King Clancy, possibly Shore and Morenz, the year's crop of rookies have a man-sized job on their hands to fill properly the empty thrones of hockey's greatest.

PLAY A 1-1 DRAW

LONDON—Grimsby Town and Birmingham played a 1-1 draw in an English football league match on the former's ground yesterday.

Outboard Marines Beat Westclox 4-1

Westclox suffered their first loss of the Senior City Hockey League season at the Brock St. rink last night when an inspired Outboard Marines' outfit copped a 4-1 decision over them before a small crowd. On a fast sheet of ice, play was speedy all the way with the Marines looking better most of the distance. A hot ganging attack by the Clockmakers in the final frame made it plenty exciting but the winners deserved the nod.

Play was mostly clean, though some slashing and boarding—which did no damage—helped to enliven things, and a few fights threatened but failed to materialize. Beavis shone in the winners' net and his teammates all went good. The first line was especially effective. While the losers kept battling, they lacked the combination of their rivals. Field, Padgett, Whatley and O'Leary seemed the most effective.

Outboard Marines ran in three fast ones halfway through the opening period. Cripps scored on a lone rush and then Archibald burned an angle shot by Tharby. Payne came right back at close range to make it 3-0. Westclox fought back harder in the middle chucker and got their first goal when Whatley took Padgett's forward pass to blast it by Beavis. In the third, Coursey, aided by Maudsley, made it 4-1 for the Marines on a nice effort in close. Westclox pressed hard as they ganged up but failed to tally again. The teams:

Westclox: Goal, Tharby, defence, Parsons and Whatley; centre, Williams; wings, Dinesen and Field; alternates, Stante, O'Leary, Padgett, Calladine and Jay.

Outboard Marines: Goal, Beavis; defence, Howe and LeBarr; centre, Payne; wings, Wood and Archibald; alternates, Cripps, Maudsley, Coursey and Reeves.

Referee, Herb Payne.

MAROONS WHIP LEAFS BY 3-1 GAIN 2ND PLACE

Two Third Period Goals, One With Seconds To Play Sew Up The Game

ROUGH GOING

Victory Avenges Saturday Defeat—Top Toronto By Five Points

THE FORUM, Montreal, Feb. 3.—(CP).—Scoring two third-period goals, Montreal Maroons whipped Toronto Leafs, 3-1, in a bruising National Hockey League game last night, before 7,000 fans.

Victory, avenging a 7-4 beating taken in Toronto Saturday night, pulled Maroons 5 points ahead of Leafs for second place in the Canadian Section. Leafs, however, held their third place slot ahead of the idle New York Americans.

Russ Blinco, shooting his second goal of the season at 2.42 of the final period, paved the way for the Montreal triumph. His goal broke the tie made in the second period, when Reg Hamilton, on a ganging attack while Lionel Conacher served a penalty with only seconds to play, wiped out Herb Cain's goal, scored while "Red" Horner was off.

Baldy Northcott ended all Leaf hopes with the third Maroon goal, fired with two seconds to play on a breakaway rush from a five-man Leaf attack.

Maroons set up a touch-checking barrier which only the high-powered line of Harvey Jackson, Gordon Drillon and Syl Apps could break through with any frequency. Goaler Bill Beveridge handled all their thrusts in brilliant style.

The edge in man-power brought Maroons a goal on their first rush. From the blue-line face-off Gracie got the puck to Marker, who slipped it to Cain on left wing. Cain fired a low shot into the corner at 6.48.

Conacher went off for boarding Apps, and he had been off only a few seconds when Leafs tied the score. Harvey Jackson passed back to Hamilton, and the Leaf defenseman back-handed a high shot past Beveridge at 19.48.

Blinco Nets One.

Conacher came back before Leafs organized an effective offensive, and a couple of minutes later Blinco shot Maroons into the lead, poking in a rink-wide pass from Trottier at 2.42. Robinson also got an assist.

Shill broke lose by the Maroon goal mouth and Conacher almost shot the puck into his own net as he slapped it away in clearing.

Maroons were shooting the puck down the ice near the close but they had Leaf attackers well in check. Northcott broke away with two seconds to play, pulled Broda far out, then pushed the puck into the empty net. Wentworth drew an assist.

Toronto—Goal, Broda; defence, Hamilton and Day; centre, Apps; wings, Drillon and H. Jackson; alternates, Horner, Fowler, Metz, Finnigan, Thoms, A. Jackson, Jarvis, Davidson and Shill.

Maroons—Goal, Beveridge; defence, Wentworth and Conacher; centre, Runge; wings, Northcott and Ward; alternates, Evans, Trottier, Marker, Cain, Gracie, Carson.

Blinco, Robinson and Shannon.

Officials—Ion and Dye.

Bewdley Wins 2-1 Over Millbrook

Senior City Hockey League standing to date:

Team	P	W	L	T
Westclox	5	4	1	0
Mayfairs	5	4	1	0
Outboard Marines	5	2	2	1
Millbrook	5	1	3	1
Lakefield	4	1	3	0
Bewdley	4	1	3	0

Bewdley broke into the win column in the Senior City Hockey League last night at the Brock before 16 paid fans by nesing out a 2-1 nod over Millbrook. It was a speedy, clean and smart tussle most of the way with the teams playing on practically even terms. Walker scored in the first for Bewdley and h: gave E. Mercer a pass in the third for their goals. McCarthy's tally on Wahnman's assist in the second was the lone Millbrook marker, though the losers pressed hard and had an edge during the third.

The rival goalies, Ferguson and Sloan, kicked out a bunch, the latter being especially effective in the torrid third inning. The winners' defence shaded that of the other side, while all the forwards looked good. The first line shone for Bewdley and Edmunds, McCarthy and Wainman stood out for Millbrook. The teams:

Millbrook: Goal, Ferguson; defence, White and Spencely; centre, Edmunds; wings, Skitch and Cathcart; alternates, McCarthy, Wainman, Sloan and Hunter.

INTEREST GROWS IN JERSEY CLUB

Membership In Canada Now Stands At 1,590 With Ontario In Lead

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (CP)—Canadian Jersey Cattle Club's membership increased in 1936 in every province in Canada and now stands at 1,590—the highest on record, Secretary James Bremner of Toronto reported to the club's annual meeting today.

In some province registrations and transfers fell off chiefly as a result of a rush late the previous year to register over-age animals, the secretary said.

However, in dairy breed registration at Ottawa, Jersey stood first in Ontario, New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia; second in Quebec and Nova Scotia; and third in Prince Edward Island, he added.

Since record of performance work was started by the Federal Agriculture Department, more than 13,000 Jersey cows had qualified. About 1,700 records were completed last year compared with 1,543 in 1935.

"The past year has been outstanding not only for the number of new records established but also for the number of records broken," said the secretary.

He mentioned that Brampton Basilua, a Jersey cow banqueted Monday night, in 1936 had finished her third record over 1,230 pounds of fat, a performance never before recorded by any other cow.

The club's financial statement showed receipts in 1936 amounting to $27,881 and disbursements of $26,541.

WINGS, RANGERS BATTLE TO TIE

Detroit Comes From Behind Three Times To Even Game Up

FINAL SCORE 4-4

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (C.P.). — A free-scoring overtime game left Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers tied 4-4 last night and brought no change in their one-two position at the head of the National Hockey League's United States section.

The champion Red Wings came from behind thrice to deadlock the Rangers.

Little Larry Aurie, the National League's leading goal-getter, rifled the puck three times into the New York cage, and was largely responsible for the Red Wings splitting the points with the Rangers.

Some 14,500 spectators saw Frankie Boucher shoot the Rangers in front with a goal in the first three minutes of play. Marty Barry got the equaliser ten minutes later.

Rangers snared a two-goal lead in the first half of the second frame on markers by Butch Keeling and Alex Shibicky. Red Wings then turned on the heat and Aurie scored twice. The Rangers vigorously protested the Detroiter's second tally, as the goal umpire did not flash the red light, but Rangers claimed it had not entered the cage. Referee Clarence Campbell ruled otherwise.

Babe Pratt gave the locals the lead for the third time by scoring early in the third period, but Aurie again came to the Red Wings' rescue and deadlocked the count again with a blazing shot from the left side.

Rangers — Goal, Kerr; defence, Coulter, Heller; centre, Boucher; wings, Dillon, Patrick; subs., Pratt, Shibicky, Cook, N. Colville, Murdoch, Keeling, Cooper, Watson, M. Colville.

Detroit — Goal, Smith; defence, Goodfellow, McDonald; centre, Barry; wings, Aurie, Lewis; subs., Orlando, Howe, W. Kilrea, Sorrell, Pettinger, H. Kilrea, Bruneteau, Kelly, Bowman.

Babe Siebert Scores Winner In Third To See Boston Drop Seventh In Row

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—(CP). — Big Babe Siebert fired a third-period goal last night to give Montreal Canadiens a 1-0 victory over Bruins as the Boston National Hockey Leaguers played their seventh straight winless game on home ice.

Bruins, seeking their first win on home ice in six games, were without their defense star, Eddie Shore.

A crowd of 15,000 saw the burly "Babe," a former Bruin, whack home the game's only goal and star from bell to bell, both on defense and offense. Long before he slapped in his vital tally, Siebert had ruined many a threatening Boston rally.

His goal came in the seventh minute of third-period play when he joined a rush launched by George Brown, who carried inside the Boston defense before passing left. "Toe" Blake took the pass, circled the net and passed out to Siebert.

The "Babe" whirled and shot it past "Tiny" Thompson while the Bruins played a man shy.

Boston—Goal, Thompson; defense, Portland, Shields; centre, Duguid; wings, Cook, Clapper; subs, Weiland, Beattie, Goldsworthy, Hollett, Smith, Cowley, Sands, Getliffe, O'Neil.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press.)

Little Larry Aurie of Detroit jumped back into the scoring leadership of the National Hockey League last night, firing three goals for a 32-point total, one more than Toronto's Harvey Jackson, held to a single assist against Maroons, and his team-mate, Marty Barry, who had a part in all four Detroit goals. Herb Lewis, third unit of the Red Wing ace line, came back into the Big Seven by garnering three assists that gave him part of a five-way tie for last place.

Mayfairs Move Up With 3-2 Victory

Mayfairs climbed into a first-place tie in the Senior City Hockey League last night at the Brock St. rink with a 3-2 verdict over Lakefield before about two dozen fans. It was a rough, close battle from beginning to end with frequent penalties and plenty of undermand tactics pulled. Lakefield got a goal each in the first and third frames while the Cafe Kids tallied one in every inning.

There was little difference shown on the night's play, both sides turning in speedy combination, hard shooting and heavy checking. The Lakefield gang pressed hard in the dying minutes but were unable to again sew it up. Both goalies looked good, and the rival defences were strong. All the forwards worked hard with Chittick, Jewell and G. Charlton best for the losers; and the O'Leary-Cournyea-Hill line outstanding for Mayfairs.

O'Leary tallied for the homesters in the initial stanza on a neat effort, while Chittick punched one by Currie for the out-of-town squad the same period. The lone goal of the middle stanza was scored by Gardner on Driscoll's pass. Gardner was off in the third when Chittick scored to tie the count. Later, with Vitarelli off for Mayfairs, Hill broke away to score the winning marker with all the Lakefield crew ganging up at the opposite end of the rink. Currie had to kick out a bunch in the last few minutes. The teams:

Lakefield: Goal, Sabatino and Stenner; centre, Chittick; wings, Jewell and G. Charlton; alternates, Lennox, Chappell, Morin and I. Charlton.

Mayfairs: Goal, Currie; defence, Vitarelli and Gardner; centre, O'Leary; wings, Cournyea and Hill; alternates, Mowry, Meyette and Driscoll.

Referee, Herb Payne.

NORTH BAY HOCKEY BATTLE TO FINISH AS A COURT CASE

Copper Cliff Wingman Charged With Assault After Junior Exhibition

FANS TAKE HAND

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—Free on $200 bail, Red Hamill, high-scoring wingman of Copper Cliff's junior hockey team is expected to appear in court here Monday. He was arrested on a charge of assault last night following a wild fight that climaxed a junior exhibition game here.

North Bay's two junior teams were combined to oppose Copper Cliff Redmen but they found the going tough and were eventually beaten 13-2. Fans did not approve of tactics of the heavier Copper Cliff players, who bodychecked freely and otherwise buffeted the home team.

Trouble started in the second period when Tiger Diotte of North Bay and Pat McCreapy of Copper Cliff clashed; Hamill joined in the fray. The referee broke up that skirmish in short order.

But Copper Cliff didn't slacken its aggressive tactics and the crowd was in an uproar most of the time. Copper Cliff led 5-2 at the end of the first period and 11-2 at the end of the second.

When the game ended Hamill, according to witnesses, skated over to the North Bay players' bench and hit Virgili of the home team twice. Fans piled over the boards and police had difficulty in getting the Copper Cliff players to their dressing room.

Coach Fred McKenna of North Bay laid the assault charge against Hamill. Max Silverman, Copper Cliff coach, accompanied the player to police headquarters.

No statement was forthcoming immediately from hockey association officials with regard to possible action against any of those involved.

HAVELOCK

WRECKERS DEFEAT INDIAN RIVER 5-1

Havelock Squad Jump Into Early Lead And Are Never Headed

HAVELOCK, Feb. 3—The "Wreckers" swept through to a decisive 5 to 1 count in a speedy exhibition game last evening with Russel Green's boys from Indian River before a fair crowd of fans. It was a fast, clean contest with the homesters having a slight edge throughout, over their hard-checking visitors.

The locals went into an early lead on goals by Ellis and Hagerman in the first period and from then on were out in front, Indian River getting their only counter of the game when Jimmy Clark notched one in the second stanza.

Both goalies made a bunch of nice saves and the rival defences bodychecked effectively throughout. Special mention might be made of H. Harnden, local goalkeeper, who, although playing his first game in the nets, gave an outstanding performance, and on the play certainly deserved a shut-out.

The teams:

Indian River—Goal, H. Walsh; defense, A. White and P. Holmes; centre, J. Clark; wings, G. Shearer and N. Clark; alternates, Jack Cavanaugh, Jimmy Cavanaugh, and J. Kelly.

Havelock—Goal, H. Harnden; defense, J. Aboud and G. Whitney; centre, R. Hagerman; wings, J. Ketchen and L. McMullen; alternates, W. Moore, E. Ellis, P. McLaughlin and S. McCutcheon.

Summary:

First Period.

Havelock—Ellis (McLaughlin).
Havelock—Hakerman.

Second Period.

Indian River—J. Clark (White).
Havelock—McLaughlin (Ellis, McCutcheon).
Havelock—McMullen (Hagerman).

Penalty—Moore.

Third Period.

Havelock—Hagerman.

DIED

IRWIN, William.—At St. Joseph's Hospital, February 2, following an illness of three weeks, William Irwin, 54, of 185 Bethune street. Funeral Friday, February 5, at 2 p.m., from the residence to the Omemee Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

FIELD.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Field.
Sleep on, dear good mother; it has been long years
Since you left our hearts filled with sadness and tears;
Yours was a heart that was blithesome and gay,
Scattering sunshine all along the way;
You know how we loved you, and yes, love you yet,
Though God took you from us, we cannot forget.
—Ever remembered by Husband, Sons and Daughters.

ABBEY TO SEAT LARGER CROWDS AT CORONATION

Carpenters Change Interior Of Great Edifice—Officials Draft Lists

WILL BE LONG SERVICE

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 3—(C.P.).—Westminster Abbey, now ringing with hammers and cluttered with rough timber, will on May 12 seat at least 7,500 for the coronation ceremony—and a host will stand.

The general seating plan has been determined and the invitations will be sent out early in March. Representatives of foreign governments and ambassadors to the Court of St. James, whose invitations are being arranged through diplomatic channels, will have the best possible view of the ceremony — from the choir and between the nave and the transept. Near them will sit the bishops and judges.

The Abbey is being fitted with about 400 seats more than were used at the coronation of George V in 1911. About 1,500 of these will be occupied by peers, peeresses and dowagers. They will be placed in order of precedence, the peers in the south transept, the peeresses in the north, in galleries on the first and second floors. Knights Grand Cross will also sit on the second floor with peers under age.

Given Over To Press

The third floor sitting will be given over to the press and masters and scholars of Westminster School. The distribution of other seats is yet uncertain, including a good number in the nave which, though not near the service, will give a clear view of the processions. The Earl Marshal is allowed to appoint about 300 gold staff officers as ushers, and applications to this staff now are closed.

One uncertainty was cleared up when a member of the House of Lords was informed recently it was not necessary for him to write the Earl Marshal again for a seat as his application for a seat at the coronation of Edward VIII was in order for that of George VI.

The selected lists are greater for this coronation than for the last. There are many more peers, peeresses and dowagers. The number of M.P.'s and their wives, 1,003 approximately, remains about the same, but 60 more privy councillors and their wives are expected and 200 additional Knights Grand Cross. Then there will be a new contingent from the Air Force and outlying Empire countries.

Allocation of seats for representatives of the Dominions and Colonies is being made in consultation with the Dominion and Colonial offices and the several high commissioners. The question of seats for representatives of the fighting services and the civil service are also in the discussion stage.

Will Be Long Service

A platform, called the theatre, on which precedent decrees the coronation ceremony will take place, is to be set up in front of the High Altar. And on the lawn adjoining the west door an annex will be constructed for the reception of the King and Queen and for the robing and formation into processions of all the royal persons and notables. This annex, of course, will be temporary.

The first stage of the four-months work in the Abbey has been finished. The whole floor has been planked with two-inch boards to protect the stone floor with its many tombstones from damage during the erection of the stands.

An interesting point on which there has been no official statement is that guests at the ceremony may have to spend seven hours inside the Abbey. According to the time-table of the coronation of George V the Abbey doors will be closed at 8 a.m. The crowning will take place shortly before one o'clock and the King and Queen will leave the Abbey at 3:30.

It is unlikely the guests would be able to leave until some time after owing to the stately pace of such ceremonies.

FRANCE PREPARED

Air Force Able to Meet Germany, Minister Announces

PARIS, Feb. 3 — (A.P.). — The French Air Force has been increased 37 per cent. since last June 1, Air Minister Pierre Cot told the Chamber of Deputies to-day.

To bursts of Leftist applause, he implied France's Air Force was strong enough to meet any air threat by Germany, picturing it second to none save that of Soviet Russia.

His address followed upon a declaration by Communist Deputy Gitton that Germany's "motorized army of 1,100,000 men" could be hurled at the French frontier over new super-highways at the rate of 70,000 troops an hour.

FROZEN TO DEATH IN STORM

MINTON, Sask., Feb. 3—(C.P.)—Caught in a blizzard near this town, 100 miles south of Regina, Peter Strahl, 62, was frozen to death last week-end, it was learned to-day. Friends found the body in a snow drift.

The Day That I Forget
By MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 1

"DEARLY beloved, we are gathered here in the sight of God and in the face of this company to join together. . ."

Janet's eyes lifted from the white head bent over the book. Her vision, synchronized with the tumultuous beating of her heart, wavered so that for an instant the china dogs on the mantel back of the white head seemed to rise and settle. She was aware, as in a dream, of the echo of the music of the old-fashioned organ expiring on the air. Outdoors she heard the passing of a heavy motor on the country road, the distant barking of a dog, the shifting of feet at her back.

". . . this man and woman in holy matrimony . . ."

She turned her head ever so slightly and saw Joel standing straight and solemn at her side. He was framed by the room that seemed smaller than his tall gauntness. The light streaming through lace curtains lent a nobility to his head. It pointed up the clean shabbiness of the worn carpet where so many other couples had stood like these two. It showed the careful darning in the linen doilies on the plush chairs, the fading colors of the yellowing wallpaper.

Janet thought: this is my background. Joel doesn't belong here. I can smell bread baking. I've known that smell all my life. I was brought up in a home like this and I thought that one day I would end it in just such a home. But this is not for Joel. Oh, Lord, make me a good wife, the right wife for him!

". . . . and, is commended by Saint Paul to be honorable among all men; and therefore is not by anyone to be entered into unadvisedly or lightly."

Martha Colby, standing at Janet's left, cleared her throat. The sound in that room, silent save for the soft old voice speaking so slowly, sounded harsh. She dropped her eyes.

As though Martha had spoken, Janet protested within herself: We are not entering into it lightly. We loved each other from the moment we met. Time doesn't matter.

Martha thought: It's the most unadvised thing I've ever heard of. Who'd ever think that those two would fall in love? Janet, you should have better than this! A sane, sweet child marrying a stranger. He's a temperamental, second-rate actor. What would your Scotch father think of this?

Martha thought of little Dr. MacLeod, as she had been thinking of him since Janet had called her on the telephone the day before. There had been something singing in Janet's voice then: "Martha, I want you to stand up with me tomorrow. I'm going to marry Joel Paynter. Reverend Fisher is going to marry us at his home in Chester. No, you're not dreaming, it's true! Yes, he's the boy I met two weeks ago but I know it's right, Martha. Will you?"

"If any man can show just cause why they may not be lawfully joined together, let him now speak, or else hereafter forever hold his peace," the minister intoned.

The faintest smile played momentarily at the corners of Janet's mouth.

Almost the first words Joel had said to her were, "I'm not a marrying man." Before that he had said, "I don't know your name but I've struggled through this jam to get across to you ever since you came in. Do you care very much for this party or will you get your things and leave with me? I want to talk to you."

Janet had obtained her things and when they were in the park, driving from the Taylor's cocktail party, they hardly spoke. Yet between them there was a quickened sense of understanding.

Joel took her sensible little hand in his big one and looked into her face. Janet wished then that it were a pretty face. Just as she sometimes wished that she were tall, "I'm a half-pint and plain," she labeled herself. Her five feet of small proportioned perfection and her face that was distinguished by a broad brow, by deep gray eyes and a wide, generous mouth. If her cheekbones were high and her nose as Scotch as heather, her soft light brown hair broke away from its smooth tightness to curl softly about her forehead and cheeks.

"I'm not a marrying man," he said suddenly and surprisingly.

"Does it matter?" she said.

"I'm afraid it might," he had answered.

That had been only a fortnight before. Janet thought. It can't have been so little time ago. I've lived a lifetime in these two weeks. I've known what it is to be in love, to have known the fear of losing him and to realize that I can never be happy without him.

After a week he had said, "I can't stand this, Janet. I'm not going to see you again. I love you and I want you. I want you, do you understand?"

He had said other inarticulate things and because she was afraid that she could not withstand them, she said she thought it best for him not to see her again.

But nothing could keep Joel Paynter from Janet MacLeod once he had kissed her. "You know how I feel about marriage," he said four days later. "I revolt against ties. I hate the whole idea of possession. I am depressed by the very word 'husband.' But I. . . . oh, Janet, I have nothing but an uncertain future and my love to offer you. I need you and I want you to marry me at once."

". . . . and forsaking all others, keep thee only unto her, so long as ye both shall live."

"I will," Joel said clearly.

Then Janet said, "I will."

"Who giveth this woman . . ."

Her brother, Ian, stepped forward. Janet raised her hand and the minister laid it in Joel's.

The cold circlet slipped over her finger. She felt removed as the next words came to her.

". . . . she who wears it may abide in Thy peace."

Then Joel's arms were around her, lifting her from the floor to meet his kiss. Her fur toque was knocked askew by Ted Jevens claiming first privilege of kissing the bride. Mrs. Fisher was talking to her. Joel was shaking hands with the minister.

Martha shook confetti on her saying, "It'll take a week to get this stuff off but we only get married a few times during the course of a lifetime." Her tone was gay enough but her cheeks were wet. She stroked the tiny mink collar of Janet's new green suit. Foolishly she remembered doing something like that to Janet 20 years before. It had been an angora bonnet.

Mrs. Fisher came in with a tray of wine-filled glasses. Janet stood very proudly by Joel's side while they were toasted. Then Joel gave her a signal and she fled with him to the borrowed roadster waiting at the door.

He swung off the road suddenly and quietly the car came to a stop. "We'll wait here back of the pines until the rest of them have gone on. I haven't much time and I'm not going to share my bride. We'll only have an hour, darling, before I have to go to the theater."

"Not I, Joel. It's we now. Am I not going to the theater?"

"You may. You are free to do anything you want all your life. Remember that, Mrs. Paynter, you are always free."

"Joel I don't want to be free this minute. I want you. . . . I want to feel like a wife."

Joel's answer was very solemn, "Janet, I don't want you to feel like a wife. I only want you to be my sweetheart. Always."

"All right, darling," she laughed softly. "Shall we have dates after the theater and lunch during the week? You'll have your career and I'll have my job and we'll visit each other at our apartments?"

He regarded her sternly. "No, indeed! You're moving into my place tonight and quitting your job tomorrow. No career for you."

Janet thought of her pleasant two-room apartment, of Joel's dark little one room "near the theater". She thought of her steady salary as assistant furniture buyer at the departments store and how hard she had worked to attain that position, and her plans for the future.

She said, "Whither thou goest, Joel." But she thought, I didn't expect this. Joel's ideas of marriage were modern, why isn't he liberal about my job?

She sighed a very small sigh, thinking how little she really knew of this boy she had married.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGLY AND JOHNNIE'S SECRET

"Uncle Wiggily! Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" called Nurse Jane up the stairs in the rabbit gentleman's hollowstump bungalow one day. "Hurry down, Mr. Longears!"

"What is it?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "All the hot carrot pancakes and cabbage maple syrup ready?"

"They soon will be—as soon as you are down," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "But some one is here to see you."

"Rather early for a call," thought Uncle Wiggily as he began dressing. "Is it Mr. Chuck to borrow my shadow again?" he asked. "Though he didn't get it yesterday," he said, laughing.

"No, it isn't Mr. Chuck," answered the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Is it Frosty Jack?"

"No," said Nurse Jane. "It isn't. Can't you come down?"

There Was Billie.

"Right away," answered Mr. Longears. "Whiz! Whee!" He slid down the stair bannister railing and saw, waiting for him in the hall, Billie Bushytail, a boy squirrel.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily!" chattered Billie.

"Hello, Billie," said the rabbit gentleman. "You're around early, aren't you?"

"A little, I guess," said Billie.

"Had your breakfast, Billie?"

"No, Uncle Wiggily. I haven't."

"Then come and have it with me. Nurse Jane, please bake some more cakes. A lot of cakes," added the rabbit uncle, laughing.

He Knew

"How did you know I was hungry, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Billie.

"Oh, boys, whether they are squirrels, rabbits or dogs, are always hungry," chuckled Mr. Longears. "And now," he went on as he and his little visitor were eating the hot pancakes Nurse Jane brought them, "now, Billie, why this early morning visit?"

"It's a secret," answered the squirrel boy, very politely waiting until he had swallowed what he had in his mouth before speaking. "It's a big secret, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Oh, if it's a secret, Billie, I don't expect you to tell me. Telling secrets isn't fair. Never mind. Have another cake."

"Yes. I'll have another cake, thank you," chattered Billie. "But I would tell you this secret if I could. Only it isn't mine. It's my brother Johnnie's."

"Oh, that's worse!" said Mr. Longears, pouring some cabbage maple sugar syrup on his cake. "It's all right if you want to tell your own secret, but all wrong to tell another's. Forget about it."

Bad News

"That's just what I can't do, Uncle Wiggily," said Billie wiping a little gob of syrup off his nose where it had hopped to tickle him. "Though this is Johnnie's secret I think you and I ought to know about it. I'm afraid Johnnie is in trouble."

"Bless my pink nose!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "What kind of trouble? Where is Johnnie now?"

"He will soon be coming along to school," said Billie. "I started ahead of him to come here and talk to you about his secret. It's a very queer one. I wish you could help."

"Perhaps I can if you tell me about it," said Mr. Longears. "What is Johnnie's secret?"

"Well, you see," began Billie, and just then a knock sounded on the door! "Hush! Perhaps this is Johnnie!" Billie whispered. "Hush!"

And if the window shade will stop jumping up to tag the ceiling every time it's pulled down, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily helping Billie.

LINDSAY COUNCIL IS NOT SATISFIED

Talk Of Separation From County As Result Of Equalization

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 3.—Talk of separation from the county and expressions of dissatisfaction on the equalization of Victoria County was heard Monday night at the town council meeting. No decision was reached by the aldermen on the question of appeal.

As a result of a resolution passed by the council, merchants who are members of that body are free to accept relief vouchers strictly on a competetive price basis.

$100 For Flood Victims

The town council voted the sum of $100,000 to the American Red Cross to assist in rehabilitation in the flooded area. The Kiwanis Club obtained permission from the council to hold a tag day in aid of the flood sufferers.

A Sudden Death

The sudden death took place in Harvey Township on Monday of Robert Cairnduff, a well-known resident of the district. The deceased had just returned to his home after working all day when the call came. He is survived by his wife, three daughters and two brothers.

W. H. Deguerre Passes

A former popular resident of Woodville in the person of Willmot H. Deguerre, passed away a few days ago in Toronto. The deceased, after completing his education at Lindsay Collegiate Institute, joined the staff of the Bank of Commerce. He was with that institution for eighteen years, retiring on account of ill health. He is survived by three brothers and three sisters.

EXPLORER SAYS CANADIANS BEST ARCTIC FLYERS

Future Antarctic Expeditions Will Recruit Their Pilots In Canada

MORE RESOURCEFUL

EDMONTON, Feb. 3—(C.P.)—Future Antarctic expeditions will recruit their pilots in growing numbers from ranks of Canada's hardy northland airmen, it is predicted by Alan Kenneth Innes-Taylor, famed Canadian explorer, who twice accompanied Richard E. Byrd on historic journeys to Little America.

Constant training of Canadian pilots in cold-weather flying equips them superbly for the arduous work of South Pole exploration, Innes-Taylor said, here on his way to Juneau, Alaska, in the course of an extensive biological survey.

Forced to fend for themselves in immense wildernesses, pilots flying in northern Canada develop great resourcefulness in addition to handihood and complete technical mastery of their machines, the explorer said. For five years Mr. Innes-Taylor was with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police stationed on the Western Arctic.

Innes-Taylor, who along with several other members of the last Byrd expedition will receive shortly the coveted Congressional Medal of Honor for conspicuous contribution toward scientific knowledge of the earth's places, spoke enthusiastically of the disinterested scientific motive which he said impels Byrd and similar men to carry out their arduous explorations.

"My own salary as a member of the last expedition, 1933 to 1935, was $1 a year," he said.

Innes-Taylor said Sir Hubert Wilkins, renounced Australian explorer, plans to establish five strategically-located weather stations in Antarctica which will be in direct communication with other weather stations all over the world. This would mean an all-important link in the progress of meteorology, he emphasized.

FLOATING AIR BASE

Germany Building Fourth To Be Used On Atlantic

BERLIN, Feb. 3—(C.P.).—A new floating air base for use in the North Atlantic is now under construction in Germany. It will be the fourth floating base of its kind used by the German Lufthansa Company for catapulting airplanes on the South and North Atlantic routes.

Tests are now being carried out for a new four-engined flying-boat which it is intended to use for trials over the North Atlantic. It is hoped to open a regular air mail service between Germany and New York in the coming autumn.

TORY MEMBER SLIPPING DOWN

DISS, Norfolk, Feb. 3—(C.P.)—J. A. Christie, Conservative M.P. for South Norfolk since 1924, will not seek re-election at the next general election because he will be over 70, "and at that age a member cannot serve a constituency as he should, and it is time that a younger man should be given a chance." In the last election Christie had a majority of 5,001 over his Labor opponent.

HAVELOCK

TRANSIENTS MUST WORK FOR A BED IN HAVELOCK HALL

Constable Is Given Orders—T. P. Lancaster Discusses Road With Council

TREASURER TO BE BONDED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 3. — The Municipal Council of the Village of Havelock met in the Council Chamber on Monday evening at 7.30. All councillors were present, with Reeve Ernest Seeney presiding. Several communications were read and ordered to be filed.

E. J. Leeson was present and stated to the Council that he had not written the letter re William Aikens which appeared in the local paper last week, and did not know the identity of the person responsible, so wished to make clear that he had nothing whatever to do with the matter.

Miss Katie Anderson and Miss E. Wright, auditors, presented their report which was received, and 100 copies of same ordered printed, on motion of Councillors Chiles and Squires. The discount dates of prepayment of 1937 taxes are also to be advertised.

T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., addressed the Council regarding the road north of Havelock, and outlined the different angles of the situation which they must take into consideration.

On motion of Councillors Chiles and Squires, the treasurer is to be bonded to the extent of $2,500 by E. Fennell.

Mr. Aikens was instructed to investigate some wood which was allegedly obtained by a citizen without permission, and also to collect $5.00 rent each month from Alfred Derret.

A number of properties are to be sold for tax arrears and the clerk was instructed to arrange for advertising as soon as possible.

The following accounts were read and ordered paid with the exception of A. L. Payne, which is to be held over, on motion of Councillors Chiles and McBurney:

William Aikens, January salary and telephone, $52.50; Dr. Holderoft, examination of Mr. Graham, $2.00; Wilbert Barton, labor, 50c; Municipal World, 6 subscriptions and dog tags, $9.76; Bank of Toronto, Hydro Town Hall, $21.15; County of Peterborough, interest on county rate, 1936, $10.51; Village of Norwood, share of Division Court costs, $20.80; J. Newton, cutting and hauling wood and snowplowing, $8.00; W. E. Warner, fire reels to Newton fire, $3.00; Public School Board, 1937 requisition, $925; High School Board, 1937 requisition, $625; H. B. Puffer, postage, telephone, express, and trip to camp, $12.78; Cecil Patterson, hauling wood, $128.38; A. L. Payne, hauling wood, $17.25; O. Patterson, cooking at Young's Camp, $20.00; Mrs. Hogan, balance Caldwell will fund for 1936, $8.06; Dr. Thompson, indigent patients, January, 1937, $20.52; A. L. Payne, hauling wood, $47.50; Miss E. Wright, auditing, $30.00; Miss K. Anderson, auditing, $20.00; G. W. Chiles, Town Hall supplies, 71c; Cecil Watson, 5 hours' labor on hall, $1.25.

Relief accounts were also read, and on motion of Councillors Squire and McBurney, all ordered paid with the exception of Sine's Hydro account.

Constable Aikens was also instructed that all transients from now on must cut a certain amount of wood for the Town Hall before they shall be given a night's lodging.

The meeting was adjourned to meet again on Monday, March 1.

MORE FLU IN TORONTO

15 New Cases Bring Total to 149 This Year.

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Fifteen more cases of influenza were reported to the civic department of health today bringing the total for this year to 149. Yesterday eight cases were reported.

Deaths attributed to the disease so far this year number 16, one occurring yesterday.

LAST HONOR PAID TO G. A. McQUIBBAN

Leading Men From Many Walks Of Life Attend Simple Services

ALMA, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—Hundreds of persons prominent in the public life of the province who had valued the friendship of Dr. George A. McQuibban, M.L.A., gathered in this small Wellington County village to pay their final tribute at funeral services yesterday.

His death has been a great loss to Ontario and to his North Wellington constituency. Rev. Gilbert Little declared at services conducted in Alma Presbyterian Church, as he recounted intimate details of Dr. McQuibban's life as a "beloved physician, able statesman, community leader, sportsman and humanitarian." Mr. Little was assisted at the service by the Rev. E. A. Thomson.

Pall-bearers were Hon. Harry Nixon, Acting Premier; Harold Kirby, Toronto, Liberal whip; Leopold Macaulay, Toronto, former Conservative Minister of Highways; William L. Houck, M.L.A., Niagara Falls, Ont.; Dr. W. D. Smith, M.L.A., Creemore; Dr. J. H. King, Guelph, M.L.A. for Wellington South; C. A. Robertson, M.L.A. Goderich; and J. H. Mitchell, Alliston.

Most cabinet members of the Ontario government attended, Premier Mitchell Hepburn being prevented by his illness in Arizona from being present. Col. Thomas Kidd, William H. Price and Mr. Macaulay were designated to represent the Conservative group in the legislature.

Il Duce Quits Diplomacy For Skiing

Premier Benito Mussolini forgot the cares of state when he took his son Romano for a ski jaunt on Mount Terminillo, near Rome. Here the pair are pictured about to start the long slide down the mountainside. Later Duce peeled off his jacket and completed the day's outing with the warm sun beating down on his bared chest and back. Soon others followed his example.

OBITUARY

J. K. McKINNON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 3.—James Killan McKinnon, only surviving son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McKinnin, of the township of Marmora, passed away in Kingston on Friday, at the age of 74 years. For many years he lived near the village of Deloro, on the farm now occupied by John Clemens. Mr. McKinnon, also a carpenter, was employed for some time in that occupation by the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. At one time he operated a threshing outfit with his brothers, Daniel and John. For the past few years loss of health had forced his retirement from active life and occasioned his removal to Kingston. He was a member of the Sacred Heart church. He is survived by two sons, Thomas of Regina, and Frank of the township of Marmora, and two daughters, Miss Clara McKinnon of Madoc, and Mrs. Norman Doyle of Detroit.

The funeral left the residence of his son, Frank, at 9.30 a.m. on Monday, for the Sacred Heart Church for Requiem Mass. Interment took place in the adjoining cemetery.

ALLEN C. WALLBRIDGE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 3.—The death occurred of Allen Campbell Wallbridge at his home in the Township of Marmora, on Saturday. Mr. Wallbridge, aged sixty-eight was a well-known farmer of this district. The deceased had suffered from asthma for some years, but until stricken with his last illness about a week ago, he had been able to perform his usual duties. He had resided in Marmora village for sometime, and was employed by the Pearce Lumber Company Limited, in the work at their mill, before he took over the Webb farm some years ago. He was an industrious and well liked man. He is survived by two sons, Clarence, at home and Kenneth in Toronto, and one daughter, Mrs. Ross Loveless, Marmora. His wife predeceased him about two years ago. The funeral left his late residence at 2 p.m. on Monday for service in St. Andrew's United church, with Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth officiating. Interment was made in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

CLAUD L. HAWLEY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 3.—The death of Claud L. Hawley took place Monday night at his residence, 14 Douglas Ave., Humber Bay, Toronto, after an illness of heart condition. He was 41 years of age.

Surviving are his widow (formerly Gladys Brewster), one daughter, Patricia, also his mother, who resided with him. Mr. and Mrs. Hawley and daughter spent their annual vacation at their summer home, Trent River.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from Ross J. Craig's funeral Parlor, Toronto.

GORDON YULE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

The funeral of the late Gordon Yule was held on Monday afternoon from his home in Percy township and despite the icy condition of the roads, the home was filled with sorrowing friends, who gathered to show sympathy for his very bereaved father and sister.

The whole community was shocked when they heard the family had suffered another great sorrow. Since residing at their present farm near Godolphin, death has come to four members of the family including the mother, the late Mrs. James Yule, who passed away four years ago, and her three sons, James who was killed in the Great War, Clarence, whose death occurred almost three years ago and now Gordon, the last remaining son, whose tragic death occurred on Saturday.

Deceased who was 36 years of age, had been in declining health for some time, but was always willing to do his part in his farm duties or assist anyone in need. As a favorite in his locality, he had many manly qualities and will not only be missed in his community but in the Hastings Presbyterian church, where he attended regularly, and in his home where he was so badly needed by his aged father, who is left alone without a son.

Besides his father, he leaves to mourn his loss, five sisters, Mrs. Wm. Duncan of Seymour, Mrs. Wm. Gillespie, Mrs. Roy Oliver and Mrs. Peter Fairman, and Agnes at home.

Rev. D. K. Perrie of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church conducted the funeral service.

Pall bearers were his four brothers-in-law and two neighbors, Mr. Creighton Johnston and Donald Herriot. Flower bearers were Messrs. Ray Hoard, Jack Jones, and P. Butler.

Interment took place in the Warkworth cemetery.

THOMAS ARGUE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Thomas Argue passed away at his residence, Yelverton, Thursday morning, January 28, after an illness of six years. The deceased was a resident of Manvers, and a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Argue. Besides his sorrowing wife, he leaves one daughter and five sisters, Mrs. Johnny McGill of Janetville, Miss Minnie Argue, Janetville, Mrs. R. L. Sargison of Toronto, Mrs. E. Sanderson of Peterborough and Mrs. C. Rooke, Peterborough, and one brother, Wm. of Manvers. Services were conducted at two o'clock by the Rev. Ferguson, with interment in Yelverton Cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM F. WHITE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Feb. 3—The funeral of the late Mrs. William F. White was held from the family residence, Ida, on Monday afternoon.

The Rev. J. R. Trumpour conducted the services.

Interment was at St. John's Anglican cemetery, Ida.

A "common" cold can take hold quickly and develop seriously unless prompt and efficient measures are taken to stop it the first day.

To treat it properly you've got to realize that a cold is an internal infection requiring internal treatment that goes right to the source of the infection quickly and effectively.

This is the kind of action you obtain from GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. It does the four necessary things to treat a cold properly.

1. It opens the bowels gently but effectively.
2. It combats the cold germs and fever in the system.
3. It relieves the headache and "grippy" feeling.
4. It tones up the system and helps fortify against further attacks.

At the first sign of a cold go to your druggist. Buy a box of GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Make sure you get Grove's. Start taking the tablets two at a time. If taken promptly GROVE'S BROMO QUININE will usually stop a cold in 24 hours.

HIS BACKACHE WAS UNBEARABLE

Kruschen Brought Him Relief From Pain

This man of 31 was prematurely aged by backache, when he should have been enjoying the best years of his life. Here he tells how Kruschen helped to restore him to health, after months of pain:—

"I was in hospital for ten weeks, owing to kidney trouble. When I was discharged I felt like an old man, although I am only 31. If I stooped to do anything it was agony to straighten up again. Several people advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I tried them and found they gave me relief from pain and I felt better in every way. I cycle 28 miles a day to and from work, and shall keep up the daily dose of Kruschen because I can now do the journey to and from work and not feel any the worse for it."—S. V. C.

When the internal organs cease to do their work properly, impurities begin to accumulate in the system, and cause troublesome symptoms. Kruschen Salts help to stimulate the liver and excretory organs to healthy, regular activity, and thus assist them to rid the system of harmful impurities.

THE FUEL OF FEWER ASHES

PERHAPS the artist has exaggerated a little—but his point is clear and true. There is far, far less ash with coke than with other hard fuels. This simple fact means that you save not only money by using Hamco Coke but much back-breaking labour in shifting ashes. (Not to mention the fact that coke is much lighter on the shovel.)

HAMCO Gives more heat Costs less money Dustless COKE

And your wife saves on her house-cleaning tasks because coke is free from dust, soot and grime. Add to these advantages, the greatest blessing of all—quicker heat in the morning and a steady, easy-to-control warmth all day—and your choice should be obvious. Try Hamco Coke next time. Your dealer is waiting to serve you!

COKE'S LOWER PRICE IS BUT ONE OF ITS ASSETS

Coke first came into prominence in Ontario when supplies of other hard fuels ran short. Some people therefore who have never used coke look upon it as a "substitute" for other hard fuels.

This is far from the fact. The discovery of coke, centuries ago, was a great step forward in fuel development. Coke ovens were built, last century, right at the mines so that coal could be transformed into coke to satisfy the demand.

Gradually, householders learned of the unique properties of coke in domestic furnaces. Irrespective of price they found it heated their homes more thoroughly with less trouble, fewer ashes and no soot or smoke.

To these advantages is added the lower cost. In the opinion of a vast army of householders By-Product Coke is the most economical of all solid smokeless fuels. Remember, there is no finer coke on the market than Hamco, made in Canada.

ALLEN IS GIVEN TERM IN ONTARIO REFORMATORY

CRUTHERS WINS FROM KINGSTON BEST ADVANCES

Two Peterboro Rinks Qualify For Semi-Finals In Curling

AGINCOURT STAYS

Judge O'Connor Of Cobourg Defaults To Ray Best In Toronto

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP) — Two rinks each from Agincourt and Peterborough qualified today for semi-finals of the eastern district playoffs in the Ontario Tankard Curling Competition. Winner for the district will be decided tonight and will play in the final tankard series here tomorrow.

William Walton's Agincourt rink defeated a Kingston four skipped by W. J. Drysdale, 10-7. The second Agincourt rink, led by D. C. Thomson, defeated Morris Booth's Cobourg entry 15-4.

In the closest match of the morning draw, W. M. Cruthers of Peterborough scored an 11-9 win over George Hanson of Kingston. Two shots down with two ends to play, Hanson made a brilliant bid for victory.

Good Curling

The Kingston rink lay three shots on the 11th end when Cruthers made his last rock the shot, increasing the Peterborough margin to three. On the last end Kingston again lay three when the last Cruthers shot took out two.

Ray Best of Peterborough advanced to the semi-finals when the Judge L. D. O'Connor rink of Cobourg defaulted. In the afternoon draw Cruthers will play Thomson and Walton will play Best.

In the consolation series to determine an entry for the Burden Trophy competition tomorrow, Hanson will play Booth. Drysdale drew a bye.

Morning results:

Agincourt	Cobourg
D. C. Thomson	Morris Booth
Skip 15	Skip 4
Peterborough	Kingston
W. M. Cruthers	George Hanson
Skip 11	Skip 9
Agincourt	Kingston
William Walton	W. J. Drysdale
Skip 10	Skip 7

Ray Best, Peterborough, won by default from Judge L. D. O'Connor, Cobourg.

Afternoon Game.

At the end of eighth end in the afternoon game Ray Best of Peterborough was leading Thomson of Agincourt 8 to 3.

Walton of Agincourt was defeating Cruthers 12-1.

"BIG PUSH" STARTS AGAINST MALAGA

Rebels Hurl Entire Southern Army, Fleet And Air Force Upon Port

GIBRALTAR, Feb. 4.—(A.P.)—Fascists launched a combined attack by land, sea and air today against the strongly fortified government port of Malaga on the Mediterranean.

The Spanish insurgent fleet steamed out of Algeciras Harbor at dawn in the direction of Malaga, while reports from Marbella said the southern army's projected "big push" against the strategic socialist shipping centre of the southern coast had started.

Two squadrons of nine bombers were reported simultaneously to have left Spanish Morocco to join in the attack. Six planes took the air from Melilla while the other three went from Ceuta, just across the narrow Mediterranean from the besieged city.

Every available motorbus and automobile in the area was commandeered to carry reinforcements to the front lines.

All doctors and nurses were ordered to the zone. It was reported not one doctor was left in La Linea, a city of 60,000 inhabitants where there were several hundred cases of influenza.

An unconfirmed report said General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano, commander of the southern Fascist forces pressing against Malaga, was aboard the cruiser Canarias, flag ship of the insurgent fleet.

MAYOR RUNS CITY FROM CELL IN JAIL FINDS IT ENJOYABLE

Continuance To Defy Court Order Will Cost Him Two More Years Unless He Resigns

FIGHTING POWER FIRM

HUNTINGTON, Ind., Feb. 4.—(AP).—Mayor Clare W. H. Bangs, whose warfare with utility companies threatened to-day to keep him in jail until his term as mayor expires two years hence, isn't worried much about the prospect.

Jail life—he's had two terms of it—has its advantages he said with a smile.

The 47-year-old mayor, conducting the affairs of his office from a cell in the county jail, listed some of them:

"I've learned the difference between a straight and a royal flush."

"Governing the city has been much easier. I have ample time to consider things. There are no salesmen and job seekers to bother me."

"I have a lot of time for reading and writing—and pinochle."

"I get plenty of rest and good food."

But the rest and eating, he confessed have become too much of a good thing. He's afraid his waistline has expanded too much.

Fails in Supreme Court.

Rebuffed again yesterday— this time by a decision of the Indiana Supreme court—in his fight to drive the Northern Indiana Power Company out of Huntington and serve the city exclusively from a municipal light plant, Mayor Bangs refused to give up.

"I am prepared to stay behind bars so long as I believe I am serving the cause of municipal ownership," he said.

The mayor, who has been in jail since last July 6 because he defied a court order directing him to disconnect consumers from the municipal plant, will have to remain behind the bars so long as he is mayor or until he obeys the order, attorneys said.

By staying in jail he hopes to continue operation of the city plant.

Police Chief Enlists Reserves--Expects 1,000 On Call By Night

ACTION UP TO SHERIFF

Company Officials And Union Heads Continue Conference In Detroit

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 4—(A.P.).—Roy E. Brownell, attorney here for General Motors, said this afternoon that, "I believe the union will ask its men to leave the plants here peaceably" and announced that he would defer filing petition for a writ requiring their ejection.

His announcement came after Police Chief James V. Wills resumed enlistment of several hundred "reserve police" to remain on call for a possible emergency. He expected to have 1,000 by night.

Brownell said the writ would not be filed pending the outcome of strike peace conferences between high General Motors officials and Labor leaders in Detroit.

Previously, he said the writ would be filed between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon.

It was not known whether Brownell had been in communication in the interim with John Thomas Smith, general counsel of the corporation, a party to conferences being held in Detroit.

Brownell said all preparations had been completed for the court action to set in motion machinery of the law for rejecting strikers who continued to occupy two Fisher body plants here in defiance of a court injunction issued Tuesday.

Enforcement would devolve upon Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott, who had refused to attempt forcible ejection of the men without such an order.

YOUTH WHO WED GIRL 12, IS JAILED

Held On $1,000 Bail on Serious Charge—Laws Discussed To Halt Cradle Marriages

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Feb. 4.—(AP).—Stanley Backus, 19, factory worker husband of 12 year old Leona Elizabeth Backus, was formerly charged with rape to-day while legislators at Albany discussed new laws to curb "cradle marriages."

District Attorney Carl J. Hynes presented a warrant to City Judge Crandall P. Phillips, charging Backus, a $36 a week painter in an airbrake plant, with rape, second degree.

Hynes said the warrant charged the offense was committed last December 20 at Pamelia. It was sworn to by Detective Samuel Roberts.

Judge Phillips ordered Backus back in jail in lieu of $1,000 bail until he could obtain counsel and enter a plea.

Backus, guarded by police officers, appeared thoroughly frightened in his brief court appearance.

His child wife remained meanwhile in Mercy Hospital, where she was taken for a physical examination decided upon, Hynes said, after she told authorities she expected to become a mother.

Visit To See Denne Pictures Develops In A Peterborough Old Boys' And Girls' Reunion

Examiner Reporter Meets Scores Of Former Residents Of City

RECALL OLD EXPERIENCES

(By a Staff Reporter)

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—The T. H. G. Denne collection of Old Peterborough prints is not only a thing of beauty and a triumph of historical research, but this week, as it is exhibited in the fine art gallery of the Robert Simpson Company, in Toronto, it has developed into a Peterborough Old Boys and Old Girls' Reunion. Thousands of other folk will have seen and admired this magnificent array of old pictures collected by Mr. Denne by the end of the present week, but the visitors to whom the exhibit has really meant something are the men and women who once called Peterborough their home, and who find in these scenes of the days that are gone a rich store of pleasant memories of people and places that were dear to them in their younger days.

An Examiner representative who spent most of Wednesday in the spacious room where the Denne collection is most effectively displayed met and talked to scores of former residents of Peterborough and found them fairly revelling in the thrill of once more viewing old scenes and recalling old experiences. It is safe to say that whatever else T. H. G. Denne has accomplished by amassing this unique galaxy of ancient pictures, he has already been responsible for the greatest discussion on early Peterborough history that has ever taken place in a similar period of time in Toronto, or anywhere else for that matter.

When The Examiner man arrived on the scene, the first person he encountered was a much-interested woman with a very busy pencil who was obviously engaged in cataloguing the pictures. There was a reminiscent gleam in her eye that told of her enjoyment of the display, and when the reporter introduced himself, she readily acknow-

WIDER IMPORT BLOWER COAL IS ADVOCATED

Dr. Tory Claims Best Way To Protect Consumer Is Keep Competition Open

FINDS NO PRICE-FIXING

Urges Municipalities To Use Combines Investigation Act To Maintain Control

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (CP) — Maintenance of competition in blower coal by continuing importation from foreign countries is recommended by Dr. H. M. Tory, Royal Commissioner who inquired into importation and distribution of anthracite. His report was tabled today in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Rogers.

Dr. Tory found no evidence of price-fixing.

His other recommendations:

Importation should come directly from the country of origin instead of through agencies controlling competitive supplies in another country.

Co-operative organizations should be encouraged.

Municipalities should take more vigorous action to prevent frauds.

Anthracite entering Canada should be classified as to country of origin, mixtures should be so named and Welsh coal should be classified in two grades.

Urges Frequent Analyses

Systematic analyses of imported anthracites should be made, cost of classification and analysis to be covered by a levy of two cents a ton on the imports.

"At the present moment in so far as the fixing of export prices of anthracite in the countries of origin permit there is freedom in competition in the importation of anthracite coal," he said.

"Your commission recommends

RAIL UNION HEADS MAY MEET MONDAY

Rumored Likely To Sanction Bancroft Report—Preparing Strike Ballot

MONTREAL, Feb. 4 (CP)—Representatives of 17 railway running trade unions "may" meet here Monday to consider reports handed down by the railway conciliation board, it was learned today from Howard B. Chase, chairman of a committee of the unions, now conducting a strike ballot.

Reports could not be confirmed that the unions would ratify the minority report of Fred Bancroft, who suggested settlement of the wage disputes by gradual increases which would wipe out a current 10 per cent decrease by Nov. 1.

"I can't confirm the report they will urge adoption of the Bancroft report," said Chase. "We are certainly going ahead with the strike ballot."

BEATTY MEETS ROGERS

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (CP) — While union chiefs prepared a strike ballot for 117,000 railway workers over their wage dispute with the railways, Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, conferred here today with Labor Minister Rogers.

Two Years Less a Day Is the Sentence Given Manslaughter Count

Mr. Justice Hogg Passes Sentence On 24-Year-Old Salesman

CHARACTER EVIDENCE

Unable To Find Any Excuse Or Justification For Conduct

James Allen, 24-year-old local vacuum cleaner salesman was this morning sentenced to two years less a day determinate and one year indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory for the manslaughter of Fred Gandy, 14-year-old cyclist who was fatally injured when struck down on Hunter street bridge by the accused's car in September last.

In passing sentence at the close of the assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario, Mr. Justice Hogg declared:

"You have pleaded guilty to the very serious offence of manslaughter. On the night of September 19 last while driving a motor car you caused the death of Fred Gandy who was cycling across Hunter street bridge."

His Lordship intimated he had read the evidence taken at some length before the coroner's inquest, and he said, "I cannot find any excuse or justification for your action or conduct on that night."

"Maiming and killing of persons on our highways through wanton or reckless driving has reached the point where it has shocked the senses of the entire country. I cannot take any but a most serious view of what happened on the night that your unwarranted conduct snuffed out the life of this boy. I consider the crime in a very grave light. I would not be justified in looking at it in any other way." His Lordship asserted in passing sentence.

Unable to consume all the fish, he stayed another day and struck a vein that started a gold rush into Rowan Lake, northeast of here.

NEWSPAPER PLANE FOUND WRECKED SCOTTISH MOORS

Photographer, Writer, 2 Pilots All Well-Known Burned To Death In Crash

SURVEYING NEW AIRWAY

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 4.—(CP)—An airplane owned by a London newspaper was found by a shepherd today near Newton-Stewart, Scotland, wrecked and burned, its four occupants dead.

The plane, carrying two newspapermen and a photographer in addition to the pilot, had been unreported since it left Glasgow, Scotland, early Tuesday, enroute to Liverpool.

The men had been making a survey over a new air route recently suggested by a parliamentary committee.

One of the newspapermen was the well-known writer, Harold Pemberton.

Pemberton, a son of Sir Max Pemberton, the novelist, was motoring and aviation correspondent for the Daily Express. He served in France during the Great War, returning with the rank of major and reported the Ethiopian and Spanish wars for the Express. He was 47.

The others were Reginald Charles Wesley, 24, an Express photographer whose last pictures were published the day before his death; Captain L. T. Jackson, pilot for Personal Airways of Croydon, who formerly piloted the "Dawn Express," the regular morning commercial plane from Croydon to Paris; and T. H. Philpott, aviation radio expert and chief wireless operator for Lord Beaverbrook.

TWO HUNTERS FINED

Molesting Coons Costs $10 Each—Bee Story Disbelieved.

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 4.—(CP)—Elmer and Elwood Miller of Wentworth county were convicted before Magistrate J. A. Makins to-day on charges of molesting fur bearing animals contrary to the Game and Fisheries Act.

They were found guilty of having molested a nest of racoons in Elma township January 13. The story of the brothers, that they were 50 feet up a tree in the middle of winter looking for some bees and some honey, did not hold much water, insofar as Magistrate Makins was concerned. Each was fined $10 and costs.

FIRE, CASUALTY FIRMS WARNED

Given Three Months' Notice To End "Unhealthy" Competition

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP). — Three months' notice to end "unhealthy competition," has been given fire and casualty insurance companies doing business in Ontario, H. D. McNairn, Provincial superintendent of insurance, announced today.

Mr. McNairn said a reduction of fire insurance rates should follow the expected end of certain practices in the business to which the insurance department objects. He added it was not the purpose of the department to make new regulations for the business.

"The companies should be able to straighten out their difficulties," he said.

The past four years have been healthy ones for the insurance companies, Mr. McNairn said. In 1936 fire losses paid were equivalent to 36 per cent. of the premiums paid.

"They should be able to operate on a 50-50 basis," he said.

Rate-Cutting Battle On.

Mr. McNairn said rate-cutting has caused dissatisfaction among the underwriters. Chief battle was between companies, members of the Canadian Underwriters' Association, known as tariff companies, and the non-tariff companies. These latter have had no fixed rates but adjust them to suit the nature of each risk. Mr. McNairn said instances have come to the attention of the department where companies have gone to agents and offered them increased commissions if all business in the agent's office were turned their way.

This practice, he said, has resulted in complaints from out-of-town agents that Toronto men can undersell them in their own towns because they get larger commissions.

"I have brought all these things to the attention of the insurance companies," said Mr. McNairn. "They have been told to clean things up. We don't want a public inquiry if things can be rectified without. Inquiries are expensive and don't always accomplish what they set out to do."

Lover Tries Sit-Down Strike At Sweetheart's Apartment

Chains Himself To Radiator—Will Stay Till She Decides To Marry Him

STALLING FOR A YEAR

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, O., Feb. 4—(A.P.).—Harold Hulen, who began a sit-down strike yesterday in the lobby of his sweetheart's apartment house because "she couldn't make up her mind," showed no sign of weakening to-day.

"I'm a desperate man," he explained candidly. "I'm here to stay until she makes up her mind."

Hulen, 30-year-old former actor, moved into the lobby of Miss Florence Hurlbut's apartment house, attached himself to a radiator with a dog chain and padlock, and gave the key to the apartment house manager.

"I asked Florence to marry me," he explained. "She said she couldn't make up her mind. She has repeated that same thing twice every week for the last year.

"Now I'm here, and I'm not leaving until I get an answer."

Last night, Miss Hurlbut dozed in a chair near her suitor until a late hour, then retired to her apartment. Hulen read a magazine and then slept, leaning back against a pillar in the hall. Earlier the brown-eyed, 20-year-old object of Hulen's affections had remonstrated vainly at the bizarre method of courtship.

"You know I love you, Harold," she said, "but you certainly have a strange way of showing affection for me. Please unchain yourself and get off the floor."

But Hulen only puffed away at a cigarette and kept his position on an inflated rubber cushion.

Broadcast To Be Made From Lusitania's Deck

Kinsale, Irish Free State, Feb. 4.

STANDING 300 feet below the Atlantic's surface on the hulk of the Lusitania, Captain John Craig will broadcast to North America May 7, the twenty-second anniversary of the liner's sinking by a German submarine with a loss of 1,198 lives.

The program will mark the climax of salvage operations begun after the wreck was located in October, 1935.

SAD-FACED, DESPERATE

Woman Robs Chinese Restaurant Of $50 At Gun Point.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP).—A sad-faced young woman, dressed in deep mourning, held up a Broadway Chinese restaurant early today, frightened off a pursuer with a revolver, and escaped with more than $50.

The woman waved away a waiter who attempted to serve her, then pulled a gun from her handbag and forced the Chinese cashier to hand over a roll of bills he was counting.

She turned from the desk and walked down the main stairs. Chin Mon, assistant manager, ran after her. She turned, aimed the revolver and warned: "I'll kill you if you follow me!"

FIND 2 DEAD AFTER DRUNKEN BRAWL

One Lies Badly Battered In Shack, Other Frozen About Mile Off

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—(CP)— An extensive police search for Claude Belair, wanted for questioning in connection with the violent death of "Pit" Vandal, 60, in a lonely fishing shack on Ile Charron near here, ended today when Belair's frozen body was found less than a quarter of a mile from the shack.

A blood-stained bar found in the shack near Vandal's body was being examined by police in belief it was used to batter in the elderly man's head.

Presence of two whisky bottles, one full and an empty wine bottle in the shack led investigators to the theory the double tragedy followed a drunken brawl.

Both men were residents of Montreal and went to the shack Wednesday morning. When Vandal failed to return home in the afternoon, a neighbor, Lorenzo Dufour, went to look for him and found the battered body inside the half-open door of the shack. Belair's coat and hat were found nearby and bloodstained footprints led from the shack to a distance of 100 feet where they faded.

SOPWITH BUILDS $1,000,000 YACHT

Most Luxurious Privately-Owned Craft Ever Built Will Convoy Racer Endeavour

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP)—The most luxurious yacht believed ever to have been built for a private owner will soon be launched for T. O. M. Sopwith, aircraft millionaire and challenger for the America's Cup. It is his 10th yacht in 10 years and will cost him $1,000,000, bringing his total outlay for yachts to $5,000,000.

The yacht, 1,614 tons, 240 feet long and called the Philante, will be the first used as a "tender" for Endeavour II, his latest racing yacht.

Guests will fare well, with accommodation for 50 of them, and such extra equipment as a tile-lined swimming pool, a gymnasium, a hospital, a ballroom and a cocktail bar. Some cabins will be decorated in modern style, some in period. There will be golf practice nets and sliding panels of sun ray glass on the promenade deck.

12 Year Old New York Lass Hopes to be Best Pianist in World.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4— (CP). — Ruth Slobszynska, 12-year-old piano prodigy, said she aspired to be the greatest pianist in the world "so the United States can have that honor."

Her father, Josef, who sailed with her for a European tour, is making an arrangement of Strauss' "Blue Danube" which he said he hopes will be so difficult that only his daughter can play it.

Liverpool Wants A Coachman For Mayor's "Four-In-Hand"

Finds Applicants For $18.75 Job With No Overtime Are Practically Extinct

MUSEUM MAY GET COACH

By Thomas T. Champion
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 4 (C.P.).—Liverpool is advertising far and wide for a man who is competent to drive the Lord Mayor's "four-in-hand."

In civic panoply Liverpool goes some of the way with the Lord Mayor of London. His Lordship of the Mersey city has a four-horsed state coach, for instance, not so large and gilt-covered and not so lumbering as the historic coach which ambles from the Mansion House on November 9, but all the same quite impressive.

The Lord Mayor of Liverpool's coachman, Edward Elson, has retired on pension, and some difficulty is found in naming his successor. To drive a four-in-hand coach needs a long apprenticeship, and as there are very few of these equipages left, the profession of driver is not overcrowded.

There has even been some talk of relegating the coach to the City Museum. It was built in 1820, and has only needed repair twice. Elson drove it for 30 years and never had a mishap.

The wages of the potential Lord Mayor's coachman are fixed at £3 15s ($18.75) with no overtime. A house, fuel, and light are also provided.

Union Leaders Seeking Views 117,000 Workers Upon Both Main Roads

Hold Plan To Scale 10 P.C. Cut To 7 P.C. By Nov. 1 As Unacceptable

DECISION WITHIN MONTH

10,000 In Brotherhood Branch To Follow Suit If Appeal Is Refused

MONTREAL, Feb. 4 (CP)—Canadian Railway Transportation today faced the possibility of a general tie-up as union leaders sought the views of 117,000 employees on a general strike for higher wages.

The strike ballot was being prepared for the workers in 17 running trade unions after their general representatives had refused to accept the majority report of a conciliation board which advised only partial return of wage reductions.

The union heads, terming "unacceptable" the proposal that their 10 per cent cuts should be scaled down to seven per cent by Nov. 1, said they hoped to have the answer to the strike proposal from the rank and file within a month. If the answer was "yes," they claimed, it would mean traffic on virtually every railway line in Canada would roll to standstill.

Both the big railways—Canadian National and Canadian Pacific—and their numerous subsidiaries are involved in the dispute. The only exceptions in the strike poll among unionized employees are 10,000 Canadian National Railway workers of various classification who are under the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

Their case for pay cut restoration is being argued now at Ottawa before another conciliation board. And if that board's findings are not considered acceptable, organizer Joe Wall of the C.B.R.E. said last night, that body too will probably call a strike vote.

LINDBERGH TO PAY GEN. BALBO VISIT

Leave Rome Today — Spend Part Of Week In Libya Then On To Egypt

ROME, Feb. 4.— (AP) —Charles Augustus Lindbergh celebrated his 35th birthday today in eternal Rome surrounded by the relics another Agustus left 2,000 years ago.

But the flying colonel's thoughts were neither of his own anniversary or the Roman emperor whose name he bears. Instead he and Mrs. Lindbergh were planning to start a flight late today to Tripoli to visit Italo Balbo, Italy's first ranking airman.

Informed sources said they expected the Lindberghs to spend three or four days in the Italian colony of Libya, of which General Balbo is governor, before resuming their flight from England to Egypt.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4.—Dr. W. F. Loucks got judgment against R. Stephens for $108.85 in the sittings of the Division Court here before Judge L. V. O'Connor today. Although the amount of the original claim was $135.17 part of which dated back to a judgment given in 1922 the judge today disallowed this amount on which the plaintiff's claim was entered.

OTTAWA TO PROBE SHIPPING AFFAIRS ON REID'S CHARGE

B. C. Member Would Cancel Subsidies Unless More Canadians Employed

WITHDRAWS RESOLUTION

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 — (C.P.). — Steamship services enjoying Dominion Government subsidies will come again under the spotlight of parliamentary debate, according to notice given by Conservative Leader Bennett.

Mr. Bennett, recently returned from a world cruise, said yesterday he would discuss the subject when Transport Department estimates for payment of subsidies are brought down in the House.

Subsidies, one angle of which occupied the House all yesterday, are expected to be debated still again when a report is made on a request that the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company employ more Canadians on its Canada-China-Japan liners.

Yesterday the House debated a resolution by Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminister) calling for cancellation of subsidies to the Canadian Pacific for its services between Vancouver and the Orient unless the company conforms to last year's recommendations of a House committee. The recommendations asked that subsidized Canadian steamship lines hire Canadian deck crews.

Mr. Reid withdrew his resolution on assurance of Labor Minister Rogers that the Government would investigate the circumstances.

For four years, Mr. Reid has labored to force Pacific liners subsidized by the Dominion to employ more Canadian seamen. Last year the committee on Industrial and International Relations made an exhaustive study of his complaints.

Ask Oriental Crews Ousted.

It recommended unanimously in part that the Canadian Pacific replace its Oriental deck crews on the "Empress" fleet plying the Pacific with Canadian seamen.

The House adopted that report and the request was placed formally before the Canadian Pacific executive.

Mr. Reid worded his resolution in such a way that it could not have been adopted in any event, referring to the request as an "order of Par-

O.M.E.A. IN SUPPORT OF INDEPENDENT SURVEY IN POWER

Want Investigators To Be Canadians Not Connected With Either Party Affected

SUMMER MEET AT FALLS

TORONTO, Feb. 4 — (C.P.). — Independent survey of Ontario power requirements would find favor with the Ontario Municipal Electric Association. The annual convention of the association wound up here yesterday after three days of passing resolutions and discussing the body's stand regarding the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Niagara Falls will be the scene of the 1937 summer meeting.

Before adjourning, delegates passed a resolution commending Premier Mitchell Hepburn "for his suggestion of a possible independent survey regarding present and future requirements of power in Ontario." Previously Secretary-Treasurer T. J. Hannigan of Guelph had told the convention the Premier intimated such a survey might be held, before he departed for Arizona to recuperate from a bronchial ailment.

The resolution urged the investigating body be composed of Canadians "if possible." The members who make the survey should "have no connection whatever with any of the parties who might be affected by the result," said the resolution.

Meets Objection

Delegates objected when President F. C. Elliott of Ingersoll suggested some form of appreciation be shown for "certain phases of the commission's efforts." He said he thought such a step might strengthen his position when conferring with commission officials.

"I do not expect a blanket endorsation of its policies," said the president, "but I do ask you to endorse a resolution of appreciation of the desire of the Hydro-electric power commission to reduce rates and provisions for safeguarding the future."

After some discussion the following resolution was decided upon and approved: "That this association endorses the action of its president in conferring with the hydro-electric power commission and the Ontario government for better understanding and better conditions."

A Preston delegation introduced a resolution opposing the charge made for installation of flat-rate water heaters by the commission but the resolution committee failed to approve of the move. When the resolution committee suggested the matter should be handled locally, the delegates ruled otherwise and upheld the executive's earlier stand in opposing the charge, practically approving the Preston resolution.

$100,000 BLAZE HITS SAULT FIRM

Zero Weather Freezes Water Leaving Hoses Handicapping Firemen Badly

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 4 (CP)—Fire of unknown origin caused damage of $100,00 to the building and stock of Gable Robinson Ltd., local wholesale firm, last night. Loss is covered by insurance.

The fire was one of the worst here in several years and the total loss is nearly four times the fire loss for the entire city in 1936.

Near zero weather handicapped the firemen, the water freezing as it left the hose. Adding to the hazard was the fact two gasoline filling stations were nearby.

The fire was not reported until after it had gained a strong hold on the building and when the alarm did come in, fire equipment from No. 1 firehall, 100 yards from the scene of the fire, was in the east end of the city responding to a chimney fire call.

Issued Orders

Judge Paul Gadola, of the Genesee County (Flint, Michigan) circuit court, who granted General Motors Corporation an injunction against sit-down strikers in the automobile plants at Flint. He ordered the strikers to evacuate the plants within twenty-four hours. Included in his ruling was a section prohibiting workers from picketing the plants where strikes are being held.

RUSSIA BUYS UP ONTARIO ALFALFA

12,500-Bushel Surplus Brings $185,000 In 25-Car Load Deal

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP)—Ontario's 12,500-bushel surplus of alfalfa seed has been purchased for approximately $185,000 by the Soviet Russian Government, the Dominion Seeds Branch here reported today. The last of 25 carloads now is en route to the Atlantic coast for trans-shipment to Russia.

As a result of the deal between Toronto seed companies and the Amtorg Trading Corporation of New York, acting for Russia, the seeds branch reported the alfalfa market "unsettled but strong." Six weeks ago it was "unsettled and weak."

Several years ago small quantities of Ontario alfalfa seed, said to be peculiarly suited to the Russian climate, were purchased by Soviet Government representatives. This trade ceased during the last four or five years.

Recently the Amtorg Trading Corporation sent a delegation here to arrange with Toronto seed houses for purchase of all available surplus for cash. The amount rounded up was 25 carloads. Balance of the supply is required for domestic use.

TWO CINCINNATI FACTORIES BURN

Flood Fugitives' Stored Furniture Falls Prey—Threatened Whole West-End

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Flames which for a time threatened a large section of west-end Cincinnati destroyed two factories early today with a loss semi-officially estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000.

Furniture destroyed in one of the plants included some that had been stored there by residents of the neighborhood whose homes were inundated in Cincinnati's greatest flood.

Flood - weary firemen waded ankle-deep in mud and ice to combat their third general alarm blaze in 11 days. Two firemen were injured by falling debris.

Not until a 24-inch main was hurriedly cut into service did the 12 companies of apparatus have sufficient pressure in 10,000 feet of hose to combat effectively the sweep of the flames.

SENATE ADVANCES TRANSPORT BILL

Invites Any Organization And Individuals To Express Opinions

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (C.P.).— Transport Minister Howe and officials of his Department will appear next Wednesday before the Senate Railways, Harbors and Telegraphs Committee as the first step in proposed public hearings on the Government Transport Commission Bill.

The Upper House yesterday gave the measure second reading and Senator George P. Graham, chairman of the committee to which it was sent, announced an invitation was extended to all organizations and individuals wishing to give their opinions on the Bill.

It would convert the Board of Railway Commissioners into a Board of Transport Commissioners having wide authority over air, inland waterways, interprovincial and international highway traffic.

Details of how the public hearings would be conducted were not disclosed although it was said hearings would be held for each of the five major interests, railways, aid services, shipping, truck and bus companies.

Too Much Paternalism

Promise of sympathetic consideration of the measure came from Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition Leader, but William Duff, Lunenburg, N.S., Liberal known as the "Admiral on the Hill," declared there was "too much government paternalism in this country."

Senator Duff asked: "Why should people who invest their money in ships now have conditions changed for them by making inland shipping subject to the revision of a federal board?"

Senator Meighen said control by the board of air traffic rates was desirable, but he doubted if planned control over bus and truck transportation would be effective.

He suggested also that Dominion control over lake shipping might present difficulties. Not only Canadian lake transportation, but that of the United States also had developed to disadvantage of railways.

"It may be that a certain section of this country which has been benefitting by lake transportation to the disadvantage of the railways will not take kindly to this measure," he said.

PLANE TO SUCCOR STARVING VILLAGE IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Blizzards Block Most Roads, Pile Ice On Coasts To Bar Ports

MANY AREAS ISOLATED

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 4 (C.P.). —Through the air, the Government hoped to-day to succor the isolated mining community of Fleur de Lys, cut off from help and food supplies by a thick ice pack that disrupted shipping all down the island's coast.

Under Government supervision, a plane was being readied for a take-off to-day to the stricken camp far up on the north-east coast. Land and sea attempts to bring aid had failed, and Government officials resorted to airplane after Fleur de Lys sent out appeals telling of provision shortages.

The ice pack, which held the 4,976-ton steamer Esmond locked three miles off St. John's, had turned back the rescue ship Sagona after she bucked to within sight of the settlement.

Meanwhile, fears were held other settlements in the lonely regions of Newfoundland might be in the same predicament as Fleur de Lys, though unable to make known their plight. An Arctic blizzard had felled communication lines, blocking travel on land, highways, and railroad to northern outposts.

Unusual ice conditions which have brought floes far south this year, it was believed, might enable hunters to sail their sealing fleets a shorter distance north to begin the catch. It would not be known, however, how the industry would be affected until a survey of conditions early in March, when the fleet sets out.

25 OFFER BLOOD.

FIGHT IN WELLINGTON

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP)—The executive of the Ontario Protestant Liberal League has decided to nominate a candidate in the Wellington North by-election necessitated by the death of Dr. George A. McQuibban, F. Needham, secretary, said today.

"We have decided to fight the Hepburn candidate who may be selected," said Needham. "The late Dr. McQuibban opposed the separate school bill and the beer legislation. We feel his good work must be carried on."

One band of 102 university students of South Africa has been touring Great Britain.

STARTLING TALES IN PROBE OF HOME

Aged Inmates Tell of Girl Being Locked Up In a Room For Six Weeks

WEST SUMMERLAND, B.C. Feb. 4—(C.P.)—Tales of frightened, ill-clad and distressed run-away inmates of the Home of the Friendless were written into the records to-day of a royal commission investigating the institution.

Commissioner H. I. Bird yesterday heard two Okanagan orchardists tell of the visits after an aged, bent and white-haired former inmate told of one girl being incarcerated in a room of the home and another being slapped by Superintendent Laura Crouch because she failed to respond to a command.

J. C. Barkwell, fruit grower living within sight of the institution, said a girl came to his house at 5 a.m. one morning in October, 1935.

"She said she hadn't been treated well and had run away. She seemed in a very distressed condition," Barkwell said.

She stayed at his home until the following spring.

John Mott, another fruit grower, told how three women came to his home and asked to be taken in on Christmas Eve of 1934.

Emma Hoorneart, aged Belgian, said one girl was "closed up" in a room for six weeks as a disiplinary measure. Speaking through an interpreter, she added that another girl had been slapped by Superintendent Crouch. Mrs. Crouch called to the girl to "Come here."

Emile, Mrs. Hoorneart's 79-year-old husband, testified that he and his wife left the institution after a request for $2.50 of their pension cheques which were handed over to the management had been turned down by the treasurer.

WOULD STIMULATE AERIAL SURVEYS

Airways Head Proposes Ottawa Get Prices Down By Letting Contracts

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (C.P.). — Commercial aerial surveys would be stimulated if the Government would contract for a considerable portion of its surveys and such action would result in reduced costs to all users of air photographs, F. T. Jenkins of Winnipeg, assistant general manager of Canadian Airways Limited, told the Canadian Institute of Surveying to-day.

Mr. Jenkins described the struggle to introduce aerial surveys commercially. Aerial Survey was a comparatively new science and was in the stage of rapid development, he said. So far the greatest volume of commercial work has come from the forest industries which recognize aerial survey as a valuable assistant in forest mapping, woods management and woods operation. In that field Canadians have led the way.

Power companies came next with the mapping and contouring of crainage areas, power sites, mining properties, and in the location of transmission lines, telephone lines and roads. In surveying towns and summer resorts the field has not been so well developed, he added.

"If present prices could be reduced, it is quite possible that there would be a demand for photographic surveys of cities," he said.

VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4 (AP). — Lionel Charles Probert, 53, vice-president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, died of pneumonia in a hospital here last night.

Native of Batavia, N.Y., he started his railroad career as a locomotive fireman and then turned to newspaper work. From 1918 to 1927 he was chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, resigning to become vice-president of the Erie Railroad. Later he held a similar post with the Pere Marquette.

BRITAIN MOVING TO GUARD RADIO IN WAR HAZARDS

Appointment Of Officer For "Routine Job" Creates Much Excitement

HIGH ON STAFF LIST

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 4—(C.P.) — The appointment of a British Army officer to evolve an emergency plan of action for the British Broadcasting Corporation in the event of war was accepted with some little concern. A few papers featured the announcement on front pages, dubbing Col. R. S. Stafford, late of the King's Royal Rifles, the "Mystery Man" of the B.B.C.

But with the passing of days and further explanation by the B.B.C. of the nature of the post has come recognition that the step does not signify any grave concern for the immediate situation. It is rather an approach to the organization of what might become a vital force in the United Kingdom.

Is Placed High

Col. Stafford has no title, but is placed high on the staff list for 1937 as a "temporary supernumerary." As a matter of fact he had been around Broadcasting House since May. Because the movement of this "recruit" appeared free and easy, and he seemed to have access to important sanctums, staff juniors were beginning to wonder what he was doing. With the beginning of the year the post has been explained.

The B.B.C. declared that Col. Stafford was doing "an ordinary routine job, following up procedure extending over several years past; that is, revising and bringing up-to-date the course of action which would be adopted in the event of war occurring at any time.

"There is definitely no connection," continued the statement, "with any present-day event either at home or abroad, and the procedure is being carried out in conjunction with various government departments.

"It is regarded as obvious that measures must be considered in connection with any unforeseen contingency in national affairs which may effect in some degree or other the vital service of broadcasting."

Great Need for Position

The move has been discussed at some length in the press. The consensus now is there was great need of the position. It is understood that in the event of war the B.B.C. would probably pass under the direct control of the government. It would then become one of the key channels of information and instruction between the government and the people.

Col. Ronald Sempill Howard Stafford served in the War, was mentioned in dispatches four times, and was awarded the M.C. and the D.S.O. with bar. He served in the Egyptian Civil Service and also with the Ministry of Interior, Iraq.

HITLER REVIVES BISMARK'S DREAM OF GREAT EMPIRE

Germany Renews Quest Of 50 Years Ago For Colonies To Extend Trade

ENTERED FIELD TOO LATE

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP).—Once more, as in the days of Bismarck, Germany's colonial demands for colonies disturb British statesmen. Reports of Germany's leasing Portuguese Angola, just north of the former German Southwest Africa, is one angle of the situation.

Half a century ago, having become a world power with the federation in 1870, Germany launched a high-pressure drive to build an emptre comparable with those of the older colonial powers.

The partition of Africa by that time had almost been completed. But, by a judicious mixture of force with diplomacy, Germany managed to acquire some 1,000,000 miles of territory. Twice she came to the brink of war with France over Morocco, in 1905 and in 1911, but France refused to yield an inch.

Entered Field Too Late.

Germany entered the field too late, however, to obtain anything but the leavings of the others powers. Out of a total colonial population of 15,000,000, the number of German settlers was barely 25,000, two-thirds of whom were concentrated in her largest colony, German Southwest Africa. Her annual exports to her colonies amounted to less than $15,000,000.

By the Treaty of Versailles, the German Empire was divided up among the allies under League of Nations mandates:

German Southwest Africa passed into the control of its neighbor, the British Union of South Africa; German East Africa went to Great Britain, who renamed it Tanganyika; Togoland and the Cameroons, in West Africa, were divided between Britain and France; German New Guinea and Samoa passed to Australia and New Zealand respectively, while various islands in the Pacific were allotted to Japan.

The port of Kiau-Chau, which had been leased from China under pressure, with a resident German population of 4,000, was returned to China.

Began Stress In 1933.

Hitler, early in his career, was opposed to the acquisition of a new empire. "Jewish newspapers," he wrote in "Mein Kampf," were trying to incite hatred of Britain by constant references to the lost colonies. In 1933, however, he began to stress Germany's need of raw materials. This need now is more acute because of heavy expenditures on rearmament.

So far, neither Hitler nor any of his lieuteriants has specified which colonies he is most anxious to get back. A strong Nazi party, however, has been organized in the former German Southwest Africa—where, incidentally, more Germans are living than before the war.

It is taken for granted, however, that he will not raise the question of the islands taken over by Japan, with whom he recently concluded an "anti-communist" agreement.

Persistent reports say he hopes to obtain at least a part of Portuguese Guinea in West Africa for an air base.

11,643 IMMIGRANTS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (CP).—Immigration into Canada during 1936 calendar year amounted to 11,643 persons, an increase of 2.2 per cent. over the previous year, the Department of Mines and Resources reported to-day.

Immigrants from the United Kingdom numbered 2,197, an increase of 4.5 per cent., while the number from United States decreased from 5,291 in 1935, to 4,876 last year.

SERVICE ACCOUNT ARREARS ATTACKED

Source Of Trouble All Over Ontario C. S. Matthews Of Peterboro' Tells O.M.E.A.

TORONTO, Feb. 4—CP) — Criticism of municipal Hydro and Utilities Commissioners for allowing service accounts to fall into arrears was made yesterday by Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission, in addressing the Ontario Municipal Electric Association here.

"Commissioners let their accounts accumulate and, then, in fairness they cannot put pressure on others," Mr. Matthews said. "I understand that this is a source of trouble all over the province."

He advocated vacations with pay for employees paid on an hourly basis.

CAR DEALER KILLED ON MISSING CURVE

Believed To Have Fallen Asleep —Knew Road Near Harrow Well

HARROW, Ont., Feb. 4—(CP).—Neglecting to follow a curve in a road over which he had travelled hundreds if not thousands of times, James E. McDonald, 61, automobile dealer, was killed last night as his car hurdled a 12-foot ditch and rammed against a maple stump. He was alone at the time. No inquest will be held.

Every rib in his body was broken, as he was thrown against the steering wheel. Doctors said death was caused by internal hemorrhages and shock. It is believed Mr. McDonald fell asleep at the wheel. There were no skid marks before the auto left the highway to indicate that he had applied his brakes.

There is a clear view of the curve and intersection five miles north of Harrow on the road to Windsor. A few moments before he was killed, Mr. McDonald stopped at a gasoline station, a half mile from the scene, for a brief chat.

Sir Robert Hadfield of England has been asked by the French Government to serve on the Committee of Honors for the 1937 Paris International Exhibition.

12-YEAR NEW YORK GIRL WEDS LAD 19

Mother Who Married At 16 Is Ready To Fight Any Separation Move

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Feb. 4 (AP) —The marriage of a 12-year-old girl and a 19-year-old Watertown youth who had been "keeping company" for a year, was revealed yesterday.

"I wouldn't want to be separated from Stanley for anything," the girl, Leona E. Roshie, said as she told of her marriage to Stanley S. Backus at Carthage January 15.

Her mother, Mrs. Joseph J. Roshie of Watertown, who married at 16 sanctions the wedding.

"I would fight any attempt to separate my daughter from her husband," the mother declared. "They are happily married and I want to see them live together."

Meanwhile the girl, preparing to "go housekeeping," said she was "too happy," adding, however, "I want people to mind their own business."

As for the Sneedville, Tenn., child bride, she said:

"I thought that Stanley and I were bad enough, but that is worse yet." Nine-year-old Eunice Winstead Johns was married to a 22-year-old Tennessee mountaineer, Charles Johns, two weeks ago in Sneedville.

STARTLING TALES IN PROBE OF HOME

Aged Inmates Tell of Girl Being Lock Up In a Room For Six Weeks

WEST SUMMERLAND, B.C., Feb. 4—(C.P.)—Tales of frightened, ill-clad and distressed run-away inmates of the Home of the Friendless were written into the records to-day of a royal commission investigating the institution.

Commissioner H. I. Bird yesterday heard two Okanagan orchardists tell of the visits after an aged, bent and white-haired former inmate told of one girl being incarcerated in a room of the home and another being slapped by Superintendent Laura Crouch because she failed to respond to a command.

J. C. Barkwell, fruit grower living within sight of the institution, said a girl came to his house at 5 a.m. one morning in October, 1935.

"She said she hadn't been treated well and had run away. She seemed in a very distressed condition," Barkwell said.

She stayed at his home until the following spring.

John Mott, another fruit grower, told how three women came to his home and asked to be taken in on Christmas Eve of 1934.

Emma Hoorneart, aged Belgian, said one girl was "closed up" in a room for six weeks as a disiplinary measure. Speaking through an interpreter, she added that another girl had been slapped by Superintendent Crouch. Mrs. Crouch called to the girl to "Come here."

Emile Mrs. Hoorneart's 79-year-old husband, testified that he and his wife left the institution after a request for $2.50 of their pension cheques which were handed over to the management had been turned down by the treasurer.

WOULD STIMULATE AERIAL SURVEYS

Airways Head Proposes Ottawa Get Prices Down By Letting Contracts

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (C.P.). — Commercial aerial surveys would be stimulated if the Government would contract for a considerable portion of its surveys and such action would result in reduced costs to all users of air photographs, F. T. Jenkins of Winnipeg, assistant general manager of Canadian Airways Limited, told the Canadian Institute of Surveying to-day.

Mr. Jenkins described the struggle to introduce aerial surveys commercially. Aerial Survey was a comparatively new science and was in the stage of rapid development, he said. So far the greatest volume of commercial work has come from the forest industries which recognize aerial survey as a valuable assistant in forest mapping, woods management and woods operation. In that field Canadians have led the way.

Power companies came next with the mapping and contouring of drainage areas, power sites, mining properties, and in the location of transmission lines, telephone lines and roads. In surveying towns and summer resorts the field has not been so well developed, he added.

"If present prices could be reduced, it is quite possible that there would be a demand for photographic surveys of cities," he said.

VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4 (AP). — Lionel Charles Probert, 53, vice-president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, died of pneumonia in a hospital here last night.

Native of Batavia, N.Y., he started his railroad career as a locomotive fireman and then turned to newspaper work. From 1918 to 1927 he was chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, resigning to become vice-president of the Erie Railroad. Later he held a similar post with the Pere Marquette.

BRITAIN MOVING TO GUARD RADIO IN WAR HAZARDS

Appointment Of Officer For "Routine Job" Creates Much Excitement

HIGH ON STAFF LIST

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 4—(C.P.) — The appointment of a British Army officer to evolve an emergency plan of action for the British Broadcasting Corporation in the event of war was accepted with some little concern. A few papers featured the announcement on front pages, dubbing Col. R. S. Stafford, late of the King's Royal Rifles, the "Mystery Man" of the B.B.C.

But with the passing of days and further explanation by the B.B.C. of the nature of the post has come recognition that the step does not signify any grave concern for the immediate situation. It is rather an approach to the organization of what might become a vital force in the United Kingdom.

Is Placed High

Col. Stafford has no title, but is placed high on the staff list for 1937 as a "temporary supernumerary." As a matter of fact he had been around Broadcasting House since May. Because the movement of this "recruit" appeared free and easy, and he seemed to have access to important sanctums, staff juniors were beginning to wonder what he was doing. With the beginning of the year the post has been explained.

The B.B.C. declared that Col. Stafford was doing "an ordinary routine job, following up procedure extending over several years past; that is, revising and bringing up-to-date the course of action which would be adopted in the event of war occurring at any time.

"There is definitely no connection," continued the statement, "with any present-day event either at home or abroad, and the procedure is being carried out in conjunction with various government departments.

"It is regarded as obvious that measures must be considered in connection with any unforeseen contingency in national affairs which may effect in some degree or other the vital service of broadcasting."

Great Need for Position

The move has been discussed at some length in the press. The consensus now is there was great need of the position. It is understood that in the event of war the B.B.C. would probably pass under the direct control of the government. It would then become one of the key channels of information and instruction between the government and the people.

Col. Ronald Sempill Howard Stafford served in the War, was mentioned in dispatches four times, and was awarded the M.C. and the D.S.O. with bar. He served in the Egyptian Civil Service and also with the Ministry of Interior, Iraq.

HITLER REVIVES BISMARK'S DREAM OF GREAT EMPIRE

Germany Renews Quest Of 50 Years Ago For Colonies To Extend Trade

ENTERED FIELD TOO LATE

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP).—Once more, as in the days of Bismarck, Germany's colonial demands for colonies disturb British statesmen. Reports of Germany's leasing Portuguese Angola, just north of the former German Southwest Africa, is one angle of the situation.

Half a century ago, having become a world power with the federation in 1870, Germany launched a high-pressure drive to build an empire comparable with those of the older colonial powers.

The partition of Africa by that time had almost been completed. But, by a judicious mixture of force with diplomacy, Germany managed to acquire some 1,000,000 miles of territory. Twice she came to the brink of war with France over Morocco, in 1905 and in 1911, but France refused to yield an inch.

Entered Field Too Late.

Germany entered the field too late, however, to obtain anything but the leavings of the others powers.-Out of a total colonial population of 15,000,000, the number of German settlers was barely 25,000, two-thirds of whom were concentrated in her largest colony, German Southwest Africa. Her annual exports to her colonies amounted to less than $15,000,000.

By the Treaty of Versailles, the German Empire was divided up among the allies under League of Nations mandates:

German Southwest Africa passed into the control of its neighbor, the British Union of South Africa; German East Africa went to Great Britain, who renamed it Tanganyika; Togoland and the Cameroons, in West Africa, were divided between Britain and France; German New Guinea and Samoa passed to Australia and New Zealand respectively, while various islands in the Pacific were allotted to Japan.

The port of Kiau-Chau, which had been leased from China under pressure, with a resident German population of 4,000, was returned to China.

Began Stress In 1933.

Hitler, early in his career, was opposed to the acquisition of a new empire. "Jewish newspapers," he wrote in "Mein Kampf," were trying to incite hatred of Britain by constant references to the lost colonies. In 1933, however, he began to stress Germany's need of raw materials. This need now is more acute because of heavy expenditures on rearmament.

So far, neither Hitler nor any of his lieutenants has specified which colonies he is most anxious to get back. A strong Nazi party, however, has been organized in the former German Southwest Africa—where, incidentally, more Germans are living than before the war.

It is taken for granted, however, that he will not raise the question of the islands taken over by Japan, with whom he recently concluded an "anti-communist" agreement.

Persistent reports say he hopes to obtain at least a part of Portuguese Guinea in West Africa for an air base.

11,643 IMMIGRANTS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (CP).—Immigration into Canada during 1936 calendar year amounted to 11,643 persons, an increase of 3.2 per cent. over the previous year, the Department of Mines and Resources reported to-day.

Immigrants from the United Kingdom numbered 2,197, an increase of 4.5 per cent., while the number from United States decreased from 5,291 in 1935, to 4,876 last year.

SERVICE ACCOUNT ARREARS ATTACKED

Source Of Trouble All Over Ontario C. S. Matthews Of Peterboro' Tells O.M.E.A.

TORONTO, Feb. 4—(CP) — Criticism of municipal Hydro and Utilities Commissioners for allowing service accounts to fall into arrears was made yesterday by Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission, in addressing the Ontario Municipal Electric Association here.

"Commissioners let their accounts accumulate and, then, in fairness they cannot put pressure on others," Mr. Matthews said. "I understand that this is a source of trouble all over the province."

He advocated vacations with pay for employees paid on an hourly basis.

CAR DEALER KILLED ON MISSING CURVE

Believed To Have Fallen Asleep —Knew Road Near Harrow Well

HARROW, Ont., Feb. 4—(CP).—Neglecting to follow a curve in a road over which he had travelled hundreds if not thousands of times, James E. McDonald, 61, automobile dealer, was killed last night as his car hurdled a 12-foot ditch and rammed against a maple stump. He was alone at the time. No inquest will be held.

Every rib in his body was broken, as he was thrown against the steering wheel. Doctors said death was caused by internal hemorrhages and shock. It is believed Mr. McDonald fell asleep at the wheel. There were no skid marks before the auto left the highway to indicate that he had applied his brakes.

There is a clear view of the curve and intersection five miles north of Harrow on the road to Windsor. A few moments before he was killed, Mr. McDonald stopped at a gasoline station, a half mile from the scene, for a brief chat.

Sir Robert Hadfield of England has been asked by the French Government to serve on the Committee of Honors for the 1937 Paris International Exhibition.

12-YEAR NEW YORK GIRL WEDS LAD 19

Mother Who Married At 16 Is Ready To Fight Any Separation Move

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Feb. 4 (AP) —The marriage of a 12-year-old girl and a 19-year-old Watertown youth who had been "keeping company" for a year, was revealed yesterday.

"I wouldn't want to be separated from Stanley for anything," the girl, Leona E. Roshie, said as she told of her marriage to Stanley S. Backus at Carthage January 15.

Her mother, Mrs. Joseph J. Roshie of Watertown, who married at 16, sanctions the wedding.

"I would fight any attempt to separate my daughter from her husband," the mother declared. "They are happily married and I want to see them live together."

Meanwhile the girl, preparing to "go housekeeping," said she was "too happy," adding, however, "I want people to mind their own business."

As for the Sneedville, Tenn., child bride, she said:

"I thought that Stanley and I were bad enough, but that is worse yet." Nine-year-old Eunice Winstead Johns was married to a 22-year-old Tennessee mountaineer. Charles Johns, two weeks ago in Sneedville.

A Strange Meeting

The Ontario Municipal Electric Association has been in session at Toronto. As the name indicates the association is composed of delegates from municipalities which use Hydro power, and these municipalities in turn are admittedly the owners of the Hydro Electric system. Each is under financial obligation for its share of Hydro distribution and development of electrical energy.

There are occasions when leaders in the Ontario Government openly declare that the municipalities and not the government, own the Hydro system. That being the case, the Ontario Municipal Electric Association would be the logical body to have rather an important part in the framing of policies and the general conduct of the Hydro business.

But that is not the case. Not at all. The O.M.E.A. has not a member or representative on the Hydro Commission; the government attends to all such appointments. It is also a fact that the Municipal Electric Association and the municipalities represented have little knowledge of much which the Hydro Commission does or plans to do. They knew nothing of the size and extent of the office building which it was proposed to erect in Toronto until the Hepburn government called for a scaling down of the plans. The municipalities were not consulted about the making of the now famous power contracts, and they knew nothing about the cancellation of contracts until they read about it in the newspapers.

Admittedly the municipalities own the Hydro business, and there is not room for a good argument on that point. But they do not manage the business which they own, nor do they have representation on the Commission which does manage it. The Ontario Municipal Electric Association should be vested with some degree of power and authority, representing as it does the owners of the system, but the Hydro Commission is under no obligation to carry out a suggestion from this association; it possesses no authority to enforce any of its decisions. We do not believe there is a parallel case in the Dominion.

Not the Place for Peace

In two of the General Motor plants at Flint, Mich., workers have been on strike for almost six weeks. Several thousands in number, they did not walk out when the strike was called, but decided to remain on the premises. It is named the "sit-down" strike. The men never leave the premises, and their supplies of food are brought to them by friends from the outside.

General Motors has applied for and received an order from court to have the strikers declared trespassers, claiming the men are no longer employees of the company and therefore are not entitled to be in any of the company's property. It will not be possible to send in any more supplies of food. If the strikers desire something to eat they will have to go out and get it, but it will not be possible for them to return. A guard of militia with a number of machine guns ready for action makes that certain. If no more vigorous means are applied, then it becomes a move to starve them out. General Motors officials announced several weeks ago it would not conduct any negotiations with the men or their union until they had left the premises.

It may be possible to deal with such a situation without people being killed, but there is too much dynamite in such a situation to predict what may happen. John L. Lewis, who is at the head of the industrial form of unionism in United States, as opposed to the craft unionism of the American Federation of Labor, is not likely to accept the most recent developments as evidence of defeat. He is trying his first great experiment at seeking to cripple a giant industry and he knows he is expected to show results in keeping with the sacrifices and loss of wages which the men have encountered. It would be splendid news to read the strike had been settled, but at the moment machine guns and soldiers and strikers and angry crowds do no present a picture out of which industrial peace is going to emerge in a hurry.

The Cow Walked Out

The Canadian Jersey Cattle Club of Toronto gave a banquet in the Royal York at Toronto to Brampton Basilua, the holder of several world records. There were 500 present, and a special stall had been erected for the cow. She came riding up to the scene of activities in the freight elevator which was of course more sensible than trying to come in by way of the front door and walking up many flights of stairs.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, milked the cow for a bit, but when he was ready to make a speech the cow got up and walked out. The Hon. Duncan should not feel hurt about that as the little Jersey from Brampton probably felt she had stayed up late enough for one night. No doubt she is used to going to bed shortly after dark and had strained a point by coming to Toronto at all. Her example in getting up and walking out might be rather a good one for others to follow especially when the hours of speech making spin themselves into much length.

Common Sense Exists

Toronto City Council dealt with a matter which has been recently discussed in Peterborough, that of doing away with plumping on civic voting day. Toronto decided to do nothing about it. The Globe and Mail is inclined to believe the cure for the situation is in making certain a good class of citizens secure nomination, but that would not prevent some interested group from putting up a man and plumping for him.

The effect of plumping could well be felt more acutely in a city like Toronto where aldermen are elected on the ward system than in a municipality where election is by city-wide vote. It is not unthinkable that a man whom citizens in general might not want could be put up for election purposes in a certain ward and secure sufficient backing to take his seat if his following plumped for him. But he could hardly hope for success by that method in the broader field of a general vote.

The best protection any municipality has is not in increasing the number of rules and regulations, but rather in recognizing that common sense is rather fairly and widely distributed amongst citizens in general. We are inclined to believe the average voter makes a pretty fair job of it when he goes to mark his ballot.

He Must Be Worried

The charge has been made a good many times by Premier Aberhart of Alberta that the press of the country is not fair with him, and that it will misrepresent Social Credit at every turn. That is a favorite plea, but Mr. Aberhart is hard pressed at times to make it stick. He has been passing through strange experiences within recent weeks, and his ability to give satisfactory explanations for all that has happened must be causing him serious concern.

Hon. C. C. Ross, Minister of Lands and Mines resigned from the Aberhart cabinet. A key man in the person of Hon. Charles Cockroft, provincial treasurer, has taken the same step. Both these men were regarded as able and during the election campaign were enthusiastic supporters of the Social Credit movement.

Within recent times John Hargraves, leader of the Social Credit party in Britain, went to Alberta to learn how "the first Social Credit government in the world" was making out. He was promptly appointed as technical advisor to the Aberhart government; it seems to have been taken for granted that he would know how to make the machinery start turning its wheels. He did not last long; he resigned and stated the Alberta government was "groping its way like a man stumbling along on a pitch black night."

Mr. Aberhart at one of his Sunday meetings undertook to explain about John Hargraves, and in doing so read a cablegram from the London Social Credit secretaria "advising me to give no heed to Hargraves' declaration of failure, for he could not be depended upon."

Mr. Hargraves, at present in Ottawa makes this statement:

> "That is a very serious charge to make and therefore I immediately called upon Mr. Aberhart to make public the full text and exact wording of the cablegram to which he referred. He has now done so, and it is revealed that the cablegram from London, Eng., did not contain any reference to myself as a person who could not be depended upon, nor any words that might convey that impression."

We believe a fair interpretation of that is that Premier Aberhart publicly misrepresented the nature of the cablegram which he had received, and to suit his own purpose was prepared to discredit John Hargraves because that gentleman could not discern the working out of Social Credit in what the Alberta government had been doing.

The Better Method

A settler some 250 miles from Vancouver was pursued by a pack of wolves, seven in number. This settler had a rifle and being hard pressed he fired at the leader of the pack and his aim was true. That lone wolf rolled over and the others stopped to see if he were good to eat. Meantime the settler made good use of the delay and escaped.

It was not so in the old wolf story which used to be in the school readers of other days. That was, if we remember aright, in Russia. The Russia of old. A serf was riding in the sleigh with his master and the wolves were in hot pursuit. Apparently there was no gun in the sleigh and it looked as though the master might be the one on whom the wolves would pick. Thereupon the faithful serf flung himself from the sleigh; the wolves paused to eat him and the master was allowed to escape. The school books pointed some sort of a moral from all that, but we cannot at the moment recall what it was. We believe it may have been that people ought to be faithful and pitch themselves out to the wolves in order that their superiors might reach home safely.

It seems to us the settler in British Columbia had the better method in bringing down one of the wolves in order to halt the pursuit. It has the added advantage—the settler can afterward read about it in the newspapers. The poor serf could not.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A settler in British Columbia was attacked by a pack of seven wolves. He managed to shoot one and the other six stopped to hold a postmortem. Thus the settler escaped.

Emil Kleber, a naturalized Canadian, has resigned as commander of government forces in Spain. He has the title of General and is physically intact, so it looks like the logical time to quit.

United States will pay $115 to Consul General Cunningham for laundry he lost in Shanghai in 1932. We don't believe there was that much laundry on the whole length of the Tenth Concession, from where it started to where it came to an end.

Montreal woman got a divorce from a man she married in 1932 when he told her he was a millionaire, whereas he worked as a salesman in a shoe store. Much like the man who said he had a house and lot but it turned out to be a dog house and a lot of pups.

There is supposed to be six weeks more winter because the groundhog could have seen his shadow if he were out on the second of February. But several farmers have told us they have seen groundhogs going in and out for a good many weeks past.

A professional fat woman who weighs 400 pounds appeared in New York court saying she wished to have her marriage to a midget annulled. He is but 36 inches high and weighs 48 pounds. She had too much trouble trying to keep track of where he was.

The records of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at Mount Brydges showed a deficit of $50. Farmers donated a bag of potatoes each and when these were sold the debt was cancelled. But surely it could not have been Dooley potatoes that went to the aid of a Presbyterian church.

Instructor at Pickering College says girls on farms are better carpenters than boys, and perhaps that is why in after life the husband is always certain the missus can build a better pantry shelf than he can, and is always willing to let her prove it.

An English motorist who drove into a crowd waiting to board a tram, injuring three persons, was fined $375. But that was not the whole punishment; he has lost the right to drive for five years. It is a weapon against reckless driving that might be used more effectively in this country.

AILMENTS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Neighbor B he ails a lot, and he turns cold and sometimes hot, he limps along the street; he told me secret like one time, that he had trouble with his spine, and also with his feet.

¶ And B's got trouble with his heart, he's sure he's going to come apart, his liver too is bad; his left leg's shorter than the right, he said he fell on it one night, when he was but a lad.

¶ His stomach never seems to work, he says 'twill jump a bit and jerk, and he can't get it straight; when B talks stomach for a while, you'd never think to see him smile, he chants a hymn of hate.

¶ B's hearing's not so very good, he can't catch sounds like how he should; his eyesight's also dim; and he can't breathe like how he ought, and he has even stopped and thought, his lung's gone bad on him.

¶ And B gets pains along his side, though things might come out through his hide, and he can't move about; and he has sinus trouble too, can't sneeze like what he wants to do, and sometimes he has gout.

¶ But when the victual hour is here, they tell me B is always near, and nothing in him's sore; nor ever does he turn up late, he stokes in all that's on his plate—then passes back for more.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

(From Parliamentary Debates)

A LITTLE CROSS FIRE

Mr. CAHAN: Quite so, but what is a couple of years in a matter like that? It sometimes takes a year to study these decisions of the judicial committee of the privy council before one can form any accurate idea of their meaning or intent. They had been delivered previously and they led to public discussion in legal and other journals to the effect that the parliament of Canada was not fulfilling its duty to Geneva and to the League of Nations because it had not ratified the labour conventions dealing with hours of labour and rates of wages and had not exercised its legislative authority to put them into effect.

Mr. ROGERS: Did they suggest that we ought to acquire jurisdiction in that way?

Mr. CAHAN: They suggested that we had already acquired it under and as set out in section 132. We were not thereby acquiring jurisdiction. No jurisdiction could be acquired other than the jurisdiction vested in parliament by section 132. They argued that in the opinions given in the two cases I have mentioned it was decided by the judicial committee of the privy council that that jurisdiction had been acquired.

Mr. POULIOT: A convention which is not ratified is not a convention.

Mr. CAHAN: I am not going to discuss that with my hon. friend.

Mr. POULIOT: I will express my views afterwards.

Mr. CAHAN: The hon. member has a perfect right to discuss his views, but he has no right to make impertinent remarks.

Mr. POULIOT: I may not be as bad as the hon. member for St. Lawrence-St. George.

Mr. CAHAN: Probably not. I know I am always being unfair in making insolent remarks and I have no doubt my hon. friend is simply following my bad example.

Mr. POULIOT: Not to the same degree.

HE GRADES THE SPEECHES

Mr. JEAN-FRANCOIS POULIOT (Temiscouata): Mr. Speaker, very seldom have I followed a debate so closely as this one. This afternoon the hon. member for Rosetown-Biggar (Mr. Coldwell) was very interesting, the hon. member for Winnipeg North Centre (Mr. Woodsworth) very energetic, the hon. member for Peace River (Mr. Fellietier) very enthusiastic; the hon. member for Moose Jaw (Mr. Ross) spoke as a business man; the Minister of Justice (Mr. Lapointe) spoke as a statesman, as did the Minister of Labour (Mr. Rogers). And now, looking ahead of me, I see the hon. member for St. Lawrence-St. George (Mr. Cahan) to whom I have listened very attentively. He has expressed many views on this matter, both inside and outside the house, every time contradictory, and never right. It is most extraordinary that an hon. member has expressed such divergent views without once attaining the truth. It is a marvellous accomplishment. But are we serious? Yes or no?

Some hon. MEMBERS: You are not.

An hon. MEMBER: We do not take you seriously.

FEW LAWYERS AVAILABLE

Mr. BENNETT: The chief justice of the supreme court of Ontario who presented the case before the supreme court here did not present it in London.

Mr. LOPOINTE (Quebec East): Mr. St. Laurent did.

Mr. BENNETT: He presented only one case. The others were presented by another gentleman, an eminent lawyer, but constitutional lawyers are very few in Canada. The most eminent of them by common consent, is a resident of Toronto, and the gentleman who presides over the supreme court of Ontario was another. Unfortunately you cannot acquire, in a week or two weeks or a month, a knowledge of all the decisions and of all the trends and tendencies in connection with the interpretation of the British North America Act. It is a long progressive study, and all you have to do is to read the judgments of the privy council and see the counsel who in succeeding years have presented the cases to realize how sound that statement is. It is not any reflection upon the capacity of anyone.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): It is.

Mr. BENNETT: The reflection is upon their lack of training in that particular class of work.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): I am sorry my hon. friend says that.

Mr. BENNETT: I go further. I say that the Department of Justice was not heard at all on that reference. They had a counsel there. Did he speak? Why not?

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): They arranged it among themselves.

Mr. BENNETT: The answer is known to me. He would have to contradict the submission of his leader.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): No.

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, sir, that is exactly the fact, if you want to know the way in which these cases were handled.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): I think this is gossip my right hon. friend may have heard. It is not fair at all.

Mr. BENNETT: It is not gossip. Has my hon. friend read the arguments?

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Yes.

Mr. BENNETT: The arguments were reported in the London Times in part. I have not seen them in detail.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): I think my hon. friend will be sorry for these statements.

A Bit of Nonsense

Turning the Tables

Jones does not cut a distinguished figure in his evening clothes. In a fashionable restaurant the other night, as he stood near the door waiting for his wife, a tall, pompous man came up and asked, "I say, my man, are you the head waiter?"

As quick as a flash, Jones answered, "No, but I heard him tell a young man this afternoon that he wasn't taking on any more help."

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

MILK AND PORK

Editor Examiner,

Sir: Letters are being written to your page urging the compulsory pasteurization of milk in Peterborough city. In view of the fact that this year all cows in Peterborough County are to be tested for tuberculosis, we wonder at the unseemly haste in trying to push through a new bylaw. Little consideration seems to be given to those really most interested; the farmer who produces the milk and the consumer who buys. It is a few of those looking for soft jobs and middle men looking for extra profit who are doing most of the talking.

As it is farmers have the greatest difficulty in making enough income to live as they should. Then if they have to hire help, the very ones who want to buy milk so cheaply are those who complain about the low wages paid. Aren't people funny?

A letter signed 'Interested' contains the statement that the help is paid ridiculous wages, and goes on to urge that we have pasteurized milk to give jobs to more city men. That would mean forcing prices to farmers still lower and a consequent decrease in wages they could pay to hired help. Or it would mean raising the price of milk to consumers and then what would happen? To quote a paragraph from 'Note and Comment'—"The price of gasoline has climbed a cent, but it is a strange commentary on human nature that the increase will not cause nearly as much complaint as if the price of milk or bread advanced."

We do not sell milk to the city, or eggs or pigs, but we get tired of reading all the propaganda to try to urge farmers to produce more and to be satisfied with what they get. The other day an article was written for the purpose of soothing farmers, who, after being urged to produce lots of hogs, were wanting to know why prices went down. Two statements were most amusing: "The price of bacon in England is the chief factor in determining the price of hogs in Canada." Elsewhere we have read that about one-tenth of our pork is exported. So all we farmers have to do is cut down our number of pigs ten per cent. then we will be able to ask a price for pork in keeping with prices of other goods here in Canada. Why allow that ten per cent. to eat up all our profits? I have been told that some farmers bought feed on credit, paying for it when they sold their pigs, but there was nothing left over. What did those farmers get for the initial cost of raising the pigs and feeding them to the stage where they needed feed bought, and for their work? There was no profit, but a loss.

Who is making money from the pig-raising industry? The second statement referred to above is this: "Each packer, in assessing the factors which determine price, has sought to pay a price at which he will get out on the product. That is his duty to his share-holders." In other words farmers raising hogs at little or no profit are doing it to give men with money a place to invest it and make dividends. These same men would scorn to work for the wage rate which the farmer can pay or for the income which he receives. The part that is amusing is that they expect farmers to raise hogs with feed costs so high and prices of pork so low. It is to laugh!

WHY PEOPLE TURN RED

Editor Examiner.

Sir: As one watches the procession of human events passing by on its way to ruin, it becomes plainer if such a thing need be, that if selfishness were eliminated from human affairs, the ideal state and condition of man would soon arrive. In other words it is the red or raw, material side of life that holds it back and causes so much needless suffering to mankind. The realization of this fact should at once prompt us to do all we can to cultivate the spiritual side of life which means that if the spiritual should be brought to triumph, kindness, justice, politeness, self-sacrifice and what may be termed the glory of life would like a burst of sunshine illumine all the world.

It is of course too much to expect complete success since the mind and nature of man are not fully capable of it, but how vastly much more might be done than is now comprised in the fitful benevolence of individuals and of associations of individuals for that purpose. We pull one oar with one hand in one direction and the other with the other hand in the reverse direction thus always going round and round in a spectacular but useless circle.

To begin with we must infuse in our educational system more of the ideal, more of the spiritual and less of the material for what shall it profit a child to gain the whole world and yet lose its own soul? We see that in the present condition of the world. We see it in the frightful advance of juvenile crime in the Province of Ontario. In fact if we do not take means to change our course, we shall end in the take-who-can of communism and upon the red rocks of revolution. The triumph of materialism is bound to end in revolution. Experience and all history teach that lesson. We need to take a large and more magnificent view of life. We must not continue to put the material first and the spiritual or better nature of man in whatever place it may fall into. We are sacrificing our ideal life for the rude coarseness of the savage state. Is this all we are capable of? If so, abandon hope ye who strive for the happiness of mankind and for the true betterment of the world. It is indeed an extraordinary thing that we point with pride to the list of subjects required of our pupils in which the material altogether outweighs the spiritual. Not in a thousand years would that list teach the joy and sweetness of a beautiful life. Yet can it be believed that we are so blind to the necessity of the spiritual that because it is not expressible in dollars and cents we cannot appreciate its transcedent value? Let us retrace our steps before it is too late. But beware of the man with the black heart.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Hapless Younger Generation.

(From the Buffalo Courier-Express.)

THE specter of war stalks the world; and industrial strife sets neighbor against neighbor in our own land. Oldsters shake their heads over the trend of mankind in general and especially over what the younger generation is heading toward. That younger generation, in itself, perturbs many of the oldsters. Modern youth, they say, grows increasingly lawless; and lawlessness is not confined to uneasy adolescents, but extends to the youngsters in the lower school grades.

Then comes a great disaster which drives a million Americans from their homes in destitution and in imminent peril of their lives. Millions of other Americans forget the selfishness and contentiousness that mar their social, political and economic conduct. Millions obey the elemental impulses to human decency and helpfulness. Hundreds, perhaps thousands, rise to heights of heroic sacrifice. And the younger generation is in the fore-front of battle.

What of the younger of the younger generation? Let Police Inspector Marnon tell what happened in the Fillmore Avenue station the other day:

"A boy about nine years old came into the station, and looking at the immense pile of clothing given by others to the flood sufferers, said:

"'Gee, they must be in tough shape down there.'

"Then, suddenly tearing off his coat, leaving only a slight sweater around his rather thin body, he threw his coat on the big pile of clothing, and said:

"'Let them have that, too. They need it more than I do'."

That nine-year-old, doubtless, is just a regular boy, not conspicuously different from his school-fellows. He and those school-fellows will be the makers of that tomorrow about which some of their elders seem unduly pessimistic.

Waste of Public Money.

(Kingston Whig-Standard.)

IN LAST NIGHT'S Whig-Standard appeared a news item to the effect that the chairman, manager, and three of the commissioners of the Public Utilities had all gone to Toronto to attend the meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, Mayor Dalton, having business at home, did not go, but we understand a couple of officials were taken along to make up a real party.

Is this large delegation to Toronto at the expense of the people of Kingston necessary? Could not the chairman and manager have represented Kingston equally as well as seven men? If a delegation from the City Council attended a municipal convention of some kind would it be necessary to send the mayor, 21 councillors and the clerk-treasurer and the engineer?

The Whig-Standard has protested on more than one occasion against the money of the taxpayers of Kingston being indiscriminately used to send delegations here, there and everywhere. It is about time this unnecessary extravagance was stopped.

The taxpayers of the city have just elected a council on an economy platform. A special committee is investigating civic services to see where it can save money for the people. They are making the fire chief and the chief of police pay for their own house phones, despite the fact that these phones are used about 90 per cent. of the time on civic business. Is it consistent then that our entire Public Utilities Commission and two two of the officials of the Commission should go to Toronto for several days at the expense of the taxpayers?

Would it not be better if the commissioners indicated that they were cognizant of the fact that the tax rate is still 47½ mills, and that they were anxious to save money for the people who elected them?

Let us cut down on these civic delegations and deputations, except where those who want to go are willing to pay their own expenses. May we repeat what we have so often said before: "There is nothing in this world quite so easy as spending other people's money."

Hard to Believe How Time Flies

NEW FACTORIES.

(Industrial Britain)

OWING largely to increased activity in the shipyards, there was a fall of 48,306 in the number of registered unemployed in the Northeast of England in 1936. During the year there were on the Tyne, Tees and Wear 112 launches, compared with only 43 in 1935—364,570 tons, against 134,980 tons. In addition, many contracts are in hand that will provide valuable employment during 1937.

The revival of shipbuilding provided more employment on the Northeast Coast last year than for many years. In eleven days the Wear alone secured eleven shipbuilding contracts.

New factories, now in course of erection, will go into production during 1937. These include a clothing factory to employ 5,000 people at Middlesbrough, a plywood factory for a new £250,000 company at Willington Quay, a £400,000 flour mill in Newcastle, a cable factory at Hebburn, and a £60,000 food factory at North Shields. In addition, many of the established concerns in the area are carrying out extension schemes.

DANGEROUS LANTERNS.

(Kitchener Record)

A NEWS dispatch from Picton contains a lesson for rural people who still depend on lanterns to chore around the barn when artificial light is necessary.

The report states that a farmer residing near Milford Village suffered the loss of his barn and most of the contents by a blaze which originated when the lantern was upset by pigs that were being driven into their pens. It seems the lantern had been left standing on the barn floor near some hay. In no time the whole structure was enveloped in flames with the result that only a few animals could be saved.

Probably the farmer in question had been in the habit of placing the lantern in a safe place while going about his chores. Perhaps in this case he deviated from the custom, not giving sufficient thought to what the consequences might be. His experience shows quite clearly that it doesn't pay to take chances. One never knows who or what may come along to upset a lantern. In such cases usually the unexpected happens. So the best plan is always to hang the lantern up in a place where there is no danger of its being knocked down no matter what happens.

TWO YEARS LESS DAY GIVEN ALLEN

ed to the public outcry against unnecessary killing. "The public and press are clamoring for something to be done to stop these killings on our highways," he said.

Mr. Snyder said that evidence taken at the coroner's inquest indicated that before the unfortunate boy was struck by Allen's car people had seen the car speeding through the city streets. Some of the witnesses, the crown prosecutor urged, had estimated the speed of the car just prior to the accident as high as 60 miles-an-hour.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. counsel for the accused asked leave to call character evidence on behalf of the prisoner and afterwards asked the court to take into consideration the fact that, "This boy is of good character and the crime to which he has pleaded guilty is the first break in his life."

Asks For Leniency

Acknowledging that the prisoner's conduct had brought "terrible results," Mr. Gordon asked His Lordship to remember that in sending Allen to Portsmouth Penitentiary he would be committing him to a "school of crime," and he urged the ends of justice would be met by a reformatory term.

First of the witnesses to give character evidence on behalf of the accused, Major James Turnbull said he had known Allen for five years in connection with militia training. He spoke of him as being "a clean, straight-cut sort of a fellow."

William Devlin, Otonabee Township farmer who said he had known the prisoner for 16 or 17 years spoke of his general reputation as being good and declared, "I found the boy all right."

Maurice Ketcheson of this city referred to Allen's general reputation as being of the very best.

Asked by Mr. Snyder if he was a father witness declared he had a ten-year-old son.

"How would you feel if the driver of a car struck your boy down and killed him? Do you approve of recklessness and speeding?" the crown prosecutor asked of the witness.

Ketcheson declared he did not approve of speeding through the city, but felt the circumstances of the case should be taken into consideration.

FEAR BREAD SHORTAGE.

WARSAW, Feb. 4 (A.P.). — Danger of a bread shortage in Poland led the government to-day to forbid exportation of rye and rye flour until the new harvest is reaped.

WIDER IMPORT

that every effort should be made to maintain that position."

Dr. Tory said there is an increasing demand for low-ash-fusion anthracite for use in blower furnaces and that in this field neither Scottish nor United States coal is competitive.

"Unless greater freedom of purchase of this particular type of coal from Wales is made available to importers other than the Webster group, it is very important that the channels of trade with other countries producing low-ash-fusion-point anthracite should be kept open.

"It is of equal importance that importation should come directly from the country of origin and not as in the past through agencies already controlling competitive supplies in another country."

The Best Protection.

The surest way to protect the consumer was to maintain free and open competition and to this end "the continued enforcement" of the Combines Investigation Act is recommended," he said.

Co-operatives such as are now operating in other countries should have encouragement, Dr. Tory said, but joint stock companies should be prevented from using the name "co-operative" when that does not describe their real nature.

Work accomplished under the Combines Investigation Act to prevent price fixing should be translated into action by municipalities, the commissioner declared.

"The licensing of dealers, the prevention of short-weighing, the suppressing of fraudulent advertising, the requirement of an adequate and correct description of the coal and delivery slips, are within their authority," he said.

He recommended all types of coal entering Canada should be classified under their own names, such as Welsh anthracite, German anthracite, or American anthracite.

If the coals are mixed they should be given the name of the mixture, such as Welsh and German.

Among other classifications suggested is that Welsh coal be sold as Grade A if "big vein" anthracite, and Grade B if "red vein."

All sales slips and invoices should designate the type of coal as defined in the recommended classification.

Sir Edward Beatty To Visit Peterboro

Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Chancellor of McGill University, is to visit the city and address the Men's Club of Trinity United Church during Easter week, it was announced to-day. The invitation was extended through the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.

According to plans which are being made, Council members, other civic officials, business and professional men and representatives of the teaching staffs of the city will be invited to the meeting. Arrangements for a welcoming committee headed by Mayor Macdonald and councillors to greet the distinguished visitor on his arrival by private car are being discussed.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 4. — Touched off by reports of an expansion in European buying, wheat soared to fresh recovery heights on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Gains of three cents a bushel were coupled with unexpected strength in overseas markets and renewed export demand.

High point of the upward movement was reached in the closing hour. Trading was active throughout, with the May future leading the upswing. Total amount of wheat cleared for overseas was estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels.

Indications of an improved demand for flour in the United Kingdom and a better inquiry for wheat on the Continent aided the upturn for the fourth consecutive day. Japan was also reported bidding for supplies.

Tears Week In Jail Will Soften Him Up

Brantford, Ont., Feb. 4 (CP)

JOHN Kinselle of Cobourg, a man near 60 who has been living in the open on the Paris dump for the past six weeks, feared today if he went to jail he would be "softened up" and unfit for inclement weather.

"I can take it outside," he told Magistrate S. A. Jones. "Let me go." The court decided a week in jail would be better for him, particularly during the cold spell.

SPEEDS SERVICE FOR ELOPEMENTS

Arizona's New Marrying Justice Looks For Big Business In Yuma

YUMA, Ariz., Feb. 3 (CP)—This western Gretna Green is starting the new year with "right now" service for altar-bound Hollywood couples and others.

Constable Ed. Winn, who exchanges his gun for a Bible to succeed Earl A. Freeman as "marrying justice" of the peace, has a head full of plans for speeding up things. His program calls for moving his residence from the outskirts into the middle of Yuma, and burning the lights all night as a guide to elopers.

"These folks who want to get married in a hurry and go to the expense of chartering an airplane to bring them to Arizona aren't going to hunt all over a strange town for a justice of the peace," Winn says.

The easy-going, horse-trading former Texan plans to be ready at all hours. Through years of experience as a peace officer, he has learned to awaken easily and clothe himself quickly—there'll be no long waits on his front porch, he promises.

Freeman, who is retiring after "splicing an estimated 25,000 couples," says a decade of this sort of life has made his hair gray and broken his health. Recently, those night-time visitors included John Barrymore and Elaine Barrie, who arrived at midnight in a chartered plane. Justice Freeman "had the knot tied in the blink of an eye."

Winn says marriages will be conducted "on the same high level." The fee will remain the same, "customarily" $5. Movie stars usually pay more, but seldom above $25. On this basis, it is estimated the office has paid Freeman about $150,000 in marriage fees alone.

LAKEFIELD

Miss Mary Goodhand of Toronto was in Lakefield over the week-end, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. McKerchar.

Mr. John Blakely of Lakefield was in Toronto this week attending the Canadian Jersey Club annual meeting and banquet in the Royal York Hotel.

Miss Adele Hunter, of Toronto, spent the week-end in Lakefield, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKerchar.

The fire brigade was called out twice on Monday. The alarms were both chimney fires—one was at the home of Orville McConkey; the second at Eric Holmes' residence. Neither was serious.

Mr. T. C. Yonge of Lakefield has been doing business at his present stand, on Queen Street, for ten years. He purchased the business formerly owned by Mr. Jackson, in 1927, and moved to Lakefield just ten years ago last Monday.

Mr. K. A. MacKenzie of Lakefield Preparatory School, Lakefield, entertained the children of the Lakefield Public School on Monday evening, when he put on a set of free slides in the Memorial Hall. The children enjoyed the pictures immensely.

SKELTON REVIEWS CORONATION WORK

Premier King, Vincent Massey, Lt.-Col. Vanier On Canadian Commission

OTTAWA, Feb. 4—(C.P.).—Preparations by the British Commonwealth for the Coronation of King George VI were described in the annual report of Dr. O. D. Skelton, Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs yesterday in the House of Commons. The report covered the calendar year 1936.

"In view of the changed status of the Dominions since the last Coronation," the report stated, "new problems have arisen to be solved, and innovations to be made in connection with the Coronation service and ceremonies. Arrangements to this end have been entrusted to the Coronation Commission in which members of the Commonwealth are represented on an equal basis.

"The Canadian representatives to this commission consist of the Prime Minister of Canada, the High Commissioner for Canada in the United Kingdom (Hon. Vincent Massey), and the secretary to the High Commissioner (Lt.-Col. George P. Vanier).

Several meetings have been held and the arrangements are proceeding speedily and satisfactorily."

Publicity Centralized

Publicity work for Canada in the United Kingdom was centralized during the year, Dr. Skelton explained, with a publicity committee composed of the High Commissioner and members of the staff of Trade and Commerce and National Revenue at Canada House as well as members of the High Commissioner's office.

The London Naval Conference which opened on December 9, 1935, and concluded in March, 1936, resulted in a procès-verbal on rules of submarine warfare, which the High Commissioner signed on behalf of Canada on November 6, along with other signatory powers.

The High Commissioner's office had an active year with the Canadian Pilgrimage to Vimy Ridge, and many commissions. The closing of the Quebec Government office in London turned additional inquiries to Canada House.

Sir Herbert Marler took over the duties of Canadian Minister at Washington during the year, and Hon. H. Randolph Bruce became Canadian Minister at Tokyo.

The Canadian Legation in Paris made much of the arrangements for the Canadian Pilgrimage to Vimy while the pilgrims were in France.

BUTCHER IS FINED.

CHATHAM, Ont., Feb. 4 (C.P.).—F. Pomojbe, Chatham butcher, today was fined $26.00, and costs, $50.22 in all, when he admitted an offence under the Pure Foods Act. The charge, preferred by E. B. Thurlow of London, Dominion Food and Drug Inspector, alleged that he "did sell, offer or expose for sale sausage meat found to be adulterated in that it contained sulphurous acid 0.57 parts per 2,000."

FREAK OTTER CAUGHT.

FREDERICTON, N.B.—(CP). — An otter pelt freakishly shaded in colors between gold and mauve, has been brought here from the Miramichi district. It is considered more of a freak than an albino otter.

Britain Is Building Frantically To Expand Her Fighting Air Force

Awake at last to the inadequate state of her air force as compared to the aerial fighting strength of European nations which might figure as potential enemies in any new war, Great Britain is building at a frantic rate in an effort to lessen the gap of inferiority in first line fighting aircraft. Dozens of factories all over England are working at emergency speed to complete war office contracts, so much so that commercial aircraft for British firms must now be purchased abroad. Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for defence co-ordination, estimates that a total of 100 squadrons—1,200 machines—will be completed by the end of March. Britain plans to increase her air strength to a total of 1,750 first-line fighting aircraft in addition to the navy's air aerial arm. Criticism has been voiced claiming lack of speed in the expansion program. Two views of factories working at top speed are shown here. A view in the Fairey Aviation Works at Hayes is shown left and at right a floor of the Handley-Page plant at Cricklewood. One of Britain's most formidable single seater fighting machines, a Gloster Gladiator, is pictured in flight. This machine mounts four guns and has tremendous speed and climbing ability.

MAY TAKE CHOICE OF NURSING HELP

Montreal Has Service Bureau Where All Kinds Can Be

MONTREAL, Feb. 3 — (C.P.). — There has been established in this city a Nursing Service Bureau, which will provide a variety of choice for the public, comprising the services of registered nurses and all types of subsidiary nurse workers, male and female. This will include trained attendants, practical nurses and medical orderlies.

At present there is nowhere in Canada a bureau through which all grades of nursing service may be obtained, and Montreal, consequently, is embarking on a pioneer effort in this respect, where the Dominion is concerned. The project has been given the most careful study by its organizers, all of widespread experience in nursing and administrative matters concerned with the care of the sick.

The Nursing Survey published in 1932 after thorough inquiry in all phases of nursing in Canada, from every aspect, drew attention to the problem of the sick who were not receiving nursing care. Since that time, the nursing profession has been endeavoring to improve nurses' registers—the offices through which services of nurses are obtained—and to broaden the scope of their activities.

The bureau will function throughout Greater Montreal and its vicinity, and proposes to work in close co-operation with all agencies in the public health field, and with the parties concerned—the public, the doctors, the nurses and the subsidiary nurse workers.

With these types of nursing service available, the committee feels the public will be able to procure highly-skilled nurses as well as those whose training and experience do not equip them for this type of duty but prepare them for lesser responsibility.

The director of the Nursing Service Bureau is Miss Flora Aileen George, R.N., a graduate of the Sherbrooke Hospital and of the School for Graduate Nurses, McGill University, who has had considerable experience in administration, and for the past seven years has been woman superintendent of the Woman's General Hospital.

4 PRISON TERMS TOTAL 29 YEARS

Piccolo Pete's Wild Tale Of Crimes Get Him Twelve Years

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 4.—(CP). —A total of 29 years' imprisonment was given out to-day by Mr. Justice Kingstone in Supreme Court here when four persons convicted at the recent assizes appeared before him for sentence.

John "Rusty" Gordon, convicted bank robber who figured in the Royal Bank hold-up of 1928, was given 10 years in Kingston penitentiary. Ray Watt, who had no previous record, drew two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory. Both men had been found guilty of the safe robbery at the Dairy Bread Co., which occurred on November 28, 1936.

Charles Labrie, alias Piccolo Pete, who shocked judges and police alike by his stories of wild crimes he committed, drew the longest term. He must serve 12 years in prison.

George Cowan, a companion, was given five years. The two men figured in the Christmas eve hold-up of Cecil Wilson, a taxi-driver near Ancaster.

CLERICAL STAFF WANT CUT BACK

Railway Men Claim Over 55 P.C. Of Them Earning Less Than $100 Month

OTTAWA, Feb. 4—(CP)—Spokesmen of the Canadian National Railways to-day prepared their reply to the case placed before Judge F. L. Smiley's conciliation board by the board's clerical employees, asking cancellation of a 10 per cent. cut in their pay.

The board yesterday adjourned after hearing argument on behalf of the men who include clerical workers and other employees not in the running trades or on telegraph staffs and total about 10,000.

In taking the adjournment Judge Smiley said both sides would have an opportunity before the board reconvenes next Monday to consider the report released last night of Justice MacLean's board on application of the running trades for a similar pay restoration.

However, J. E. McGuire of Montreal, spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, declared his organization was pressing for full restoration of the 10 per cent. deducted during the depression and wished its case judged on its own merits, not with reference to a decision in another case.

He said most of the men he represented were in the lower pay-brackets of the railway, more than 55 per cent. of them earning less than $100 a month. 17.65 per cent. drawing less than $80 a month. Even if full restoration was made, he added 75 per cent. of the 10,000 affected workers would be making less than the minimum family budget established by the Labor Department.

HAY EXPORTS INCREASE.

SACKVILLE, N.B. (C.P.).—More than 1,000 tons of New Brunswick hay have been shipped to Great Britain this winter, a great increase over previous years, according to O. LeLacheur, of the Dominion Seed Branch here. Most of it came from Carleton and Westmoreland Counties.

Your Grocer Urges YOU To Read This Valuable Book

IT'S PACKED WITH FACTS EVERY HOUSEWIFE CAN USE

A copy of "THE HOUSEWIFE'S YEAR BOOK" has been delivered to your home this week. It's a most useful booklet full of practical household information. Your grocer hopes it will prove to be of real value to you throughout the year.

It contains many housekeeping helps—gives information on health and beauty—gaining weight and reducing—advice on what to do in case of accidents—outlines a healthful way of living, and stresses particularly the necessity of avoiding the cause of so many of our ills—common constipation.

The booklet explains why the lack of "bulk" in our modern meals is the chief cause of this condition, and how Kellogg's All-Bran provides this necessary "bulk", yet is a most delicious cereal. All-Bran can also be used with other cereals or in waffles, bread and muffins.

If you did not receive your FREE copy, write to the Kellogg Company of Canada, London, Ontario.

Visit To See Denne Pictures Develops In A Peterborough Old Boys' And Girls' Reunion

hanged for Peterborough origin and her delight in the pictures.

Mrs. Speers Remembers

"I am Mrs. John Speers," she told The Examiner, "and I lived in Peterborough for fifty years until I came to Toronto nine years ago. These scenes are wonderful. Look at that one of the first old bridge across the Otonabee. I have heard my father tell of how that structure was burned. And here's the old bridge at Hunter street. There, near the river, was where the Dawson family lived."

Mrs. Speers, whose father was Frank Hamilton, a shoe merchant of the old days, explained that she was making a list of the pictures for the benefit of her sister, who was unable to visit the display, and she admitted that she found the task a labor of love for the Denne prints were fascinating. "I could stay here all day," she said enthusiastically, "and as it is it looks as if my family will have to do without lunch to-day. I am not going to leave yet."

With her was another old resident of Peterborough, although not of so long a duration, in the person of Miss Whattam, whose brother was once pastor of Mark Street Church, and who shared Mrs. Speers' enthusiasm for the interest and beauty of the pictures.

Gazing intently at one of the prints, The Examiner found J. M. Sherlock, well-known Toronto vocal teacher and conductor, who confessed that he did not come from Peterborough, despite the close scrutiny he was giving this particular specimen. "My interest is a little different from most of these other folk," he explained. "You see Max Dennistoun and I went to Queen's together, and I had lost track of him. This particular picture is one of the old Dennistoun home in Inverlea Park, and the legend tells me that Max is now a judge in Winnipeg, so that the display has provided me with that knowledge. That is why I was studying it so closely."

However, Mr. Sherlock apparently found a great deal of other interesting things in the collection; anyway, he was still looking at the prints an hour afterward.

Red Roses Turn White After Refrigeration

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)

A comedy of colors:

The keeper of the White House greenhouses put pink carnations and red roses in his floral refrigerator last night.

Today he took out white roses and red and white carnations.

This astounded him until he discovered a leak in the refrigerator's gas line. The gas discolored the flowers.

Remembers the Launching

To another visitor whom The Examiner encountered there was something of interest in almost every one of the ten dozen or more pictures. He was Joseph McCoy, who has been living in Toronto since 1926, but before that lived most of his life in Peterborough and in Campbellford, and who was engaged in the lumber business, spending 24 years with the Rathbun Company.

"Why, there's the old Golden-Eye," he exclaimed. "I remember when she was launched 61 years ago. I was only a small lad then, but I can recall seeing the craft put into the water at Little Lake. She was considered quite a boat in her day; the queen of the fleet. And there's the old lumber slide on Pencil Creek. Many a log I've help drive down that stream from Pencil Lake into Catchacoma. W. A. Scott, whose name is mentioned in several of these old lumbering scenes, was a big man in the industry in early days, and it was he who built Scott's Mills, three miles from Buckhorn."

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dunsford were two other folk who found plenty of fascination in the whole collection, and Mr. Dunsford, well remembered as manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Commerce for years, was particularly intrigued with one ancient view that showed the corner of Brock and George street as it was over half a century ago.

"That building on the southwest corner," he explained to The Examiner, "was the first office of the Bank of Commerce in Peterborough, and I started with the bank there in 1880, returning a long time after as manager in the present premises at Hunter and Water streets.

The Hotel Took Fire

In those days I used to board in the old hotel on Brock street, sleeping on the third floor, and one night there was a fire and we had to get out in a hurry. Some excited men pushed the ancient heater that was downstairs out into the street, where it upset and immediately ignited the old wooden sidewalk, causing another fire outside. I remember the bank was full of old clothes for days after, for they carried a lot of stuff out of the hotel over to the bank premises."

A few minutes later there arrived on the scene a former resident of Peterborough, who added to Mr. Dunsford's recollections of that particular corner. He was William Yelland, a veritable treasure trove of information on the Peterborough of yesterday, and well he might be, for he was born in a house on the city's main street 79 years ago, and his family has owned property on George street in the block between Brock and Murray streets for three-quarters of a century. Mr. Yelland, who lived in Peterborough until 1902 when a job in the Ontario Civil Service lured him away to Toronto, is a son of the late William Yelland, twice mayor of Peterborough, and to him the whole Denne collection was a delightful treat.

An Ancient Hotel.

He recalled to The Examiner that at the corner which Mr. Dunsford had so remembered as the site of the first Bank of Commerce office there had stood prior to the advent of that building an old hotel kept by a man named McGregor.

"Across the road on the northwest corner where Craig and Mooney's furniture store was many years after," said Mr. Yelland, "there used to be a blacksmith shop kept by a man named Kennedy. There was a fairly steep hill at that point in those days and you had to climb a slope to get up to the blacksmith shop. The hill of course was cut down considerably later.

"I remember that when a new building was being built at that corner it collapsed and they had to start the job all over again."

"There's the Ogemah," he said as another picture caught his eye. "I remember she used to run trips from Chemong Park, and one 25th of May my father sent me to deliver a wagon to be shipped on the Ogemah, and I ran into a sort of gruesome experience. It seems that there had been a drowning on the holiday, and the body had been recovered, and when I got there to deliver the wagon there was the coffin below decks on the steamer."

The Old Home Week atmosphere that pervaded the Simpson Company's art gallery yesterday was charmingly exemplified a moment later. Mr. Yelland's attention had been attracted by an old picture taken at the corner of Hunter and George Streets, showing the Lemay store, well-known to the citizens of yesterday, and he had started to say something about Mr. Lemay when a young lady who too had been gazing intently at the picture, said, smilingly, "And he was my grandfather." She was Miss Josephine Tilston, resident of Toronto, and steeped in Peterborough legends handed down from her grandparents.

Band Picture Attracts.

Probably because the group contains so many men who were well-known to older residents, the picture of the old Fire Brigade band directed by Finch Miller, who died a few days ago, seemed to attract general attention.

"Many a time I have skated to the music of that band at the old carnivals," Miss Kate Henderson, now of Toronto, told The Examiner. "It used to play for skating in the old days, and I recall the Millers, John Butcher and others who were members." Incidentally Miss Henderson, whose father, the late Wilson Henderson, was superintendent of the Peterborough waterworks for many years, and is well-remembered, was one of the most enthusiastic admirers of the whole collection. She recalled many of the old steamers displayed and other features of interest, including a view that showed Water Street North.

"There was Peterborough's first pumping station," she pointed out to The Examiner man. "I can recall my father taking us to see it for the first time and how disappointed I felt because it seemed so small compared to the one in Ottawa with which we had been familiar."

Mrs. M. Pappas, who is also a resident of Toronto now, recalled the same picture but for a different reason. She remembered the old mills shown in the print, and had vivid recollections of the fire that had destroyed the buildings. The old hockey picture and some of the ancient steamers depicted in the collection were also of great interest to Mrs. Pappas, who spent an hour or two examining the pictures, and expressed the wish that the prints could be made available in book form.

She Was a School Mate

"I was a school mate of Mr. T. H. G. Denne's at the Ashburnham School, when Mr. Wood was principal there," Miss Emma Deacon, former Ashburnham resident now living in Toronto told The Examiner, "and I taught ex-Mayor Rollie Denne in the old St. Luke's Sunday school." Miss Deacon was delighted with the display and found something of interest in it all. So, too, did Mrs. T. Barker Tate, whose father, George Edward Shaw, was the first manager of the Ontario Bank in Peterborough, and who recalled that her family used to live over the bank premises on Simcoe street. Mrs. Tate, whose daughter, Mrs. Langford, accompanied her and shared her interest in the old pictures, regretted the fact that no one had thought of providing a register where visitors to the collection could have listed their names.

A picture of the first cottage at Chemong Park was sufficient to get W. J. Young, now of Toronto but at one time an employee of the old Peterborough Radial Railway Company, thinking of the time when his father's cows used to roam over the park in the old days. "We even found them on one occasion on Hopwood's Island," he recalled, laughingly. Mr. Young, of course, remembered many of the old scenes and he was one of the many who found it difficult to tear themselves away from the fascinating exhibit.

Others in the same category were the Misses Adelaide and Olive Errett, who formerly lived on Park street near the residence of A. H. Stratton and Mrs. Heald of 66 Elmer avenue, Toronto, whose father was George Kingdon, and whose family owned land on Simcoe street near the present site of the Salvation Army Temple.

One visitor had the thrill of discovering herself in a picture that showed an old-time boat party in a skiff at the back of the old Edward Green property on Water street, opposite the market, a section of the river that was filled in years ago and on a part of which are located the C.P.R. freight sheds. She was Miss Charlotte English, at one time assistant librarian at the old Mechanics' Institute when it was located over Strickland's law office on Water street.

Younger Ex-Citizens

Yesterday's visitors were not confined to the older generation of Peterborough old boys and girls, for many of the younger former residents dropped in to the art gallery during the day. Among those with whom The Examiner chatted was Mrs. Alex. Roberts, who was Miss Florence Scott, daughter of Dr. W. D. Scott and sister of Dr. Raymore Scott, chairman of the Board of Education; E. Douglas Huycke, son of the late Judge Huycke and brother of Wilfred Huycke.

Donald Shook whose father the late J. C. Shook was with the Dickson Company for years, "Pat" Burritt, son of the late D. H. Burritt who took a special interest in an old picture taken from the present site of the Y.M.C.A. and showing the old home of his grandfather, Dr. Burritt, the house now occupied by Dr. A. W. McPherson and Hector J. Donell whose father was connected with the old planing mills on Dublin street and helped A. A. McIntyre, according to his son, build the Y.M.C.A. building.

These were some of the old Peterborough folk who were there yesterday. Other visitors of course viewed the pictures during the day, some of them folk who were familiar with the place through passing through to their summer homes somewhere in the Kawartha chain, others just like the old gentleman who said to the Examiner, "No, I never saw Peterborough but I do love looking at old pictures and these certainly are fine" and the other younger man who remarked that "Peterborough is lucky and should be proud to get a collection like this."

Deserve Proper Setting

This rambling article is not the story of the Denne pictures — that will come later when the splendid gift of Peterborough's ex-mayor will be on permanent display here—it is rather the story of the folk who came to see the pictures yesterday. Their keen interest and the wealth of reminiscences that was in evidence is the best possible proof that Mr. Denne has succeeded admirably in accomplishing what he set out to do. He has given Peterborough an unique pictorial record of the community's earlier days, record that will be of steadily enhanced interest and the local authorities should see to it that the record is fittingly displayed. The pictures are worth the best location they can be given; they are all that has been said about them and more; they should have a setting worthy of their beauty and historical significance.

New Appointment

W. A. CHANT, Manager

Announcement has just been made by Lorne Ardiel, president of The Ardiel Advertising Agency Limited, of the opening of their new branch at Oakville, Canada, under the management of Mr. W. A. Chant. Mr. Chant is well and favorably known throughout Canada and Foreign markets due to his many years connection with the advertising of Dr. Chase's medicines, and is recognized as one of the world's authorities on the advertising and merchandising of proprietary medicines.

The Oldest Riddle's Age Is Still Riddle

Chicago, Feb. 4.—(AP)

ONE riddle a champion riddle-collector couldn't unravel today was How old is the oldest riddle? This poser, admitted Dr. Archer Taylor, had him stumped.

Dr. Taylor, chairman of the Department of Germanic Languages and Literature at the University of Chicago, said he found evidence of "the Sphinx" riddle as far back as 400 B.C., in writings by Euripides, a Greek poet.

But even more ancient, the professor felt, was a riddle based on numbers, and which had been traced back definitely 1,500 years.

TORONTO SELECTS SUNDAY READING

Religious Works In Demand And Lighter Journals Shelved For Day

TORONTO, Feb. 6 (CP) — The famed quiet of Toronto's Sunday observance is unbroken. It was three years ago that the town became mildly excited—and religious circles mildly perturbed—by the city council's decision to open the central reference department of the public library.

That was breaking down the Sunday anti-amusement barrier with a vengeance. Only a few Canadian cities, notably Vancouver and Victoria, had taken such an educational step and the city council was roundly criticised. Sunday was not a day for education.

Well, Toronto retains its uncullied reputation. A reporter went down to the reference library the other day and asked what Sunday readers preferred to read. Know what?

"Sunday readers are more interested in religious works than books dealing with any other subject," the librarian said. They also pore over dictionaries in different languages, and encyclopaedias of the fine arts.

The English humor magazine "Punch" ranks as the lightest-veined periodical on the premises—but not on Sunday.

The library "pulls its Punches" that day, the reporter discovered. Yes, sir, they lock up all copies in the stack room.

END OF SILICOSIS

Knowledge Now At Hand Means Finish Of Dust Disease.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP). — Health and labor experts agreed yesterday that knowledge now available probably could be used virtually to eliminate silicosis, the "dust disease," from American industry.

This view was expressed at the second national silicosis conference, called by Labor Secretary Perkins. The disease affects metal miners, asbestos workers, stone and sand workers, hard coal miners, and employees in smelters, foundries, glass-works and sand-blasting operations.

Constant breathing of the fine dust containing silica results in scarring of the lung tissues, it was added, and when a person with the disease contracts tuberculosis or some other lung or throat infections his condition becomes serious.

TAX DISCOUNTS GIVEN.

KENTVILLE, N.S.—(CP)— Following in the footsteps of other centres, the municipality of King's will give a discount to those who pay their taxes early this year. A five per cent reduction will be allowed all who pay before June 1. It is the first time in history the municipality has made such a move.

1936 SHIPBUILDING INCREASES 60 P.C.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(CP)—The recovery of world shipbuilding during 1936 was revealed to-day by figures published by Lloyd's register of shipping. The returns, which covered all vessels of 100 gross tons and upwards and all countries except Russia, showed that 2,117,924 gross tons of new shipping slid down the ways—a gain of 60 per cent over 1935.

Last year, the busiest for the industry since 1929, saw 87 steamships and motor vessels ranging in size from 8,000 to 9,000 gross tons, take the water, Lloyd's states, as compared with 48 in 1935. New vessels of 10,000 gross tons and upward numbered 26 as against 23 the preceding year.

Great Britain and Ireland with a year's production of new tonnage of 856,257 nearly doubled the output of their nearest competitor, Germany, who launched 379,981 gross tons. Japan ranked third with a production of 294,861 gross tons.

The British launchings showed a gain of 367,000 gross tons over 1935. The largest vessel launched, in any shipyard during the year was the British liner Orcades, of 23,400 gross tons.

New motor vessel tonnage increased nearly 50 per cent. over 1935 and the year's production of 1,202,476 gross tons was the highest ever reached except for the years 1929 and 1930.

Output of steam and motor tankers, of 1,000 gross tons and upward, nearly doubled 1935 launchings at 667,794 gross tons, and of these 359,690 tons were motor vessels.

SUGAR CONFERENCE.

GENEVA, Feb. 4 (AP). — The League of Nations today officially convoked an international sugar conference to meet at London April 5.

The league secretariat recently announced the parley would consider the possibility of an agreement on production and marketing of sugar, a suggestion offered at the world economic conference in 1933. Canada was among nations invited to attend the meeting.

Do You Know Someone

WHO IS RUPTURED?

SHOW THEM THIS

Here is an invitation no man or woman suffering the handicap of dangerous Rupture can afford to ignore. I will tell you why. I want to send you an absolutely free test of my new famous Lymphol Rupture Control with full particulars of a Method that thousands say has, when fitted to their personal case, not only given them instant relief from the tortures, dangers, and discomforts of reducible rupture, but that in many cases, all evidence of Rupture is gone and they are as "sound as a dollar."

Don't say this is too good to be true. Try it. Send no money—just your name and address, plainly written, and say "I am ruptured"—and I will quickly send you, in plain sealed packages, what may easily prove the happiest surprise and best news of your life. Address W. S. Rice Inc., 1298S Main Street, Adams, N.Y. Do this to-day—before you forget. You may not see this notice again.

Reduces Varicose or Swollen Veins

Simple Home Treatment Proves It At Small Cost.

The world progresses. To-day many minor ailments that took weeks to overcome can now be helped much more quickly. If you have varicose veins or bunches start to-day to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at McDermid & Jury or any dispensing pharmacist, and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. In a short time the veins should begin to grow smaller and by regular use soon approach normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins or simply swellings before resorting to operations or injections should not hesitate to try a bottle at once. It is so penetrating and powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time.

Flowers For Retiring Regent.

Mrs. Bert Jackson, retiring regent of the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E., was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers (the presentation being made on behalf of the members by the new regent, Mrs. F. L. Robinson), at the annual meeting of the chapter, held on Wednesday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. Jackson thanked the ladies in a few gracious words. Tea was served at the close of the meeting, from a prettily-arranged table presided over by Mrs. B. Jackson, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Burrell, Mrs. B. W. Harvey and Mrs. D. W. Clarke.

U.F.O. Dance Helps Flood Sufferers.

A successful turnout for the U.F.O. dance in the Legion Hall on Wednesday night, when the entire proceeds of the evening, which the committee hopes will amount to well over fifty dollars, were donated to the cause of the flood sufferers in the United States. Approximately three hundred and fifty people attended the dance.

The following stores and individuals gave reduced prices for supplying the dance, in order to augment the fund: The Legion, Mortier's Orchestra, Stock's Bread Company, the Mason Grocerteria, Coleman's Confectionery, M. Nurse, Hamilton Stores.

At the dance, excellent music was played by Red Moncrief and his orchestra and Melville Nurse acted as floor manager. Prizes for spot dances were won by Miss Rita Leahy, Miss Josephine Lynch, Jack Quinn, and Joseph Sullivan. These were boxes of chocolates, as were the door prizes, which went to Miss Jean Sopha and Miss Marion Meawen.

Guests present included: Mr. and Mrs. L. Whittington, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Young, Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cowell, Mr. and Mrs. W. Northey, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Beane, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Garnett;

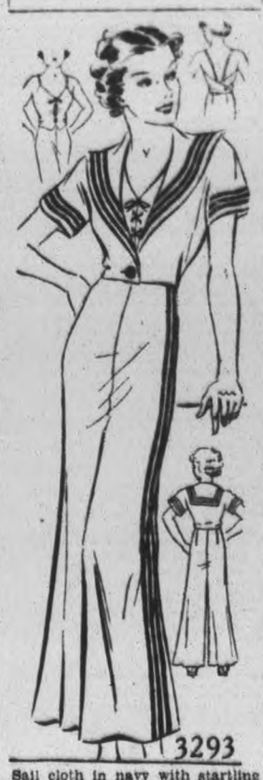
Fashion Service



Sail cloth in navy with startling red braid made this youthful cruise or beach costume.

The red braid outlines sailor collar and edges the sleeves of the brief mess type jacket. It fastens with a single button at the waist.

The braid appears again down the sides of the slacks. They have snug hips and flared legs.

The halter reflects peasant origin. It is laced up the front with the red braid.

The pattern includes the Marine slacks, jacket and halter.

Tyrolean cotton prints are also very smart for this simple to sew sports costume. They're so inexpensive, too.

You'll enjoy it for the pattern is so easily followed.

Style No. 3293 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38-inches bust. Size 16 requires 4¾ yards of 39-inch material with 4⅞ yards of braid for complete outfit.

YOU may not play the first fiddle; they may have assigned to you the flute, the pipe or the flageolet; you may beat the drum, swing the cymbals, or tote a tom-tom. But remember this: Wherever you are, keep in harmony.—Van Amburgh.

❖ ❖ ❖

Dear Friends:

Do you keep in harmony with those around you, or are you forever sounding a sour note? Just think how you would feel if you were to pay good money to go to a dance, and the orchestra played offkey all the evening. What a holler you would raise about it.

No one person can be the whole orchestra, but one person can spoil the music that all the others but you are trying to make. What although you think you could play a bigger or better instrument in life Have you shown you were fitted to play it, or have you taken it out in showing how badly you can do it, spoiling things for everyone, yourself included.

One busybody in a neighborhood can make things hum in poor harmony for all those who live near them. They are not content to tootle on their own horn, but must try to tell everyone else how to play And usually those who do this are very poor musicians at best.

One poor sport in the home can throw everything out of harmony for those who are trying to play in tune, and what do they ever get out of it? People, no matter how they may love them, are glad to see them go.

One grouser in an office, can throw all the rest off-key, and what a headache they are. Sometim s we have one who plays so sweet and true, that the sour one starts playing his best for very shame, and thus brings sweet music where once there was only discord.

So many seem to think that it does not matter how they play. They are living their own life, so why all the bother and flurry? But you cannot live your own life alone; you are just as dependent on the rest of the instruments of life as they are on you, and bitterly would you resent it if they played as you are trying to do.

Your boss, or your parents, may be to you like the first fiddle, and you may be only a minor note, but these notes have to be played in time; they must be played true, before the whole thing takes on the real beauty it was meant to have.

If you play out of turn, if you will not keep time, if your instrument is sadly needing tuning, what a hodgepodge we hear instead of what we thought we WOULD hear. And what IS this instrument?

It is the place you are in just now the work you are doing to-day. No the thing you want to do next week or next year ,but whatever work you must do now, and it depends on you, and you alone, as to whether you will go through life a misfit or a success, a true player or discordant.

Most of our troubles come to us, either because we will not learn the notes, or having learned them, we refuse to play them, and we not only make it hard for ourselves, but we throw the rest out.

And honestly it could all be so beautiful if we all tried to play in harmony. Some play the major notes, and some the minor, but crabbing and pouting because you are assigned the minor ones, only throws everything jangling, and the one set is needed as badly as the other to make the perfect song.

So, stop your grousing and faultfinding. Harmonize, and harmony will come back to you; send out your notes, and back they will come like an echo. Let your voice be musical, your actions genial, your countenance amiable, your reason amenable, and your work commendable.

Then will life be harmonious for you and all you come in contact with, like a grand sweet song we love to hear, a song that can be heard over and over, without satiation. In brief, do your very best, whatever part you play, and see the harmony you will have.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Chapter Elects Mrs. Robinson

Otonabee Chapter Has Very Successful Year—Plans Hope Chest

Mrs. F. L. Robinson was elected as regent of the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E., at the annual meeting held on Wednesday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. with the retiring regent, Mrs. B. Jackson, presiding. There was a very fine attendance.

Mrs. R. R. Hall is honorary regent of the chapter and other officers include Mrs. B. Jackson, first vice president; Mrs. C. E. Blewett, second vice regent; Mrs. J. A. Robinson, treasurer; Mrs. B. D. MacLean, secretary; Mrs. N. Andrew, 'Echoes' secretary; Mrs. B. W. Harvey, Educational secretary; Mrs. J. P. Pulkinghorn, Standard Bearer; Mrs. H. M. Wilson, pianiste; Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Flower convenor.

Councillors for the year will be Mesdames A. E. Dryland, W. A. Davern, D. W. Clarke, H. C. Sherwood, W. A. Burrell, S. Mitchell, R. Wolstenholme, S. R. Pearson, H. M. Wilson.

Annual reports were presented showing a decided increase over last year, with a very progressive year just ended.

The newly-elected regent, Mrs. Robinson, announced that she would call an executive meeting very soon to discuss plans for a Hope Chest.

MAKES ICE CREAM You'll like

WHETHER you make ice cream in an electric refrigerator or in a hand freezer—try making it with Carnation Milk. You'll find it even more tempting, richer and smoother—and more economical. Carnation is twice as rich as ordinary milk, every drop contains an equal share of cream, all the food value of the original whole milk is retained. It keeps well because it is sterilised.

These same virtues make it an ideal food for bottle-fed babies and for growing children. Carnation is unusually digestible, and is irradiated supplying extra "sunshine" vitamin D. Carnation is the evaporated milk the Dionne Quintuplets use.

THIS IS NO TIME TO TAKE CHANCES WITH COLDS

Especially During This Treacherous Winter Weather When Colds Are More Of A Menace Than Ever, Your Family Needs This Extra Protection

1. To Help PREVENT Many Colds—Keep out of crowds. Get plenty of fresh air, rest, and sleep. Eat light, wholesome food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular.

Watch yourself and your family after any exposure likely to be followed by a cold. Then—at the first sniffle or sneeze or the slightest irritation in the nose—quick! put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is specialized medication, expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, it helps to prevent many colds or to throw off head-colds in their early stages.

2. To RELIEVE a Cold Sooner—If a cold strikes without warning or gets by even the best precautions—as some colds always will—go straight to bed. Eat lightly and drink plenty of water and fruit juices. For prompt relief, use this vigorous treatment with your dependable Vicks VapoRub:

Massage it briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Long after you relax into restful sleep, VapoRub's famous poultice-vapor action continues for hours to loosen phlegm, ease coughing, and help break up local congestion.

Sickness From Colds Cut in Half!

These two easy steps are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan is a simple, practical plan which any mother can easily follow in her own home. It is also a tested plan. In the most extensive colds-clinic of its kind ever conducted—among 17,353 subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds—cut down sickness from colds more than half!

What Is Correct?

Where should the table napkin be placed?

The napkin is laid flat on the service plate. Unusually large napkins may have the sides folded under, but "tricky" foldings are frowned upon. At less formal meals, the napkin is sometimes put at the left of the plate, so that the first course may be placed on the service plate.

Is it good taste to make any demonstration of affection in public?

No. Resting one's arm on the back of a theatre seat, or audibly affectionate conversation in a public place is definitely bad taste. Any behavior which draws public attention and exhibits your feelings to the world violates the primary rules of good manners.

When should a child stand up?

Children should be taught as early as possible to rise when an older person comes into the room, and to say, "How do you do, Mrs. Blank," if an introduction is made (a boy offers his right hand). And even quite young children can learn to say, "Yes, Mrs. Blank," or "No, thank you," instead of a short, discourteous "Yes" or "No."

The thoughtful hostess serves only FRESH coffee

SERVING COFFEE which is not perfectly fresh is distinctly a social error of the worst sort, because it indicates lack of consideration for guests!

Stale coffee is weak, flavorless and uninspiring. Worse still, it can cause headaches, "nerves," and indigestion!

Women who understand what hospitality really means serve Chase & Sanborn Dated Coffee, because they know it is fresh.

It is rushed to your grocer by a rapid delivery system, and every bag is clearly marked with the date he gets it. No bag stays on his shelves more than 10 days.

This Dating system does away with the need for high-priced containers, so we pack it in an inexpensive bag.

Whether or not you can entertain with terrapin and pheasant, you can always afford this mellower, fresher coffee that flatters your guests. Order Chase & Sanborn Dated Coffee from your grocer tomorrow—in the economical bag!

Ingenious School Teacher Had Idea For Warm Lunches

Warm The Stomachs And Hearts Of Thousands Of Canadian Youngsters

MOTHERS CAN AID

By MARY MOORE

THE respect that I have for teachers—both public and high school—is so great that it is almost reverence.

Most of the time I groan mentally and sometimes audibly at the length of time and the tussling it takes to get my two little ones into their snow suits and galoshes. But Husband-Doctor shushes me with the story of one of his patients who is a public school teacher: She describes the nigh-onto-an-hour it takes her to bundle her brood of 30 into the last clasp of their galoshes, the final tug on their mitts, the last twist on their scarves,—to make them as snug and warm as their mothers sent them off in the morning. When I think of that I thank heaven for my little brood of two—and also for zippers.

(Somebody said permanent waves were one of the latest and greatest benefits to womankind;—I say zippers are tops for convenience).

Teachers score again, too. One of them very modestly disclosed to me that in her suburban school about half of the children were obliged to bring their lunch and she had struck on the happy arrangement of heating water in the bottom of large roasting pans over 2 gas plates to heat the sealable pint jars of soup or cocoa that her charges now bring in their lunch kits—all because she thought of it. (Indeed some school recreation rooms have annex heaters, the surfaces of which are even better for the purpose.)

Mind you I know that probably half the parents of those children can afford thermos jars for them but the other half cannot and they had to eat cold sandwiches and at best a cookie and apple and milk sometimes.

And this teacher—Bless Her Forever—decided that they could have one thing hot for lunch. She even confided to me that if their parents had been too lazy to make cocoa or soup she was ready to do it on her own responsibility and charge the school board with the cost—but happily everyone rallied to her and now they flock to school for the dozens each one hugging a pint jar full of some heatable, nourishing liquid or semi-liquid fluid—besides the sandwiches and fruit in their kits.

About one-half hour before lunch time she collects (or has monitors collect) all the jars and stands them in her water filled pans and gently heats them through. The children have all been instructed to provide themselves with a ½-pint granite cup—these serve for drinking either soup or cocoa.

While teachers do not have time to read cookery pages mothers do and the reason that Parent-Teacher Associations exist is for the very purpose of communicating ideas such as this to one another. Mother, you are a taxpayer—so express your wishes if your child is a lunch carrier.

Large offices and factory lunch rooms would do well to copy this simple idea too.

Graham, whole wheat, rye, soy bean, Boston Brown or nut breads should be used in place of White for sandwiches, for it is nourishing food with a capital "N.F." that we are trying to provide in this carried lunch—which is a poor substitute at its best.

Fillings for Types of Breads

For Whole Wheat Bread—Hard cooked eggs forced through sieve and moistened with tomato juice.

For Rye Bread—Cream cheese creamed and mixed with chopped blanched almonds or other nuts.

For Soy Bean Bread—Equal quantities of shrimps (or other canned fish) and raw cabbage put through mincer together and moistened and flavored with mayonnaise and salt.

Boston Brown — Steamed and mashed dates and ground peanuts, moistened with a little lemon juice.

For Nut Bread—Equal quantities of peanut butter and crystallized honey.

As a general rule for canned lunches bread should be cut thin, the crusts left on—and always buttered on both sides with softened butter. Butter is one of our most nourishing foods—each member of every family should have one pound per week.

We have not mentioned meat because it is the universal sandwich filling and deserves a lot of neglect—there are so many more foods that are so much better for our precious little ones.

Fruit in Lunch Box

Fruit both fresh and stewed and dried should have a permanent place each day.

Bananas (ripe and wrapped to avoid bruising), oranges and apples are bound to go in because they are convenient. Every day a twisted wax paper parcel can be made of nuts or dried fruits such as dates, raisins, figs or apricots.

When you are doing your weekly baking make cookies or small cakes that require fruits and nuts and plenty of butter. I overheard a very good cook telling another that a certain chocolate cake recipe was good because it only called for ¼ cup butter. Actually such cakes are not good—we should think in terms of whether it calls for much butter, much cream, many eggs, much fruit and nuts—for only the good things you put into your cakes and cookies are the ingredients that give health and strength to your family.

Fig bars—hermits chock full of nuts and raisins, ice box cookies calling for much butter and many nuts, oatmeal double decker cookies filled as full as possible with dates—those are samples of what you should provide for your lunch kits.

As for packing—need we even mention that all our efforts may be nullified if the wrappings are not of the neatest. Heavy waxed paper, thick paper or even linen table napkins—tidy cups—even paper spoons—all these make for daintiness and attractiveness. If the lunch is packed compactly it will prevent shifting and the box will present a pleasing appearance when opened. Surprises in the form of ripe olives, or a few choice nuts or fresh grapes help keep up interest from day to day.

Tested Favorite Recipe

By MARY MOORE.

There is something about Thursday afternoon and an empty kitchen that makes me want to venture and invent something new to eat. Last week it was an apple pudding with a new twist.

I had exactly 5 Spy apples left in the bottom of the bushel basket, I had 3 egg whites in the ice box. Somehow I wanted to combine them into a dessert that I would be proud to say I created. It turned out to be

Emem's Toasted Apple Pudding

Wash and quarter 5 medium-sized apple (Spys are preferable), and pour on 1 cup water and boil all until tender in glass or granite dish; force through strainer to remove skin and core. Beat whites of 3 eggs with 6 tablespoons sugar until stiff, then fold into the warm apple sauce. Pour this into shallow enamel or glass-buttered baking dish. Beat 1 egg a little and to it add 2 tablespoons water. In this soak 6 quarter slices of white bread (with crusts left on), until they soak up all the egg evenly. Lay these at even intervals over the apple mixture—in two rows, three to a row,—and sprinkle top with 1/3 cup of brown sugar in which is mixed ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Dot each quarter slice of bread with 1 teaspoon butter. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about ¾ hour. Serve with cream. This could also be served with lemon sauce.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL.

Officers for the coming year of the Queen Mary Home and School Association, elected at the annual meeting, will be as follows: Mrs. W. R. Morris and M. N. Clark, honorary presidents; Mrs. E. R. Shirley, president; Miss E. Deyell, first vice-president; Mrs. W. G. Scott, second vice-president; Mrs. H. R. Sills, secretary; Mrs. D. A. Loucks, treasurer; Mrs. C. H. Crowe, convenor Program committee; Mrs. J. E. Middleton, convenor Reception committee; Mrs. P. Hoper, pianiste; Mrs. E. G. R. Clarke and Mrs. J. Heffernan, Telephone committee; Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Relief committee convenor; Mrs. H. R. Sills, Visiting committee convenor; Mrs. T. J. Carley, League of Nations committee convenor; Mrs. W. G. Scott and Mrs. R. E. Hinton, representatives Home and School Council; Mrs. Hughes, Recreation committee convenor; Mrs. G. J. Fallen, Refreshment committee convenor.

Mrs. E. R. Shirley presided at the meeting, at which eighty-five ladies were present. Annual reports were presented, and Mrs. T. J. Carley gave an interesting review of the life of Miss Marty, who worked in furtherance of the Home and School movement.

Mrs. G. A. Spicer presided for the election of officers and also read the installation service. The report of the Nominating committee was presented by Mrs. J. E. Middleton.

The rooms taught by Mrs. F. Craig and Miss Irene Madill were co-winners for the attendance banner at the meeting. Miss Madill's room will be presented with a book for receiving the banner the largest number of times.

The meeting was featured by two vocal solos by Mrs. Ross Williamson, and tea was served at the close of the business session. Mrs. O. M. Steer and Mrs. J. E. Middleton presided at a table centered by a birthday cake topped by twenty-one candles, significant of the coming-of-age this year of the Home and School Association movement. The cake was surrounded by blooms of pink snapdragon on fern leaves, while four silver vases held bouquets of the same flowers.

Chums Tell Drowning Lad's Grandmother He Couldn't Come Home—Neighbor Makes It Possible.

MILFORD, Conn., Feb. 4 (CP).—Six-year-old Jackie McKendrick didn't come home with them, his playmates told grandmother Helen McKendrick, because "he's in the pond."

"Well, you tell him to come right home, his supper's ready," said the grandmother, thinking Jackie was just playing at the pond.

"But he can't," said Jackie's pal, "he's drowning."

He was doing just that when a neighbor, Edward Millar, rescued the lad at dusk last night.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question.—Please send me the recipes for Orange Bread (made by cooking a syrup a half hour) and little cup cakes that were iced with a frosting made with the juice of maraschino cherries. I think they were given on the cookery page of October 10 or 17. I tried them and they were so delicious but unfortunately the page was destroyed. Thanking you.—F.M.P.

Answer.—Thank you for the letter. We are glad you found the recipes so pleasing.

Pineapple Cup Cakes
(From "A Newfoundlander")

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup white sugar, 2 eggs, ¾ cup milk, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 slices canned pineapples, 1/3 teaspoon salt, teaspoon each mace, nutmeg and vanilla, ½ cup broken walnuts. Cream the shortening and add the sugar gradually then beaten eggs, then milk alternately with the flour, baking powder and salt and spices, sifted together. Add vanilla, beat well, then add nuts and pineapple which has been diced. Bake in small paper cups at 375 deg. Fahr.

Frosting for Pineapple Cup Cakes

Mix the juice from 1 small bottle of Maraschino cherries with sifted icing sugar, and add 2 tablespoons butter. Use enough icing sugar to make of stiff beating consistency and beat for at least 5 minutes, to make it fluffy. Spread on little cakes tops and sides, and sprinkle top with chopped marachino cherries.

Orange Bread

One cup water, ¾ cup orange rind, 1 cup white sugar, ¼ tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons baking powder, 1 egg, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup sweet milk, 3½ cups sifted flour.

Cut or grate rind finely until you have ¾ cup (oranges leftover from grating rind can be used for breakfast orange juice), and add the sugar and water to the rind and boil gently for ½ hour and cool. Mix egg well with the butter, and sift in the flour and baking powder and salt alternately with the milk and syrup mixture. Let stand for 20 minutes, then bake at 375 deg. Fahr. This is best when sprinkled with powdered sugar,—to be preferred in place of frosting.

We hope we can help you in the future.

Question.—I have only been married a few months, but have found your page very useful, but now am going to ask for your help.

My husband asked me to cook Pigs' Feet, but could not find a recipe, so I boiled them in water with a little onion. They were eatable, but oh! so sticky. I would appreciate very much, if you could help me, without causing too much trouble. Wishing you the best of luck.—Mrs. G. W.

Answer.—Thank you for your letter. Oh, yes; pigs' feet require additional preparation after they are boiled. I think from the following two or three methods you will find one that suits both you and your husband.

Pigs' Feet With Sauerkraut

Four pigs' feet (with uppers or shank if the family is large), 1 1/3 tablespoons salt, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon milk, bread crumbs, fat for frying, 1 pint sauerkraut. Scrape and wash the feet well. Cover with boiling water and add the salt. Cover the pan and let simmer until meat is tender. Cool in the water in which cooked. When cold, drain, dip the feet in slightly beaten egg to which 1 tablespoon milk has been added. Roll in very fine crumbs and sauté in butter or fat for 2 minutes, turning. Arrange in deep baking dish with sauerkraut on top. Bake slowly 1 hour.

Pickled Pigs' Feet

Four pigs' feet with uppers, 1 quart vinegar, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 4 bay leaves, 1 stick cinnamon, ½ cup salt, 2 teaspoons pepper, 1 small onion. Scrub the feet thoroughly, and cover with boiling water. Let simmer until the meat begins to fall from the bones. Place the pigs' feet in an earthenware or granite container. Combine the vinegar, cloves, bay leaves, cinnamon, salt, pepper and sliced onion and let simmer for about 1 hour. Add to this either 1 pint or 1 quart of the liquid in which the pigs' feet were cooked (previously chilled and skimmed free of fat). Strain to remove the spices and pour over the pigs' feet. Set away in a cool place for 2 days before using. These will keep well at low temperature.

Broiled Pigs' Feet

Wipe feet, which should be split, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and broil over hot flame 8 minutes, turning twice. Serve with Maitre d'Hotel Butter made by working ½ cup butter until creamy, then adding ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ tablespoon finely chopped parsley, and ¾ tablespoon lemon juice very slowly. One tablespoon each red and green pepper may be added if on hand.

Fried Pigs' Feet

Wipe split pigs' feet and sprinkle with salt and pepper, dip in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg and crumbs again, and fry in deep fat at 395 deg. Fahr. until golden then drain.

We hope you find these suitable and that we may help you again.

Fluffy Bouffant Skirts Of 'Deep South Days' Follow 'Gone With The Wind'

CHICAGO, Feb. 4 (A.P.). — The novel, "Gone With the Wind," inspired fashions displayed to-day in style shows at the annual spring and summer market.

Fluffy bouffant skirts are reminiscent of the more leisurely yesterdays in the "deep south." The styles have in some instances an "old-fashioned girl" appearance.

The decidedly feminine motif was accented throughout the showings of suits, coats, and silk dresses.

In keeping with the trend are the new net dresses. One simple girlish black net frock has an elbow length pleated cape that ties demurely under the chin. Another has a bolero jacket with touches of white lace at the throat. A more dressy number has vertical rows of ruching at the hem.

Skirts are about the same length as they were this winter for daytime wear. The emphasis continues on short sleeves.

LIGHTHOUSE DAMAGED.

LA HAVE, N.S.—(CP).—Considerable damage was done when fire swept through the kitchen of the La Have lighthouse. The light was not affected by the blaze, believed to started from an overheated chimney.

Ingenious School Teacher Had Idea For Warm Lunches

Warm The Stomachs And Hearts Of Thousands Of Canadian Youngsters

MOTHERS CAN AID

By MARY MOORE

THE respect that I have for teachers—both public and high school—is so great that it is almost reverence.

Most of the time I groan mentally and sometimes audibly at the length of time and the tussling it takes to get my two little ones into their snow suits and galoshes. But Husband-Doctor shushes me with the story of one of his patients who is a public school teacher: She describes the nigh-onto-an-hour it takes her to bundle her brood of 30 into the last clasp of their galoshes, the final tug on their mitts, the last twist on their scarves,—to make them as snug and warm as their mothers sent them off in the morning. When I think of that I thank heaven for my little brood of two—and also for zippers.

(Somebody said permanent waves were one of the latest and greatest benefits to womankind;—I say zippers are tops for convenience).

Teachers score again, too. One of them very modestly disclosed to me that in her suburban school about half of the children were obliged to bring their lunch and she had struck on the happy arrangement of heating water in the bottom of large roasting pans over 2 gas plates to heat the sealable pint jars of soup or cocoa that her charges now bring in their lunch kits—all because she thought of it. (Indeed some school recreation rooms have anner heaters the surfaces of which are even better for the purpose.)

Mind you I know that probably half the parents of these children can afford thermos jars for them but the other half cannot and they had to eat cold sandwiches and at best a cookie and apple and milk sometimes.

And this teacher—Bless Her Forever—decided that they could have one thing hot for lunch. She even confided to me that if their parents had been too lazy to make cocoa or soup she was ready to do it on her own responsibility and charge the school board with the cost—but happily everyone rallied to her and now they flock to school by the dozens each one hugging a pint jar full of some heatable, nourishing liquid or semi-liquid food—besides the sandwiches and fruit in their kits.

About one-half hour before lunch time she collects (or has monitors collect) all the jars and stands them in her water filled pans and gently heats them through. The children have all been instructed to provide themselves with a ½-pint granite cup—these serve for drinking either soup or cocoa.

While teachers do not have time to read cookery pages mothers do and the reason that Parent-Teacher Associations exist is for the very purpose of communicating ideas such as this to one another. Mother, you are a taxpayer—so express your wishes if your child is a lunch carrier.

Large offices and factory lunch rooms would do well to copy this simple idea too.

Graham, whole wheat, rye, soy bean, Boston Brown or nut breads should be used in place of White for sandwiches, for it is nourishing food with a capital "N.F." that we are trying to provide in this carried lunch—which is a poor substitute at its best.

Fillings for Types of Breads

For Whole Wheat Bread—Hard cooked eggs forced through sieve and moistened with tomato juice.

For Rye Bread—Cream cheese creamed and mixed with chopped blanched almonds or other nuts.

For Soy Bean Bread—Equal quantities of shrimps (or other canned fish) and raw cabbage put through mincer together and moistened and flavored with mayonnaise and salt.

Boston Brown — Steamed and mashed dates and ground peanuts, moistened with a little lemon juice.

For Nut Bread—Equal quantities of peanut butter and crystallized honey.

As a general rule for canned lunches bread should be cut thin, the crusts left on—and always buttered on both sides with softened butter. Butter is one of our most nourishing foods—each member of every family should have one pound per week.

We have not mentioned meat because it is the universal sandwich filling and deserves a lot of neglect—there are so many more foods that are so much better for our precious little ones.

Fruit in Lunch Box

Fruit both fresh and stewed and dried should have a permanent place each day.

Bananas (ripe and wrapped to avoid bruising), oranges and apples are bound to go in because they are convenient. Every day a twisted wax paper parcel can be made of nuts or dried fruits such as dates, raisins, figs or apricots.

When you are doing your weekly baking make cookies or small cakes that require fruits and nuts and plenty of butter. I overheard a very good cook telling another that a certain chocolate cake recipe was good because it only called for ¼ cup butter. Actually such cakes are not good—we should think in terms of whether it calls for much butter, much cream, many eggs, much fruit and nuts—for only the good things you put into your cakes and cookies are the ingredients that give health and strength to your family.

Fig bars—hermits chock full of nuts and raisins, ice box cookies calling for much butter and many nuts, oatmeal double decker cookies filled as full as possible with dates—those are samples of what you should provide for your lunch kits.

As for packing—need we even mention that all our efforts may be nullified if the wrappings are not of the neatest. Heavy waxed paper, thick paper or even linen table napkins—lily cups—even paper spoons—all these make for daintiness and attractiveness. If the lunch is packed compactly it will prevent shifting and the box will present a pleasing appearance when opened. Surprises in the form of ripe olives, or a few choice nuts or fresh grapes help keep up interest from day to day.

Tested Favorite Recipe

By MARY MOORE.

There is something about Thursday afternoon and an empty kitchen that makes me want to venture and invent something new to eat. Last week it was an apple pudding with a new twist.

I had exactly 5 Spy apples left in the bottom of the bushel basket. I had 3 egg whites in the ice box. Somehow I wanted to combine them into a dessert that I would be proud to say I created. It turned out to be

Emem's Toasted Apple Pudding

Wash and quarter 5 medium-sized apple (Spys are preferable), and pour on 1 cup water and boil all until tender in glass or granite dish; force through strainer to remove skin and core. Beat whites of 3 eggs with 6 tablespoons sugar until stiff, then fold into the warm apple sauce. Pour this into shallow enamel or glass-buttered baking dish. Beat 1 egg a little and to it add 2 tablespoons water. In this soak 6 quarter slices of white bread (with crusts left on), until they soak up all the egg evenly. Lay these at even intervals over the apple mixture—in two rows, three to a row,—and sprinkle top with 1/3 cup of brown sugar in which is mixed ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Dot each quarter slice of bread with 1 teaspoon butter. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about ¾ hour. Serve with cream. This could also be served with lemon sauce.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN MARY SCHOOL.

Officers for the coming year of the Queen Mary Home and School Association, elected at the annual meeting, will be as follows: Mrs. W. R. Morris and M. N. Clark, honorary presidents; Mrs. E. R. Shirley, president; Miss E. Deyell, first vice-president; Mrs. W. G. Scott, second vice-president; Mrs. H. R. Sills, secretary; Mrs. D. A. Loucks, treasurer; Mrs. C. H. Crowe, convenor Program committee; Mrs. J. E. Middleton, convenor Reception committee; Mrs. P. Hoper, pianiste; Mrs. E. G. R. Clarke and Mrs. J. Heffernan, Telephone committee; Mrs. C. H. Crowe, Relief committee convenor; Mrs. H. R. Sills, Visiting committee convenor; Mrs. T. J. Carley, League of Nations committee convenor; Mrs. W. G. Scott and Mrs. R. F. Hinton, representatives of Home and School Council; Mrs. Hughes, Recreation committee convenor; Mrs. G. J. Fallen, Refreshment committee convenor.

Mrs. E. R. Shirley presided at the meeting, at which eighty-five ladies were present. Annual reports were presented, and Mrs. T. J. Carley gave an interesting review of the life of Miss Marty, who worked in furtherance of the Home and School movement.

Mrs. G. A. Spicer presided for the election of officers and also read the installation service. The report of the Nominating committee was presented by Mrs. J. E. Middleton.

The rooms taught by Mrs. F. Craig and Miss Irene Madill were co-winners for the attendance banner at the meeting. Miss Madill's room will be presented with a book for receiving the banner the largest number of times.

The meeting was featured by two vocal solos by Mrs. Ross Williamson, and tea was served at the close of the business session, Mrs. O. M. Steer and Mrs. J. E. Middleton presided at a table centered by a birthday cake topped by twenty-one candles, significant of the coming-of-age this year of the Home and School Association movement. The cake was surrounded by blooms of pink snapdragon on fern leaves, while four silver vases held bouquets of the same flowers.

Mrs. E. Sherwin of Hastings has returned home after spending a few days with her father, Mr. James Hicks, Inkerman street.

Mrs. Cora Emlaw is undergoing an operation on her eye in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

Mrs. Charles Calver is confined to her home through illness.

HE COULDN'T COME

Chums Tell Drowning Lad's Grandmother He Couldn't Come Home—Neighbor Makes It Possible.

MILFORD, Conn., Feb. 4 (CP).—Six-year-old Jackie McKendrick didn't come home with them, his playmates told grandmother Helen McKendrick, because "he's in the pond."

"Well, you tell him to come right home, his supper's ready," said the grandmother, thinking Jackie was just playing at the pond.

"But he can't," said Jackie's pal, "he's drowning."

He was doing just that when a neighbor, Edward Millar, rescued the lad at dusk last night.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question.—Please send me the recipes for Orange Bread (made by cooking a syrup a half hour) and little cup cakes that were iced with a frosting made with the juice of maraschino cherries. I think they were given on the cookery page of October 10 or 17. I tried them and they were so delicious but unfortunately the page was destroyed. Thanking you.—F.M.P.

Answer.—Thank you for the letter. We are glad you found the recipes so pleasing.

Pineapple Cup Cakes

(From "A Newfoundlander")

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup white sugar, 2 eggs, ¾ cup milk, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 slices canned pineapples, 1/3 teaspoon salt, teaspoon each mace, nutmeg and vanilla, ½ cup broken walnuts. Cream the shortening and add the sugar gradually then beaten eggs, then milk alternately with the flour, baking powder and salt and spices, sifted together. Add vanilla, beat well, then add nuts and pineapple which has been diced. Bake in small paper cups at 375 deg. Fahr.

Frosting for Pineapple Cup Cakes

Mix the juice from 1 small bottle of Maraschino cherries with sifted icing sugar, and add 2 tablespoons butter. Use enough icing sugar to make of stiff beating consistency and beat for at least 5 minutes, to make it fluffy. Spread on little cakes tops and sides, and sprinkle top with chopped marachino cherries.

Orange Bread

One cup water, ¾ cup orange rind, 1 cup white sugar, ½ tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons baking powder, 1 egg, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 cup sweet milk, 3½ cups sifted flour.

Cut or grate rind finely until you have ¾ cup (oranges leftover from grating rind can be used for breakfast orange juice), and add the sugar and water to the rind and boil gently for ½ hour and cool. Mix egg well with the butter, and sift in the flour and baking powder and salt alternately with the milk and syrup mixture. Let stand for 20 minutes, then bake at 375 deg. Fahr. This is best when sprinkled with powdered sugar,—to be preferred in place of frosting.

We hope we can help you in the future.

Question.—I have only been married a few months, but have found your page very useful, but now am going to ask for your help.

My husband asked me to cook Pigs' Feet, but could not find a recipe, so I boiled them in water with a little onion. They were eatable, but oh! so sticky. I would appreciate very much, if you could help me, without causing too much trouble. Wishing you the best of luck.—Mrs. G. W.

Answer.—Thank you for your letter. Oh, yes; pigs' feet require additional preparation after they are boiled. I think from the following two or three methods you will find one that suits both you and your husband.

Pigs' Feet With Sauerkraut

Four pigs' feet (with uppers or shank if the family is large), 1 1/3 tablespoons salt, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon milk, bread crumbs, fat for frying, 1 pint sauerkraut. Scrape and wash the feet well. Cover with boiling water and add the salt. Cover the pan and let simmer until meat is tender. Cool in the water in which cooked. When cold, drain, dip the feet in slightly beaten egg to which 1 tablespoon milk has been added. Roll in very fine crumbs and sauté in butter or fat for 2 minutes, turning. Arrange in deep baking dish with sauerkraut on top. Bake slowly 1 hour.

Pickled Pigs' Feet

Four pigs' feet with uppers, 1 quart vinegar, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 4 bay leaves, 1 stick cinnamon, ¼ cup salt, 2 teaspoons pepper, 1 small onion. Scrub the feet thoroughly, and cover with boiling water. Let simmer until the meat begins to fall from the bones. Place the pigs' feet in an earthenware or granite container. Combine the vinegar, cloves, bay leaves, cinnamon, salt, pepper and sliced onion and let simmer for about 1 hour. Add to this either 1 pint or 1 quart of the liquid in which the pigs' feet were cooked (previously chilled and skimmed free of fat). Strain to remove the spices and pour over the pigs' feet. Set away in a cool place for 2 days before using. These will keep well at low temperature.

Broiled Pigs' Feet

Wipe feet, which should be split, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and broil over hot flame 8 minutes, turning twice. Serve with Maitre d'-Hotel Butter made by working ¼ cup butter until creamy, then adding ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ tablespoon finely chopped parsley, and ¾ tablespoon lemon juice very slowly. One tablespoon each red and green pepper may be added if on hand.

Fried Pigs' Feet

Wipe split pigs' feet and sprinkle with salt and pepper, dip in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg and crumbs again, and fry in deep fat at 395 deg. Fahr. until golden then drain.

We hope you find these suitable and that we may help you again.

REPORT ON TAXES HOLDS LIMELIGHT IN SASKATCHEWAN

Discussion Extensive As Legislature Prepares To Open February 11

FIELD IS REVIEWED

REGINA, Feb. 3—(CP).—The third session of the eighth legislature of Saskatchewan will open here February 11 with possibility of introduction of legislation based on the Jacoby taxation inquiry which issued its report last month.

Premier Patterson, Saskatchewan-born head of the government, will lead his house membership of 50 Liberals. The opposition is composed of five Co-operative Commonwealth Federation members led by George Williams, M.L.A. for Wadena.

Bills expected to come before the session include one to exempt improvements under municipal housing schemes and debt adjustment.

The Jacoby commission report, which included suggestions for $5,000,000 in new taxes, is holding the centre of discussion in the province. Criticism from a score of sources have been made of the report and a government statement said it was not necessarily the basis or indication of legislation.

Suggests Sales Tax.

Headed by Neil Jacoby, formerly of Dundurn, Sask., and now of Chicago, the commission suggested a two per cent sales tax and stiffening of the income tax on earnings over $300 for single persons and $600 for married persons. Numerous taxation changes were proposed. Changes in the income tax were not expected.

At Saskatoon, Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, former premier, declared the commission efforts a waste of public funds. Before the province could reach a "pay as you go" stage, he said the public debt must be refunded at lower interest rates and that the federal government should cancel borrowings for relief purposes totalling $53,000,000. No commission was necessary to show how new taxes could be raised, he declared.

Opposition to the suggested sales tax came from W. L. McQuarrie, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association, John Evans, a former Progressive member of parliament for Saskatoon and Rosetown, said "the futility of increasing the cost of living ought to be apparent." The sales and income taxes, he said, put the burden on people least able to pay.

Aldermen in towns and cities of the province discussed the tax proposals extensively. Mayor Ellison of Regina said the taxation proposals would cause great hardships for the cities. Relief recipients, Mayor Ellison contended, could not afford to pay the sales tax.

The government issued a statement after the report had been made public reviewing the whole situation. The commission, appointed to review the whole problem of taxation, had made its recommendations and the government statement pointed out that "any suggestions having to do with taxation are not very popular." If requests for increased expenditures by the government were to be met, then the only way to obtain the money was by taxation, it pointed out.

NORWEGIAN SHIPS NEVER SEE NORWAY

Paradox Explained By Chief Officer—Hardly Job For Married Man

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Feb 4—(CP) The man without a country is something like Norwegian ships. Many of them never see Norway.

The paradox was explained by Harald Norman, chief officer of the Norwegian freighter Atna, in from Galveston with a cargo of sulphur.

"Built and outfitted in England or Scotland for a Norwegian shipowner, a ship will be registered as a Norwegian freighter, say in Oslo or Bergen," said Norman. "Her complement will be made up entirely of Norwegian seamen, from captain to cabin boy.

"She may then be chartered by her owner to a firm in a distant land to ply between foreign ports for a stated length of time which may vary from a single trip to a charter of several years' duration."

The Atna recently completely a two years' charter to a United States company for carrying freight between New Orleans and South American ports.

"No sooner is a ship's chartered period finished for one company than her owner has chartered her to some other company or line," continued the chief officer. "Or the charter may be continued. So the Norwegian vessel may never see Norway from the time she slips down the ways to the time when she is scrapped for junk."

Two and a half years had passed since his last visit home, remarked Norman. Before that he was away four years.

"Hardly a profession for a married man," he admitted. As for matrimony in his own case, "Better the North Atlantic in mid-winter," he muttered.

COTTESLOE

Miss Annie Elliott, Peterborough, spent the week-end at her home here.

Dr. Munroe, Warsaw, took charge of the Bible Class here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Freeburn visited on Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher.

Miss Marguerite Webster, McGill's, spent the week-end at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Forsyth are spending a few days at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D. Forsyth, Springville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Barr visited on Sunday at the home of Mrs. A. Kelly.

Mr. and Mrs. Marmion Clements and family spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson, Sixth Line.

Mr. George Barr made a trip to St. Catharines with a load of posts, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. McDonald spent the week-end with the former's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Stirling. Mrs. Johnson, who has been ill for some time, is slowly recovering.

The frost of the last few days has frozen the water in the swamps and the snow of Sunday has made it possible for the farmers to work in the woods and draw home their year's fuel.

The Young People held their regular meeting in the church on Monday evening with sixteen members present. In the absence of the president, Irwin Forsythe took charge of the meeting. The topic "Companionships from other Homes" was taken by Mr. MacDonald. Irwin Forsyth gave a reading.

Friends here were very pleased to see the picture of Miss June Nesbitt in a Toronto paper, who is the first Toronto Girl Guide to be awarded the Airwoman's Badge. She won her badge after passing examinations for ability to give aid to aeroplane pilots by setting out flares indicating landing fields and other moves helpful to aviators lost, or forced down. June is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Nesbitt of Toronto and a niece of Mr. J. S. Kidd here.

BETHANY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Miss Meta Thorn of Lindsay spent the week-end at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryxley Pratt and son Bobby of Peterborough visited with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Elliott, on Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Elliott visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson, in Lakefield, a couple of days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Forsythe and daughter Joyce of Omemee spent the week-end with Mrs. Forsythe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bell of Omemee spent the week-end with Mrs. Bell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyle.

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson of Young's Point visited with friends and relations in the village on Thursday evening.

The local skating rink is now in full swing and is well lighted by the kindness of Carmen Whitmore, who recently installed a Delco Lighting Plant, and very kindly is supplying the lights for the skating rink. The hockey team is anticipating some snappy hockey games in the very near future.

Mr. Orville Miller of Apsley spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Miller.

Miss Margaret Tucker of Apsley was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Miller over the week-end.

Lives To Be 104 Years Old

OSWEGO, N.Y. — George Bernhardt, Oswego's oldest resident, attributed his 104 years today to his moderate use of tobacco and liquor. He came to Oswego from Iroquois, Ont., and up to the time of his 94th birthday, he said, he worked every day.

208 TRANSIENTS GIVEN LODGINGS DURING JANUARY

Thirty More Than For The Same Period Last Year Put Up In City

RANGE FROM 17 TO 69

Good times are returning but the movement of transients through the city is diminishing but slowly. Since January 1 this year, 208 transients have sought shelter in the police cells, 30 more than in the same period last year, police report.

Prosperity has not yet extended to the pockets of the knights of the road but the closing of the Red Cross Hostel here last Fall will account partially for the increase. The Hostel was closed to discourage homeless visitors from including Peterborough on their itineraries and many of those who have come have had to resort to police hospitality.

The transients accommodated in January ranged in years from 17 to 69. The peak year in the transient movement, according to police records, was 1935 when 2,149 were booked. In 1936, the total was 1,436.

LABOR SUPPORTS RAW MILK VENDOR

Trades And Labor Council Lines Up Behind Raw Milk Producers

The Trades and Labor Council Wednesday night lined up in support of the Raw Milk Producers' Association on the question of compulsory pasteurization of all milk sold in the city. The Labor men expressed their approval of the attitude of Alderman Hamilton, Gordon and McIntyre, and also criticized the city council for having the proposed bylaw drawn in compliance with a recommendation of the Board of Health. It was announced that Mrs. McBride, 423 London Street, was the winner of a draw held recently by the Trades and Labor council.

SKATES WERE "HOT."

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—(CP).—Despite the cool sport, Raymond Albert's skates were "hot" on Lily Lake. He had bought them from Arthur Frosell, and Arthur Bass recognized them as his, stolen before Christmas. Frosell was found guilty of theft.

ST. JOHN'S A.Y.P.A. PRESENTED PLAY MINSTREL REVUE

Show Is Gay Affair With Nearly Thirty Young Folk Taking Part

ONE-ACT DRAMALET

With a minstrel Revue and a one-act play on the bill, several hundreds of people were entertained vastly in a packed hall at St. John's on Wednesday night, in a program presented under auspices of the A.Y.P.A. of the church.

The Revue came first, a gay affair with nearly thirty young folks in evening dress sitting around at tables arranged in night-club fashion, with innocuous bottles of Canada Dry on the tables and plenty of amusement in a sparkling floor show for which Lorne Galley was the impressive and capable young announcer and George Nicholls directed in a manner that sent it over with a bang. Jack Marshall at the piano provided his own fine brand of accompaniments for a varied goulash of song and dance, interlarded profusely by quips and cracks that brought plenty of applause.

Applause was general, and every number brought an encore. The end men, in blackface, got a big hand, with major applause for the two funny songs of the evening: "Me and Marie", sung by Bus Hutchinson in a manner that made it the hit of the evening, and "I Like Bananas" (because they have no bones), done by Roy Pitchford to repeated applause.

The two remaining end men were equally good. Len Phillips sang "You Can't Pull the Wool Over My Eyes", with some extra fancy steps for the chorus, and Griffin Young did the popular "Darktown Strutters' Ball" number.

The choice of vocal selections was excellent. "So Tired" was a pretty song by Miss Rose Puddick, whose sweet voice and glittering ear-rings held the fascinated attention of her audience. Victor Coleman's silvery tenor was heard to advantage in a love song: "Trust in Me"; Alf Marshall was splendid in his selection, "Just the Way you Look Tonight"; Mrs. Jas. Morley had a lyrical gem in "The Chapel in the Moonlight", and Lorne Galey put over some good imitations of Bing Crosby in his 'blues' singing.

Something Different

Two interludes in the singing that were especially good and greatly appreciated by the listeners, were Walter Orde's smooth step dancing, and Robert McKinlay's clever imitations that included such well-known noises as a lost kitten, a dog fight and a 'lady's opera voice'.

The finale by the company, singing snatches of popular compositions under softened lights on the prettily arranged stage, put a period to a snappy and well-directed Revue that quite justified the appreciation it received from a pleased audience.

Included in the well-dressed chorus were the Misses V. Britnell, V. Clark, D. Davis, H. Douglas, C. Ellis, A. Heap, W. Lord, F. Lemmings, R. Jackson, H. Phillips, N. Pammett, A. Pruner, A. Sisson, D. Williams, I. Williams; Messrs. T. Bedford, A. Chivas, J. Gore, K. Hordle, E. Kempster, I. Luther, A. Pritchard, S. Stephens.

The intermission which followed, before the presentation of the one-act play, brought a whirlwind of applause for the vivacious, swinging stringed music of Ab Vinette and his Rural Rascals. They play with zest and tuneful rhythm, the popular music of the day, with familiar tunes set to their own jocose words and plenty of the 'oo-lee-ay-ee' that is so much liked. And there was much applause also for the gay, rippling music of a piano duet played by Irwin Luther and Albert Stephan.

The one-act dramalet (to coin a word) which formed the dessert, so to speak, of the evening's entertainment menu, departed pleasingly from the usual run of romantic or humorous one-act presentations. It had romance, it is true. In fact, the lover of the piece was strongly suspected of being the villain, almost up to the last minute, and most of the watchers possibly went home quite sure in their own minds, even after his vindication and the uncovering of the real murderer, that he had something or other to do with severing Mrs. Andrews' hand at the wrist and making off with her jewels. That is the sort of a play it was, bringing in some bloody details during the first few minutes and keeping the suspense sustained beautifully right up to the proper moment, when everything smoothed itself out and the murderer was on his way to an unpleasant destination, in company with a blithe young man who lived up to the habitual role of the stage detective by giving the 'eye' to the trim lines of the parlor maid.

It was an interesting one-act mystery drama that was well staged under direction of Miss Florence Hutchinson.

The cast was beautifully dressed, in keeping with the 'house dance' setting intended by the author, and the impression of mystery and dramatic interest was well sustained. Its only drawbacks were a dialogue pitched too low for the middle of the hall, and a draggy tempo that made for some awkward pauses.

The cast of "The Jewelled Hand" included the following: Miss Viola Clark as the suave, poised heroine, Anne Andrews; Miss Rose Puddick as the pretty friend of the house, Claire Collins; Miss Helen Dawson as the smart, well-dressed, Alice Ambrose, aunt of Miss Andrews; Miss Norma Pammett as the trig maid, Molly; Arthur Kidd as the misunderstood lover, Blair Burns, with the finger of suspicion pointing him out in error as the murderous thief; Victor Coleman as Ware Waring, the somewhat terrifying but quiet villain of the piece, haunted by the 'other man inside him'; and Kenneth Horde, as Kelly, the detective with the slangy mode of speech.

During the evening, Miss Bernice Flynn, who acts as accompanist for these amateur programs, was presented with a blanket.

Next Tuesday night, another amateur program will be presented under patronage of Mayor G. A. Macdonald.

$500 WAS CLEARED FROM CARNIVAL

Discuss Possibility Of Staging Skiing Show Later In Season

The lack of snow may have played havoc with the big snow carnival week-end which had been planned by the Peterborough Winter Sports Committee but at least committee members were able to celebrate a handsome financial success when they received reports on the skating carnival at a meeting yesterday. Over $500 was cleared from the skating show after all expenses had been paid.

The possibility of staging the full snow carnival on a later date this winter was discussed and the offer of the Toronto Skiing Club made through Sam Cliff to lend support to a meet on March 27 was considered. Members were dubious of the advisability of such a late date and agreed that no further attempt at a carnival should be made this year unless reasonable chances for a complete success should be present. The committee will, however, contact Mr. Cliff in an effort to obtain some earlier date for a meet.

The Toronto Skating Club was commended for its co-operation last Friday evening and members voted to demonstrate appreciation with some suitable gift. The gift of an oil painting of some Peterborough scene was discussed. It was decided to invite the Club to visit the city again next winter

EVEN THE MOON PEEKED.

Roving along Charlotte street at the deserted hour of 3.30 o'clock this morning, the moon in its last quarter peered into the window of the House Furnishing Company at Kirma's girl subject in hypnotic sleep. The midnight yokels who had pressed their noses against the pane around midnight were gone and only the police passing on their beat and the moving moon kept vigil. The girl will be awakened to-night on the stage of the Capitol Theatre, and her returning animation before a crowd's gaze suggests by contrast the title of a recently published parody, "Wake Up Alone and Like It."

GRAND JURY VISITS ACCIDENT SCENES, NO ACTION TAKEN

Finds Recommendations Of Coroner's Juries Not Carried Out In City

SUGGESTS MORE LIGHTS

In a presentment they made to Mr. Justice Hogg at the assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario here on Wednesday afternoon, the grand jury commented on the three m. slaughter cases that had comprised the criminal docket and urged that certain recommendations made by the coroner's juries, be put into effect.

Commending the jury for their thorough consideration of the three indictments presented for their investigation and dismissing them from further service at the sittings, His Lordship told the foreman William L. Ferguson:

"I shall ask that these recommendations be conveyed to the proper quarter in order that some action may be taken."

The report which the grand jury presented to the court was as follows:

"May it please your Lordship we the Grand Jury, beg to submit herewith our report at the sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario held at the Court House, Peterborough on Tuesday, February 2, 1937.

"As instructed by Your Lordship we did not visit the various institutions in the city and county, as we believe they have been inspected by a previous grand jury a short time ago.

In the three manslaughter cases, which were brought before us, we wish to make the following comments regarding same:—

"1—The King vs. Harrington

"We found 'no Bill' in this case. However, the Grand Jury are of the same opinion as that of the coroner's jury, that sidewalks should be provided on the main thoroughfares out of the cities and towns of this province, at a reasonable distance.

"2—The King vs. Cockerill

"We found 'No Bill' in this case. The Grand Jury visited the scene of this accident and found that a recommendation made by the coroner's jury, that is, that stop signs be erected at the intersection of George street and Barnardo avenue, has not, as yet been complied with by the city. We also feel that in view of the heavy traffic on the street to and from Nicholls Hospital, that this is a matter that should be attended to without further delay. We feel that better street lighting should be provided on George street between Park Hill road and Argyle street.

"3—The King vs. Allen

"We found a 'True Bill' in this case. We would recommend that better lighting on Hunter street bridge be provided.

Canada Packers Lose To Maple Leafs, 5-3

Maple Leafs took a 5-3 win over Canada Packers in a Southend Hockey League game last night at the Sacred Heart rink. Prete notched three for the winners with Sheals and Heath getting the others. NEW OIL WELL TURNER VALLEY MASS PRODUCER

Biggest Oil Well In Empire Flowing At Rate 2,190 Barrels a Day

GIVEN SIX-HOUR TEST

(By SIDNEY NORMAN)

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—Reports from the Turner Valley field, Alberta, Wednesday, confirmed over the long-distance telephone by R. A. Brown, who brought in the first crude producer in the valley last June, indicate that by far the largest crude producing well in the British Empire was brought in Wednesday morning.

According to this informant, a six-hour test showed a yield of 2,112 barrels daily, with the last hour's flow gauged at the rate of 2,190 barrels a day. While there is certainty of flush production being in excess of settled flow, there is no reason to doubt that one of the most important economic events in the history of Alberta, or of the West for that matter, has occurred.

The well lies on the west flank of Turner Valley, in the southern section, a little less than half a mile south of Turner Valley Royalties well, and about a mile directly north of Foundation well, which is also in production, but currently engaged in reaming out a bailer lost just before production was reached.

The well is owned by B. & B. Royalties, another concern of which R. A. Brown and his son, R. A. Brown, Junior, are the guiding spirits, and in which J. W. Moyer, of the estate of G. W. Bell, are interested.

Royalties are held as follows: Alberta Pacific, 8 per cent.; Calmont Oils, 10 per cent.; Commonwealth Oils, 5 per cent.; McDougall-Segur Exploration Co., 5 per cent.; United Oils, 5 per cent., and Vulcan Oils, 5 per cent.

B. & B. entered the Madison lime the producing stratum, at depth of 6,195 feet, compared with a depth of 6,396 for the original crude well, Turner Valley Royalties. The lime in both cases showed a thickness of about 432 feet.

A pipeline is already laid past B. & B. well and has doubtless already linked up with the new production, which goes through the Imperial line to refinery at Calgary.

Nearing Completion.

The same interests controlling Turner Valley Royalties and B. & B. producers also control Newfold and Westside wells, the latter of which has almost reached the lime and at 6,065 feet should be the next completed, while Newfold was at 5,808 yesterday, drilling ahead.

As one of the first results of the success of B. & B., British Dominion Oil and Development Corporation announced that it would immediately start an offset well to the east of the new producer.

In a telegram dated January 25 from Calgary it was pointed out that 23 wells were expected to be in production within 90 days and a total of 76 new wells were expected to start drilling before spring, or were already under way.

There is little doubt that the recent successes will result in far more wells being drilled in many directions and as each well drilled to the Madison lime costs in the neighborhood of from $125,000 to $140,000, the effect of the movement upon the economic condition of Alberta may be understood.

DAMAGE CLAIM IS ABANDONED

Court Informed $5,000 Damage Action Settled Overnight

OTHER ACTION SET OVER

A jury action which opened in Supreme Court here before Mr. Justice Hogg on Wednesday afternoon was settled overnight, when Miss Kay Cooney abandoned her claim of $5,000 damages for injuries she was alleged to have received when she slipped and fell on the floor in the local store of The Robert Simpson Company, located at 392 George street, on February 15, 1936.

Representing the plaintiff, Miss Cooney, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., told the court that with consent of the defendant company the claim had been abandoned. He asked His Lordship that the action be withdrawn without costs, and the court record was endorsed accordingly.

T. N. Phelan, K.C., of Phelan and Richardson, Toronto, was counsel for the defence.

The remaining suit arising from a collision between an automobile and a train at George and Romaine street last February, in which Mrs. William Muskratte and three other occupants of the car claimed a total of $15,000 damages against the Canadian National Railway Company, was set over to a future sittings.

A. D. McDonald of Laidlaw and Company, as counsel for the defendant company, in requesting His Lordship, that the case be put over to another sittings, said he had not had an opportunity of making his examination for discovery. He had consulted with W. J. A. Fair, counsel for the plaintiffs and had received his consent to having the hearing of the action deferred. Mr. McDonald undertook to pay $25 costs, and the case was set over.

The following jury was empanelled for trial of the Cooney vs. Robert Simpson Company action: Messrs. Norman Lemay, Smith; Clarence Watts, Dummer; Walter Henry, Peterborough; Vincent Hayes, Otonabee; James Hefferman, Otonabee; Edgar Buck, Asphodel; Bert Hamilton, Peterborough; David J. Hall, Peterborough; R. J. Girven, Asphodel; Arthur Hancock, Smith; George Kingdon and Stewart Mitchell, Peterborough.

In her examination in chief, which was as far as hearing of the case proceeded, Miss Cooney stated in evidence, that on February 15 last, she went into the store of the defendant company on George street to exchange certain goods she had purchased. As she was leaving the store, witness said she fell heavily to the floor. She complained there was water on the floor and also a piece of snow that appeared to have fallen off the heel of a man's shoe. She further declared the linoleum had been shellacked and waxed, and that it was very slippery.

Witness testified she was off duty from her employment as cashier at Buehler Brothers for a day immediately after the accident. Ten days later she was away from work for ten days, and subsequently remained in bed from about the second week of May until the middle of August.

Peterboro' Tests Are Not Overlooked

Assurance has been received from the Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of the Federal Department of Agriculture, that Peterborough County is not being overlooked in the matter of tuberculin testing of cattle.

Since Peterborough County was declared within the restricted area for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis cattle breeders of the district recently made representations to J. J. Duffus, M.P., regarding the possibility of getting the cattle testing started immediately.

Mr. Duffus took up the matter with the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa and has forwarded to A. D. Rumions, provincial agricultural representative here, copy of the Minister's letter, as follows:

"I have your letter of January 23, with reference to tuberculin testing of cattle in Peterborough County, which is an established area.

"I assure you Peterborough County is not being overlooked, but the department at present finds itself in the position that, having so much re-test work to undertake, it is unable to proceed with new areas until some of the re-test work can be completed."

St. Peter's Get Win Over King Edward

St. Peter's had little trouble knocking off King Edward, 8-2, in a Southend Hockey League tussle last evening at the Sacred Heart rink. Playing a speedy, passing game and getting fine checking and net-guarding, the Saints' looked better from start to finish. The losers battled hard but failed to click up to form. Mackness and Jobe got their goals, while for St. Peter's, Hoy had three, Thornton two, and Lynch, Curtin and Corkery one apiece. The teams:

King Edward: Goal, K. Grose; defence, Ridley, Grose; centre, Mackness; wings, Jobe, Anderson; alternates, Campbell, Post.

St. Peter's: Goal, Shaughnessy; defence, Murphy, Curtin; centre, Hoy; wings, Thornton, Corkery; alternate, Lynch.

Referee, J. Connelly.

Smaller Increase In Milk Price Likely

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—The Board of Control may consent to an increase in milk prices, but not as great as that proposed by milk-producers serving Toronto, it was reported yesterday following a private conference between the Controllers and the Milk Control Board.

The producers have asked the Milk Board to approve an increase of 30 cents per hundredweight in prices paid producers, which would mean an increase of one cent a quart in retail prices in the city, and a proportionate increase in the cost of milk provided to relief recipients.

HUNTING WITNESS 30-YEAR-OLD CASE

Man Acquitted Of Romeo Murder Wanted At Esposito's Trial

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 4 (A.P.). — Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti said last night his investigators are seeking Dominic Calo as a State's witness in the trial of Rocco Esposito for the 30-year-old murder of his cousin, Francesco Romeo, in Newcastle, Pa.

Margiotti said he had been told Calo, who was tried and acquitted of Romeo's murder in 1906, is still alive. He said:

"We're trying to locate him for the District Attorney. Of course, we could not tell him to come back to testify if he did not want to."

Mild-mannered Esposito, 56, will go on trial for the murder next month. He was returned a month ago from Kirkland Lake, Ont., where Frank Costa, a State Department of Justice agent, found him employed as a police officer for a mining company.

Married and the father of four children, Esposito had been living in the district for 25 years. He told the Attorney-General:

"So long ago, so long ago, and I never was a bad man. I have done right ever since."

VICAR AND VERGER MIX-UP HAS SEQUEL IN THE COURT

Charge of Assault Against Cleric Is Dismissed at Folkestone

RUDENESS DEFENCE

Folkestone.—A scene in a church vestry was described at Elham petty sessions held at Seabrook, near Folkestone, when a summons against the Vicar of Elham, Rev. Robert Henry Isaac Williams, for assaulting a former verger of the church, Arthur Cuthbert Gilbert, of Newington Butts, London, S.E., was dismissed by the magistrates.

The complainant, who was verger at St. Mary's church, Elham, for 13 months, said that he was in the vestry with the vicar and Mrs. Williams, and the sexton, Miss Byran. He was under a month's notice at the time.

The sexton asked him to get a duster, but apparently he could not get it quickly enough for her. He said: "Don't get excited," in an ordinary voice. Whereupon the vicar ordered him out of the vestry. He thought the remark was harmless and trivial and did not warrant such action.

At the time, added the witness, he was "smouldering with resentment," as he had been told that the vicar had been spying on him. The vicar put his hands on his shoulders and pushed him, calling to some men outside to put him out. They took no notice. The vicar started pushing him again. As he was going back he tripped over some steps. As he fell the vicar struck him on the face with his open hand.

"This caused me to fall outside the vestry," continued the witness. "I came back immediately with the intention of striking him but I thought better of it."

The sexton pacified him and he went on with his work, but a little later the vicar ordered him out. He went away and had not been to the church since.

The vicar in evidence said that he had been vicar of Elham for 23 months. He was in the vestry when he heard Miss Byran ask complainant for a duster. He replied in a loud voice: "All right, all right, don't get excited." He told complainant to get out of the vestry. When he did not do so he told him he would push him out.

Complainant fell over some steps outside the church.

"He got up and I thought he had a handful of gravel so I ducked and then flicked him on the cheek. That is all."

Miss Ruth Byran said that the vicar pushed Gilbert out, but she did not think he used any unnecessary violence.

TO OFFER 'FREEDOM' TO SIR JOSIAH STAMP

Blackpool Will Honor British Railway Magnate

Blackpool.—The Blackpool town council is to offer the freedom of the borough to Sir Josiah Stamp, president of London, Midland and Scottish Railway. Sir Josiah is well-known in Canada and was chairman of the grain futures inquiry of 1931.

In the early stages of his career he was on inspector of taxes in Blackpool. Since then he has frequently visited the town in connection with railway matters and was there last September at the annual meeting of the British association over which he presided.

ANIMALS' DEFENDER WON'T DEFEND SELF

Allegedly Assaulted Circus Man, Refuses to Sign "Peace" Recognizances

London.—"If I am not permitted to defend dumb animals, I certainly shall not defend myself," remarked Edmond Tillotson MacMichael, 50, honorary director of the Performing and Captive Animals' Defence league, who was convicted by Paul Bennett, West London magistrate, of assaulting Cyril Bertram Mills, son of the circus proprietor.

The magistrate ordered him to be bound over in £5 ($25) to keep the peace for a year, and to pay six guineas ($31.50) costs, but MacMichael refused to enter into recognizances. "No one has the right to stop me protecting God's animals," he said.

Later in the day MacMichael was again brought before the magistrate, and as he persisted in his refusal to sign his recognizances, he was sentenced to one day's imprisonment, which meant his release at the rising of the court.

WIFE OF HAIRDRESSER IS DROWNED IN POND

"Used to Hear Her Singing All Day," Neighbor Says

London. — In a duck-pond in Battersea park was found the body of Mrs. Hilda Nellie Atkinson, of Albert Bridge Rd.

Mrs. Atkinson lived with her husband, a court hairdresser, and small son, in a flat.

"We used to hear her singing in the flat all day," said a neighbor to a reporter. "She always seemed to be of a cheerful disposition."

Mrs. Atkinson's body was found following the discovery of some clothing by the pond.

MARRIAGE TO NIECE 'ABSOLUTE NULLITY'

'Shocking Thing,' Says Chancellor at Consistory Court in Carlisle Cathedral

Carlisle.—The recent marriage of a man to his niece in the Carlisle diocese was declared by the chancellor, H. B. Vaisey, to be an "absolute nullity."

Speaking at a consistory court in Carlisle cathedral the chancellor said: "it seems to me rather a shocking thing that a man should profess to marry some one with whom he cannot be married in any sense of the word, and should use for that purpose a solemn service of the church and the special privilege of exemption from banns which the license gives."

The chancellor stated the table of kindred affinity and printed at the end of every prayer book ought to be hung up in every church.

FOOTBALL HITS HEAD PLAYER GOES BLIND

Strange Accident During Game Is Diagnosed as Concussion

Bolton, Lanes. — Alex. Finney, Bolton Wanderers left-back, playing at Bolton, against Arsenal, was the victim of one of the strangest accidents recorded on the football field. He went temporarily blind in one eye.

Just before half-time Finney tried to head the ball. It caught him on the back of the head. He went on playing for about ten minutes.

Then he put his hand to his left eye, shook his head, and complained that he could not see.

A trainer ran to his assistance and had to lead him off the field.

The club doctor found that the blow, although it had had no immediate effects, had caused concussion.

THIEVES GET $30,000 IN 250-POUND SAFE

Gold Articles Carried Off, Container and All

Herne Bay. — Kent police are searching for thieves who carried off from a house here a 2¼-hundred - weight safe containing gold articles valued at nearly £6,000 ($30,000). Several articles were inscribed with a monogram containing a crown and bearing the initials "S. L".

The safe measuring 20 x 15 inches was removed from the bedroom of Miss Lydia Cecily Hill, 25, at her parents' home, Mayfair Court, Grand Dr., Hearne Bay. Nobody was in the house at the time, Miss Hill and her mother having gone to a cinema.

HOW TO BECOME A MANNEQUIN

This young lady is one of a group taken from the Welsh distressed area to be given vocational education to enable them to earn a living. She is to be a professional mannequin and is shown here in one of the training classes in London, England.

CLAIMS JUDGE CAN'T DECIDE CHIEFTAINSHIP

Henry Maclean Would Prevent First Girl Clan Chief

Edinburgh.—The question of who has the right to decide the chieftaincy of a clan was raised in the court of session here.

Lieut-Cmdr. Henry Maclean, of Bursledon, Hants, appealed against the decision reached last July of Sir Francis Grant, the Lord Lyon King of Arms, that he had full authority to deal with a petition made by Miss Catriona Louise Maclean of Ardgour, who is 17.

By her petition Miss Maclean claims to be chieftain of the house, branch and family of Maclean of Ardgour, and if successful she will be the first woman chieftain for several centuries.

Both she and Cmdr. Maclean are descended from Col. Alexander Maclean 13th of Ardgour, who died in 1855.

The chieftainey dispute arose after the death in 1930 of Miss Maclean's father, Lieut-Col. Alexander John Hugh Maclean of Ardgour.

FALLS DOWN TRAP AS BEER UNLOADED

London.—While brewers' draymen were unloading barrels into the cellar of an Amherst Rd. public house, an elderly man who was passing, fell through the trap, and was seriously injured.

He was taken to St. Peter's hospital, Whitechapel, where he died. The man was A. Katchlock, of Half Moon-passage, Aldgate, aged about 70.

KIN OF 'CONQUEROR' BORN

Epsom, Surrey.—A daughter born recently to Mrs. Margery Clack, wife of Col. T. S. Clack, is a descendant of William the Conqueror.

The baby's sister, Judith Anne Caroline de Courtenay, now six years old, was christened in the Temple church where her royal ancestor, Henry II, and his queen, Eleanor of Acquitaine, attended the dedication in 1185.

REFUSING TO OPEN LETTERS WEALTHY MAN FINED $2.50

Accepts Responsibility for Apparently Ignoring Tax Authorities' Notices

BEGGING THE CAUSE

Rotherham.—A wealthy man who has not opened one of the hundreds of letters he has received during the past year is Joseph Charles Lister, of Listerdale, landowner and builder. They call him the "sealed letter man" here. And the reason? In his own words it is this: "I became so pestered by begging letters that I had to do something about it—if I opened all the correspondence I receive I would never get through. I am anxious to help everybody, but there is a limit to what I can do. So I made this rule."

When Mr. Lister—summoned at Bridlington for using an unlicensed car—was asked by the magistrates why four letters from the taxation authorities had not been answered, he declared: "I have seven cars, land in ten parishes in Rotherham and about 800 tenants.

"The last time I opened a letter was Dec. 14, 1935. I have resolved never to open another letter as long as I live, and I accept the responsibility."

He was fined 10s. ($2.50).

Mr. Lister refuses also to tie his shoelaces. "When the Duke of Windsor, as Prince of Wales, visited the Rotherham Boys' club," he said, "he drew attention to the fact that my shoelaces were undone. 'Quite true,' I replied, 'I was told once I should die in my shoes, so I'm ready to have a dying kick.'"

WOULD HAVE SCOTS CROWN KING GEORGE

Professor Urges Establishment of Edinburgh Court

London.—Now that Scotland has given a queen to the United Kingdom, why should not the King be crowned in Scotland as well as in England, asked Prof. A. Dewar Gibb of the University of Glasgow, addressing the Scottish Liberal club.

Prof. Gibb said he thought now was the time for the Scottish people to ask that they should in future see more and not less of the royal family. Let a court be established as a permanency in Edinburgh, with the sovereign more often in residence and with a regent there during his absence. Were this simple and gracious step taken, Scotland's situation would be instantly improved and her prestige enhanced, he said.

USE BLOCK, TACKLE IN MAN'S OPERATION

Guildford, Surrey.—A block and tackle were used in an operation at Royal Surrey County hospital on a man who had fallen from a stile.

A sling was put under the man's chin after he had been secured to a table. The block and tackle were successfully operated with a pull of about 60 pounds.

"We had to remove the plaster round the neck at a later date as it was found that another vertebra had been displaced," an official stated.

"We again used the block and tackle to good effect, but complications set in and the patient died."

PLAN EX-SOLDIER JOBS

London—The possibility of using ex-soldiers for duties at present performed by serving soldiers is bein' officially examined, says Sir Vincent Warrender, in a written answer to Lieut.-Col. Heneage.

In reply to Major Proctor, he said an intensive campaign, by posters and leaflets, was being conducted in a number of towns, among which certain towns in the depressed area were included.

PASTOR RAISES SHEEP RENOUNCES THEOLOGY

Rev. H. G. Proctor Unable to Believe Doctrine Jesus Was Divine

Long Eaton, Derbyshire.—Rev. H. G. Proctor, curate of St. John's church here, and son of a former vicar, announced his decision to renounce Christianity, sever all his connection with the church, and take up sheep farming.

"I found myself unable to believe the doctrine that Jesus of Nazareth is in any special sense a divine person," he said to a reporter.

"One who does not hold that doctrine cannot honestly call himself a Christian. One can believe in God and live a good life without being a 'Christian.'

"I believe," he continued, "that the Creator is a person: that He is God: that the word 'Father' fully describes His relationship to mankind.

"I have no regrets, because I am a more honest man now than I was before when I was taking payment for teaching something with which I did not agree."

Mr. Proctor, who is 28, was appointed curate in 1932.

BOY TAKES UP DARE SEES REMAND HOME

Offered 4 Cents, He Steals Torch, Doesn't Get Money

London.—"He just wanted to see what a remand home was like," was the reason given for a theft by a boy who appeared at South London juvenile court.

One of his school friends, said his father, had been at the "bad boys' school," and gave such an interesting account of it, that he thought he would like to try it.

When dared to, for 2d. (4 cents), he stole a torch. He did not get the 2d., but he was sent to the remand home.

"Was it as nice as you thought?" Sir Vivian Henderson asked the boy.

"No, sir," he replied.

He was sent home with a caution.

SISTERS, OVER 90 BURNED TO DEATH

Flames, Heat Drive Rescuers From Cottage

Ross-on-the-Wye. — Two sisters, Mrs. Emma Pymble and Miss Ellen Wheeler, both over 90, were burned to death in their country cottage. Rescuers were driven back by flames and heat.

The sisters lived at Underhill, Hoarwithy, about seven miles from Ross-on-Wye.

Police Constable George Hill, of Hoarwithy, and an A.A. Scout made gallant attempts to climb the staircase, but the flames and intense heat drove them back.

GAS MASK DEMONSTRATIONS PLANNED FOR EVERY HOME

British Home Office Taking No Chances of Any Citizens Being Overlooked

DETECTORS SCHEME

London.—Every responsible person in the land is to be shown, in his own house, how to use a gas mask.

The air raids precautions committee of the home office have come to the conclusion that it is useless to expect members of the public voluntarily to visit depots to learn how to adjust and wear a mask. Therefore, depot staffs will visit every house and give a demonstration. Visits will begin as soon as the depots have been set up.

Plans for distributing 30,000,000 respirators are now almost complete. The Blackburn factory is in production and will shortly send out 500,000 masks a week. These will be sent first to 12 main depots, placed at strategic points. From these they will be distributed to thousands of sub-depots, which will serve the public.

The main depots will "service" each year 10 per cent. of the masks, to ensure that all remain in good condition.

An elaborate scheme for gas detectors in every street is also being completed.

Detectors will consist of pieces of wood dressed with a yellow paint.

This will turn red when it comes into contact with the liquid from which mustard gas and Lewisite (a similar gas) vaporises.

These gases are either sprayed by raiding aeroplanes or are contained, under pressure, in bombs and cover a wide area when the bomb bursts.

CLIMBS OUT WINDOW FLEES MALE ATTACKER

Man Escapes Later Through Another Window

Port Talbot.—A midnight attack on a woman in her own home by a masked intruder is being investigated by police. Mrs. Violet Carpenter, after a struggle, escaped by climbing through a window.

She was coming from the bathroom on to the landing when she came face to face with a man. He had a muffler tied round the lower part of his face and was wearing a trilby hat and mackintosh.

When she screamed he pushed her back into the bathroom, followed her in, shut the door behind him and struck her violently on the face and head with his fist. He got away through the bedroom window.

SCOUT SAVES LAD ON 'PIRATE' CRUISE

Bishop's Waltham, Hants.—Four boys were playing at "pirates". The high seas were a deep claypit, filled with water, adjoining a brickyard.

Their "pirate" craft was a flat-bottomed pickling barrel; and seven-year-old Eric Hobbs started out on a voyage of adventure on his own. He overbalanced and fell into six feet of water.

Although unable to swim, Scout Donald McAlpine, 12, jumped in and brought him to safety, dried his clothes and took him home.

Nobody knew about the rescue until the police told McAlpine's parents.

TO SETTLE FAMILIES IN BETTER-OFF AREAS

If Experiment Succeeds 2,000 Will Be Moved

London.—It is hoped that the experiment of settling 250 families from the special areas in cottage homesteads near more prosperous centres of industry will have justified itself sufficiently by the end of next summer to persuade the government to transfer 2,000 families.

This is the object being kept in view in the appointment of a staff for carrying out the experimental scheme.

'FAGAN' IS CONVICTED SO HE LOSES LEGACY

Hired Children to Steal Got Them to Play Slot-Machines

London.—By his conviction at Middlesex sessions, a man will lose a considerable legacy bequeathed to him by his mother, who died while he was awaiting trial.

It was stated there was a clause in the will which would prevent him from inheriting the property if he were convicted.

The man, Arthur Willis, 48, a cafe proprietor, with two shops at Kilburn, pleaded guilty to stealing and receiving a number of articles, and was sent to prison for 12 months.

Counsel prosecuting said Willis had been bribing a number of young boys to go round shops in the Kilburn district and steal articles for him. In his cafe he had a number of slot machines, and when the children brought back any article he gave them sixpence each in coppers and invited them to play on the slot machines. So he lost no money.

When the police raided the cafe nearly 30 small children were found.

CANNED FRUIT MART INCREASES IN BRITAIN

Valued at $36,000,000—Imports From Canada Reach New High

London.—The English market for canned fruit apparently is unlimited, according to a report issued by the Imperial economic committee.

The report shows the aggregate imports of canned and bottled fruit preserved in sugar, and fruit pulp preserved without sugar, into the United Kingdom in 1935 reached a record total of more than 234,000 tons, valued at $36,000,000.

"It seems probable that the extent to which this market will expand has yet to be discovered," the report states.

Total imports for 1935 were 21,000 tons higher than those of 1934. Empire supplies have been gaining a larger share of the market, but in 1935 this share dropped a few points in percentage. Imports from Canada reached a new high level, but supplies from Australia and Malaya were slightly smaller. Peaches and pineapples were equal first, with 24 per cent. of the total each, while pears came next on the list.

Imports of dried fruits in 1935 amounted to about 180,000 tons, or six per cent. more than in 1934, with a declared value of $28,000,000. Shipments of currants from Australia were the heaviest since 1930, and represented 23 per cent. of the total imports of 57,000 tons.

'CAMERAMEN' IN PARIS 'GYP' FASHIONABLE NIGHT CLUBS

Promise to Publish "Pictures" —Wine and Dine Gratis

EVEN SELL 'CAMERA'

Paris.—Confidence tricksters did a brisk trade in Paris one night recently.

Entering fashionable night clubs in Montmartre and Montparnasse, they said they were film men, mentioning the name of a well-known company, and added: "We have come to take pictures of your night club."

They erected a dummy "camera," photographed the cabaret, manager, proprietor and diners.

They were then asked to stay and enjoy the revels, ate well, ordered the best champagne, and left, assuring their host that the film would appear early.

In this way they obtained half-a-dozen dinners. At the last club they visited they sold the "camera" to the band leader. It was found afterwards to be worthless.

At several of the clubs women later missed their handbags.

NEW GERMAN SWEETS

Berlin.—White chocolates, the sweets which are taking the place of ordinary chocolates here in order to avoid the necessity of importing cocoa, have now made their appearance in the displays of the Berlin sweetshops. The new substance is called "Galak," and is made up both in bars and in the form of chocolates with hard and soft centres. It has the appearance of wax but tastes somewhat like milk chocolate.

NEW ANGLICAN COMMISSION

London.—The archbishops of Canterbury and York have appointed a commission to consider the problems connected with the selection, testing and training of candidates for holy orders.

LIVE LEOPARD GRACES HISTORY CLASSROOM

Snarls Interrupt Lecture—Beast Afterward Shot

Cape Town.—An exciting motor drive with a live leopard enabled a natural history lecturer to keep his promise to show his pupils at Wolseley a live leopard when one was captured.

A full grown specimen, six feet long, was trapped, roped and driven off in a car. The leopard reared and struck out at a barking dog, tearing the upholstery of the car.

The lecturer took the beast into his classroom and lectured on leopards and their habits. The lecture was occasionally interrupted by the leopard's angry snarls and roars. The leopard was shot afterward.

PLAN 10 NEW CINEMAS

British Syndicate Has Eyes on Manchester District

Manchester.—A syndicate owning many cinemas throughout Britain is searching for sites for new cinemas in the industrial districts outside Manchester. The company is planning to build ten cinemas in Lancashire during next year.

"Sixteen sites for cinemas have been acquired in London," stated an official of the group, "but with the development of big industrial towns in Lancashire we have decided to extend the scheme. We believe a prosperity boom is on the way which will provide new scope for entertainment in Lancashire."

PLEASED WITH EXHIBITION

Johannesburg, S.A.—E. H. von Witt, city councillor, who has seen every European exhibition in the past 40 years, declares the Empire Exhibition here would be a credit to any country in the world.

BULLET IN BRAIN MAN STILL WORKS

Only Change in Habits Is "I Keep Away From Alcohol"

Slavonski Brod, Jugoslavia.—Mato Baboselatz, 22, is going about his daily work with a bullet lodged in his brain. His only departure from previous habits is that "I now keep away from alcohol."

Following a fracas one night recently he was taken to hospital where he was conceded little chance of recovery. Doctors were afraid to operate, believing it was impossible for Mato to live. But he recovered and left hospital apparently fully recovered.

He is working as usual and is thoroughly cheerful, although medical authorities still shake their heads and prophesy his death.

PRESCRIBE SABRES TO AVENGE INSULT

Berlin.—A new code of honor for German students prescribes sabre duels to avenge insults.

Any "honorable German" may restore his honor by challenging the violator of his honor to duel and he must be accepted as a challenger.

Duelling no longer is the privilege of officers or students.

Drunken people have no right to challenge violators of their honor to a duel, because drunken people cannot be considered "honorable" in the sense of the code. Also, drunken people, cannot insult other people, simply because they do not possess any honor of their own.

WANT TREES RETAINED

London.—The Society of the Men of the Trees is organizing a petition against proposal of the Westminster city council to remove four plane trees—the plane is the "Cockney's tree"—from Leicester Sq.

TRIPLETS' MOTHER HAS QUADRUPLETS

Two Boys and Two Girls Born to Woman in Lithuania

Kaunas, Lithuania.—Quadruplets—2 boys and 2 girls—have been born to Mrs. Trimbilene, in the town of Rokishkis, Lithuania. All four are doing well.

Mrs. Trimbilene became the mother of triplets in 1933.

Her four new babies make the second group of quadruplets to be born in Lithuania in a year.

ARISTOCRATIC MENACE INVADING SOCIALISM

Portbou, France.—"Revolutionary aristocrats" have become a new menace to the revolutionary ideals of Socialist Spain, leaders of the Madrid government assert. They point to a class of new rich which has sprung up among workers and militia as a direct result of the civil war against Fascist insurgents.

Practices of some militiamen, using requisitioned automobiles to attend gay parties, spending freely in places of amusement and "whose general deportment would give no indication there is war in Spain" are branded by idealists as "vices which must be crushed out if the revolution is to achieve its goal."

GRUESOME DREAM TRUE

Boy's Premonition of Forest Hanging Vindicated

Helsingfors.—A dream which a boy had in the village of Muuruvesi, northeast Finland, turned out to be true and led to a gruesome discovery. The boy, the 12-year-old son of a local shoemaker, dreamed that while playing in a neighboring forest he saw a man's body hanging from a tree. Later he found the dead body of a farm laborer hanging from a tall pine.

LESS FOOD VARIETY, CLOTH IN CAFES UNDER NAZI EDICT

Four-Year Plan Restricts Number of Dishes on Menu

URGE FISH-EATING

Berlin.—Fewer dishes on the bill of fare, fewer table cloths in restaurants, and therefore less laundry, are some of the new measures to help Germany become self-sufficient in her food and raw material supply under the new four-year plan.

This was announced at the hotel and restaurant proprietors' meeting at Hanover recently. The new regulations became effective with the advent of the new year.

No bill of fare, even in the most expensive restaurants, is permitted to offer more than four different soups, 10 "dishes of the day," 10 fried or grilled dishes, six egg dishes, six different kinds of cold and four kinds of warm hors d'oeuvre, or 15 cold dishes such as cold cut, various special salads and cold fish.

Ordinary salads, vegetables, game and poultry may only be offered according to season. No stipulations have been made regarding cheese and dessert. Hot fish is the only major dish not subject to any restrictions, as the consumption of fish is to be encouraged.

Menus of the larger restaurants may offer no more than six major dishes, of which two must be fish, while menus of medium-sized restaurants may offer no more than three dishes, of which one must be fish.

Restaurant tables having marble or wooden tops, which can be cleaned, are not to be covered by table cloths. Saving can be made in laundry, it is said, without impairing either cleanliness or hygiene.

Cutlery, crockery and kitchen utensils in new restaurants are to consist of glass, porcelain or metals which are easily obtainable, in order to save silver, nickel and copper.

ROADSIDE OPERATION SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE

Surgeon Averts Suffocation by Cutting Throat

Vienna. — A unique life-saving operation was performed by a local practitioner in an ambulance on the road between Baden, Lower Austria, and Vienna. A woman patient, suffering from a severe abscess in the windpipe, was transferred in an ambulance from Baden to a Vienna hospital. When only a short distance from Vienna she showed signs of suffocation, and she would have died before reaching the hospital, if the accompanying physician, Dr. J. Kern of Baden, had not the presence of mind to conduct an operation in the ambulance on the roadside. He cut her throat and saved her life.

LAWYERS FIGHT DUEL AND THEN FRATERNIZE

Budapest.—Two Budapest lawyers, Dr. Alexander Mazgon and Dr. Andrew Weiszberger, had heavy arguments during a trial. The remarks they made on each others' legal science led to a duel. The second who conducted the duel was Dr. Andrew Kabos, world champion of fencing.

"Go ahead," he shouted and the two barristers started to chop each other. The duel went 14 rounds and lasted 25 minutes. Both were injured on the chest, arms and face, but not too dangerously. After the duel they shook hands and had lunch together in a fashionable restaurant.

AIDS LEEDS UNIVERSITY

Leeds.—Frank Parkinson, chairman of Crompton Parkinson Ltd., has given $1,000,000 to Leeds university, where he was once a student, for erection of a new central block of buildings.

MISSING GEM CASE FOUND IN HAYSTACK

Searcher Almost Throws $10,000 Valuables Away, Thinking It Wood

Eskdale, Cumberland.—A missing jewel case, containing pearls, rings and brooches, valued at £2,000 ($10,000), for which the lake district police have been searching since August, was found in a haystack near Eskdale, and was nearly thrown away.

The finder was Cyril Bowman, occupier of Wha House, an Eksdale farm, where Mrs. Roberts, of Welwood, Selkirk, owner of the jewelry, was staying when the jewels were stolen from her bedroom.

A reporter broke the news to Mrs. Roberts, the wife of Provost Roberts, of Selkirk, that her jewels had been found by Mr. Bowman while he was cutting hay from a stack in a barn close to the farmhouse.

Pulling some hay out of the stack with his hand Mr. Bowman felt something hard and, thinking it was a piece of wood, threw it over his shoulder. He went on with his work until he discovered that his find was not wood, but the jewel case which he had been seeking for five months, and for which there was a £200 ($1,000) reward.

EXPORTS LIONS TO AFRICA

London. — Believe it or not, but London Zoo is exporting lions to South African zoos. For better lions are now being bred in Regent's Park than in the jungle.

The explanation is that the sheltered surroundings and good food of the zoo make things easier for the lions than the continual battle for life in the wilds. This breeding in captivity makes lions cheap. You can get a good lion now for about £15 ($75.)

ONTARIO BONSPIEL EXPECTED TO DRAW OVER 120 RINKS

Includes 28 Toronto, 4 From U.S., 13 Northern And 75 Other Parts Province

DISTRICT EVENTS OVER

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP)—Curlers from all parts of Ontario will gather in Toronto Friday for the 10th annual Ontario bonspiel, expected to draw more than 120 rinks. Originally 120 was the limit set by the committee in charge but when additional rink space was assured four more entries were decided on.

The entry list includes 28 Toronto rinks, four from the United States, 13 from Northern Ontario and 75 from other parts of the province under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Curling Association.

District playdowns for the big events, the Ontario Silver Tankard and the Governor's General's Trophy, have been completed. Galt and Kitchener curlers wound up their district play last night.

Unionville and Oshawa have each entered six rinks while Kingston and Lindsay are sending down five each. Hamilton Thistles will have four with New Liskeard leading the north with three.

Kitchener, London 'n Tankard

Rinks from Kitchener and London will represent Western Ontario in the Tankard play as a result of the playdown finals at Galt last night. A rink from Fergus qualified for the Governor General's Trophy at Kitchener.

Alf H. Dunker of Kitchener skipped his rink to victory over Perry G. Hall's Kitchener curlers 12-11 to earn a spot in the Tankard finals. Dr. J. A. Wright's London Curling Club entry qualified for this event at the 'spiel in London a week ago.

Dunker eliminated B. Ritz, Mount Forest, 18-7 and J. Graham, Fergus, 11-8 before Downing Hall's four.

The Fergus rink to play in the Governor General's event is skipped by C. E. Fleming who gained the honor at Kitchener by defeating M. H. Sternal's Galt rink 14-11. Flemings perfect draw shot on his last rock on the 12th prevented Galt from deadlocking the match.

Fleming's curlers also defeated a Galt rink skipped by J. M. Tait 8-7, the match going to an extra end before the Ferguson quartet earned the right to face Sternal. In the Mail and Empire Trophy playdowns, a Toronto club was victorious when Dr. E. McNeil of Vics defeated a club-mate, D. E. Baynon, 12-4.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

In the ladies' section of our club Mrs. R. M. Waddell and Miss F. Gladman played the final game in the "Gibson" Trophy Wednesday afternoon.

These two rinks had come through the schedule and finished a tie, so this game not only broke the tie, but also decided the winner of the cup.

Mrs. Waddell's rink took the lead on the very first end and were never in trouble from then on, ending up with an 11-4 score.

GOLD BELT POINT SYSTEM BAFFLES ALL BUT EXPERTS

Allow Three For Goal, Three For Assist With Singles And Halves Tossed In

NUMBER OF GAMES VARY

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Feb 4—(C.P.).—Not by mirrors nor by divining rods, but by a complex three-way system that baffles all but the statisticians, the Gold Belt Hockey Association compiles its team standings and ranks its leading scorers.

The Gold Belt is the only league anywhere that grants a player three scoring points for a goal and three for an assist. But the system's not as simple as all that—if it were, the fellows who keep the records would lack something to do on the long winter nights when there are no games. A matter of single points and half-points enters in.

Players like Marshall and Genois of Noranda have not objected to the figuring so far. They're tied for top position in scoring with 43½ points apiece. But if Ken Grivel of Lake Shore, who has 39 points, should bag a couple of three-point goals some night while they were getting more half-points, the Noranda players might stop to investigate.

When the Gold Belters were preparing for their 1936-37 season, they realized difficulties lay ahead. Kirkland Lake's four teams—Tekimas, Lake Shore, Wright Hargreaves and Toburn—wanted fewer games than Noranda; and Noranda wanted fewer than South Porcupine and Timmins. Agreeably enough, the league leaders convinced them that the Kirkland Lake entries should play 12 times, Noranda 16, South Porcupine and Timmins 18 each.

Triple, Double Schedules

Some teams, under the system adopted, were allotted triple schedules with some others. In other cases, double schedules applied, and in still others home-and-home games were to be played. Then the dopesters had to figure out a plan for standings.

In the case of a single schedule, three points would be allotted for a victory, they determined. Then for a double schedule game 1½ points would be at stake and where a team played a triple home-and-home series with another, they would battle for one point each time out.

That sounded workable, and the league prepared for its start. Then someone asked how total should be arrived at in the individual scoring race. It wouldn't be fair for a player who was taking part in only 12 games to have to try to keep pace with another participating in 18. Scoring totals would have to be figured on a sliding scale, too, it was assured.

And so the whole business came about.

Northern Ontario fans are admittedly puzzled by the mathematics. They spend hours over papers and pencils. All agree, however, that they're seeing great hockey—and that's what counts.

They're willing to put up with a player who checks the official scorer with: "Make sure you give me an assist on that goal. They count three points, you know. But you don't have to be so particular on one-point nights."

George St. Bantams Beat St. John's 10-1

George Street Bantams swamped St. John's, 10-1, in a Church Loop puck contest last night at All Saints' rink. It was the last scheduled game for the winners, who went through without a loss, and they now play Park Street or Mark Street in the finals. St. John's could not keep up with the speedy Unitedz last night and were soundly beaten. The Anglicans' goalie looked good, as did Thompson and S. Clark for St. John's. Parnell got most of the goals, scoring almost at will. Ralph, Routley and Hamilton were also prominent. The teams:

George Street—Goal, Richardson; defence, Parnell, Powell; centre, Hamilton; wings, Routley, Burns; alternates, Parr, Metheral, Saunders, Ralph, Woodgate.

St. John's.—Goal, Matthews; defence, Moore, Thompson; centre Crowder; wings, S. Clark, Cranford; alternate, R. Clark.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

HAVING AN off night last p.m. we spent part of it discussing literature in an eating house. Started off with several of us discussing sports columns and wound up with Joe the java slugger lecturing on literary authors. Joe jumped on us from the start, saying: "I was informed that you wrote me up last week but I did not pursue the article at all. In fact, I hardly never read what sports communists write. On account of they get overjealous in their efforts and, after pursuing some literate work of art, they try to amputate the regional author's style. And amputation gets you nowhere; better to crate your own style. Also, too many communists are getting out of their own territorial and evading other guy's fields."

* * * * * * *

WAXING ELOQUENT—or is it elegant?—he continued: "Lookit Dame Runyon covering the Hoffman kidnapping trial. Lookit Sinclair still relinquishing on his trip to Bombay. Lookit Andy Little being a praise agent for Con Smith. Even Reeves tries to write rhythms like he was Lord Tennessee or some other big shot poet. Instead of disgusting sports they get ambidextrous and conserve on other tropics of no interest at all to sports enthusiastics. Ignition of sports swallowers makes no difference to them—they think they have a monotony on interesting conservation."

* * * * * * *

AND SKIPPING lightly over syllables, Joe went on: "Personality, I refer the present to oldtime literate assays. Shakesteer, the dramatics, wrote 'Much Due for Nothing' and 'Roman Jewells' and others but nobody except schoolers ever read 'em. Popular friction like "Anthony Edwards" or "Gone With the Wine" can be reduced into better movies. A scrip writer can transport such stuff into a scenery easier than that old tripe of assay that Shakesteer tried to make look like he was writing poetry. It is a sure indignation of snubbery for people to say the writers back in the Muddle Ages or in the time of the immoral Barb of Avon were better than our contemptuous authors." And so it went for a long time.

LAKEFIELD GROVE Prep pucksters pulled out a 5-2 win over St. Andrew's College crew yesterday in Lakefield to move up into the top slot of their interscholastic group. At the same time, the St. Andrew's third team took a 5-4 nod over their Grove rivals. We saw one game this year in which Grove defeated the P.C.I. lads, and some of those Lakefield students looked quite impressive on the ice. A couple of 'em would have fitted in nicely on our O.H.A. junior lineup.

THE COLTS tackle Belleville in an O.H.A. junior "B" fixture here tomorrow eve at the Brock St. rink. It'll be the locals' last home game of the season before the playoffs—and its chief importance is to see which squad finishes on top and gets choice of first playoff tussle. Fans can be sure of a nice battle as the teams appear very well matched. Each has a decision over the other by one goal and on faster ice tomorrow it's going to be nip-and-tuck from start to finish. Juniors generally dish up lively hockey and this one rates a big crowd of fans. The intermediate Petes play the Fliers in Belleville that evening.

* * * * * * *

MANAGER LAWRENCE of the Trenton Fliers, speaking of their 6-4 win here last Monday, told the Belleville scribe: "We had our toughest grind of the season on our hands and take it from me the boys knew they were in a hockey game before it was over. It was a strenuous game and we are not discounting the Peterborough club one bit, they'll be just as tough on Friday if not more so. You see a loss for the Peterborough boys Friday will virtually eliminate them, so we look for a real battle." Yeah, the Petes know they're up against it and we imagine they'll throw everything they have into Friday's tilt on Quinte ice.

* * * * * * *

TWO JUNIOR City Puck Loops contests are listed for tonight in the Brock and both should be full of action. Canucks play St. Peter's at eight, followed at nine by Monarchs and All Saints. In the opening tussle, first place in the standing will be at stake, while the victor in the second game can move into a second-place tie. The schedule is on the wane and the boys are turning on the steam to get a crack at the playoffs. They play a pretty fair brand of hockey and dish up a flock of puck thrills and spills.

WHAT IS the program for the basketeers here this weekend? Well, tomorrow (Friday) sees these frays lined up for the Ladies' League at the Y.W.C.A.: Westclox Juniors vs. "T" Quakers at 7.45, C.G.E. Seniors vs. Marconi Radio at 8.15, St. John's Juniors vs. C.G.E. at 9.00, with the Westclox Seniors drawing a bye. Senior P.C.I. boys play in Bowmanville that night, the other two Collegiate squads being idle. Saturday eve, there'll be two Church Loop contests at the Y.M.C.A. First is the final bantam playoff between St. Paul's and St. John's at six, the former having a two-point lead. The juvenile playoffs open at seven between St. Paul's and St. Andrew's. Two Senior City League cage joints will be staged later that evening.

Remember When—

Four pounds of fat lost Phil Rosenberg the bantamweight title of the world ten years ago to-night. Rosenberg whipped Bushy Graham decisively in a 15-round bout at New York, but he had agreed to forfeit his crown if he did not make the 118-pound limit. Graham was not generally acknowledged champion.

St. Paul's Juveniles Lost To Murray St.

Murray Street Juveniles took a 3-2 nod over St. Paul's in a smart Church Hockey League game at All Saints' rink last night, it being the Saints' first loss in six starts. The winners, led by two speedsters—Pammett and Foster—had a margin over their close-checking rivals. Ascott and Mackness scored for St. Paul's, with Foster, Pammett and Lasenby getting the victors' markers. The starting St. Paul's line went well, but Pammett and Foster were deciding factors. Both teams are in the playoffs and this win probably gives Murray Street a bye into the finals. The teams:

Murray Street.—Goal, K. Gillespie; defence, Foster, Whatley; centre, Pammett; wings, Crary, Duncan; alternates, C. Gillespie, Cox, Smith, Scott, Lasenby.

St. Paul's.—Goal, McBride; defence, Ascott, J. McMillan; centre Easton; wings, Morrow, King; alternates, T. McMillan, Perks, Mackness, Moorhead, Lockington.

Referee—S. Seabrooke.

All-Stars Winners In Druggists' Tussle

Druggists' All-Stars took a 6-4 decision from Retailites in a rousing exhibition puck game here last night. It was a fast, clean game with but one penalty handed out. The fans cheered the fine goaltending of Herb May. The heavy body-checking on defence was smart but clean. A. O'Heron, A. Long, and R. Bennett tallied neat goals. Play roughened up a bit in the third with Burns and Johnson having to be separated. Outstanding 60-minute performers were Earle, Burns, Elliott and A. Long. The teams:

All-Stars — Goal, Eric McBain; defence, Orani Miller, Arnold Mackay; centre, Nels Foster; wings, Ron Burns, Frank Earle; alternate, Lorne McBain.

Retailites — Goal, Herb May; defence, H. Elliott, A. Long; centre, R. Bennett; wings, W. Scott, D. Earle; alternates, H. O'Heron, B. McDonald, M. Johnston.

Referee—Bob Revie.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

24—STRAIGHT DOWNHILL RUNNING, PART 2

Keep the skis close together parallel and flat, one about a foot in the lead, feet flat on the skis from toe to heel, the weight evenly distributed on both skis. Heels must not be raised when running, except in the Lunging or Telemark position. On icy or rough surfaces skis may be held somewhat apart but whenever conditions permit keep them together in a "narrow track" position. For physiological and mechanical reasons swings are more easily accomplished with the skis so held.

Erest running position with well bent knees in action.

A correct running position with legs, hips and in fact the whole body flexible and knees thrust well forward is an important factor in the proper, and therefore easy, execution of turns and so every effort should be made to acquire it.

The maintenance of balance in the forward and backward line was explained in our last article. The lateral balance is maintained most effectively and quickly by movement of the hips as the body's centre of gravity is located in that area. Movement of the hips is more effective than movement of the arms for purposes of lateral balancing. The arms should be held forward from the body.

Bennett Bloodhounds Win In Warsaw, 6-5

A good hockey game was staged last night when Bennett's Bloodhounds invaded Warsaw and took a 6-5 win in the exhibition tilt. Both sides dished up some smart playing. Goals scored by Hec Thompson and Ray Bennett were beauties, while both netters shone with fine performances. For Warsaw, goals were counted by I. Drain, P. Drain, Bell, Clements, and H. Thompson. The winning scores were Bob Hewie with two, R. Bennett, Jr., W. Scott, and F. Earle. The teams:

Bloodhounds — Goal, W. Bennett; defence, McDonald, R. Bennett, Jr.; forwards, Scott, Earle, Hewie; alternate, R. Bennett, Sr.

Warsaw — Goal, A. Payne; defence, C. Payne, I. Drain; centre, Moore; wings, Clements, Miles; alternates, Thompson, Bell, W. Payne, G. Payne.

HORNETS GET MAD AND BLANK EAGLES BY SCORE OF 8-0

Ramblers Take 14th In Row By Defeating Indians 6 To 1

FALCONS SHUT REDS OUT

TORONTO, Feb. 4. —(CP)— The question of whether it pays to drive a hockey club has been settled in the mind of at least one coach—Donnie Hughes. The Pittsburgh Hornets' mentor figured his' proteges weren't giving their best and so issued an ultimatum to produce results in a hurry or else—they did.

The wobbly Hive kept within striking distance of the leading Syracuse Stars in the International American League's western section as they ran wild last night against New Haven Eagles to win 8-0. The scoring spiurge proved popular with Pittsburgh fans who were beginning to lose faith in their pets.

Hornets had to win to keep well in front of Cleveland Falcons, west group cellar dwellers, now pressing for the second playoff berth. The birds played smartly in Providence to blank Reds 3-0. In the only other game, Philadelphia Ramblers drubbed Springfield Indians 6-1, continuing the streak that has carried them through 14 games without defeat.

Fines And Suspensions.

Coach Hughes threatened to impose fines and suspensions on his players unless they improved their performances of the past few weeks. He may not have been serious, but his Hornets weren't taking any chances on having a dint added to their bank rolls, and none wanted an enforced rest.

It was Regina night in Pittsburgh. Earl Robertson and Alex. Wood, victorious and vanquished goalies respectively, both hail from the Saskatchewan capital, but it was Earl who felt like writing home to tell the folks about the game. To round out the picture, two other sons of Regina, Don Deacon and Ken Doraty, accounted for five goals between them.

Ramblers increased their lead to 14 points over Springfield in the eastern section, thanks to their win. Charlie Mason, bidding for another chance in the National League with New York Rangers, led Ramblers with two goals. Cliff McBride clicked for the only Springfield tally in the final period.

Completely outplaying their rivals, the improved Falcons looked like anything but a basement aggregation. Normie Schulta put them in front in the first period, and second session goals by Earl Hansen and Bud Cook rounded out the total. Providence never looked dangerous.

Belleville Juniors Tackle Colts Here

O.H.A. Junior B group standing to date:

	P.	W.	L.	TP.
Colts	6	5	1	2
Belleville	6	5	1	2
Tweed	6	0	5	0

Belleville Juniors play the local Colts here to-morrow (Friday) night at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock Street Rink. It will be the final home game for the young Petes before the playoffs. Team finishing first has choice of first home game, and that will be the stake in this tilt to-morrow. With two classy, well-matched squads battling, a big crowd of fans is expected to see a bang-up contest.

According to the Belleville paper, the 10-0 win for the Quinte crew over Tweed early this week counted as four points, the teams agreeing it would go as two games. The writer adds: "Belleville boys will have to show much better hockey than they did against Tweed if they expect to get the drop on the Colts for the coveted first place." A fine sheet of ice is expected for this junior joust.

TWEED

NORWOOD OUTFIT BATTERS TWEED FOR 6 TO 3 VICTORY

Intermediate Game Gives Fans Night Of Lively Hockey

PLENTY OF PENALTIES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 4.—Suffering their second loss of the season, when the Norwood team took the Tweed Intermediates into camp, 6 to 3, on Wednesday night, the locals showed very poor form. Norwood, entering this loop for the first time, showed the fans some very clever stick-handling and gave a good exhibition of passing.

Maguire opened the scoring for the locals when he took a pass near the middle of the first period from W. Leal, which was soon tied up by Puffer for the visitors. Norwood went into a 2 to 1 lead near the end of the period when Rothwell, rushing down the right boards, drove a hard shot just inside the blue line to catch the upper right-hand corner. Maguire scored his second goal of the period on a lone rush down centre ice. Tip Tummon for Tweed and Webb of Norwood were the bench warmers in this period.

In the second period Tweed went into a 3 to 1 lead when Maguire scored the only goal of the period, on a lone rush. Tip Tummon, W. Leal and J. Tummon received penalties, all for the home team.

Norwood came to life in the last period to rap in four goals, while the locals were held scoreless. N. Rogers netted two, Godin and G. Puffer a single, to easily put the game away, 6 to 3. Ginger Rogers for Norwood, Maguire and Tip Tummon for Tweed were sent to the timekeeper in this frame. The Norwood players were the better team all the way, and their clever checking and passing completely disorganised the home forces. This being their first appearance in Tweed, they certainly gave the fans an eye-opener in hockey as it is played.

For Tweed, Maguire and Goalie Thompson were the standouts; Thompson coming up to form on many sensational plays in the first period, when the Norwood players were swarming around the nets, but the puck remained on the outside.

Quinn and Ennis refereed and kept a close check on the game.

Tweed—Goal, Thompson; defence, E. Tummon, J. Tummon; centre, W. Leal; l.w., Maguire; r.w., H. Leal. Subs., Arber, Elsbury, Long, Courneyea.

Jackson Going Strong Again

HARVEY "BUSHER" JACKSON

After getting off to a bad start Harvey Jackson, Toronto Maple Leaf winger, is now well up at the top of the scoring records. The "Busher" seemed to find himself all at once, and it did not take many of his scoring barrages to bring him up to the top. The season of 1931-32 saw Jackson leading the league in scoring honors with 53 points. Maybe this is his year to repeat as top-scorer. When he broke into big time hockey in December of 1929 he was one of the youngest players in the league, only 18 years old. According to Roy Worters, Jackson has one of the hardest shots of any player to handle.

AUSTRALIA WINS 4TH TEST MATCH

English Eleven Is Dismissed For 243 In Second Innings

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 4.—(CP Cable).—Australia evened the current test cricket series against England today at two victories each, winning the fourth match by a margin of 148 runs. England was dismissed with a second innings score of 243 today shortly after lunch. The fifth and deciding match opens at Melbourne February 26.

L. O'B. Fleetwood-Smith, Australian googly bowler, was in fine form before the lunch interval and Wally Hammond fell a victim to one of his spinners before he could add to his overnight score of 39. The fourth wicket fell at 149. R. E. S. Wyatt joined Maurice Leyland and the score was taken to 190 when the latter was dismissed, A. G. Chipperfield catching him in the slips. Before any addition had been made to the tourists' total, Leslie Ames was bowled leg-before-wicket by Fleetwood-Smith.

Wyatt and G. O. Allen, England's captain played together until lunch, the Warwickshire amateur scoring 41 and Allen 8.

Fleetwood-Smith found a worn spot at one end of the wicket upon which he made his deliveries turn with deadly effect, and the English batsmen had great difficulty in dealing with them.

MARKLE, SMITH TIE ON SCORING

Hextall Runs Close Second Only Point Behind With 34

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Jack Markle demonstrated today that they can't keep Syracuse players out of the spotlight in the International - American Hockey League scoring race. After Art Jackson left Stars for the big league, Clint Smith of Philadelphia Ramblers grabbed the individual scoring lead but he had sole possession of top place only for a week.

In the scoring statistics released today by the league president, Markle was up there in a tie with Smith—each boast 35 points.

Smith's team-mate, Bryan Hextall, was only a point behind with 34, in third place came Keating of Providence with 31 and then another of those high-scoring Syracusans, Eddie Convey, with 30.

Jack Church, Syracuse defenceman and the league's prize penalty collector, kept working at his specialty during the past week and boosted the total number of his rules infractions to 33.

Leading scorers:

	G	A	P
Smith, Philadelphia	17	18	35
Markle, Syracuse	10	25	35
Hextall, Philadelphia	21	13	34
Keating, Providence	10	21	31
Convey, Syracuse	10	20	30
Mason, Philadelphia	16	12	28

WHITBY TROUNCES PORT HOPE 7 TO 3

Redwings Add Another To Long List Of Wins—Vipond Nets Three

PORT HOPE, Feb. 4 — Whitby Redwings added another win to their already long list when in an O.H.A. Intermediate fixture here last night they defeated Port Hope Ontarios 7 to 3.

Luther Vipond headed the Redwings, with three counters, while Blanchard and Piper went well. For Port Hope, Hagerman and Pilsworthy played strong games and Cancilla, in goal, despite defeat, was to the fore.

Whitby — Goal, Mutton; defence, J. Sleightholm and Brown; centre, Heard; wings, Blanchard and Mayne; alternates, Oke, Piper, Luther Vipond, Lewis Vipond.

Port Hope — Goal, Cancilla; defence, Record and Hagerman; centre, Jackman; wings, Phillips, and Roach; alternates, Smith, Pilsworth, Rowden, Sneyd, Rowland.

Referee — Stan Crossett, Port Hope.

Sport Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (CP)—Job Gould, being about as subtle as a punch in the nose, is shaking his fist across town at Mr. James Joy Johnston...Gould says, among other things, that J. J. J. has ruined boxing in New York, an amusing and somewhat impossible accomplishment... He bases this on Johnston's alleged instructions that Bob Pastor go in and run away from Joe Louis...He also says Johnston is going around saying Heavyweight Champion Jimmy Braddock is too old to fight ...Gould goes to the last lamp-post in the world to back up this one.

As evidence he produces a clipping from an Australian paper in which Johnston is quoted as saying "Braddock is too old and any first-class man will lick Schmeling"...Paradox of this situation is that Johnston works for Madison Square Garden, which is staging the tottering Schmeling-Braddock fight in June... Gould's point in the argument is clear enough...

He wants to get Braddock out of the Schmeling fight and into the proposed Joe Louis bout in Chicago ...He may do it, but he'll have to out-shout the Garden's James Joy Johnston, and out-wit Col. John Reed Kilpatrick's "600 millionaires," and gentlemen, that is a winter's task, even for the voluble and ungrammatical Mr. Gould...

Street scene: Sam Langford, the Nova Scotia negro whom many still consider the greatest fighter of the ring, tappling blindly through Harlem selling pictures—Oh Joe Louis!.. The boxing writers' dinner in memory of the late Joe Humphreys has created a problem...Receipts from the dinner were to put a stone above the beloved announcer's grave...After the money was collected, they discovered his body lay in a morsvian grave where only the smallest of headstones may be placed...Soon now he will be spaded up and carried off to another plot in a weird posthumous ceremony.

RANGERS RANCH SYSTEM PROVING GENUINE SUCCESS

Amerks And Black Hawks Fare Worse—Dutton Trying Two New Lads Tonight

MAY CATCH LEAFS

By A. E. Fulford
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Rival managers cast envious glances toward Lester Patrick today as the grey-haired New York Ranger manager puffed out his chest and surveyed the success of his farm system. He is the only leader in the National Hockey League who could transplant a whole farm team into the big league with a fair chance of its succeeding.

Patrick's Philadelphia Ramblers are burning up the International-American League in a way that indicates they might hold their own if injuries wrecked the New York club and Patrick was forced to draft the whole outfit.

Ramblers have played 14 games without a defeat, winning 6-1 from Springfield in their latest triumph last night. They have half a dozen stars who may be doing their puck-chasing in the big time when another season rolls around.

The injustice of it is that Patrick has no particular use for his minor league stars at the moment while other N.H.L. managers like Red Dutton of New York Americans and Clem Loughlin of Chicago would do very well with a batch each.

Dutton is trying out two from New Haven Eagles in his clash with Toronto Maple Leafs in Madison Square Garden tonight. Alfie Moore, the goalie who shut out Montreal Canadiens last Saturday, will be in the nets and Tony Hemmerling will be on a forward line.

Not Enough to Beat Leafs?

It is doubtful the reinforcements will give Dutton the strength he needs to beat Leafs out for a play-off position in the Canadian division. He hasn't been able to call on his farm for the strength Conny Smythe has drawn from Syracuse Stars.

One of Smythe's brightest stars is Gordon Drillon, a recruit from Syracuse. Reg. Hamilton is performing brilliantly on the defence and Jimmy Fowler has been a steady worker all season. All three are recent graduates of Eddie Powers' training school.

The two-game series between Amerks and Leafs starting tonight may go far to indicate whether Dutton has enough strength to make a race of it for the third spot with Leafs. The teams play back in Toronto Saturday night and by winning both games Dutton's outfit could pull up even with Toronto.

The fact none of the three games tonight can change the positions of the teams indicates the wide spread between contending clubs in each division.

Boston play Canadiens in Montreal but even if they win they will still be two points behind the second-place New York Rangers in the American section. Patrick's team take on Detroit Red Wings in Detroit. The best they will get out of a win is a reduction of the Wing lead over them to five points.

IN MEMORIAM

HARPER, John.—Remembered. —E.S.

KEMP.—In loving memory of my dear Mother, Mrs. Lance Kemp, who died February 5, 1936.

There is someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;
There is someone who thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent the voice we loved to hear;
'Tis sad, but true, we wonder why,
The best are always the first to die.

—Ever remembered by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Crough.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hughes and family wish to extend their most sincere thanks to the Sisters and Nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital. FISHERMEN PAY FOR THE RIGHT TO CATCH FISH

Unique Auction For Privileges In The Harbor Of Saint John

AN ANNUAL EVENT

By John W. Mosher
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 4 (C.P.)—It's just an old St. John custom. The right to catch fish by weir in St. John Harbor costs money. Annual auction has determined this privilege for 1937. The practice, insofar as it concerns fishing beyond low-water mark, is unique.

Indignation might be a mild term to describe the reaction of coastal fishermen anywhere else if they were asked to pay for the privilege of setting weirs in salt water, unless ebb tide left the equipment on bare ground owned by other parties. But St. John weir fishermen pay as a matter of course, and have paid for years. Line and drift net fishing, however, is free.

13 Harbor Lots.

The 1937 auction brought a total of $3,921 for 13 harbor lots. This included $3,101 for the prized East Side Lot No. 8, Navy Island. It went to J. E. Zatzman, exporter, who paid $3,302 for the same area last year. This choice lot produces by far the greatest catch of salmon, gaspereaux, shad and smelt heading for or coming from the St. John River.

The next highest amount paid was $350. Others ranged from $5 to $135. One year almost $10,000 was bid for the Navy Island lot.

Proceeds of the annual auction have gone to the Dominion Government as owner of the harbor since August 1, 1927, when the city sold the harbor to the Dominion for $2,135,118 following a plebiscite, in April of that year, approving the sale.

Previously the auction moneys went to the city as harbor owners since June 18, 1785, under British Government charter incorporating the City of St. John with inclusion of all rights as "conservators of the harbor and river."

About 100 fishermen, fish dealers and exporters — some in weather-beaten overalls, others in business suits and white collars — attended the 1937 auction.

Despite a general atmosphere of banter, especially concerning frequent $1 "raises" in cases of the lowest and highest upset prices, $5 and $1,800, keen rivalry prevailed at times. No lots were unsold, although two minor ones failed to find purchasers last year. Nevertheless, the total sum realized was $120 less than the $4,047 in 1936.

The Day That I Forget

By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet MacLeod has just married Joel Paynter, second-rate actor, whom she met a few weeks previously at a cocktail party. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

JANET PAYNTER stood indecisively at the corner of Columbus avenue and Seventy-third street and gazed idly into the window of the drug store. She pressed her face to the glass to view the clock on the wall beyond. She saw that is was only 10 minutes to 4 and sighed.

"Oh, excuse me," Janet moved aside out of the patch of sunlight to make room for the baby carriage another girl wheeled expertly into the advantageous spot. Janet could see only the tip of an infinitesimal nose above the blue banket. She smiled at the other girl and walked on.

"I'll have plenty to do some day," she said aloud and the course of her thoughts ran on like the stories she had woven as a child. They formed a series of pictures without a plot. They embraced a happy little house set in a sun-dappled lawn. Somewhere in that house there was a small angel, an exact replica of Joel. A car drove into the driveway. A very smart, very expensive car—since Janet could never think of Joel without thinking of the best, there was an aura of grandeur about Joel—and, of course, Joel was at the wheel.

"Get your hat, darling, and we'll run down to the club for a swim before dinner." She blew him a kiss and said, "I'll be right with you as soon as I speak to cook."

Oh, she would be busy enough when that day came. She would have no time then to walk to the public library to kill an hour or two.

She shifted the two heavy books from one arm to the other. "The Jacobean Era in Furniture", Teherinova; "My Twenty Years in the Ballet," an autobiography. Good, solid books to improve a girl's knowledge and while away the long, lonely hours of the evening. Not the exciting new books that people were talking about but good reading matter. You had to go to the circulating library for the new books and the circulating library ate up quarters when you read a book in an evening.

If I leave the books at the house and walk back to Broadway and Seventy-second street, the flower cart may be still there, she thought. I'll buy a little bunch of daffodils and walk back by way of the park. Then, I wouldn't be back until 5 and Joel will be home by then.

There was a small, discomforting tug at her consicience. She felt that she was a spendthrift of time although time was the only thing she had in quantity. She remembered how she used to luxuriate in her Sunday mornings. But then she had been a working girl. Days had been crowded and they passed swiftly. Those were normal days that began at 8 and ended by midnight.

Janet's day now began at noon when she waked a little before Joel so that she could prepare his breakfast. Lunch was a word that had disappeared from her lexicon except when she had luncheon engagements with one of her working friends. Janet prolonged those luncheons as long as she could, savoring the stimulating news and small gossip of the world she had left behind her and came away feeling a little lost at the prospect of the long afternoon ahead of her. On afternoons when Joel didn't have a matinee, he was "doing the rounds" of the casting agencies, anticipating the next move in the uncertainties of theater life.

She loved the hours from 5 to 8. Those belonged to her. They began with her waiting for Joel's step on the stair. Then a quick glance to see if she looked fresh and clean, another to note with satisfaction that the room that was their home was as nearly perfect as she could make it. There would be teacups and thin bred-and-butter sandwiches on the basket tray or, if it was a matinee day, there would be the mixings of a mild cocktail to pick Joel up.

Then they would be alone to talk, to have Janet tell Joel how much she loved him, Joel to tell Janet how much he loved her, and to tell Janet how complete his life had been these last two months. Janet listened avidly to everything that Joel had to tell her about the theater and in exchange offered him the stories of her mild adventures of her afternoons: She had seen a book on raising peacocks at the library and wondered if she should get up on the subject. The man who sold pussy willows told her he had once been a strong man in a circus. Mr. Schweizer, the butcher, said his wife was going to name the baby F. Delano Schweizer after the president.

They dined usually in a little tea-room up the street—50 cents with a wide choice of entrees—and Janet walked to the subway with Joel. She would often have liked to go to the theater with him but she knew how he would have detested the thought of her waiting in his dressing room for him.

She had soon tired of going back to their "apartment" alone to read for the next three hours. She didn't go to the movies because that was what she and Joel did at least two nights a week, catching a midnight show. Their social life was lived after 11 at night. It was then that her new friends and a few of her old ones came to the Paynters' home. At first Janet had been afraid that the noise when Ted Jevers played his concertina and Joel sang in his husky baritone would awaken the neighbors but she soon learned that her neighbors, who were mostly theatrical people, lived by the same schedule.

Jane ran up the flight of brown stone steps and while she fumbled in her purse for her keys, the door opened.

"Hello, Mrs. Birney. Thanks for letting me in," she addressed her landlady. At first she had tried to escape Mrs. Berney's loquacious sociability. Lately she had welcomed it.

"Any messages for me?" she asked cheerily and looked toward the table in the hall where the telephone slips were left.

"There's a lady waiting for you upstairs and I've a message from Mr. Paynber." She fished in her apron pocket and brought out the folded slip.

"A lady?" Janet asked and unfolded the slip. She was glad for the darkness of the hall. She didn't want Mrs. Birney to see how her face fell as she read that Joel would not be home until after the theater. He had to dine with Helen Grafton, the message read.

Perhaps she can get him a part when his show closes, Janet thought reasonably, but a small dark cloud rolled into her memory. There had been a photograph of the actress in the drawer of Joel's desk when she had moved in.

She summoned a smile and put the memory out of her mind as she opened the door to her own place.

"Martha!" she cried a glad welcome and was folded into the spacious arms of her old friend. "Let me look at you!"

Martha Colby whirled her 150 pounds lightly and sat down on the double bed disguised as a lounge with a bright Navajo and multicolored pillows. "So, this is the love nest," she said. "And how's the bride?"

"Wonderful!" Janet said, hanging her coat up in the crowded closet. "How do you like the Mexican effect?" She gestured toward the orange and yellow curtains, the bronze bowls filled with foliage—foliage was cheap—the gaudy posters on the walls.

"Charming," Martha said unenthusiastically. "What'd you do with all the things in your apartment?"

"I've sublet it lock, stock and barrel. Joel and I think it is best not to tie ourselves down with possessions. Theatrical people don't you know."

"Don't they?" Martha asked dryly. "And is Mexicana the smart thing now?"

"Very," Janet said firmly.

"I always associated Mexico with sunlight and heat. And there's very little sun or heat here," Martha shivered.

Janet sat down beside her and took one of the large, capable hands in hers. "Martha, you've come here to find fault, to say all the things you didn't before I was married. Please don't. I'm so happy I think I've died and gone to heaven. I was alone for five years. Long enough to realize that I wasn't a pretty, desirable girl, darling. And then, suddenly and for no reason because I never deserved anything like it, the most beautiful thing in life was given to me. The man I love and who loves me. I've had six weeks to realize that except for him I haven't anything. But that's enough and all I want for the rest of my life. If only I can keep Joel!"

Martha was a trifle flabbergasted by Janet's sudden attack. "Pshaw, child, you'll be able to keep him."

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY HELPS BILLIE.

Uncle Wiggily hopped on his tippie-tip-toes to the window of the room, where he and Billie were eating breakfast, and looked out.

"Is it Johnnie?" whispered Billie.

"Yes," whispered Uncle Wiggily to the squirrel boy, "it is your brother Johnnie."

"Oh, dear," softly chattered Billie. "I didn't want him to know I came to tell you about the secret he has. Some one must have seen me come in your bungalow, though it's so early I didn't believe they would. What am I to do, Uncle Wiggily? I don't want Johnnie to find me here and think I'm trying to get you to help me find out his secret. What shall I do?"

One Solution

"We'll slip out the back way," said Uncle Wiggily. "We have finished breakfast. It is nearly time for you to go to school. I suppose that is where Johnnie is going."

"Yes," agreed Billie, "it is. But always before he goes to school he runs off by himself to the place of his secret."

"Oh, then the secret is in a certain

"It is your brother Johnnie.

place, is it, Billie?"

"Yes, in a little clump of trees near the school. Every day Johnnie runs on ahead, leaving me alone and he goes in that grove of trees. So that's how I know the secret is there."

"And you want me to help you find it?" asked the rabbit.

"Yes, if you please," said Billie. "But not in any mean way, you know. I just want to be sure it's a good secret for Johnnie to have."

Out the Back Way

"I see," laughed Uncle Wiggily softly, as Johnnie once more knocked on the bungalow door. Nurse Jane was hurrying to open it to let in the little squirrel boy. "Well, Billie, I'll help you find out what Johnnie's secret is," said Mr. Longears.

"But we must do it without letting him know," said Billie. "If it's a good kind of secret and we find it out, we don't need to tell him we know it."

"Certainly not," said Uncle Wiggily. Johnnie was knocking again.

"But if he comes in here and finds me," went on Billie, all excited like and nervous, "why, everything will be spoiled."

"He shall not find you here," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "We'll slip out the back door while Nurse Jane is letting Johnnie in the front door. Then we'll go to the grove of trees, wait there and see what Johnnie does about his secret when he comes along."

"Oh, that will be a fine way of helping me," said Billie.

He and Uncle Wiggily went softly out the back door of the bungalow just as Nurse Jane let Johnnie in the front door.

"Good morning, Nurse Jane," politely greeted Johnnie. "Is my brother Billie here? Peetie Bow Wow, who was out bone hunting early this morning, said he saw Billie come in here."

No One Here

"Yes," said Nurse Jane, "Billie is having breakfast with Uncle Wiggily. I'll take you in to them." But when Johnnie and Nurse Jane entered the dining room Uncle Wiggily and Billie were gone.

"This is very strange," said Nurse Jane.

"I wonder where Billie could have gone?" said Johnnie. "But I can't waste time here. I must scamper to school. And I'm going to look at my secret, too," he whispered. But Nurse Jane didn't hear.

Away scampered Johnnie. But Uncle Wiggily and Billie were ahead of him going to the tree grove. And something happened there. I'll tell you about it in the story tomorrow night, which will be about Uncle Wiggily and Mrs. Fluff.

But please don't freeze your nose or your toes when you go to get a chocolate ice cream soda. Warm the soda first.

BOMBS DROP NEAR BRITISH WARSHIP

Air Attack Off Gibraltar Goes Unretaliated But Madrid Is Warned

LONDON, Feb. 4—(AP). — Three Spanish Government planes dropped three small bombs near the British battleship Royal Oak off Europa Point, Gibraltar, authoritative sources reported to-day.

The battleship was not damaged.

Official sources said the government "assumed" the planes mistook the battleship for a Spanish insurgent ship, but George Ogilvie-Forbes, British Charge D'Affaires in Spain, was instructed to "bring the matter to the attention" of the Valencia Socialist administration.

The attack occurred at approximately 11.30 a.m. yesterday, it was reported. No retaliatory action was taken by the Royal Oak's commanding officer, these sources said.

Through representations to the Valencia government, Britain hopes to "prevent any repetition of such incidents," Foreign officials declared.

HORSE LIKES EGGS HEN LIKES OATS

And So The Two Get Together In Unique Barter System

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Feb. 4—(CP)—It's a strange story, this one of Bobby the horse, his friend the hen, and his liking for eggs.

Said to be more than thirty years old, Bobby is a privileged character on Thomas Templeton's farm at Golden Grove, near here. As a reward for long, faithful service, his whims are indulged.

A few years ago while the horse was out working, a hen laid an egg in his stall. Nosing at the egg, Bobby broke it, tasted it, and liked it.

Then, says Templeton, he learned that one of his hens had ceased laying in her nest. By careful watch he found that when the hen was going to lay she went to Bobby's stall, hopped into the manger and presented a very fresh egg to the horse.

Bobby, in turn, rewarded her by nosing some of his oats her way. The hen feasted, clucked thanks and departed.

Templeton's conviction is that the horse, by offering a share of his oats, persuaded the hen to trade eggs. Ever since then Bobby has had one hen, and sometimes two, laying eggs in his manger in return for oats.

A mild, friendly old horse, he shows annoyance only when someone enters the stall while his pet hen is there laying. Bobby is still able to do a good day's work.

FARMERS VITAL COG IN BUSINESS

Chamber Of Commerce Director Claims Their Problems Must Be Recognized

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 3 (C.P.)—Chambers of Commerce must recognize the farmer's place in business spheres, declared Clinton Henderson, Montreal, director of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who addressed the Belleville Chamber of Commerce last night.

A representative Chamber of Commerce, he said, must give a prominent place to the farmer because the prosperity of business was inseparable from the prosperity of agriculture. He said the Canadian Chamber of Commerce had always given prominence to the farmer's problems.

"One of the things we have to endeavor to offset is the sincere but narrow-minded and half-informed soapbox agitator who tries to create division, suspicion, and ill-feeling between the different elements of our national life," he continued.

The milk price spread, he said, was too great.

"Dairymen who supply market milk to-day receive a higher price than the average dairyman who converts his milk before it is sold or sells for conversion purposes," Mr. Henderson said.

He declared when the consumer consents to receiving milk from one source, the price will drop and the farmer will benefit from the increased quantity consumed.

NO MORE PILES

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief.

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to return your money, if just one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

Spend Millions to Relieve Piles

It is estimated that over a million dollars annually is spent for various remedies for relieving Piles. Yet thousands of pile sufferers know that cooling Peterson's Ointment can allay the torture in a few minutes. Stops itching promptly, and brings quick soothing relief. CAMPBELLFORD

CONTRACT IS LET FOR MASONIC HALL

Campbellford Lodge Will Have Fine Quarters In Old Theatre

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4.—At a meeting of the building committee of the Masonic Order last night Mr. A. J. Meyers was awarded the first contract to be let in connection with the re-modelling of the old Regent Theatre which was recently purchased by the Masons. When the building is completed next fall it will be the culmination of fifteen years of effort on the part of the Masons.

The present contract which is to be completed by April 15 calls for the levelling of the basement floor, putting in a new floor and re-setting the furnaces. The main floor will be completely renovated to form an auditorium and above this a new floor will be placed where the Masons will have their lodge rooms. In the basement will be a large club room, kitchen, pantry, two dressing rooms, ladies and gentlemen's cloak rooms and lavatories.

There were five other tenders for the initial contract.

liament,' a defect which he recognized and admitted.

There was general acceptance of the principle that Canadians should have a fair share of employment on steamers subsidized by the Dominion but less support for the drastic remedy proposed.

Former State Secretary Cahan expressed doubt that Canadians would desire to work as seamen on the Pacific fleet where the passenger list was largely Oriental and could best be served by Oriental crews. He also questioned how else the mails would be carried between Canada and the Orient. If the C. P. R. boats were eliminated it could be done only by subsidizing United States liners which employed no, Canadians, he said.

The Atlantic Question.

The two Halifax Liberals, R. E. Finn and Gordon Isnor and J. J. Kinley (Lib. Queen's-Lunenburg) raised the Atlantic aspect of the question. Mr. Isnor said the request had applied similarly to the Canadian West Indies services operated by the Canadian National Steamships, and it was only within the last few weeks that company had attempted to conform to it.

Mr. Finn complained that young Maritimers wishing to follow the sea could not find ships and charged that ships of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine had been sold for a small sum when it had become a paying business. He warned that he would demand from the Government more information on this sale.

The problem was the outcome of selfishness on the part of big corporations, in Mr. Kinley's opinion. Steamship companies wanted subsidies, but also wanted to employ seamen where they could get them most cheaply. The Dominion paid subsidies on Nova Scotia coal shipped to Central Canada, but Canadians could not get berths on ships carrying the coal, he said.

Mr. Reid withdrew the resolution on the assurance from Labor Minister Rogers that representatives of his Department and the Department of Trade and Commerce would investigate the basis of the claim of the Canadian Pacific that it could not conform with the request unless higher subsidies were paid.

Private member resolutions will have priority again to-day, first on the list being that of T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn) calling for automatic conscription of every agency, financial, industrial, transportation or natural resources, in the event of war involving Canada.

UNION LEADERS SEEKING VIEWS

jor wage fight might get together for direct negotiations before the poll of the 117,000 workers was completed. There was no intimation from either side today on the question of whether such conferences could span the cleavage between the MacLean conciliation board's majority report and the minority report advocating full restoration, which the labor leaders accepted.

The majority recommendation, as brought down by Justice A. K. MacLean of the Exchequer Court, chairman, and W. Sanford Evans, railway companies' nominee, was for reduction of the cut to nine per cent by February 1; to eight per cent by August 1, and to seven per cent by November 1. All increases were to be predicated on a set basis of increased farmings by the railroads.

A minority report, prepared by the workers' representative, Fred Bancroft, and declaring company earnings should not be considered in the settlement, urged complete restoration of the wage cut by Nov. 1.

There was no official statement following the committee meeting, but in some quarters it was believed the unions would negotiate further only on grounds suggested in the minority report.

OBITUARY

SAMUEL JOHN HUGHES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, Feb. 4.—The funeral of the late Samuel John Hughes, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hughes of Smith Township, was held on Monday at 2 p.m., from the residence of the deceased's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Northey. The service was conducted by Rev. C. C. Miller, of Bridgenorth, assisted by Mr. Stewart, student in charge at Wesley United Church.

The deceased was in his 18th year and his death came as a great shock to his many friends of the community. His first illness began with influenza and gradually became more serious. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, the Sunday before his death, and he passed away on Saturday, January 30th.

He will be greatly missed in the community. He was an active members in the United Church and Sunday School. His was a very sunny nature and he greeted everyone, and at all times with a broad, happy smile. The remains were laid to rest in Roy's Cemetery, Lakefield.

The pall-bearers were: Elmer Rosborough, Max Fowler, Melville Elliott, Charlie McTimoyle, Morley Nixon and Harry McConkey, all of whom were school chums of the deceased.

Left to mourn are his sorrowing parents, two sisters, Marvel and Helen and two brothers, Arthur and Allan. There are also a number of half-brothers and sisters on both sides of the family.

MRS. MARY A. ROSS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 4.—After an illness of a few days' duration, Mrs. Mary Alwilda Ross, widow of George Albert Ross, passed away early Wednesday morning, February 3, at the residence of her son, Mr. Milton M. Ross, in the 4th Concession of the Township of Thurlow.

The late Mrs. Ross was born 80 years ago at Stoco, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Palmer. For the past sixty years she had been a resident of the Township of Thurlow, and was highly esteemed. In religion she was a member of the United Church.

Surviving her are two sons, Mr. Milton Ross, of Thurlow Township, and Mr. E. A. Ross, of Erickson, Manitoba.

MRS. MARY CORRIGAN.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 4.—On Tuesday morning, Mrs. Mary Corrigan, widow of Thomas Corrigan, passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Mulrooney, at Marlbank, where she was visiting. She had been ill about four weeks.

The late Mrs. Corrigan, who was in her 69th year, was born at Read, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hart. All her life was passed in the district where she was born. In religion, she was a member of St. Charles Roman Catholic Church at Read, and was an active member in church and community work.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Stanley Mulrooney, Marlbank; Mrs. J. J. Brickley, Cuba; the Rev. Sister St. Vincent of the Congregational Order of Notre Dame, Toronto; four sons: Thomas J. Corrigan, Michael Corrigan and Eugene Corrigan, all of Read, and Joseph Corrigan of Rochester, N.Y.; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Candon and Mrs. Geo. McWilliams, both of Read; three brothers: John Hart and Thomas Hart, both of Detroit, Mich., and Patrick Hart of Belleville.

The funeral was held on Thursday morning, at ten o'clock, from her late residence, R.R. No. 1, Roblin, to St. Charles Roman Catholic Church, where Requiem Mass was sung. Interment was made in St. Charles' Cemetery.

ROBERT McCRACKEN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Feb. 4.—Robert McCracken died at his home on the Second Concession of Dummer, on Thursday afternoon. Though seriously ill for a long time, death came suddenly.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson of Warsaw United Church, of which church Mr. McCracken was an honored member. Mr. Wilkinson spoke from John 17, verse 4, "I have glorified Thee on the earth; I have finished the work which Thou gavest me to do." He spoke of Mr. McCracken being a faithful member of the church since 1882, and believed he had been true to his God and feared no evil, quoting, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me." Mr. McCracken had glorified God in his life. At one time he had been a local minister.

The minister also spoke of him as a faithful and devoted husband and father, and of his working so long as he was able, and of his good age, 88 years.

Interment took place in the family plot in St. Mark's Cemetery, Warsaw. The pall-bearers were: Everett Garbutt, Alfred and Jacob Payne, Allan Edwards, Chester McCracken, and James Hannan.

Mr. McCracken was born on the homestead, Lot 16, Concession 2 of Dummer, on the Third Line, the son of the late William McCracken and his wife, Frances Ann McCracken. Of a large family, he was the last of seven brothers. Two sisters, Miss Sarah and Miss Josephine are still living. One son, Allan and one daughter, Clara, at home; also two daughters, Mrs. Ida Nixon of Vancouver, and Mrs. Mae Cunningham of Poplar Point, Manitoba, survive him. A son, Wilbert, died in the Great War.

A great number attended the service.

MRS. BRUCE COONES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Bruce Coones, age 57 passed away at her home on Tuesday, Jan. 26. The funeral took place at her home on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. conducted by the Rev. R. Vatcher. Hymns sung were "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Abide With Me" "And Nearer My God to Thee."

Pall-bearers were Joe Sexsmith, Reg McCauley, George Erbeck, Hiram Keitch. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Mr. Bruce Coones.

$56,000 PLACED IN CITY'S BUDGET FOR 1937 RELIEF

The Amount Proposed By Committee Is $14,000 Less Than Last Year

DISCUSS SALARIES

Alderman James Hamilton Fears Tax Rate This Year Will Be Higher

Expenditure of $56,000 to be drawn from the city's treasury for relief purposes this year was estimated by the relief committee Thursday night, and with its approval was passed on to the finance committee as another bulky item for the 1937 budget. This amount is $14,000 less than last year, and does not include the money the city will receive for relief purposes from the provincial government.

"It looks as if the $20,000 the council expected to save on mothers' allowances and old age pensions, which the government is assuming, is going to be spent by the Board of Education," Mayor Macdonald commented in the course of a discussion on salaries.

"Why should we sit back and let the Board of Education spend it?" Alderman McIntyre enquired. "When I see some man working for the property committee and getting only $12 a week, I certainly don't think it is fair to keep on paying such a low wage as that."

And Alderman Sloan mentioned truck drivers whose wage of $18, he said, should be increased to $18, while the men on the garbage collection truck were paid $20 and $22.

"The garbage men start work at 7 in the morning, and they have long hours and hard work," Ald. McIntyre said.

Excluding the question of wage increases from the prospects, Alderman Hamilton declared that it was going to be hard to keep this year's tax rate down to the level of last year's.

"I don't think anyone wants to see the rate increased," Mayor Macdonald said. "What I think we might do is go ahead with the estimates and find out what we are going to need, and at the same time have a list of the salaries prepared for each alderman as a guide when we're striking the rate."

Alderman McIntyre remarked that nothing would contribute more to better times than the payment of reasonable wages, and Mayor Macdonald said the members generally "are anxious to increase the low wages and salaries."

NOVA SCOTIA WINS OVER GAS FIRMS

Three of Seven Agree To Keep Old Price—Remainder Undecided

HALIFAX, Feb. 5.—(CP)—Three out of seven oil companies operating in Nova Scotia acceded today to the edict of the Nova Scotia Board of Public Utilities, and notified Minister of Highways A. S. MacMillan they had dropped prices to original levels, eliminating the one-half cent increase announced over the week-end.

The Highways Minister said he was confident other companies would follow the lead of the first three before the deadline set for midnight tonight by the board. Penalty for not conforming to the reduced price was to be suspension of wholesalers' licenses, the board said.

The seven companies receiving the board's ultimatum when the price was raised to 28½ cents over the week-end were: British American Oil, Irving, Eastern, Provincial, Imperial, Canadian and McColl-Frontenac companies.

Cause of the deadlock is the gasoline sale act which came into effect two years ago. According to the statute, the board claims, oil companies must appear before increasing the prices and establish to the board's satisfaction an increase would be fair to producer and consumer. The companies maintain they do not need the sanction of the board.

FLINT, Mich.—Conferees in Detroit seeking a basis of settlement in the General Motors automotive strike were reported at National Guard headquarters here this afternoon to be nearing an agreement. This word came as Sheriff Thomas Wolcott, holding an eviction order against sit-down strikers in two Fisher body plants, was conferring with Col. Joseph H. Lewis, commanding officer of the Guardsmen.

HALIFAX.—Two companies continued to hold out today against an ultimatum from the Board of Public Utilities that an increase of one half per cent in the wholesale prices of gasoline must be dropped pending consideration by the board. The two companies, according to Highways Minister A. S. MacMillan, were the Imperial Oil Company and the Canadian Oil Company.

Weyburn C. C. F. Member's Plan For Automatic Conscription Of Resources Talked Out

WAR PROFITS UP

Rinfret Sees Neutral Proposal Futile In Case General Conflict Breaks

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—(CP).—Rumors of war and pleas for peace action, coupled with attacks on war profiteering, continue to occupy members of the House of Commons, pending the debate long-anticipated when national defence estimates are up for consideration.

Yesterday's sittings were devoted to resolutions of James S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F. group, and Rev. T. C. Douglas, his supporter from Weyburn.

The resolutions interlocked to a considerable extent and discussion ranged from demands for a strong defence force to a statutory unarmed neutrality.

Without a vote the House defeated Mr. Woodsworth's resolution calling for Canada to remain strictly neutral in time of war, regardless of who the belligerents might be, removal of the profit motive from the manufacture of war materials, and Canadian efforts to find and remove "causes of International friction and social injustice."

Mr. Douglas' resolution called for automatic conscription of facilities and natural resources in the event of war. It was brought down late and was still under discussion when the House adjourned for the night.

In a mad world Canada must take steps to defend her shores Justice Minister Lapointe told the House as he declared he would not shirk his duty to support proper defensive measures.

At the same time the Minister declared Communism and Fascism were fanatical political doctrines equally abhorrent to Canadians and if any war developed in Europe out of a conflict of these doctrines he would not spend a single cent or a single life in defence of either.

Preparedness for Defence

Mr. Woodsworth, he said, had sought to appeal to French-Canadians, but French-Canadians would not follow his leadership. He opposed the resolution and was supported by two other Quebec members, H. E. Brunelle (Lib. Champlain) and J. L. Malette (Lib Jacques-Cartier).

Torpedoed British Vessel Found In Straits of Messina.

GENOA, Italy, Feb. 5.—(CP-Reuters)—Wreck of the British steamship Mongara, torpedoed by a German submarine in July, 1917, in the Straits of Messina, has been located by the salvage ship Artiglio.

En route from Sydney to London, the Mongara carried a cargo insured for £75,000 ($375,000). It included a quantity of copper, zinc, lead and steel.

The Mongara lies 1,000 feet deep. It is not expected salvage operations will begin until next year.

GAS STATION WORKER SLAIN FOR DAY'S CASH

Montreal Man Found Slumped In Doorway Three Bullets In Body

SIGNS OF SCUFFLE

MONTREAL, Feb. 5—(C.P.).—Police spread a dragnet through the city to-day for a bandit who killed Paul Gaudette, 30, to get at a night's "take" in the filling station attendant's cash register.

Gaudette's body, a bullet through the heart and two in the abdomen, was found inside the doorway of the station office to-day by three employees of a nearby filling station, attracted by lights in Gaudette's office burning far past the usual closing hour.

Police believed he had been shot last night while standing in the doorway to the office, perhaps after he had scuffled with the bandit outside. His windbreaker had been ripped open, and his other clothes were disarranged.

One of the air pumps of the station had been pulled out, and one of the gasoline pumps was half empty, leading police to believe the bandit either purchased gasoline before the holdup or filled his tank after the shooting.

Swaps Theft Story For Meal Then Surrenders To Mounties

Skipped Ft. William With $64 Radio License Funds Last Spring He Tells Newsman

IN DEBT OVER ILLNESS

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Feb. 5.—(CP).—A man who said he was Maurice Buckley of Fort William, traded his runaway story with a reporter to-day for a meal—then surrendered to Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He said he wanted to face a charge of stealing radio license funds at Fort William.

Buckley said he ran away from the lakehead city last spring owing $64 to the Canadian government. He collected the money as radio license collector. Since then he's been pretty well all over the east in his travels—North Bay, Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Peterborough, Toronto, Windsor.

Last winter Buckley said he was forced to go on relief at Fort William and on April 1 he got the license collecting job, going from door to door to collect $2 from radio owners who hadn't purchased cards. A few days after he got the job he said his wife went to hospital. He had to pay to have his three children cared for.

He started "nibbling" at the license money. He added up $80 in arrears after his father died April 20, he said. Buckley said he told his superior of his troubles got another job and paid back $16. Then he "blew" the city.

When he visited Fort William again his wife told him she had sworn out a warrant against him charging non-support in order to get relief. "I told her she'd done right," Buckley related.

But the wanderer is tired of hitchhiking around the country. If R.C.M.P. finds a charge against him at Fort William he will be taken there.

Canada Believed Knocking At Era Of Glass Houses

Flat Roofs, Simplicity Of Design, Brighter Colors, Air Conditioning, Indirect Lighting Included

APPEAL TO YOUTH

By Ted Farah
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Feb. 5 — (C.P.). — Come the architectural revolution in Canada, people who live in glass houses will not have to undress in the dark. Also, they will be able to throw stones just like anyone else.

An impression of architectural trends gleaned from photographic exhibits of outstanding works throughout the Dominion during the last two years indicates that glass blocks will be used more and more in Canadian homes and business structures.

The glass blocks admit a lovely light, but can't be seen through. They provide an insulation that keeps a home warmer in winter, cooler in summer. And they are practically unbreakable.

The sixth biennial exhibition of Architecture and Allied Arts, sponsored by the Toronto Chapter of the Ontario Association of Architects, opens here to-night. Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General, will deliver the address which formally opens the show. Enlarged photographs of the best architectural work done in Canada since the last exhibition two years ago will present a panorama of the Dominion's awakening to modern influences, according to John M. Lyle, chairman of the hanging committee.

REPORT WINDSOR TO WED APRIL 27

Either At Rothschild Estate Or In Vienna—Sister To Aid With Plans

VIENNA, Feb. 5—(CP)—The Associated Press today quoted "a usually reliable source" as saying the Duke of Windsor plans to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson on April 27 at either the Enzesfeld Castle of Baron Eugene Rothschild or in Vienna.

This is the date on which Mrs. Simpson's divorce decree from Ernest Aldrich Simpson supposedly will become final.

The Duke wants his fiancee to arrive in Vienna, April 24, three days before the proposed date for the wedding ceremony, this source said.

The informant added the wedding probably would be held at Enzesfeld because the expenses there would be less than in the Austrian capital.

He emphasized, however, that these current plans are subject to change—particularly after the Duke confers with his sister, the Princess Royal, who will arrive in Vienna Sunday.

(The Princess left Leeds today for London on her way to visit her brother. She will be the first member of the royal family to see the former ruler since his abdication last December.)

U.S. Murder Hearing Is Wired For Sound

Los Angeles, Feb. 5 (AP)

THROUGH the medium of "tables," a defendant in a murder trial told a jury here yesterday he did not kill the victim.

Motion pictures, with sound, showed Robert Hayes, charged with the murder of David Monroe, being questioned by two detectives. The jury heard Hayes deny he killed Monroe. It was the first time sound pictures have been used in court here.

GERMAN ENVOY GREETS GEORGE VI. WITH NAZI SALUTE

Observers Differ On Whether Ribbentrop Used Words "Heil Hitler"

CREATES SENSATION

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to Great Britain, created a sensation in diplomatic circles yesterday by greeting King George with the Nazi salute instead of a formal bow when he presented his credentials at Buckingham Palace.

One source said Von Ribbentrop raised his right arm in front of him, palm down and fingers outstretched, in the Nazi salute, and, in ringing tones, said "Heil Hitler."

King George was said to have answered the salutation with the prescribed bow.

Another source said the German envoy clicked his heels smartly, raised his arm in the salute, took several strides forward and then repeated the Nazi greeting twice more. This observer, however, did not mention hearing the "Heil Hitler."

One, however, declared Von Ribbentrop was perfectly within his rights in giving the German salutation because the court of Saint James recognizes the customs of the country from which the envoy comes.

TORONTO Feb. 5.—(CP).—Conference between the Ontario Hydro Commission and the Ottawa Valley Power Company was still on to-day.

Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck said there was nothing to announce "yet" but he indicated progress is being made in the talks concerning the possible purchase of 96,000 horsepower from the Ottawa Valley Company and the possible purchase of the Ottawa Valley's Chat Falls plant.

Mr Roebuck noted the present conference now in its fourth day and likely to continue next week, had lasted longer than any of several held within the past two years.

BOTH RAILWAYS READY TO START MACLEAN PLAN

BEATTY, HUNGERFORD SIGN

Unions Expect Strike Vote To Go 98 P.C. In Favor—Possibly Unanimous

MONTREAL, Feb. 5—(CP).—The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways will take immediate steps to implement the recommendations of the MacLean Conciliation Board, to reduce wage cuts from 10 to 9 per cent. effective February 1, according to a letter received to-day by Howard B. Chase, spokesman for 17 railway running trades which are being polled for a general strike.

"The railways are prepared to accept the recommendations of the board as basis for an agreement between the railways and employees for adjustment of the dispute," says the letter, signed by Sir Edward Beatty, President of the C.P.R., and S. J. Hungerford, President of the C.N.R. The letter also was sent to W. M. Dickson, Deputy Minister of Labor, Ottawa.

98 Per Cent. Strike Vote

Chase forecast a 98 per cent. strike vote from the 117,000 employees involved in the balloting. "I wouldn't be surprised if the vote is unanimous," he said.

Each union must decide its own fate with respect to a strike, said Chase. If one union votes not to strike, however, it will not effect the decision of the others to walk out.

A battery of clerks rushed ballots into the mails to-day from the union headquarters here. The ballots are returnable February 26, and announcement of results is expected during the first week of March.

KINGSTON BOARD JUMPS ESTIMATES

Ask $7,201 More—Give Public School Pay Cuts Back

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 5—(CP)—The Board of Education at their meeting last night passed estimates asking the city council to provide $215,568 for the year, including $125,368 for the public schools, $60,772 for the collegiate institute and $29,427 for the vocational school. The amount is an increase of $7,201 over last year. In addition the board asks for issue of debentures to the amount of $35,000 for reconditioning Central public school.

Request from the collegiate institute and public school teachers for the restoration of the remainder of their salary reduction was received.

The board decided to restore the salary cut to the teachers of the public schools, but not of the collegiate institute.

General Motors Counsel Informs Governor Murphy By Telephone

AWAIT HIS INSTRUCTIONS

Ultimatum Is Read To 200 Of The "Sit-Down" Gang In Factory No. 2

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 5—(A.P.). — General Motors attorneys obtained a court writ to-day ordering the arrest of strikers occupying two Fisher Body plants here, and announced that Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott had requested the aid of the National Guard in enforcing the order.

That announcement came from Ralph Gault, of counsel for General Motors here. He said the request was made by telephone to Governor Frank Murphy in Detroit.

Col. Joseph H. Lewis, National Guard Commander in the Flint area, said he had received no instructions from the Governor to order the troops into action.

Captain Phil Pack, press representative of the National Guard who participated in conference at which the writs of attachment were issued, said the sheriff had gone to Fisher Plant No. 2 to read the order to approximately 200 "stay-in-strikers." Captain Pack said there would be no physical attempt to enforce the writ "for the present."

The writs, addressed to the sheriff, say: "You are commanded to attach the bodies of all the occupants of Fisher Body Plants No. 1 and 2."

HINT SINGLE MEN MAY BE CUT OFF RELIEF ON APRIL 1

London Mayor Learns All Physically Fit Married Men May Be Included

DECISION SHORTLY

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 5.—(CP)—Some drastic changes in relief policies for the province are under consideration with the possibility that single men and even physically fit married men may be struck off the relief lists April 1. At the same time the advisability of a maximum relief allowance is studied and may be recommended to the government.

Mayor Kingsmill, back from Toronto today, obtained this information from Hon. D. A. Croll, minister of welfare. While the head of the Provincial Welfare Department did not commit the government to anything definite, the mayor said he believed that London would be given assistance in various ways.

With respect to cutting single men off relief, Mr. Croll advised Mayor Kingsmill to let the matter rest for another two weeks with the possibility that some action might be taken in government circles.

ROOSEVELT URGES COURT CHANGES

Would Add Six Judges To Supreme Bench And Two In Lower Division

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 (AP) — President Roosevelt in a surprise message to United States Congress today recommended a sweeping reorganization of federal court machinery, including an increase in judgeships of the Supreme and Lower Courts and a method for speeding high court decisions on constitutional questions.

In a tentative draft of a bill accompanying the message, the president would be given the power to increase the Supreme Court by a maximum of six justices to 15 and the lower courts by two members each unless judges over 70 retired.

"These proposals do not raise any issue of constitution law," the president said, listing four specific recommendations as follows:

1—Power for the president to nominate an additional judge in any court when an incumbent has reached the age of 70, has held office for 10 years and within six months after reaching 70 has neither resigned or retired.

2—Power for the Supreme Court to appoint an administrative assistant or "proctor" to watch lower court calendars and permit the chief justice to assign district and circuit judges temporarily to areas where the dockets are congested.

3—Provision that no decision, injunction, judgment or decree on any constitutional question be promulgated by any federal court without previous and ample notice to the attorney general of the United States and an opportunity for the United States to present evidence and be heard.

4—Provision that when any inferior court determines a question of constitutionality, there shall be a direct and immediate appeal to the Supreme Court and that such cases take precedence over all other matters pending in that court.

The president's message also was accompanied by a letter from Attorney General Cummings asserting delay in administration of justice "is the outstanding defect of our federal judicial system."

WOMAN IS SENTENCED

Gets 6 Months For Defrauding Toronto Of Relief.

TORONTO, Feb. 5 (CP) — First woman sentenced in York County Police Court for relief fraud, Mrs. Ethel Woods, York Township, was today sentenced by Magistrate William Keith to six months in jail.

"This is the worst case of its kind ever to have been heard in this court," said Magistrate Keith. "There has been just one false statement after another."

Her husband, Percy Woods, was acquitted of the charge.

Edward Expected To Decline Invitation To Garter Service

June 14 Service Is Heralded As Second In Splendor And Pageantry Only To Coronation

4 FOREIGN KINGS COMING

LONDON, Feb. 5 (CP).—The Associated Press says it learned authoritatively today that the Duke of Windsor will be invited formally to attend one of the functions in connection with the coronation of his brother, King George VI., but it is assumed he will decline.

Friends of the Duke here, who believe he will marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson after her divorce from Ernest Simpson is made absolute, believe he does not plan to return to England, the Associated Press said.

Mrs. Simpson was granted a decree nisi last October 27. It may be made absolute April 27.

The occasion for which the Duke might most appropriately return home, it was stated, will be the ceremonial "Garter Service" which will be held June 14 in Windsor Castle.

It will be an event already heralded as second in splendor and pageantry only to the coronation itself.

Four foreign rulers, the Kings of Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, and all 27 British knights with the assumed exception of the Duke of Windsor, will gather in a cenotaph of England's oldest and most noble order of chivalry.

Two queens, Queen Elizabeth and Queen-Mother Mary, the only two ladies of the Garter, also will be there.

Trained Ox Team Sold To Make Steaks

Goderich, Feb. 5.

MORE than 2,200 pounds of beef, wrapped up in the tough hides of Huron County's only team of trained oxen, have gone to the slaughter house. The team was owned by Nelson Culbert of Dungannon, who raised the three-year-olds from calves, training them to do every day farm work. Mr. Culbert always said they were as gentle as lambs, but when he exhibited them, yoked to a heavy wagon, at fall fairs, it was noticed the curious gave the great beasts a wide berth.

Expenditure of $56,000 to be drawn from the city's treasury for relief purposes this year was estimated by the relief committee Thursday night, and with its approval was passed on to the finance committee as another bulky item for the 1937 budget. This amount is $14,000 less than last year, and does not include the money the city will receive for relief purposes from the provincial government.

Montreal Man Found Slumped In Doorway Three Bullets In Body

SIGNS OF SCUFFLE

MONTREAL, Feb. 5—(C.P.). — Police spread a dragnet through the city to-day for a bandit who killed Paul Gaudette, 38, to get at a night's "take" in the filling station attendant's cash register.

Gaudette's body, a bullet through the heart and two in the abdomen, was found inside the doorway of the station office to-day by three employees of a nearby filling station, attracted by lights in Gaudette's office burning far past the usual closing hour.

Police believed he had been shot last night while standing in the doorway to the office, perhaps after he had scuffled with the bandit outside. His windbreaker had been ripped open, and his other clothes were disarranged.

One of the air pumps of the station had been pulled out, and one of the gasoline pumps was half empty, leading police to believe the bandit either purchased gasoline before the holdup or filled his tank after the shooting.

Swaps Theft Story For Meal Then Surrenders To Mounties

Skipped Ft. William With $64 Radio License Funds Last Spring He Tells Newsman

IN DEBT OVER ILLNESS

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Feb. 5.—(CP).—A man who said he was Maurice Buckley of Fort William, traded his runaway story with a reporter to-day for a meal—then surrendered to Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He said he wanted to face a charge of stealing radio license funds at Fort William.

Buckley said he ran away from the lakehead city last spring owing $64 to the Canadian government. He collected the money as radio license collector. Since then he's been pretty well all over the east in his travels—North Bay, Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Peterborough, Toronto, Windsor.

Last winter Buckley said he was forced to go on relief at Fort William and on April 1 he got the license collecting job, going from door to door to collect $2 from radio owners who hadn't purchased cards. A few days after he got the job he said his wife went to hospital. He had to pay to have his three children cared for.

He started "nibbling" at the license money. He edged up $40 in arrears after his father died April 20, he said. Buckley said he told his superior of his troubles got another job and paid back $16. Then he "blew" the city.

When he visited Fort William again his wife told him she had sworn out a warrant against him charging non-support in order to get relief. "I told her she'd done right," Buckley related.

But the wanderer is tired of hitchhiking around the country. If R.C.M.P. finds a charge against him at Fort William he will be taken there.

A PARTING GIFT

Street Cleaning Official Retires—Gets Barrel of Trash, Concealing Radio

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 5—(C.P.)—When Harry De Veniish retired as assistant superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department, fellow employees appropriately enough presented him with a big barrel of trash.

Under the tin cans and old shoes, however, was a new radio.

Big Nickel Brings Grief To Church

Port Arthur, Feb. 5. (CP)

TRINITY United Church collections decreased in 1936, annual reports showed tonight.

Commented the minister, Rev. Harry Heathfield: "The big nickel is the bane of our existence. It is the worst thing the Government ever did."

Canada Believed Knocking At Era Of Glass Houses

APPEAL TO YOUTH

By Ted Farah
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Feb. 5 — (C.P.). — Come the architectural revolution in Canada, people who live in glass houses will not have to undress in the dark. Also, they will be able to throw stones just like anyone else.

An impression of architectural trends gleaned from photographic exhibits of outstanding works throughout the Dominion during the last two years indicates that glass blocks will be used more and more in Canadian homes and business structures.

The glass blocks admit a lovely light, but can't be seen through. They provide an insulation that keeps a home warmer in winter, cooler in summer. And they are practically unbreakable.

The sixth biennial exhibition of Architecture and Allied Arts, sponsored by the Toronto Chapter of the Ontario Association of Architects, opens here to-night. Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General, will deliver the address which formally opens the show. Enlarged photographs of the best architectural work done in Canada since the last exhibition two years ago will present a panorama of the Dominion's awakening to modern influences, according to John M. Lyle, chairman of the hanging committee.

REPORT WINDSOR TO WED APRIL 27

Either At Rothschild Estate Or In Vienna—Sister To Aid With Plans

VIENNA, Feb. 5—(CP)—The Associated Press today quoted "a usually reliable source" as saying the Duke of Windsor plans to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson on April 27 at either the Ensesfeld Castle of Baron Eugene Rothschild or in Vienna.

This is the date on which Mrs. Simpson's divorce decree from Ernest Aldrich Simpson supposedly will become final.

The Duke wants his fiancee to arrive in Vienna, April 24, three days before the proposed date for the wedding ceremony, this source said.

The informant added the wedding probably would be held at Ensesfeld because the expenses there would be less than in the Austrian capital.

He emphasized, however, that these current plans are subject to change—particularly after the Duke confers with his sister, the Princess Royal, who will arrive in Vienna Sunday.

(The Princess left Leeds today for London on her way to visit her brother. She will be the first member of the royal family to see the former ruler since his abdication last December.)

BOTH RAILWAYS READY TO START MACLEAN PLAN

Notify Spokesman For 17 Running Trades 1 P.C. Raise Effective Feb. 1

BEATTY, HUNGERFORD SIGN

MONTREAL, Feb. 5—(CP).—The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways will take immediate steps to implement the recommendations of the MacLean Conciliation Board, to reduce wage cuts from 10 to 9 per cent. effective February 1, according to a letter received to-day by Howard B. Chase, spokesman for 17 railway running trades which are being polled for a general strike.

"The railways are prepared to accept the recommendations of the board as basis for an agreement between the railways and employees for adjustment of the dispute," says the letter, signed by Sir Edward Beatty, President of the C.P.R., and S. J. Hungerford, President of the C.N.R. The letter also was sent to W. M. Dickson, Deputy Minister of Labor, Ottawa.

98 Per Cent. Strike Vote

Chase forecast a 98 per cent. strike vote from the 117,000 employees involved in the balloting. "I wouldn't be surprised if the vote is unanimous," he said.

Each union must decide its own fate with respect to a strike, said Chase. If one union votes not to strike, however, it will not effect the decision of the others to walk out.

A battery of clerks rushed ballots into the mails to-day from the union headquarters here. The ballots are returnable February 28, and announcement of results is expected during the first week of March.

KINGSTON BOARD JUMPS ESTIMATES

Ask $7,201 More—Give Public School Pay Cuts Back

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 5—(CP)—The Board of Education at their meeting last night passed estimates asking the city council to provide $215,568 for the year, including $125,368 for the public schools, $60,772 for the collegiate institute and $29,427 for the vocational school. The amount is an increase of $7,201 over last year. In addition the board asks for issue of debentures to the amount of $35,000 for reconditioning Central public school.

Request from the collegiate institute and public school teachers for the restoration of the remainder of their salary reduction was received.

The board decided to restore the salary cut to the teachers of the public schools, but not of the collegiate institute.

18,713 ON RELIEF

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 5—(C.P.).—Number of persons on relief in Windsor as at January 28 was 18,713, Welfare Administrator Charles Hays reported to-day. The total set a new low mark for the last five years.

GERMAN ENVOY GREETS GEORGE VI. WITH NAZI SALUTE

CREATES SENSATION

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to Great Britain, created a sensation in diplomatic circles yesterday by greeting King George with the Nazi salute instead of a formal bow when he presented his credentials at Buckingham Palace.

One source said Von Ribbentrop raised his right arm in front of him, palm down and fingers outstretched, in the Nazi salute and, in ringing tones, said "Heil Hitler."

King George was said to have answered the salutation with the prescribed bow.

Another source said the German envoy clicked his heels smartly, raised his arm in the salute, took several strides forward and then repeated the Nazi greeting twice more. This observer, however, did not mention hearing the "Heil Hitler."

One, however, declared Von Ribbentrop was perfectly within his right in giving the German salutation because the court of Saint James recognizes the customs of the country from which the envoy comes.

PARLEY ON FOURTH DAY

Roebuck Indicates Progress in Power Talks.

TORONTO Feb. 5.—(CP).—Conference between the Ontario Hydro Commission and the Ottawa Valley Power Company was still on to-day.

Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck said there was nothing to announce "yet" but he indicated progress is being made in the talks concerning the possible purchase of 96,000 horsepower from the Ottawa Valley Company and the possible purchase of the Ottawa Valley's Chat Falls plant.

Mr Roebuck noted the present conference now in its fourth day and likely to continue next week, had lasted longer than any of several held within the past two years.

U.S. Murder Hearing Is Wired For Sound

Los Angeles, Feb. 5 (AP)

THROUGH the medium of "takies," a defendant in a murder trial told a jury here yesterday he did not kill the victim.

Motion pictures, with sound, showed Robert Hayes, charged with the murder of David Monroe, being questioned by two detectives. The jury heard Hayes deney he killed Monroe. It was the first time sound pictures have been used in court here.

Sheriff Calls For Aid From National Guard Enforce Court Order

Boy Kidnapper?

From descriptions given by eye-witnesses of the kidnapping of ten-year-old Charles Mattson of Tacoma, Washington, artists have drawn this portrait of the man who took away and killed the son of Dr. W. W. Matteson. The U.S. department of justice is sending out thousands of copies of this picture with the hope that it will lead to the identification and capture of the fiend who kidnapped and killed the Tacoma boy.

General Motors Counsel Informs Governor Murphy By Telephone

AWAIT HIS INSTRUCTIONS

Ultimatum Is Read To 200 Of The "Sit-Down" Gang In Factory No. 2

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 5—(A.P.). — General Motors attorneys obtained a court writ to-day ordering the arrest of strikers occupying two Fisher Body plants here, and announced that Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott had requested the aid of the National Guard in enforcing the order.

That announcement came from Ralph Gault, of counsel for General Motors here. He said the request was made by telephone to Governor Frank Murphy in Detroit.

Col. Joseph H. Lewis, National Guard Commander in the Flint area, said he had received no instructions from the Governor to order the troops into action.

Captain Phil Pack, press representative of the National Guard who participated in conference at which the writs of attachment were issued, said the sheriff had gone to Fisher Plant No. 2 to read the order to approximately 200 "stay-in-strikers." Captain Pack said there would be no physical attempt to enforce the writ "for the present."

The writs, addressed to the sheriff, say: "You are commanded to attach the bodies of all the occupants of Fisher Body Plants No. 1 and 2."

HINT SINGLE MEN MAY BE CUT OFF RELIEF ON APRIL 1

London Mayor Learns All Physically Fit Married Men May Be Included

DECISION SHORTLY

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 5.—(CP)—Some drastic changes in relief policies for the province are under consideration with the possibility that single men and even physically fit married men may be struck off the relief lists April 1. At the same time the advisability of a maximum relief allowance is studied and may be recommended to the government.

Mayor Kingsmill, back from Toronto today, obtained this information from Hon. D. A. Croll, minister of welfare. While the head of the Provincial Welfare Department did not commit the government to anything definite, the mayor said he believed that London would be given assistance in various ways.

With respect to cutting single men off relief, Mr. Croll advised Mayor Kingsmill to let the matter rest for another two weeks with the possibility that some action might be taken in government circles.

VOTE TO START WORK.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 5 (C.P.)—At a meeting of the employees of the Dominion Radiator and Boiler Company held in the Labor Hall and presided over by Meri Marks, representative of the International Moulders' Union from Cincinnati, the men unanimously voted to return to work on Monday.

ROOSEVELT URGES COURT CHANGES

Would Add Six Judges To Supreme Bench And Two In Lower Division

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 (AP) — President Roosevelt in a surprise message to United States Congress today recommended a sweeping reorganization of federal court machinery, including an increase in judgeships of the Supreme and Lower Courts and a method for speeding high court decisions on constitutional questions.

In a tentative draft of a bill accompanying the message, the president would be given the power to increase the Supreme Court by a maximum of six justices to 15 and the lower courts by two members each unless judges over 70 retired.

"These proposals do not raise any issue of constitution law," the president said, listing four specific recommendations as follows:

1—Power for the president to nominate an additional judge in any court when an incumbent has reached the age of 70, has held office for 10 years and within six months after reaching 70 has neither resigned or retired.

2—Power for the Supreme Court to appoint an administrative assistant or "proctor" to watch lower court calendars and permit the chief justice to assign district and circuit judges temporarily to areas where the dockets are congested.

3—Provision that no decision, injunction, judgment or decree on any constitutional question be promulgated by any federal court without previous and ample notice to the attorney general of the United States and an opportunity for the United States to present evidence and be heard.

4—Provision that when any inferior court determines a question of constitutionality, there shall be a direct and immediate appeal to the Supreme Court and that such cases take precedence over all other matters pending in that court.

The president's message also was accompanied by a letter from Attorney General Cummings asserting delay in administration of justice "is the outstanding defect of our federal judicial system."

WOMAN IS SENTENCED

Gets 6 Months For Defrauding Toronto Of Relief.

TORONTO, Feb. 5 (CP) — First woman sentenced in York County Police Court for relief fraud, Mrs. Ethel Woods, York Township, was today sentenced by Magistrate William Keith to six months in jail.

"This is the worst case of its kind ever to have been heard in this court," said Magistrate Keith. "There has been just one false statement after another."

Her husband, Percy Woods, was acquitted of the charge.

Edward Expected To Decline Invitation To Garter Service

June 14 Service Is Heralded As Second In Splendor And Pageantry Only To Coronation

4 FOREIGN KINGS COMING

LONDON, Feb. 5 (CP).—The Associated Press says it learned authoritatively today that the Duke of Windsor will be invited formally to attend one of the functions in connection with the coronation of his brother, King George VI., but it is assumed he will decline.

Friends of the Duke here, who believe he will marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson after her divorce from Ernest Simpson is made absolute, believe he does not plan to return to England, the Associated Press said.

Mrs. Simpson was granted a decree nisi last October 27. It may be made absolute April 27.

The occasion for which the Duke might most appropriately return home, it was stated, will be the ceremonial "Garter Service" which will be held June 14 in Windsor Castle.

It will be an event already heralded as second in splendor and pageantry only to the coronation itself.

Four foreign rulers, the Kings of Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, and all 27 British knights with the assumed exception of the Duke of Windsor, will gather in a conclave of England's oldest and most noble order of chivalry.

Two queens, Queen Elizabeth and Queen-Mother Mary, the only two ladies of the Garter, also will be there.

Trained Ox Team Sold To Make Steaks

Goderich, Feb. 5.

MORE than 2,200 pounds of beef, wrapped up in the tough hides of Huron County's only team of trained oxen, have gone to the slaughter house. The team was owned by Nelson Culbert of Dungannon, who raised the three-year-olds from calves, training them to do every day farm work. Mr. Culbert always said they were as gentle as lambs, but when he exhibited them, yoked to a heavy wagon, at fall fairs, it was noticed the curious gave the great beasts a wide berth.

LISTOWEL YOUTHS SMOTHER TO DEATH IN SAWDUST PILE

Huge Pile Caves In While Two Youths Are Loading Horse-Drawn Sleigh

OVERHANGING LEDGE

LISTOWEL, Feb 5 (C.P.)—When approximately a ton of sawdust caved in on top of them, Stanley Richardson and Victor Sandow, Listowel youths, were smothered to death late Thursday. They were engaged in loading a sleigh at the huge sawdust pile at Kee's Mill when the cave-in occurred.

Stanley Richardson left the farm of his father, William Richardson, during the afternoon to go to the mill for a load of sawdust. Victor Sandow, son of William Sandow, occasional worker at the mill, was helping Richardson load the sleigh.

At 6 o'clock Richardson's team of horses was seen standing alone and Alfred Kees noticed the cave-in. Mr. Richardson had come to the mill to see what had delayed his son.

Digging started immediately and the bodies were found under the frozen sawdust. Coroner Dr. W. C. Pratt said both had died from suffocation.

Ledge Overhanging.

The 14-year-old Sandow was helping Richardson take the sawdust from the bottom of the pile. Overhanging was a ledge of frozen sawdust fourteen feet long and five feet wide. It was three feet thick.

The ledge was apparently undermined as they removed the sawdust from the bottom, and it tumbled on them just as they were completing their work. It required eleven men to lift the frozen sawdust ledge before digging could start.

Richardson, 22 years of age, was a graduate of Listowel High School and a member of the school's original rugby team.

CALGARY PACKING PLANT STRIKE-TIED

100 Men Refuse To Work Until Labor Dispute Is Settled

CALGARY, Feb. 5—(C.P.)—One hundred men remained on strike at the Union Packing Company's plant here to-day, refusing to work until a labor dispute had been settled.

The strike was called yesterday after union leaders charge, five men had been dismissed for signing a petition seeking a conciliation board to hear demands for increased wages and improved working conditions.

At the start of the strike the five workers refused to leave the building. Police were called and after a brief parley, the men left. There was no disorder. One hundred other workers, however, declared they would remain in the plant.

The management denied the men had been dismissed and that the company objected to a conciliation board.

"The men were laid off," said A. H. Mayland, president of the company. "They were not dismissed. Time will settle the trouble."

NEVER MAKE VINEGAR

Officials Complain Cider Always Vanishes Before It Has Time To Ferment.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5 (CP)—The city has an orchard at its Warrensville workhouse. Its apples make fine vinegar—or, rather, they would, Superintendent H. L. Starkey reported, if the inmates didn't drink up the cider before it became vinegar.

Vinegar-making, he said, has been tried several times, "but it always winds up with a number of cases of intoxication."

Starkey wanted to know what to do with the 2,000 bushels of apples picked last fall.

LAUDS CANADA'S SCHOOLS

Detroiter Says Dominion Teaches Scholars Much, and Well

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 5—(C.P.).—The school system in Canada received praise from Roland Welsh, of the Department of English at Durfee Intermediate School, Detroit, speaking at the Windsor Teachers' Institute convention last night.

In his capacity as counsellor, Mr. Welsh said, he had met hundreds of Canadian students and had found them particularly well grounded in fundamental subjects. Boys and girls from the Dominion, transferred to American schools, have no difficulty in keeping up with the work of their new classmates, Mr. Welsh said.

"Canada does much in her schools," Mr. Welsh maintained, "and does it very well."

TOURISTS FROM SCOTLAND.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5 (C.P.). — Dr. J. H. Putman, senior Public School Inspector, announced last night 150 Scottish school boys would make a tour of Ontario in August. They will visit Hamilton, Toronto, Guelph, Kingston and Ottawa.

Bayonet-Armed Guards Keep Strikers Back

Following a clash between company police and union employees of the General Motors plant at Flint, Michigan, these National Guardsmen were rushed to the scene to prevent further disorder. Twelve persons were injured before the guardsmen arrived. This picture shows the guardsmen, bayonets fixed, stopping a crowd from advancing.

Latest Chain-Letter Racket Side-Steps Use Of The Mails

Detroit Commissioner Finds Several Of His Policemen Among Its Clientele

USES MESSENGERS

DETROIT, Feb. 5 (C.P.). — A new chain-letter scheme designed to avoid use of the mails has sprouted up in Detroit and Police Commissioner Heinrich A. Pickert became most interested when it was discovered several policemen were among the clientele of would-be millionaires.

Commissioner Pickert learned the system revolved around sending 99 cents with a chance of eventually receiving $500. The letters are delivered by messenger or taken by the writers to a building office here, then delivered from there to the addresses, without use of the mails.

CAIRO CHEERS UP AS FLOOD EASES

Cincinnati Reports Shopping Boom—Louisville Begins To Dry Off

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 5 (AP)—A battered but unyielding levee line repulsed the Mississipi's greatest crests today while rehabilitation, control and relief problems engaged the flood-scourged Ohio valley and the United States Congress.

Army engineers maintained a force of 120,000 river fighters along the defences to keep the worst flood in United States history from multiplying its toll of 381 dead, nearly 1,000,000 homeless and $550,000,000 in property loss.

The Mississippi was receding slowly in the Cairo, Ill., sector today and, barring storms to send the muddy water smashing against improvised dikes, engineers considered the battle won but promised a ceaseless watch for days or perhaps weeks to come.

President Roosevelt's $5,011,000,000 public works program to curb swollen rivers lay before a Congress receptive to flood control plans. The proposal calls for means to control the Ohio and Mississippi in combination with a six-year program of public works.

Reconstruction Next

Along the Ohio the hardest hit towns emerged further from flood waters and began thinking of reconstruction.

Cincinnati reported a shopping "boom" reminiscent of holiday trade as stores reopened to meet buyers' long-denied needs.

The Ohio overflow continued to retreat from Louisville at the rate of three feet a day, leaving the city with an acute housing problem which Mayor Neville Miller planned to discuss with Harry Hopkins, works progress administrator, enroute there today with the federal flood relief commission.

Far to the west, southern Oregon fought flood conditions brought about by rain and melting snows that sent streams overflowing on to highways.

ASSURING PLANE DELIVERIES.

PARIS, Feb. 5 (C.P.-Havas).—To eliminate delays in plane deliveries, the French Government to-day took over the Morane Saulnier airplane factories.

"Inadmissible delays having occurred in the delivery of planes for the air force, Pierre Cot, Minister of Air, has decided to requisition the Morane Saulnier factories," an official communique announced.

Vancouver's Motto To Cost Them $5,000

Vancouver, Feb. 5. (CP)

VANCOUVER Aldermen wondered today whether they had acted too quickly in giving their approval to a Junior Board of Trade suggestion that "and air" be included in the city's motto: "By land and sea we prosper."

Changing the coats of arms on door handles, bronze plaques and polished granite slabs of the new $1,500,000 City Hall will cost about $5,000, contractors estimated.

In addition, civic notepaper and seals will need to be altered, and approval of the College of Heraldry must be obtained before an airplane can be added to the civic insignia.

Group Will Study Scientific Feeding

A group of Peterborough men who are interested in the scientific feeding of livestock and poultry leaves next Monday for St. Louis, Mo., where they will visit the Purina mills and the company's experimental farm at Gray Summit in the Ozark country, thirty miles from St. Louis.

Ernest C. Braund, a dealer in Purina products, has been arranging details of the trip from Peterborough. He informed the Examiner to-day that the following men are going from here: Fred Mann, Gordon Mann Albert Garbutt, Harry Jackson, G. A. Gillespie, Dr. J. E. Middleton, John Lynch, Andrew Evans, Indian River, A. Shearer and Harry Carter of Westwood, Herb Darling, James Young, Edgar Wood, Norman Fee of Omemee, Norman Henry and Mr Braund Two Lindsay men are W. J Murphy and M. Irvine. The Purina special train out of Toronto reaches St. Louis Monday night, and returns Thursday night. The trip includes a stay in Chicago, and the attractive rate includes every item of expense even to taxi fares.

COE HILL

Every one is glad to see the cold weather again, the lumbermen are busy trying to get their logs into the mill yards before another soft spell comes.

The C.G.I.T. girls and Trail Rangers of the United Church spent a lovely evening in the Sunday school room, where they held a small concert, after that hot dogs were served for lunch.

Rev. Mr. Redding was in the village over the week-end and held service in the Anglican Church on Sunday evening.

Mr. Bert Urback is visiting his parents at Coe Hill.

Mrs. W. Holland and boys Kenneth and Harold spent the week-end in Windsor.

Mr. Douglas Watt has been on the sick list but is recovering again and able to be out.

Mr. Bill Henshorne was ailing for a time. He is able to be around again quite well.

Mr. Joe Sexsmith had a narrow escape last week when he overturned his car on the icy roads but was able to get it back on wheels and came on in to Coe Hill. No one was hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke are in the village at present.

Mrs. Ernest Landon was in the village with her sister, Mrs. Wilford Gunter on Friday and Saturday.

Rev. F. Wicks spent Sunday at Fenelon Falls with his son, Everett.

A carload of Coe Hill people visited Mr. George Smith of Bethel, 5 miles from Coe Hill who was one of the first citizens around here. He will be ninety-seven on the 14th day of April and can see well without glasses but is unable to hear.

USING MORE POWER

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 5—(CP)—Electrical power used in Brantford during 1936 was greater than that used in 1929, record year in the history of the local Hydro system, W. R. Cotton, local Hydro manager, attributed the increase to increased consumption of electrical power in local manufacturing plants.

LOSES $50,000 ACTION.

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP)—A Supreme Court jury last night dismissed the $50,000 action brought by Mrs. Ella M. Merritt of Grimsby against the Canadian National Railways after the death of her husband January 10, 1936, near Brantford. The husband was riding in an auto which was struck by a train.

REEVE P. STINSON ELECTED TO HEAD MILLBROOK FAIR

Annual Meeting Of Agricultural Society Hears Fine Reports From Last Year

FAIR DATES SET

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 5.—Retiring President, Nathaniel Belch presided at the annual meeting of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, which was held in the council chambers on Wednesday afternoon.

More than twenty-five members were in attendance and secretarial reports were received from J. N. McGill, secretary-treasurer, who also announced the financial statement, previously examined by the auditors, J. L. Byam and T. H. Collins, with total receipts amounting to $4,005.72; expenditures were $3,977.18. The society has an enrollment of 80 paid-up members. A communication from Mrs. J. Mitchell requested the presence of a delegation at the district convention, to be held in Lindsay. Although the date was not officially announced it is expected to take place during the month of April.

Reports were received from the chairmen of the various committees and lengthy discussion prevailed concerning the weaker features of the annual Fall Fair, and it was generally felt that interest in the exhibits was mostly dormant on account of the lack of local competition.

Interested friends addressing the society, other than the members on this subject included Henry Blakely, Manvers and H. A. Kerr, who as manager of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, expressed appreciation of the efforts of the finance committee, who have succeeded in paying off a loan of $900 during the past four years. A bank loan of $1000.00 has been renewed for another period.

Won't Enter Competition

The usual discussion took place on reforestation, property improvement, etc., and this year it was decided not to enter the field competition nor to send delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural Society being held in Toronto, February 11 and 12; although it announces new and special features for lady delegates, secretaries and treasurers.

N. Belch expressed appreciation of the loyal support accorded him during his presidency and solicited the same splendid co-operation for his successor.

Officers Are Elected

James L. McCamus occupied the chair for the election of officers and the following is the 1937 executive: President, Reeve P. Stinson: 1st Vice-president, T. W. Larmer; 2nd Vice-president, Robert McCamus; Directors, H. Tate, L. Sutton, R. Fallis, R. McCamus, H. A. Fallis, L. McNeil, W. Earle, R. J. McKnight, J. L. McCamus, R. O. Larmer, A. J. Henderson, G. A. Fair, L. H. Winslow, J. H. Paul, J. Whittington, D. Sheppard, P. I. Bentley, F. Lowery, V. R. Hunter, M. McDowell, A. H. Jeffrey, B. Sharpe, H. Blakely, W. Belch, N. Belch.

Directresses.—Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. G. P. Harrington, Mrs. P. Stinson, Mrs. R. McCamus, Misses Pearl Burnham and Josie Sutton.

Finance Committee.—W. T. Donaldson, A. J. Henderson, J. L. McCamus, W. Belch, H. A. Fallis, G. A. Fair.

Executive Committee. — A. J. Henderson, H. Tate, L. W. Smith, H. A. Fallis, R. J. McKnight, G. A. Fair, R. O. Larmer, J. L. McCamus, N. Belch.

Grounds Committee.—H. A. Fallis, G. A. Fair, N. Belch, W. Earl, R. J. McKnight, I. W. Larmer, W. E. Ball, H. Tate, A. J. Henderson, W. T. Donaldson and H. A. Fallis.

Entertainment Committee. — R. J. McKnight, P. I. Bently, N. Belch, W. E. Ball, H. A. Fallis, Mrs. G. P. Harrington, Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke and Mrs. P. Stinson.

Speed Committee.—A. J. Henderson, H. A. Fallis, H. Tate, P. Stinson.

Printing Committee.—A. J. Henderson, P. I. Bentley, A. H. Jeffrey and G. A. Fair.

Following the election, the new president took the chair and briefly addressed the gathering. A note of interest is contained in the fact that Mr. Stinson is the first village resident to occupy the presidency for a number of years. The speaker suggested that committees of two review the prize list, with the idea of revising some to meet the more current needs and in this way to arouse more interest among local citizens who may once again become listed among the competitors. Also addressing the gathering were the vice-presidents, T. W. Larmer and Robert McCamus.

J. N. McGill was chosen secretary-treasurer for another term, during the directors' meeting which followed the general session, and it was decided to make a visit and presentation of pipes to W. T. Donaldson, long a member and ardent supporter of all activities pertaining to the Agricultural Society, having retained a seat on the board for some thirty years. The event will take place in the immediate future.

Thursday, September 30, and Friday, October 1, were the dates set for the annual Fall Fair, and plans will be made for those dates unless announcements at the Lindsay district meeting make an alteration necessary.

DOG SAVES FAMILY

GANANOQUE, Ont., Feb. 5 — (C.P)—Barking of the family police dog awakened the household of J. R. McMurrich, to-day, to find that the building was on fire. The fire brigade was called and fought the blaze in almost zero weather. The residences of J. R. McMurrich and David Wilson were almost destroyed by fire and water. The estimated damage is about $8,000.

"SALADA" TEA

"A CHEST COLD CAN BE DANGEROUS"

That's what doctors say. So treat a cold with the respect it deserves. At the first sign—use PENETRO

If your child has a cold treat it at once. Rub PENETRO on chest, throat and back. Quicker in action, easier to use, and better in result than the out-moded mustard-plaster, PENETRO quickly stimulates circulation and allays congestion with its modern medication. At the same time its aromatic vapours fumigate the nasal passages, soothing and healing the delicate tissues. The penetrating action of this great family remedy is due to its mutton-suet base (which melts at body temperature) to which is added scientific, quick-acting medicaments. Yet PENETRO cannot harm the tenderest skin.

Don't delay—don't let any cold get even a headstart. Have PENETRO in the house always. It's equally as effective for adults as it is for children. Clear, simple directions are in each package. 25c at any druggist.

HAVELOCK BOARDS CANNOT COMBINE GOVERNMENT SAYS

Not Formed For Same Municipality Deputy-Minister Points Out

COMES AS BOMBSHELL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 5.—Havelock's proposed Board of Education, came to an abrupt end Tuesday evening, when a bombshell in the form of a letter from the Deputy Minister of Education, removed all possibility of a union between the Public and High School Boards.

T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P. in presenting the letter pointed out that a similar situation in Richmond Hill had prompted his investigation into the matter and that in that case the Board had been operating illegally for sixty-three years and had been forced to dissolve only last week. The letter stated that "a high school board and a public school board may form a union board only when the two boards have been formed for the same municipality." Havelock Public School Board however is in a union section, serving pupils from a portion of Belmont Township in addition to Havelock, while the High School serves only the village; therefore according to regulations set by the department they must be controlled by separate bodies.

While the members of both boards were still sitting in a combined meeting under the chairmanship of H. W. Roche, Mr. Lancaster addressed them as a whole in regards to the possible erection of an efficient fire-escape on the west side of the school stating that in his opinion such a protection was very much in need. All trustees were unanimous in approval of this suggestion and the matter will be taken into immediate consideration.

Hold Separate Meetings

Both boards remained at the end of the joint session to hold separate meetings, that evening being the statutory meeting night for the High School Board

All members of the High School Board were present, F. Breckenridge being elected chairman and Gordon Denike vice-chairman.

On motion of Trustees Lancaster and Denike, E. Pennell was re-appointed secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year.

Committees formed were: Finance—H. Wing, chairman, Mrs. G. Rigby and F. Breckenridge; Property—T. P. Lancaster, chairman, P. Spencer and F. Breckenridge.

On motion of Trustees Lancaster and Wing, the secretary was instructed to notify adjacent counties that Havelock High School offered free tuition to county pupils. The secretary was also instructed to order seven copies of the Ontario Ratepayers and Trustees Association manuals for the coming year.

The meeting was adjourned with the Board setting their regular meeting night for the last Friday of each month, commencing 14 March.

Public School Board

All members of the Public School Board were present with the exception of F. J. Squires. C. Taylor being re-elected chairman for the ensuing term.

Trustee Mrs. M. Brisbin was appointed as delegate to the annual meeting of the Ontario Trustees Association.

The secretary was instructed to order six copies of the Ontario Ratepayers Association manual. The regular meeting night set for the second Thursday of each month as formerly, the next meeting to be held on Thursday, February 11th.

J. Parcels was re-appointed truant officer, on motion of Trustees Pirie and Roche at a salary of $16 per year.

Mr. Pennell was re-appointed secretary-treasurer, on motion of Trustees Roche and Gardiner, at a salary of $75 per year, to include the High School share also.

Committees formed were: Finance—H. W. Roche, chairman, F. J. Squires, Mrs. M. Brisbin; Property—G. H. Gardiner, chairman, E. Pirie and H. W. Roche.

The following accounts were passed by both Boards:

Board Splits On Railway Cut Reductions

A majority finding of the board of conciliation studying demands of Canadian railway workers for restoration of their 10 per cent. pay cuts, recommended that the 117,000 workers be given one per cent. increase on February 1, second one per cent. increases not later than August 1 and additional one per cent. increases on November 1. Additional increases would depend upon increase in gross operating revenue of the companies. A minority report brought in by Fred Bancroft, (lower left) representing the employees, suggests a four per cent. increase on February 1 and gradual increases which would restore salaries to their former level by November 1. The board, consisting of Mr. Bancroft, W. Sanford Evans of Winnipeg (Right) and Hon. A. K. McLean, chairman (Centre) submitted their report to Hon. Norman Rogers, federal minister of labor (Top Right).

Weatherman Slips —But Not Any More

Los Angeles, Feb. 5 (CP)

L. H. Daingerfield, federal meteorologist, received this note through the mails:

"You said it was going to rain and it didn't. Well, I'm sick and tired of it, and if you make and more mistakes your life won't be worth a nickel. I'm coming down there and kill you and we'll get a weatherman who knows enough to come in out of the rain."

After turning the note over to federal agents, Daingerfield made his periodic forecast. It was: "Unsettled."

LAKEFIELD

OYSTER SUPPER MOST SUCCESSFUL

Enjoyable Affair Held By Women's Association Of Lakefield Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 5.—The ladies of Group B of the Women's Association of Lakefield United Church held a highly successful oyster supper in the Sunday School room on Wednesday evening. The supper was well attended and nicely served. The tables, which were decorated with artificial flowers, looked lovely and were laden with deliciously appetizing refreshments. The oysters, the main course of the meal, were served in the form of soup, and were much enjoyed. The ladies expect to net about $30 from the enterprise, and are to be congratulated on the high quality of the food and the expeditious manner in which it was served.

Personals.

Mr. Arthur Diack of Brantford was in Lakefield over the week-end, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. Davis.

Mrs. F. J. Burgess, who recently underwent an operation in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, is convalescing at her home in Lakefield.

Miss Ruth Tatham, who recently lost an eye due to an unfortunate accident, is improving rapidly, and the doctor is hopeful that she will be back at school before many weeks are past.

Mrs. W. M. Graham, Lakefield, met with an unfortunate accident at her home in Lakefield on Thursday evening about 7 o'clock, when she slipped on a rug and fell, injuring her hip. The exact extent of the injury is at present unknown. Mrs. Graham is being taken to hospital in Peterborough for an X-ray examination.

A.Y.P.A. Members Have Trinity Organization As Guests At Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Feb. 5.—The A.Y.P.A. of Christ Church, Omemee, entertained the members of the Y.P.U. of Trinity United Church Monday evening, February 1. About sixty visitors were present. Mr. George Stephenson, president of the A.Y.P.A. welcomed the guests. Games and contests and community singing were enjoyed.

Messrs W. G. Stephen, A. Adams, G. and B. Stephenson favored the gathering with a couple of vocal numbers. Miss L. Jamison presided at the piano.

At the close of the program dainty refreshments were served, after which Edward Lowes moved a hearty vote of thanks to the A.Y.P.A., which was seconded by Miss Doris Vaughan.

Mr. C. Ivory and Mr. H. Lamb attended a meeting of the Victoria Trust and Loan in Lindsay Tuesday afternoon.

MARMORA CHURCH HAS BOX SOCIAL

Men's Club And Sunday School Jointly Sponsor

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Feb. 5. — Under the joint auspices of St. Paul's Men's Club and Sunday School a box social was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday. Owing to other attractions being held the same evening the attendance was limited, but those present enjoyed the program of songs and dancing. Fred Johnston auctioned off the boxes, for which no extravagant prices were paid.

Poor Man's Supper.

Circle 3 of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's United Church received good patronage at the poor man's supper served by them in St. Andrew's Hall on Wednesday evening. The cooking and service was excellent and many were puzzled as to where the title applied, contentment being writ on all countenances.

Anchor Pulls Up $100,000 Of Opium

When the Japanese freighter Gyokoh Maru hoisted her anchor before moving to her berth at New Westminster, B.C., eleven sacks containing opium valued at $100,000 were brought to the surface as shown above. The sacks were wired together on a long rope and each contained a number of cans of the narcotic. According to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police narcotic squad it has been the custom of smugglers to throw long strings of "dope" overboard from incoming steamers. Confederates then drag for the bundle.

OMEMEE

ANNUAL BANQUET MOST SUCCESSFUL

Enjoyable Time Is Spent By Members Of Omemee Bible Class

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Feb. 5.—The Friendship Bible Class of Trinity United Church held their annual banquet in the basement of the church on Friday. The room and the tables were decorated with blue and gold streamers and gold candles and, thanks to the ladies of the church, the tables were well laden with delicious things to eat.

Between courses, the toastmaster, Bill Weir, led in community singing.

The first program item was the toast to the King. After the singing of the National Anthem as a reply, a few appropriate words were heard from the toastmaster, who is the president of the class and who enlivened the entire program with his ready wit.

Richard Vaughan proposed the toast to the Church, and Rev. Mr. MacTavish replied. A quartette, composed of Mrs. C. Elliott, Miss Mary Faulkner, Cyril Elliott and Richard Vaughan, rendered some splendid harmony in a Southern medley number. Miss Helen Moyer proposed a fitting toast to the Sunday School. Mr. Lamb, superintendent, responded.

The Class Toasted

A toast to the class was proposed by Cyril Elliott, and was replied to by Mrs. Meyer, who is teacher and leader and to whom the class owes much of its success. Mr. Edward Lowes proposed a rather humorous toast to the Ladies, to which Miss Marion Rea very capably responded. Miss Eleanor Sherin sang a much-appreciated solo entitled "Humoresque."

The speaker of the evening, introduced by the toastmaster, was Mr. Mabis, a commercial teacher in Lindsay Collegiate Institute. He spoke very entertainingly on a trip to Europe last Summer, giving many amusing details.

The quartette gave another number, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

A hearty vote of thanks to the speaker and all taking part in the program was moved by Miss Doris Vaughan and seconded by Miss Hazel Wilson. The singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and the Benediction pronounced by Rev. F. G. MacTavish brought to a close another successful banquet—the fifth since the class was organized by the late F. G. Sandy.

Aviatrix Charged

MME. IRENE SCHMEDER

Mme. Irene Schmeder, aviatrix, arrives in Paris en route to Versailles to stand trial for the shooting of a fellow pilot in a love drama of the clouds. According to the story told by police, Mme. Schmeder had made her "last and final proposal of marriage" to pilot Pierre Lallemant in a plane high in the clouds. He refused and sought to pass it off jokingly. Then she shot him in the back, the prosecution alleges. The pilot managed to land his plane safely. Mme. Schmeder disappeared with the plane and later crashed at Sussex, England.

TWEED

THREE ARE JAILED FOR KILLING DEER IN CLOSED SEASON

Wanton Destruction Of Game Results In Imprisonment For Offenders

INVESTIGATING DEATH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 5.—Three Northbrook men were each given three months in the county jail at Napanee when they were found guilty by Magistrate Lloyd on charges of illegally destroying deer out of season. The deer were discovered in a heap at Wolfe Lake near Bon Echo by Game Warden Ed. Morley of Northbrook.

The finding of the carcasses led to an immediate investigation and it was not long before the poachers were in custody.

Included in the heap of dead animals was the body of a small fawn. Only the hindquarter of one animal had been cooked and apparently eaten by the culprits.

The deer were brought to North brook and locked in the warehouse of C. C. Thompson & Son and the seizure was immediately reported to the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries. The apprehension and conviction of those responsible for the wholesale slaughter of the deer is due in no small measure to the vigilant and effective work of the game inspector, Edward Morley.

A Liquor Case.

At the local session of Police Court conducted by Magistrate Lloyd, an Actinolite man pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal consumption of liquor, the charge being reduced from one of illegal possession. The defendant was represented by I. D. Corcoran. Owing to certain circumstances surrounding the case, the accused was ordered to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs. The charge was the result of an investigation conducted during the previous week-end by Chief Constable J. C. Hayes.

Investigate Death.

An investigation was ordered last week into the death of George Edward Harten, who died on November 13, 1936. The unfortunate man was proceeding to Tweed Fair on September 25, in his son's car when the steering gear became disengaged at Black Creek Crossing. Mr. Harten suffered an injury to his spine, causing a partial paralysis. It was only within the last few days that Constable Hayes received orders to probe all angles of the case and submit a report to the department.

Jailed for Damages.

Two Tweed youths went to the county jail on Tuesday, where they will spend the next fifteen days following charges of wilfully destroying the fence at the Tweed Fair grounds. It is alleged that the young men with several others, removed numerous boards and had been in the habit of using them to build fires on a skating pond near the park. A couple of others paid fines for the same offence.

Newsreel theatres are being opened in London railway stations.

Catarrh Often Causes Deafness.

It is said that 90% of all cases of deafness are caused by catarrh. Therefore, people should be taught to know the symptoms of catarrh, because here is an ailment which can do a lot of damage, if treatment is neglected. Loss of taste and smell and a constant lazy, let-down feeling often result from neglect of this trouble. Too, catarrh causes head noises, a roaring, hissing in the ears; the hearing becomes impaired to such an extent partial deafness may result. All these are symptoms that should have immediate attention.

For this purpose secure from your druggist a bottle of Parmint Concentrate (double strength) which is an old reliable English formula. One ounce of Parmint Concentrate will make 8 ounces of medicine by adding a little sugar and water.

Parmint Concentrate is a handy home treatment for those symptoms which lead to catarrhal deafness and head noises and should be used by everyone who is troubled this way. Any drug store can supply you and you can easily add sugar and water to make a big bottle of medicine.

Parmint is an excellent preparation and is widely used by our English cousins. If you have the annoying symptoms of catarrh, don't run the risk of letting it become so deep seated that you may become partly or totally deaf.

Two People in the News

Two stories came on the wire from United States on the same day. Each told about an individual, but they were quite different.

There was Mrs. Anna Miller, described as an aged recluse living at Spokane, Wash. She became ill from lack of food, lack of clothing and lack of warmth in her three room house. Then it was she sent for police because she was certain people were trying to break in. When police looked through the place they found starving chickens and cats, and they also found the woman had $40,000 in cash. In one dresser drawer there was $1,000 in bills; a flour sack was stuffed full of money, but Mrs. Anna Miller was not happy. She was sick and fearful. The very fact that she was surrounded by money caused her to fear that some one would come and take it away.

The other story told of J. J. "Uncle John" Allen, who had gone past the century mark, and he had died at Davis, Okla. He was in the Confederate Army and an agreement was made between four men that should any of them fall in battle the others would "look after the children." Two of them were killed and the third disappeared. It was then that John Allen went back to keep his promise and in all he looked after 43 orphans of the war. That is how he earned that name "Uncle John," by which the district knew him. In his own peculiar way he explained it "We all just went to farmin'." The children he assisted lived to settle for themselves and they cherished and honored the memory of the man who had kept a promise made on a battle field. Not at any time did "Uncle John" Allen have the money which is in the dirty house of Mrs. Anna Miller, but there was wealth there which could not be computed in terms of dollars, but it could be measured in the soul of a man and the honor which anchors to the one who measures up to his pledged word.

How Will It Be Done

The situation now existing at Flint, Mich., is interesting to watch because it will be seen shortly how the process of enforcing a law or an order of the court is going to be carried into execution. Judge Gadola has declared that the sit-down strikers who have been in the premises of General Motors plants in that city for six weeks are actually trespassers as the company declares the men are no longer employees.

That much is simple. The next move is to cut off the food supplies which have ben previously taken to the sit-down strikers, and this is done by placing a cordon of troops around the premises. No person can enter the place, but those inside can leave if they wish in order to secure food, but they cannot return. At the moment they show no inclination to leave. They are apparently content to tighten the belt and wait.

Sheriff Walcott says he is prepared to evacuate the men if the court orders such procedure, but the Sheriff says he is not going to apply for such an order. If such an order were served on him he would have to call on the troops to enter the premises and clean out the strikers, and that would mean fighting and possible death.

The claim of General Motors officials is said to be that it is the duty of the court to carry out its own order. It has declared the men are illegally occupying the premises, therefore it should proceed to the logical conclusion of such finding and have the men removed.

Another report indicates that if the men refuse to move they could be summoned to court for contempt and dealt with that way, although admittedly that is a formidable way when those who might be found in contempt number in the thousands.

We shall soon see whether the law is nimble or rough in the manner of carrying out the order of the court which declared the sit-down strikers should leave the premises.

Forced To Do It

Dr. L. J. Austin of the medical staff of Queen's University, is credited with making the claim in an address at Sudbury that medical students at Toronto University were deliberately plucked at the end of their first year so that there would be fewer in the second year.

Of course that has been denied on behalf of Toronto University. It is explained that the method used was to increase the required pass standing for the first year from 50 to 60 per cent., and it is explained this was done "because of the limited facilities for teaching at our hospitals."

That method would weed out a good many of the first year students, and would eliminate all who failed to come up to the 60 per cent. standard. Osgoode Hall did something similar a few years ago when it declared that students passing senior matriculation with a view to studying law would be required to have a 60 per cent. standing. The crush to enter the professions has been so marked in recent years that universities are hard pressed to give proper attention to all who apply. In such a situation it seems reasonable that raising standards as a means of eliminating those of least ability is something which of necessity would have to be done.

Homer Watson's Pictures

Doon will live and so will the hills and valleys round about it; so will the trees. Homer Watson made certain of that in his days of living and working. This great Canadian artist whose work is on exhibition at the Y.W.C.A. this week, saw some of the outside world, mingled with the crowds in metropolitan centres, but came back to Doon, the place of his birth and there he remained. And there he painted what he saw and kept on painting until he died in his 81st year.

When Homer Watson painted "Drover's Cabin" he worked on canvas of sufficient size to give him the scope needed to produce his beloved trees in all their strength. He placed in it a sky which was filled with ominous warnings of rough weather to come. Those trees might bend but they would not break; they would resist but never would they surrender. That one painting in itself is sufficient to place Homer Watson in the class of world painters.

The collection throughout has the hand of Homer Watson upon it. Doon lives wherever the paintings go. Honor was his from many sources. One of his paintings was purchased for presentation to Queen Victoria, another went to Windsor Castle. His worth was recognized by art guilds and universities sought him out for honorary degrees. And yet Homer Watson was never under instruction; no master or school could say he was a student under enrolment. He merely started to paint and kept on painting. Instruction from one of less strength might have weakened his conception or dwarfed his power and daring. That one great work "Drover's Cabin" was done twelve years ago, but it was never sold. The reason? Homer Watson did not want to part with it, and it is not difficult to believe that is actually why it remained in his studio until the time of his death.

Because He Was An Editor

Karl Radek, the most brilliant editor Russia ever produced, was not shot along with other traitors who were found guilty of conspiracy. Radek fell in with Leon Trotsky when the time came to overthrow the Romanoffs. But he had been agitating before then; he knew what it was to be dumped in prison, and he knew how to get out again.

Whether Radek expected to have his life spared at the conclusion of the recent trial is uncertain. Evidence he gave himself did not show that he was pleading for further existence, so we are forced to the odd conclusion that he was not lined up before the firing squad because he was a good and brilliant editor. There were others who were engineers, managers of Russian industries, those connected with the running of railways and in charge of heavy industries, but they were popped off with little ceremony. But the great land of experiment could not spare a good editor. The prosecutors bitter as they were, knew they could go searching about and hire other men with knowledge in many varied lines, but they also knew that editors are a rare species, especially good editors like Karl Radek.

We believe that is the only reason why Karl Radek is alive today, although in prison for a spell. He was an editor, and if they started killing editors they realized their whole country would go to pieces.

The Eating of Porridge

Complaint that inmates of the Reformatory at Guelph had no sugar to sprinkle on their porridge leads the Stratford Beacon-Herald to say that if these folk had been Scots they never would have lodged such a complaint. The Stratford paper says: "They will simply not put sugar on 'them.' Scots always refer to porridge as 'them.' To do this is to spoil porridge for a Scot."

We learn also from the Stratford paper that the "Scots know their porridge better than other people know their onions." It is quite right to say the Scots refer to porridge as "them," but it is not right to claim that sweetening spoils porridge for the Scottish palate. Just to make certain we asked a Scot who walks daily only a few steps from the editorial desk. He is from Ayrshire and in the family there were some fourteen children. The father liked his porridge with treacle upon it, but other members of the family divided between that and sugar.

We recall one old gentleman at breakfast in Dumfries. Eating porridge was to him a ceremony. The dish was before him and he put on a fair enough coating of sugar. At the side of the dish was a large cup in which the milk was placed. Then the spoon was placed in the porridge, after which it was dipped in the milk and then eaten. And that we are convinced, is the proper way to eat porridge according to the best traditions of the Scottish race.

Our Interest Is Aroused

What sort of a government have they in Nova Scotia? The price of gasoline was advanced by seven companies operating there to the extent of one-half cent per gallon, and immediately notice was served by the Nova Scotia Board of Public Utilities that wholesalers' licenses would be suspended unless that half-cent increase were knocked off. And the distributing companies were given two days in which to make the alteration.

Within recent days the price of gasoline went up one cent in our own district, but there was no stern notice served on any person in connection with it. The drivers of cars as they purchased supplies may have been moved to make mild or violent protest according to the degree of dynamite lodged within their systems—but that was all.

We would like to know what sort of people run the government in Nova Scotia. They must be big fellows in whom there is no fear. We have a great deal of government in our province, in fact too much of it, but we have not the kind which hollers at the gas company and says "Hi there, knock off that half-cent increase in gas or else we will put you out of business!" We find ourselves growing more interested in that seaboard province of Nova Scotia.

QUITE A SHOW

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When Pious Jonas took his pew, he kicked up quite a little stew, he shuffled here and there; he put his Bible on the seat, and then he had to place his feet, and gain a saintly air.

¶ They called him Pious Jonas then, when I sat with the little men, because he looked that way; the Bible stuck beneath his arm, it lent him poise and gave him charm, he brought it every day.

¶ He opened it with friendly ease, and spread it well upon his knees, and read the lessons there; and when he turned back toward the farm, the book was well beneath his arm, he handled it with care.

¶ And all the people used to think, that from the fountainhead he'd drink, he'd read the thing all through; and Pious Jonas' fame had spread, he'd have whole chapters in his head, alas that was not true.

¶ When Jonas took his Bible home, he placed it on a little throne, and it was not disturbed; nor did he thumb its pages there, or handle it with tender care, nor learn the sacred word.

¶ His wife was patient, likewise meek, some chores she did just once a week, nor did she laugh or scoff; each Sunday when they hitched the nag, she always went to get a rag—and dust the Bible off.

Riots in Prison Are All Planned

(London Free Press)

PRISONERS in penitentiaries and reformatories don't riot in the hope of escaping from custody. They hope to awaken the public to prison conditions.

That is the claim of 28-year-old William Stewart, of Ottawa, who has seen prison riots from the inside, has seen them planned weeks in advance and has watched them flare up and cause thousands of dollars in damage in a few hours.

Just out of Kingston penitentiary, broke, hungry and unable to get work, Stewart landed in London in his search for a job. But he has found that people won't hire an ex-convict.

"It's hard enough for a man without a record to get a job," he declared. "But it is almost impossible for a fellow who has been in the penitentiary."

Stewart was a railway employee until the depression came. Then he was squeezed out through the seniority system.

"I was too proud to beg and I couldn't get work," he explained. "So I decided to steal from the ones I thought could best afford to lose it. I figured if I robbed a jewelry store in Toronto it would be protected by insurance and no one would suffer very badly. Well I got caught and was sentenced to two and a half years in Kingston penitentiary.

"I thought it was a pretty stiff sentence for a first offender. I could have taken more from the jewelry store; I could have cleaned it out. But I didn't. I just took enough to keep me in food for a little while."

* * *

STEWART said that when he went to Kingston he found out why there were prison riots.

"The food is rotten and the men are buried alive," he declared.

"For instance a man is started off in the morning with a little porridge and brown sugar, dry bread and tea or coffee. At least they call it tea or coffee. Then the meals the rest of the day are just about as bad. One day a week you get a real good meal. That's on Sunday. At noon hour on Sunday they give you a good hot dinner, about the same as you would get in a restaurant for 35 cents.

"The people are paying enough to keep the prisons going. They should investigate a little closer."

Stewart also blames prison troubles on the lack of recreation. He thinks prisoners should be given time to play games and have a little fun once in a while. He also believes there should be some way of an independent board hearing the prisoners' complaints. At present, according to his story, no action is ever taken when a prisoner has a grievance.

"There were two riots while I was in Kingston," Stewart told The Free Press. "The first was in the change room and it resulted in about $75,000 damage. The second was in the tailor shop with damage of about $50,000.

"Before the riots the men went to the warden with grievances which were sent on to Ottawa. But as usual nothing was done. So they rioted to awaken the public to conditions. They hoped the public would do something. They knew Ottawa wouldn't."

* * *

STEWART says that riots are usually worked out a long time in advance. He claims they are seldom spontaneous. He says that the popular way is to start a fire. To do this the prisoners must get some gasoline. The first one to go to the hospital section will instruct a fellow prisoner there to get a medicine bottle and have it ready to pass to him the next time he comes. When the bottle is secured it is passed along from one prisoner to another until it reaches the garage. There one of the prisoners fills it with gasoline and passes it back along the line.

"When the men are working in one of the shops, say the tailor shop, they will gather up pieces of cloth and pile them in a box under a bench," continued Stewart. "Then when they are ready some one will pour in the gasoline and set it on fire. If the bench is in a good spot the fire might get along pretty fast before the guards notice it.

"Before this happens the men get close to the guards who are inside the room. When the fire is discovered the prisoners grab the guards and hold them in front of the entrance so the men outside can't shoot. They hold the place until the fire is going good. They smash up things until thousands of dollars' damage has been done.

"It would really be cheaper if they listened to the men's complaints in the first place."

THE EMPIRE'S PLACE.

(Melbourne Argus)

THE Empire does not involve the world in its domestic problems and crises. Other nations have diverted the discontent of citizens by precipitating crises with neighbouring or weaker nations, but the Empire has kept its domestic troubles within its own boundaries. Even though unemployment and poverty within the Empire have been exploited by the enemies of the British system, the Empire has not retaliated but has gone on in its quiet dignity and brought its enemies to reluctant acknowledgment that the integrity of the Empire is essential even to the welfare of those who would be its enemies, not as a nation but as the exponent of an opposing order. Thus it goes: enemies, rivals, competitors, all know that were the Empire to falter in its stride the pace of the world would diminish. The Empire is the driving-wheel, the motive power, and the safety-valve of international production and welfare.

A Bit of Nonsense

Keeping His Reputation

The late Mr. Justice Day, of England, was noted alike for his severe sentences and his love of port. Once when he was on a circuit, a high sheriff sent him a case of excellent port and, being anxious to know how his gift had been appreciated, he inquired after his bottles of the Judge who was Day's colleague on the circuit.

"As was to be expected," said the Judge, "he tried them all patiently and punished them severely."

Those Youthful Criminals.

(From the Kitchener Record.)

A SAD indictment of our day and generation is voiced in the statistics presented by the superintendent of the Guelph Reformatory to the Royal Commission probing the recent riot. It is pitiful to know that 60 per cent. of the inmates of the reformatory are boys of 21 years of age or under. Yet 50 per cent have had previous convictions against them. In this prison are children of 15 years of age.

The growth of crime among teen age children has developed amazingly within the last decade or so. Before the Great War and for some time beyond that moral upheaval criminals were invariably older men. Nowadays the majority of lawbreakers are youths in their teens or twenties.

There must be a reason—or reasons—for this lamentable change in the personnel of the criminal world. Youth is not naturally vicious. The majority of boys and young men would rather tread the straight and narrow path. Their criminal tendencies are not inherent. They are in most cases fostered by circumstances beyond their control.

Unemployment is possibly the greates factor contributing to these moral lapses. Idle hands usually get into trouble sooner or later. You can't expect healthy, normal boys to sit back and twiddle their thumbs. Their minds crave activity and if this cannot be found in honorable channels they turn in desperation to the dishonorable. Parental control is lacking in so many homes that it is small wonder that boys kick over the traces. The movies are blamed for a lot of crimes. Love of easy money is also a contributing factor. Once started, it is not easy for the young criminal to stop. He goes from bad to worse until he finds himself definitely linked with the criminal rather than with the law-abiding class.

It would be rather interesting to know just what started these boys and young men on the downward path. There are 329 under 20 years of age in the Guelph institution. Are the boys to blame or is their environment so utterly wrong? Here is a question for the social worker and for the man and woman who are interested in the welfare of youth. One wonders whether or not the next ten years will see an increase or a diminution in crime among adolescents. To many the Guelph statistics will prove an unwelcome eye-opener.

Plump Girls The Best Wives?

(From the Edmonton Journal.)

HAS ANY male of the species yet discovered any fundamental justification for the passion of the female to be slender? Why should she be willing and eager to invest hunger, worry, wasted time, money, uncomfortable trappings and sacrificed pleasures—or all of them—to achieve artificially and unnaturally a sylph-like appearance?

The strongest theory is that the reason is the despot known as Fashion, and probably akin to the dictatorial piece of nonsense which ordains that men shall cling to the ridiculous institution of the necktie as a relic of the old-time neckerchief which, in its day, was a necessary and utilitarian piece of apparel.

So perhaps the fashion of slim womanhood is a legacy from the era when it took twice as many rabbit-skins to clothe a fat cavewoman as it did a thin one. Or from the time when walking over hilly countryside or swinging from tree to tree were the chief modes of travel, when extra weight was a serious liability.

Anyway, a courageous man has just written, evidently after suitable investigation, a bit of strong advice to the youth of his sex: Pick a fat girl if you want a good wife. She need not be absolutely fat, he infers, as long as she is comfortably stout, or at least plump. But he says flatly the girl with roly-poly tendencies is practically sure to be more amiable a better cook, less apt to stray off the premises, and an all-round better wife than the average perfect 36 can be expected to prove.

The explanation is a logical one, says the defender and lauder of curved womanhood. Any girl who is not afraid of having a little more flesh than natural law actually requires is likely to be practically bubbling over with health all the time. Furthermore, since she obviously enjoys eating, she's likely to be so interested in food as to make it something of a hobby. In short, the plump girl usually is aware that there's more in a kitchen than a refrigerator and a can-opener and she can be depended upon to work marvels in the way of cooking.

Our Lesser Loyalties.

(From the Oshawa Times.)

(From The Oshawa Times)

WE READ in an exchange the other day an article declaring that people of today were so busy and concerned about how to make a living or financial ends meet that they have forgotten their lesser loyalties, for the benefit of the church, the state and the community at large.

Frankly, we believe that this is true. It is typical of the age in which we live. We take too much for granted and we lose out because we forget or neglect the things which come close to home and are of real value to us, and what seem to us to be lesser loyalties are of the most vital importance only we do not seem to understand.

One of the lesser loyalties may be said to be buying at home and patronizing local merchants. We know full well that a great many people, no doubt business men, too, buy away from home and never think of giving the local merchant a chance. They do not even ask the local merchant if he has the goods they want, and if he is out of stock at the moment, give him a chance to get them. Because they are advertised in the city, they must be cheaper and of better quality than sold locally. On the other hand, the merchant has a duty to perform. He is not loyal to his community if he does not make a real, honest-to-goodness effort to meet city competition by keeping his stock up-to-date and rendering every service to the public that lies within his power. Methods of conducting business which drives trade away from himself and his neighbors may be one of his lesser loyalties, but it is important—very much so. The only idea that the public know what local merchants keep and will buy if they want to has long been relegated into the limbo of things forgotten. We are living in a new age—an age of keen competition—an age of the survival of the fittest, and service of the highest type counts for most, and is not to be measured in dollars and cents.

In the field of religious endeavor neglect of the church and a failure to realize its place in the community is to many of us one of the lesser loyalties. We are not loyal to the church if we do not attend its services and do not support it financially. We are not loyal if we continually blame the minister if things are not going as they should while all the while it is not the minister who is to blame but the members of the congregation. Nor are we loyal if we expect the women to raise the bulk of the money by pink teas, quiet bazaars, etc., when by making regular contributions to the church funds through envelopes or other means we can easily solve our church financial problems. We think that in voicing these sentiments we have put our finger on one of our lesser loyalties.
